Letter From the Tree Warden.

EDITOR OF THE STAR:

I regret exceedingly that I shall not be able to attend the adjourned Town Meeting as there are several articles in the warrant in which I am unusually interested. Especially am I interested in Article 7, inserted at my request, to see if the Town will urge the Board of Health to proceed against gypsy and brown-tail moths as public nuisances. Since I cannot be on hand to present the matter to the citizens at the meeting, may I ask to be allowed to state the case in your columns?

It was brought to my notice that the Boards of Health of Everett and Chelsea had taken some such action the past year. Letters of enquiry to those boards brought out these facts:

The Everett Board of Health issued a circular early in March, a copy of which was sent to every property owner. This circular, a copy of which will be in the hands of the gentleman who will represent the tree department at the Town Meeting on July 5, stated that the board adjudged the gypsy and brown tail moths a nuisance and a menace to public health, and called on all property owners to remove same before March 21. It further stated that if the owner failed to act the board would proceed under Chapter 75, Section 69, of the Revised Laws. Their chairman writes me that they carried this out.

Chelsea's Board of Health wrote that they sent notices to owners whenever complaint was lodged, and with good results. They add that in their opinion "boards of health will be obliged to adopt more stringent measures regarding this nuisance."

It is my desire that the town should at this time take action which will prove to our Board of Health that the citizens desire them to grapple with this problem. I have reason to believe that the Board of Health only awaits an expression of public sentiment in the matter. This is a new field for this board and they naturally approach it with conservatism. If the citizens turn out next Tuesday night and vote strongly in favor of the board's taking action, then there will be reason enough why they should invoke the nuisance law for our relief.

Chapter 75, Section 69 of the Revised Laws, under which the Everett Board of Health acted, reads as follows:

"If the owner or occupant fail to comply with such order, the Board of Health may cause the nuisance, source of filth or cause of sickness to be removed, and all expenses incurred thereby shall be paid by the person who caused or permitted the same, if he has had actual notice from the Board of Health of the existence thereof."

It is not my idea that this should be put in force today, but it is this machinery is to be utilized it should be set up now and be put in motion as soon as the leaves are off the trees in the autumn. From that time until late in March it will be possible for every one to economically remove the pests. Let us be ready.

Again it is not my idea that this is the ideal way of accomplishing the result. It is merely a temporary makeshift until something better can be devised by the Legislature. The General Court declined, this year, to take any action, largely I am led to believe, because the authorities of the infested cities and towns failed to agree among themselves on the best plan of action. The result is that the insects have won another season of unrestricted riot.

The Tree Warden has statutory power to enter any private lands for the purpose of suppressing insect pests, but he has no power to assess the cost upon the owner. This is the weakness of that law. Surely the town should not attempt to pay such a bill of expense out of the public treasury. Even this year's generous appropriation for the tree department would not be one one-hundredth part large enough to cover the cost.

This is why the Board of Health should be asked to help, because it has the power to collect the cost. That these insects are a nuisance, directly affecting the public health, is a fact in the opinion of those who have suffered.

Let us take the weapons we have at hand and fight until such time as we can manufacture more perfect ones.

It is urged that to apply such a law to a man owning a large woodland acreage would result in the confiscation of his land. This is true, and in my opinion this is where the Commonwealth should step in and bear the cost over and above a certain fixed minimum amount. It is unjust, however, that one man should be allowed to maintain infested trees adjacent to a property which is cleaned, and thus renege unduly the protected trees. If a man cannot afford to clean his trees let him cut them down, or enough of them along his boundaries so that his neighbor will not suffer. If the trees are not cut down and utilized it will only be a question of time, and a comparatively short time at that, when they will be killed by the repeated stripping by the caterpillars. Pines and all other conifers will be killed by the very first stripping. Therefore it is no hardship to require a man to cut his trees if he will not or cannot clean them.

While we have a good deal of infested woodland in our town, we have also a large area devoted to residential purposes, and this latter is our chief source of wealth. The bulk of the people who live or own property in this residential area annually clean their premises of insects. A few do not, and it is chiefly the non-resident speculator in our real estate who is negligent in this respect. How long shall we tolerate this?

At the risk of assuming an alarmist note I will assert that unless this nuisance is speedily checked its effect on our real estate values will be marked. It is time now to fight, and I hope that every voter will attend the Town Meeting next Tuesday night, July 5, and express his mind by voice or vote.

ALLEN CHAMBERLAIN,
Tree Warden.

Dutch—Lawrance.

Mr. Herbert Wilbur Dutch, sub-master of the Winchester High School, and Miss Ruth Irvin Lawrance, daughter of Rev. and Mrs. William J. Lawrance, were united in marriage at the home of the bride's parents, 14 Winthrop street, on the evening of June 26th. Misses Marjorie Dutch, Mary C. Lawrance, Bertha Russell, Florence Ripley, Margaret French, Ella Emerson and Gertrude Symmes of Winchester, and Miss Maynard Knox of Pelham Manor, N. Y., acted as flower girls. About 25 young men of the Phi Delta Society, whose members are or have been students in the High school, formed a "guard of honor."

The ceremony was performed by the bride's father, the bride and groom plighting their troth by a beautiful formula devised by themselves. The occasion was marked by a spirit of deep religious solemnity, into which all present fully entered.

Charles F. Dutch, brother of the groom, was best man.

Miss Lawrance came to Winchester with her parents in 1899, and has resided here since, except for a year's absence in Germany, where she went for study, after her graduation from the High school, in 1901. Mr. Dutch has lived in Winchester the most of his life, and has been a teacher in the High school for several years. His success as a teacher and his uplifting influence as a man are matters of common remark among our citizens. He has been elected principal of the High school in Muskegon, Mich., a school having about thirty teachers and eight hundred pupils. Mr. and Mrs. Dutch will go to Muskegon in August. The best wishes of many people go with them.

Annual Report of President, Winchester Y. M. C. A. at Annual Meeting Held June 16, 1904.

On the 30th of April the Winchester Y. M. C. A. completed its 14th year of existence. The present management has taken pride in closing each year without debt and this year, we are happy to say, after much strenuous effort we have paid all our bills and a small balance on the right side of the ledger.

Mr. Ernest G. Gay who has been our Gen'l Sec'y for five years, left us Nov. 1st to accept the same position with the Quincy, Mass., Ass'n at an increased salary. Mr. Gay's efforts during these years were of great value to us, and it was with deep regret that we had to lose his able management. Nearly every department has felt the loss of his guiding hand. The services of Mr. Clarence Stetson of Woburn who has had some experience in association work were secured to fill the position of secretary until a permanent man could be found to fill Mr. Gay's position. Mr. Stetson has attended to his duties very acceptably to the directors. After much searching and correspondence we were unable to find a suitable man for the difficult field which Winchester presents, and Mr. Stetson remained with us until the closing of our fiscal year. We are glad to announce that Mr. James A. Lawrence of Kingston, Ontario, a graduate of the Springfield Training School, and of several years experience as a General Secretary, has accepted the position offered him, and will begin his duties as General Secretary of our association August 1st.

There is one department of our work which has made a distinct gain. I refer to the physical work, as will be seen by the report of our able physical director, Mr. Sanford.

The increasing interest and efforts put forth in behalf of the boys of our town is one of the most encouraging phases of our work. We believe in reaching the boy at 13 and 18, the most impressionable period of his life. There is no place where this can be done to greater advantage outside of the home than in the Y. M. C. A. The annual boys camp at Friendship, Maine, has been the starting point of a new life to many a Winchester Y. M. C. A. boy. The educational feature of our work has been chiefly in the evening mechanical drawing classes, as will be found in the report of the educational committee. The association desires to broaden this feature of its work, and introduce other branches of evening study.

The religious life of our members has not been nurtured as we could wish. In fact after Mr. Gay's departure the Bible classes were discontinued as we could find no one competent to take charge. Our Sunday afternoon men's meetings have also been given up much to our regret. We look forward to a decided improvement in this department of our work the coming season. Instead of being the weakest feature it should be the strongest.

It is impossible in a report of this nature to convey to the average person the influence such an organization as our Y. M. C. A. is to the welfare of the town. Only those in close touch with what is being done can appreciate it.

The citizens of the town who contribute nearly two-thirds of the money spent to carry on the work should visit our rooms, and aid us in kindly criticism and advice. We are deeply indebted to the Women's Auxiliary who have aided us in many substantial ways, and under the new president Mrs. Dunning, we look forward to greater cooperation in our splendid work.

In closing I would mention our great need of larger and better facilities for the prosecution of our work and we anticipate the time when we can have a building of our own suitable for our needs.

The head of the State police has sent out orders to the chiefs of police of cities and towns in the State requesting them to prohibit the selling by dealers of certain lines of fireworks. Delay in sending out the order has worked hardships to many retailers who have purchased their supplies, and some of them think it was done purposely so that the wholesalers might have opportunity to get rid of their stocks.

PROTECTION OF BIRDS.

Would Not Advocate the Killing of Any Bird.

Some Good Advice to the Enemies of the English Sparrow.

EDITOR OF THE STAR:

In last week's STAR I read the article which appeared relating to the so-called protection of birds, and signed "Bird Lover." Whilst I do not doubt the well-meaning of the writer of that article, I take serious issue with him for what I consider misguided zeal in this matter. I am also a bird lover, but I would not advocate the killing of any bird, because I believe they are created for a very good, all-wise and sufficient purpose.

But to be more specific, "Bird Lover" advocates the destruction of certain birds, amongst which is the English sparrow. 25 to 30 years ago the city of Boston was devastated by a pest of worms which destroyed the leaves of the trees, and there was not a single tree on Boston Common that appeared better than the worst devastated tree that can be found in Winchester which has been attacked by the brown tail moth. The so-called English sparrow was at this time imported, and its species propagated for the purpose of destroying the pest referred to, which it did effectually, therefore affording conclusive evidence that the sparrow is a valuable bird for destroying pests of this description.

I quote from the report on the life history and habits of the imported brown tail moth, by Charles H. Fernald and Archie H. Kirkland, and published under the direction of the State Board of Agriculture by authority of the legislature. It will no doubt surprise "Bird Lover" and correct a mistaken notion which he is evidently harboring. On page 55 I find the following:

"BIRDS AS DESTROYERS OF THE BROWN TAIL MOTH."

Birds play an important role in checking the spread of the brown tail moth.

Of the birds feeding on the caterpillars, yellow-billed and black-billed cuckoos and Baltimore orioles are worthy of special mention. Of the other birds which feed on the larvae, the yellow-throated vireo and blue jay are worthy of special mention. But the most formidable enemy of the matured moths is the English sparrow. That this bird should show this distinctly beneficial trait may be a matter of surprise to many students of nature; but the fact remains that the English sparrow, with its numerous progeny, exerts a great and beneficial influence in checking the moth in our thickly settled districts, places where natural checks are often most deficient.

Mr. Kirkland observed whole flocks of English sparrows following along the line of fences and carefully searching for the moths, which when found were greedily devoured. The sides of the pickets and even the bottom of the rails were carefully examined by these sharp-eyed moth hunters, and all moths of either sex found were consumed.

These sparrows do not confine their attentions to hunting for live moths, but also act as scavengers in removing from the air the mass of moths which

St. John's Day.

The members of William Parkman Lodge F. & A. M., observed St. John's Day with services at the Unitarian Church last Sunday afternoon. The Lodge met at its hall, Brown-Stanton Block, where by invitation also assembled large delegations from the Stoneham and Woburn Lodges and also other resident Masons, the total number being about 200, who marched to the church in a body. A very interesting order of service had been arranged by Rev. Bro. William J. Lawrance, who conducted the exercises, assisted by Rev. Bro. Harry F. Fisher, Chaplain of Hiram Lodge of Arlington, who delivered a most excellent sermon. The Commonwealth Quartette rendered several selections, and Mrs. G. H. Lochman, the talented musician, presided at the organ.

The weather was unbearably warm, nevertheless the attendance was considered good, and would have been much larger but for this fact.

A Pleasant Visit to Rockport.

On Tuesday, June 28, the chorus choir connected with the First Congregational Church enjoyed an excursion which because of its many unique and delightful experiences will long be remembered. Mr. Arthur W. Hale, the well known broker, who is a member of the choir, had extended to the members a cordial invitation to visit him at his cottage at Land's End, Rockport. The day proving favorable as to weather, a jolly party assembled near Young & Brown's store soon after breakfast and took the electric to Sullivan Square and the elevated to Central wharf and the Gloucester steamer. All made a rush for the boat and secured seats together on deck, where they were reinforced by Mr. Harrison Parker and family who were en route to Bass Rocks where they are to spend the summer. Altogether it was quite a Winchester boat. The selections of the boat orchestra were interspersed with choruses rendered by the Winchester contingent, ably assisted by Mr. Wm. H. Corliss who happened to be taking a business trip to Gloucester at the same time. The repertoire of the Winchester party, was evidently a superior attraction to the ship's orchestra, and the passengers and officers gathered around the singers. All sorts of choruses were given, and the trip along the beautiful North Shore thus varied with song and mirth passed all too quickly. At Gloucester the trolley took the party through streets distinctly charged with the combined orders of tar and fish-oil.

The electric whirr was drowned under the strains of music from the Winchester chorus, but the conductor of the car forgot not to take his fare. He had no music in his soul. Glorious ocean views charmed the party in the vicinity of Bass Rocks on the way to Rockport and the two lights on Thatcher's Island were kept in sight. After a delightful trolley ride the party discerned Mr. Hale waiting and exchanged the trolley for a barge in which under the escort of their genial host they were driven to Land's End.

Of the shore dinner which their host had provided for them under the trees, no words could do justice. The steamed clams were delicious, each hungry guest was served with an entire lobster, which he (or she) eagerly tore limb from limb, the Hammi-dammi-Rockport—whole wheat bread vanished in a trice, being pleasantly washed down with ginger-ale. It was a question whether the party would be ready for the superb doughnuts and coffee which followed, but all doubts on that point were soon put to rest. A walk through fields of daisy carpeted with delicious wild strawberries brought the party to the beautiful cottage of Mr. and Mrs. Hale, at Land's End where they spent a pleasant hour while with singing in the music room, where Miss Florence Parks gave selections on the piano, and Miss Mary Ogilvie soprano, and Mrs. E. Alden Welton alto, sang solos.

But the day was now drawing toward sunset, and the party walked back to Long Beach, while waiting for the cars, several of the gentlemen gave daring exhibitions of their horsemanship on the Merry-go-round, with the ladies assisting. When the car appeared the visitors gave their genial host a royal farewell ending with a specially prepared cheer, compiled by Frank E. Rowe. The trip back was by electric to Gloucester, thence by electric to Salem, where the train was taken to Lynn. There the party divided, some taking an additional trip to Bass Point, and the rest continuing their journey by train to Boston and Winchester. It is safe to say that none of the happy company will ever forget the trip to Rockport, and the royal kindness of their hosts, Mr. and Mrs. Arthur W. Hale. To the regret of all, Mr. Stanley Marsh, the organist, and Mr. Edward A. Kingsley, the chorister, were not able to go. The following made up the party:

Rev. S. Winchester, Adriaance, William Adriaance, Miss Emma Berry, Mr. and Mrs. Alpheus Bowers, Mr. and Mrs. George Hamilton, Mr. Murray, Mr. Harry Morgan, Miss Mary Ogilvie, Miss Florence C. Parks, Miss Plummer, Mr. and Mrs. Frank E. Rowe, Miss Leslie Taylor, Miss Louise Taylor, Mr. George G. Tyler, Miss Marion Simonds, Miss Towne, Miss Edith Richardson, Mrs. E. Alden Welton. Mr. Frank E. Rowe of the Music Committee of the Church was tireless in planning for the pleasure and comfort of the party.

Vose—Haarde.

Mr. Edwin W. Vose formerly of this town and Miss Dorothy J. Haarde of Albany, N. Y., were married Thursday, the 23rd inst., at the home of the bride's sister at No. 24 Broadway, Rensselaer, N. Y.

After a short wedding trip, they will reside at their new home at Proctor, Vt., where Mr. Vose has a very pleasant position as General Secretary of the Y. M. C. A.

Agreements have been signed for sale and purchase of a new house built by Mr. F. L. Ferguson on Maxwell road, the purchaser, L. M. B. Stocker of Quincy, will occupy when the house is completed. M. H. Dutch was the broker.

accumulate in the globes over night."

This is only a partial quotation from the report referred to, but it would pay any interested person, and especially persons prejudiced against the English sparrow to carefully read the testimony of these eminent scientists who have carefully watched the beneficial operations of these little birds, and I can testify personally to the amount of good they are doing.

The advice of "Bird Lover" in requesting fathers of young boys to instruct them what birds to shoot and what birds not to shoot appears to the writer most ill advised. To begin with, fathers do not usually have the time to devote to teaching the young American Idea how to shoot, especially when it comes to differentiating between shooting English sparrows, linnets and kindred birds of about the same color and appearance, and it is a well known fact if you give a boy a gun, there is nothing living or moving that comes within his range but he is apt to shoot at, even the domestic cat does not escape his vigilance. Therefore, it is to my mind a dangerous suggestion to make, to permit boys to become the arbiters of bird selection. Nearly all the birds condemned by "Bird Lover," in the report above are given as natural enemies of the brown tail moth—therefore would it not be wiser to absolutely prohibit the killing of all birds?

Shooting at birds we know by experience will make them shy and desert neighborhoods where such practice is in vogue, whether it is done by the small boy or the more mature biped. In support of this statement it is a well known fact and a matter of surprise that in a few years the black duck, which is the most timid of all the bird tribe and the most difficult to approach, should find a place of security in the ponds of the Middlesex Fells. We know this to be a fact, and we know the reason for it being so is the prohibition from carrying firearms in the Fells. The birds have quickly learned that they are secure, and there is no small boy to go around with a gun to discriminate between one bird and another. Therefore, my plea for the birds is, that all should be protected, and if the matter were better understood they all would be protected.

In view of the fact of the calamity that has befallen Winchester, in company with its neighboring towns, by the brown tail moth pest, I suggested to fathers of families that they apply at the offices of the State Board of Agriculture, in the State House, Boston, Mass., for a copy of the report on the brown tail moth, and if the young idea were thoroughly educated into the methods and modes of ridding even their own back yards of this dangerous pest, more good would be done, and more thorough work accomplished than the boy could possibly do by handling a gun, and differentiating between the destruction of young sparrows and the other brown coated little birds which gladden and protect our woods and homes.

BIRD PROTECTOR.

Sinking Into the Sea.

J. R. Freeman of the Metropolitan Water Board of Massachusetts, is the authority for the statement that Boston is sinking into the sea. He asserts that the present datum plane, to which all elevations are referred by the engineering department of the city of Boston, and which is commonly known as Boston base, probably coincided almost exactly in the year 1830 with the mean low water at the Charlestown navy yard. Today, after a lapse of seventy-two years, the same datum plane, as defined by numerous bench marks on solid ground, according to the best available determination is 0.79 foot below mean low water. This comparison shows that the land now stands about 0.79 foot lower relatively to the sea than it did seventy-two years ago, and shows that the land in Boston and vicinity is sinking at about one foot per hundred years.

Mr. Freeman when a member of the Winchester Water Board, some years ago predicted that in ten years our reservoirs would be found inadequate to supply the town with water at the critical period of the year—mid-summer.

After Brackett's Place.

The term of Edward A. Brackett of Winchester, as member of the commission on fisheries and game expires shortly. Rep. Allen of Brockton called upon the governor during the current week and urged the appointment of George Field of Brockton, a former instructor at Tech, and an entomologist of some note. Brackett is the oldest commissioner in the state, yet he is active and intensely interested in the work of his office.—[Practical Politics.]

July Opens the Season in the Mountains.

To go away from the city: to seek the shelter and protecting quietude of the country where the singing of the birds and the vision of flowers and verdant pastures will infuse a new spirit in the soul and vigor in the body is the desire of every person seeking a resting place for the summer. And in New England, the "summer playground" of America, the mountains take the first rank. Among the "White Hills" whether amidst the rushing cascades and the towering ledges of the Crawford Notch, or on the cloud enveloped summit of Mt. Washington; whether amidst the natural wonders of the Profile region—the marvelous Echo Lake, or the natural sculpture of the Presidential cliffs; whether in the depths of the sylvan Cathedral Woods, or the peaceful territory of the Intervale, there is a pleasure peculiar only to the White Mountains.

Send six cents to the General Passenger Department, Boston & Maine Railroad, Boston, for the beautiful portfolio of the choicest views in the mountains entitled "Mountains of New England." For two cents, the descriptive book "Among the Mountains" containing some choice illustrations of mountain scenery and sixty pages of interesting reading concerning the White Mountains will be mailed to any address.

Thousands Have Kidney Trouble and Don't Know It.

How To Find Out.
Fill a bottle or common glass with your water and let it stand twenty-four hours; a sediment or settling indicates an unhealthy condition of the kidneys; if it stains your linen it is evidence of kidney trouble; too frequent desire to pass it or pain in the back is also convincing proof that the kidneys and bladder are out of order.

What to Do.
There is comfort in the knowledge so often expressed, that Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root, the great kidney remedy fulfills every wish in curing rheumatism, pain in the back, kidneys, liver, bladder and every part of the urinary passage. It corrects inability to hold water and scalding pain in passing it, or bad effects following use of liquor, wine or beer, and overcomes that unpleasant necessity of being compelled to go often during the day, and to get up many times during the night. The mild and extraordinary effect of Swamp-Root is soon realized. It stands the highest for its wonderful cures of the most distressing cases. If you need a medicine you should have the best. Sold by druggists in 50c. and $1. sizes. You may have a sample bottle of this wonderful discovery absolutely free by mail, address Dr. Kilmer & Co., Binghamton, N. Y. When writing mention reading this generous offer in this paper.

Don't make any mistake, but remember the name, Swamp-Root, Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root, and the address, Binghamton, N. Y., on every bottle.

If you have money out at two to four per cent, write to the undersigned who can place your money so it will net you FOUR AND ONE HALF PER CENT on first-class city property where the insurance on the property will cover the full amount of loan.

The people of the South are making more money than the people of any section of the union. Fruit growing and truck farming pay large profits because the farmer gets his products into the market six weeks earlier than the farmer of any other section. Rice growing, Sugar Cane growing and the making of Sugar, Cotton growing bring to the farmers large returns, and these crops are sure. No draughts to cause a failure. Where people are making money is the place to loan for sure and safe return of principal and interest.

I give as reference Hon. Walter Clark, Chief Justice of Supreme Court, for North Carolina, Raleigh, N. Are You Contemplating Going South or Investing Money There.

We advise any of our readers who contemplate going south for the winter and want to rent a furnished cottage or secure board in hotel, boarding house or private family, or are desirous of investing money down there, to first write Mr. John T. Patrick, Pinebluff, N. C. Mr. Patrick has made a specialty of furnishing information to Northern people who want to find winter homes or to those who desire to loan money down there on mortgages. He is a man that can be relied upon to give honest information, and to protect the interests of those who trust their money to his care. Recently one of our readers asked Mr. Patrick to give reference as to his character and business ability, and he furnished the names of the Chief Justice of his state, Judge Walter Clark, Raleigh, N. C., and the Editor of the leading daily in the state, the News & Observer, Mr. Joseph Daniels, Raleigh, and the Editor-in-chief of the Boston Transcript, Mr. E. H. Clement, and these men said in reply that whatever Mr. Patrick said could be relied upon. Therefore it will pay you to write Mr. Patrick before you locate, and if you have money to loan, secure his assistance to get the highest rate of interest on good first-class mortgages down South where the people pay more interest than is paid up here.

Position of the Tree Warden.

Attention is called to the communication from Tree Warden Chamberlain in another column. He will be obliged to be out of the State on the day of the town meeting next Tuesday, and this letter gives his views, as they would have been presented by him at that meeting, on the necessity of taking action in regard to pronouncing the gypsy and brown-tail moths public nuisances and a menace to the public health.

A Word to the Young Men.

The boys and young men should heed the request of the Selectmen and refrain from celebrating the Fourth until 4 o'clock on the morning of that day. As the Selectmen have been instrumental in arranging a most attractive program covering the entire day, it is hoped the boys will obey this moderate request. Besides they will enjoy the sports all the better after a night of good sleep than they would if they remained up all night.

Popularity of Graduating Exercises.

The popularity of the High school graduating exercises will prove a severe tax on the seating capacity of the hall of the High school building if it is decided to hold them there hereafter, which it is understood to be the case. At the exercises held in the Town Hall last Friday evening seats were at a premium. As the school hall has not one half the accommodation the Town Hall has, it is easily seen that attendance will of necessity have to be curtailed.

Advantageous Sale of Bonds.

Town Treasurer Spurr has just sold the $12,000 3 1/2 per cent. stable bonds at par and accrued interest. These bonds are payable $1000.00 each year from 1904 to 1915 both inclusive. This is considered a particularly good sale considering the low rate and short term, and furthermore this sale reflects credit on Treasurer Spurr who personally made the deal on so very advantageous terms. The special committee of which Mr. Daniel B. Badger is chairman, will start in immediately upon the building of the stable and sheds which have been much needed for a long time.

Hillcrest Tower.

The observation tower at Hillcrest should either be repaired and put in safe condition or else removed altogether. Why the Metropolitan Park Board should neglect this building and take such good care of the one on Bear Hill is not clear to many persons. Considering the large amount of money and the taxable property given over by the town for park purposes and the yearly tax of $7000, it does seem as if the returns should be made more beneficial to the people. All sides of the Fells should receive equal attention as they are all equally beautiful, yet it is said the Malden and Melrose side is securing about all the improvements. The Hillcrest tower should be repaired and a carriage road built to it. It is one of the most sightly points in this vicinity.

Progress on the Highland School Matter.

The historic oyster could not well be so dumb as are the several members of the combined committee authorized at the last town meeting to solve the Highland school problem and report the result of this deliberations next Tuesday evening. If their looks do not belie them these gentlemen have come to some sort of an amicable arrangement which they hope will commend itself to the adjourned town meeting. Here and there a word has leaked out which leads us to think that a thorough examination of the Highland building by the joint-committee has revealed such a condition of affairs that it may be justified in recommending a larger sum for sanitary and heating equipment and for general repairs than was at first anticipated. Again, it is understood that the people of that section would rather be sure of half a loaf than take their chance of getting a whole loaf. In other words, if the school can be kept open, they would prefer a moderate outlay necessary to put the building into a respectable condition rather than take their chance of having a new building at some time in the uncertain future. The suggestion of selling off portions of that two-acre lot for building purposes does not seem to commend itself to them, especially if by such line of procedure they would lose their only chance of having this land set apart at some future time for a small park. At all events this joint committee ought to be able to recommend to our citizens a line of action which will settle the whole question for the next ten years and yet not put any unnecessary or unwarranted burden upon the already weary taxpayers of this town. In short, we sincerely hope that if this committee recommends a fairly conservative policy, that it will be sustained and settled by a prompt and decisive vote. The caterpillar question has forged itself to the front. A flood of post fourth of July oratory is ready to burst upon the town meeting next Tuesday evening upon this irritating and ever-present question. The sooner it comes, the sooner this town meeting will stand adjourned and allow the citizens to recruit their energies for the March meetings.

Methodist Sunday School Picnic.

On the morning of last Saturday, June 25, about half past eight, a goodly company of scholars, teachers and friends of the Sunday School of the Winchester M. E. Church gathered in front of the church building to await the special cars which were to take them on a picnic to Salem Willows. Leaving shortly before nine the two cars, taxed to their full capacity, sped along the rails through Stoneham, Waverlet, Lynn and Salem and on to the Willows. It was a very beautiful ride, enjoyed by all; and the destination was safely reached about eleven o'clock. The party quickly separated, forming different groups, as the varied attractions of the place made their appeal to individual taste. Some sought shaded spots on the grass to form the circle for lunch, others hastened to the ocean side without delay; while for the children the rocks, the swings and the flying horses afforded ample amusement. Bathing, wading and boating with intervals of rest in the pavilions or sheltered nooks, filled the hours and at half-past five all were ready for the homeward trip. The intense heat led many to anticipate with pleasure the rapid ride on the trolley cars, but the thickly gathering clouds, casting dark shadows were certain premonitions of coming storm. About forty minutes after leaving the Willows, the rain began to fall. The curtains were then lowered, and the heavy peals of thunder and vivid flashes of lightning added lurid touches to the scene. One blinding flash startled all in the first car, but did greater damage to the second, which was struck and disabled. For more than an hour its occupants waited, until at last another car came to the rescue. At Wakefield the belated picnickers rejoined the fortunate occupants of the front car, and were greeted with cheers and the Chautauqua salute. While waiting for the rear guard to come up, the advance guard of the Methodist host serenaded with sacred and secular songs the inhabitants of Wakefield, who showed their appreciation of good music by coming out in goodly numbers and listened attentively. A safe arrival in Winchester ended a successful picnic; and the committee is pleased to report all expenses paid, with a surplus of $15.00 to be devoted to other Sunday school work.

New England Resorts, Rivers, Mountains, Lakes & Seashore.

The vacation custom is now a fixture, and the summer resorts of New England because of their unexcelled beauty and variety appeal to everybody. The beautiful lake resorts among the pine-lands of Maine or in the northern portion of New Hampshire and Vermont; the verdant valleys watered by freshening streams such as the Merrimack, the Hoosac, the Connecticut and the Ammonoosuc; the long and famous stretch of sea-coast from Portland and east to the Rocky Nabant; the impressive grandeur and wonderful attractions of the White Mountains; the favorite haunts among the Hoosac Mountains and the Deerfield Valley; and the numerous towns and villages famed for their historical association as well as scenic and health resorts are delightfully pictured in the series of six books containing beautiful half-tone reproductions of these various resorts, each book containing thirty or more views neatly bound with the title of the book embossed in gold letters on the cover. These books are entitled "Lakes," "Rivers," "Mountains," "Seashore."

"The Charles River to the Hudson" and "Picture-que." The price of each book is six cents or thirty-six cents for the entire set. This includes the postage; issued by the General Passenger Department, Boston & Maine Railroad, Boston, Mass.

HENRY F. JOHNSON.

An Honorable and Reliable Firm

Established more than half a century ago by Joseph W. Hammond, when Woburn was a small village, the Hammond clothing and furnishing house of this city has enjoyed a career of prosperity, from the beginning, rarely achieved by a business establishment anywhere. It has grown steadily from the start, and today, and for several years, under the energetic and intelligent management of Mr. Winthrop Hammond, the junior partner, it is, and is regarded, the leading clothing and furnishing house in Middlesex county. Evidence of this is to be found, in part, in the large and lucrative trade which it attracts from neighboring cities and towns, in which respect its success is something to be proud of. The old house is equally popular at home, and enjoys a much larger traffic than any other from its own townspeople and neighbors. It leads! Its popularity and handsome patronage are due largely to its enviable reputation for square dealing. Mr. J. W. Hammond was a man of the strictest business integrity and the establishment prospered under his management. The standard of honesty in trade has not been lowered by the present conductor, and the consequence is the business increase from year to year. Fair, honorable dealing with the public is sure to win, and the past and present prosperity and high standing of the clothing house of Hammond & Son is ample proof of the fact. (Woburn Journal.)

Take Pride in Your Town

There is no town in this section where local pride predominates to the extent that it does in the town of Brookline, and the result is that a person who lives in Brookline will tell you that it is the best town on earth to live in. They will fill you full of facts to prove their statement, and the result is that after hearing one of the town lovers talk a number of times, you are inclined to believe that he is right, and that Brookline or any other town that has boomers among its own citizens is really a very nice place.

Local pride has built up more towns than any other one thing, and fortunate indeed is the town that is composed of citizens who love her and talk for her. Every town in this section is a good town to live in, but the trouble is that the residents of some of them have not made the fact known and these towns have fallen back in the race for population.

The Cellar at the Highland School

EDITOR OF THE STAR:

If that smelling committee of half a dozen doctors, sanitarians, health experts and college professors are getting ready to move on that Highland outbuilding this week, wonder if they will find time to take a look at that half-cellar under the schoolhouse. The north hall is only two feet deep and to get into it they will have to climb on their hands and knees, creep behind the furnace and crawl over ledge. Still that will not hurt them and they can but wear their old clothes. When they crawl up into the dungeon, lay on their backs and take a view through the midnight gloom, they will find dirt and refuse which has not been disturbed for twenty years or more. No sign of whitewash, a broom or a shovel since I went to school there years ago. Never a trace of daylight, much less of sunlight, ever strikes into that dark hole from year to year. No wonder it is hard to heat the schoolroom above where over forty little ones are obliged to sit every day of their school lives. One day last winter I carried my little girl over to the school and went to the cellar. I found the janitor standing in a foot of water which had drained down from the elevated cellar and trying to drive the worn out furnace. Wonder if that ventilator in the north school room opens into the two foot deep dungeon beneath the floor.

The Board of Health is making a great fuss about connecting this school with the sewer. Wonder if that outbuilding is any more wholesome than that dark, damp, dirty and never ventilated hole under the primary room floor? While these experts are planning to connect the building with the sewer, they had better connect that dirty cellar with a goodly supply of lime, whitewash, soap and water, shovels, brooms and several other helps to cleanliness and health. Of course, to clean out the cellar properly and to put it in good order the men folks will have to move off the school building to one side for a week or so, but this is easily done during the summer vacation and will not cost much. Meanwhile some of my interested neighbors can get a view of that cellar at close range and be thankful that their little one have survived the risks and dangers of modern school sanitation.

The town has the right to go upon the premises at all times to care for its water supply.

No land or water is sold or given away.

Rice-Greeley

The wedding of Mr. Walter L. Rice and Miss Emma G. Greeley, at the residence of Mr. William Greeley, Mt. Vernon street, last week Thursday evening was one of the prettiest of the season. The ceremony was performed by Rev. D. A. Newton. The wedding party marched into the parlor to the strains of the wedding march of Lohengrin, a chorus of twelve young ladies very effectively rendering the chorus. The maid of honor was Miss Marion Rice a sister of the groom. The ushers were Dr. Hutchins, Mr. Colby and Mr. John Rice, a brother of the groom. After the ceremony there was a reception, which was attended by scores of friends, the string quartet assisting with varied selections. Mr. and Mrs. Rice received, with Mrs. Joshua Phippen a sister of the bride, and her husband.

Mr. Rice is a son of Mr. John Rice of Washington street, Highlands, and a well known talented teacher of the violin, his pupils being in all the surrounding cities and towns.

Important Improvements in Printing Machinery.

It was our privilege this week to see several printing presses at the office of the Barta Press, Boston, which ought to gladden the hearts of all job printers. These presses are of English make and are now about to be manufactured and introduced into this country by an American Company, of which Mr. Louis Barta of this town is the president, and will be known at the Falcon Printing Press Manufacturing Company. The first press to catch the eye was a Falcon safety platen press with a speed of 3000 impressions an hour. The work of operating this press is cut down nearly one half and by ingenious feeding arrangements can be operated by the small boy without any assistance whatever from the big man. Its many improvements are apparent at a glance to the practical printer. Another press is designed for three-color and half tone work where a large volume of work is required. A die press and direct engraved plate printing machine with an output of 1500 impressions an hour, is destined to cause a revolution in this class of printing. Perhaps the most wonderful machine is a press that will print in two colors, make and number consecutively 11,000 completed tags per hour. The stock goes through the press from a roll and emerges in completed tags ready for boxing in piles of fifties. Mr. Charles W. Bradstreet of this town is one of the directors of the company. Those interested in printing machinery should see these presses, as they mark as big an advance in commercial printing as did the fast presses of today over the old cylinder newspaper presses of twenty years ago.

Safeguard the Children.

Notwithstanding all that is done by boards of health and charitably inclined persons, the death rate among small children is very high during the hot weather of the summer months in the large cities. There is not probably one case of bowel complaint in a hundred, however, that could not be cured by the timely use of Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy. Mr. Frank Riggs, of Franklinville, N. Y., in speaking of this remedy said: "I have found it expedient to have a supply of Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy on hand. It has been a family safeguard and while especially beneficial to children, it is equally good in adult cases. I recommend it cheerfully and without reservation." For sale by O'Connor's Pharmacy.

WILL RE-OPEN IN ITS NEW BUILDING, SEPT. 6, 1904.

This school now has the most elegant, complete and extensive private school building in America. In the planning and furnishing of its NEW BUILDING expense has not been considered even in the minutest detail. New fittings of special design will be found to have taken the place of the ordinary furniture used in school buildings. The entire outfit of the school in its old building has been sacrificed to the new building. The school will have only the newest and best obtainable.

EXPERIENCED TEACHERS.
The only feature recognizable will be the able and experienced corps of teachers, who have given this school its wide-spread reputation. The tuition fees are the same as during the previous ten years, and pupils who contemplate attending may congratulate themselves that this year was the chosen time for their commercial course and the finishing of their school work.

COURSE OF STUDY.
The course of study prepares pupils thoroughly for all the duties of the counting room. Book-keeping by any system; Stenography (Graham and Pitman systems); English Composition; Commercial Correspondence; Commercial Law; Commercial Geography; Commercial Handwriting; Typewriting; Civil Service (preparation for examinations); Normal School Course (preparation for teaching).

Thirty Years in Washington.

BY MISS GENERAL JOHN A. LOGAN.
This magnificently illustrated volume is published with the consent and aid of the United States Government, and this fact alone is evidence of its sterling merit and of the great care that has been bestowed upon it.
The book is a complete panorama of the countless interests of the National Capital as seen by a famous woman who, as the wife of an influential Senator, a society leader, and the close friend of every mistress of the White House, from Lincoln to the present time, has been in close touch with the inner life of Washington and enjoyed rare privileges for studying the mighty activities of the Government, such as no other person has ever before been able to command.
Many distinguished men and women have long urged Mrs. Logan to give this volume to the world. She has received letters from thousands, unknown to her, expressing the hope that it would be written. In her preface she says:
"It has been my aim to show my readers, both by word and pictorial art, the wonders and the workings of the elaborate machinery of the Government in motion, by leading them through the great departments and explaining what the army of busy men and women workers do and how they do it; to show them the works of art, the wonderful collections of relics and curiosities from every part of the world, and the architectural glories and priceless treasures of the Capital, to describe and explain its giant activities, to take them through the White House from the attic to the cellar, through every forbidden room, and to portray not only its daily life, past and present, but its brilliant social and official functions as well; to tell the story of every President, and of every woman who has ever reigned in the White House; to visit the Treasury, the Dead Letter office, and to solve the marvels and mysteries of every government industry; in short, to present every interesting phase of life and scenes in Washington."
It is illustrations are a triumph of American art. It is worth the price of the book just to look at these 50 magnificent full page plates, from photographs taken with government consent and aid exclusively for this volume. The government generously waived all "rules and regulations" in order that this book by a woman of Mrs. Logan's standing and influence should be as perfect and complete as possible.
We do not know when 740 pages have given us more genuine pleasure. If we speak warmly of the book, it is because it richly deserves it. It is sold by agents, and all who introduce such a work ought to be cordially welcomed. Put it into your homes.
The book is published by the old and well-known firm of A. D. Worthington & Co., Hartford, Conn., whose imprint is sufficient guarantee of the excellence of this first-class volume. The town is now being canvassed by Mr. Calhoun.

Cured of Chronic Diarrhoea After Ten Years of Suffering.

"I wish to say a few words in praise of Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy," says Mrs. Mattie Burge, of Martinsville, Va. "I suffered from chronic diarrhoea for ten years and during that time tried various medicines without obtaining any permanent relief. Last summer one of my children was taken with cholera morbus, and I procured a bottle of this remedy. Only two doses were required to give her entire relief. I then decided to try the medicine myself, and did not use all of one bottle before I was well and I have never since been troubled with that complaint. One cannot say too much in favor of that wonderful medicine." This remedy is for sale by O'Connor's Pharmacy.

4th July Accidents.

So many serious injuries, with permanent results, occur as the result of careless use of explosives on our national day that the knowledge of our untalented antiseptic healer would be of invaluable aid in the prevention of blood poisoning, as well as for promptly stopping the flow of blood, relieving pain and reducing inflammation. Such an article is Cabot's Sulpho-Naphthol, which has received the highest endorsement of the medical profession. It should be in every household for that day, as its promptness, in strong hot solution, will in many cases save not only heavy doctor's bills, but painful disfigurements.

A Chicago woman found an outlawed note for $84,000 in a Bible she had not opened for eight years. This should teach people not to keep notes in their Bibles.

It is now stated that microbes may be killed by a violent shock. This could be supplied by the doctors presenting their bills beforehand.

Sunday Betrothals.

A peculiar case recently came to trial in Pennsylvania. A young lady brought a breach of promise suit against a minister of that state, and the reverend gentleman set up the novel defense that the proposal and acceptance took place on Sunday and were therefore illegal. Passing over the questionable procedure of a preacher entering into a marriage contract on the Sabbath, when he is supposed to be looking after spiritual things, the point itself is interesting. If it should be established that a proposal of marriage made on Sunday cannot stand the test of the courts we shudder to think of the number of young men who may take advantage of this construction to enter into an agreement that they may back out of if the tender affection fails. The world will eagerly await a decision as to the legality of popping the question on Sunday.

The Chinese consider the gall bladder the vital organ. It is—with some people.

WAR ON RATS.

International Society For Destruction of These Pests Formed.
That rats play an important part in the propagation of disease is now recognized, but the task of exterminating them is so large that it has never been seriously undertaken until recently. Now, however, an international society for the purpose has been formed, and the results of a recent campaign in Denmark are encouraging, says the Literary Digest.

On the advice of M. Zuschlag, a Copenhagen engineer, a committee for the rational destruction of rats was formed, and by subscription about $2,800 was raised, the city of Copenhagen giving in addition $540 and Frederiksborg $280. It was decided to offer a reward of 3 cents for every rat killed in these two cities, the dead bodies to be delivered at the fire engine stations. These were to be inspected and paid for daily by an officer, after which the dead rats were to be disinfected and buried. The campaign lasted from Aug. 3 to Dec. 9. It cost about $3,700 and brought about the destruction of 103,780 rats.

Attempts at destruction have also been organized in other parts of Denmark, and it has been found everywhere that the bounty system is the best.

The simple wire rat trap shown in the illustration has proved to be one of the best devices for capturing the pests.

If preachers do not quit threatening to tell the truth at funerals people will conclude to die without sermonizing.

Men who make money their god are apt to find it a poor comforter when they need solace most.

Some men are so liberal they cannot even keep their word.

Last Saturday one of the most violent electrical storms that has struck this town for many years took place. The day had been oppressively sultry, and when the storm broke it was with a suddenness that caused fright to many persons. The lightning struck in a number of places, but fortunately there was no loss of life and but little damage to property. The dwelling occupied by Mr. Thomas Little was struck and somewhat damaged. The bolt started a fire in the attic, and an attempt was made to ring in an alarm, but the fire alarm system was found to be out of order as was also the Telephone service. The inmates of the house however succeeded in extinguishing the fire. A tree was shattered on Church street and thrown across the Reading-Arlington street car trolley wire, impeding traffic. A big elm on Cambridge street was blown down and the flag staff on the estate of Daniel B. Badger, Prospect street was shattered.

Should the town vote to take over the control of Manchester Field it will mean an annual outlay of about $1000 a year for services of police and maintenance.

WINCHESTER, MASS., FRIDAY, JULY 8, 1904.

PRICE, FIVE CENTS

TOWN MEETING.

$1500 to Improve the Highland School Building.

Moth Voted a Nuisance — Land at Reservoirs Now in Control of State Park Board.

The sultry weather and the fact that so many of the citizens have left town for the summer, accounted for the small attendance at the adjourned special town meeting held in the Town Hall Tuesday evening.

It was nearly eight o'clock when Moderator Ralph E. Joslin called the meeting to order.

The first business was the consideration of article three relating to the Highland school. This matter was referred to the Board of Health and School Committee at the last meeting. Chairman Currier reported that in order to put the building in good order and provide the necessary sanitary equipment that $1442 would be required. He favored keeping the school open, but in order to do this these improvements would have to be made.

Selectman Carter did not believe in spending so much money on the old building which was 25 years old. He thought it better to erect a new building on a more proper site which could be done for $1000. This part of the town is entitled to a new building the same as other parts.

Dr. B. T. Church did not believe the cost would be as great as Mr. Currier had stated. It was not fair to charge the repairs to the cost of sanitary improvements, and the meeting should so understand it.

Mr. H. F. Johnson wanted to know if this included the drainage of the cellar, and Mr. Currier replied that it did.

Mr. S. D. Leland said that the neighborhood was perfectly willing to have a new building crammed down its throat, but all they asked for was the necessary repairs to put the present one in good condition. He did not think $1442 was enough, and moved to amend by making the amount $1500.

Mr. F. F. Carpenter of the School Board said it would be a mistake to spend this money on that old building. He therefore hoped the matter would be postponed until the town knows what the general school proposition is.

The following vote was then passed: Moved that the sum of $1500 be assessed upon the estates and polls of the town and appropriated for building an addition to the Highland school house, providing the same with proper sanitary accommodations, making sewer and water connections, installing the necessary heating equipment, and making such changes and alterations as may be required in connection with the foregoing work; said appropriation to be expended by a committee consisting of Messrs. Sanford D. Leland, Frank F. Carpenter and James Hinds.

THE HOWE LOT.
It was voted to turn over the care of the entire Howe lot to the School Committee.

A motion was offered by Selectman Carter that the cost of grading the westerly end of the Howe lot ($1300) be taken from the Z. Symmes fund or other account.

Mr. A. E. Whitney opposed taking the money from this fund, and believed an appropriation should be made in some other way.

Mr. H. F. Johnson said he was opposed to touching the fund which was never intended for this purpose. He moved to amend by taking the money from incidental account. Lost.

Selectman Carter then moved to amend by taking one half from incidental account and the other half from the miscellaneous fund. This motion was also lost.

Selectman Ferguson believed it was perfectly proper to take the money from the Symmes fund for this purpose.

In reply to Mr. E. H. Stone, Selectman Coit said that the miscellaneous fund had to its credit $184.

The motion to take from the Symmes fund was then carried.

CONTROL OF RESERVOIR LANDS.

Selectman Carter offered the following:

Voted, That the town do empower the Winchester Water Board to transfer to the Metropolitan Park Commission the care, control and custody including police protection, of land controlled by said Water Board as shown on a plan entitled "Commonwealth of Massachusetts, Metropolitan Park Commission, Middlesex Fells reservation, Plan of land of Medford, Winchester and Stoneham to be transferred by the Winchester Water Board to the Metropolitan Park Commission for care and control, March 6, 1903, Wm. T. Pierce, Engineer," being Metropolitan Park Commissioner's Plan No. 421, for such time and on such terms as said Winchester Water Board may deem for the benefit of the town.

Mr. Carter said it was perfectly safe for the town to pass this vote, as it could be annulled at any time the town saw fit to do so, and it would retain all its present rights. Proper rules for fishing, boating and skating would be made by the Water Board as in the past.

Mr. A. E. Whitney said that in the agreement there was no mention of the town having the right to enter the land and remove stone and trees, and there should be an amendment to that end. Malden and Melrose are at the present time seeking compensation for lands adjoining their reservoirs, but he believed Winchester wanted to be liberal in this matter. Upon being assured that the agreement would include Mr. Whitney's objection, he withdrew his opposition.

Mr. C. E. Corey claimed that the town would regret it if the land was turned over to the State Park Board. This was a valuable asset and he did not like the word "control" in the agreement. He was strongly opposed to some corporation gaining a foothold on that property, and this seemed to be a step in that direction.

Mr. S. S. Symmes favored the motion as offered and said the town would save money by not having to care for the trees and suppressing the moth.

The motion was then carried yes 83, no 40.

THE MOTH NUISANCE.

Mr. D. W. Pratt offered the following: Voted, That it is the sense of the meeting that the Board of Health should enforce Chapter 75, section 69 of the Revised Laws, to secure the abatement of the gypsy and brown tail moth nuisance, whenever said Board deems that the public interest so demands.

Dr. B. T. Church, chairman of the Board of Health, opposed the passage of this vote, because he believed it would work a hardship to many people. It would not be fair to compel the poor widow to pay the expense of caring for 100 trees the same as the man who had only one tree, and he would not feel justified in doing so. This work should be done by the State. Trees that will be cleaned of moths will fill up again, and this cannot be prevented. If this action by the town was to be used as a stuffed club to frighten people into caring for their trees, that was one thing; if it was to force action, then it was another. He didn't believe in the passage of the vote, as in his opinion it was wrong.

Mr. Geo. C. Coit was surprised at the action of the Board of Health in ordering the Highland school to be sanitarized improved, and yet opposed to taking any action looking to the suppression of the brown tail moth in the interest of the health of the people. If they believe this to be a nuisance they are obliged by law to look into the matter, and if found to be such to suppress it. The Board of Health now have the power, and the vote offered is simply a request.

Mr. D. W. Pratt said that some citizens had spent considerable money caring for their trees, while their neighbors had done nothing. The object of the vote was to compel these people to also look after their trees.

Mr. S. S. Symmes said that the fight of the pest is up to the national government who are now investigating the situation. The town is not rich enough to destroy the pest. He knew this from conditions on his place. He believed the brown tail moth would overrun the country, and that a parasite would ultimately exterminate it.

The motion as offered was then passed.

NEW STREETS HELD OVER.

The matter of accepting Glen road, Myrtle terrace, Mason and Canal streets, as town ways as laid out by the Selectmen, was referred back to the Board because the grades had not been established.

Selectman Coit said there would be considerable expense to establish the grade of Glen road, besides the possibility of land damages, as there would be a fill of 18 inches. The time to have this attended to was before the street was accepted. The town should not be asked to go into land speculation business by building streets.

Mr. John T. Wilson favored the old policy, that a street should be in proper condition before it is accepted.

Selectman Ferguson said that good people live on the street in expensive houses and pay taxes. The street is in a perfectly acceptable condition and is used by many people. He did not believe any expense would be required on the street.

Mr. A. E. Whitney thought it rather late in the day to accept a street without a grade.

Mr. H. F. Johnson said the street was built partially through a meadow with a thin sprinkling of gravel over the loam. It was a scheme to get rid of houses.

THE JOKE IS OFF ON THE NEWLY MARRIED.

It was voted to except Field Drivers and Fence Viewers from those officers now elected by the official ballot.

DISMISSED.

The article relating to the use of toy pistols, etc., was on motion of Selectman Carter, dismissed from the warrant.

Selectman Coit said that the importance of accepting the provisions of Chapter 52 Revised Laws and amendments thereof relating to betterments, was so great that he favored dismissing the article, so that it might come up in the future at a more largely attended meeting.

On motion of Mr. Preston Pond the article relating to accepting from the Board of Metropolitan Park Commissioners the transfer of care and control of Manchester Field in the Mystic Valley Parkway and authorize its Board of Park Commissioners to assume said care and control, was dismissed from the warrant.

Mr. Pond had hoped that the local park board would be able to present some suitable proposition to the State board, but as this had not been received up to the present time, he asked for the dismissal of the article.

The meeting then dissolved.

School Notes.

There have been several resignations of teachers since the election in May. Miss Coyle of the Rumford has accepted a position in Newton at a considerable increase in salary; and Miss Kirwen of the Chapin goes to Medford, attracted by superior financial inducements. Their places have been filled by the appointment of Miss Bessie G. Hurlbutt and Miss Mary W. Gill, both Reading teachers.

Owing to the decision to keep the Highland open, Miss Adams will return there in the fall, instead of going to the Prince, as originally planned; and the new room at the Prince will be in charge of Miss Damon of Stoneham.

Miss Mary E. Stuart of Lynn will have a ninth grade room at the Wadleigh, a vacancy caused by the transfer of Miss Brown from the Wadleigh to the High.

Mr. Herbert W. Dutch, as already announced, has been chosen principal of the High school at Muskegon, Michigan. From a large number of candidates the School Committee has elected as his successor, Mr. Charles G. Willard, A. B. of Bowdoin College and A. M. of Harvard University. Mr. Willard has had three years of successful experience as principal of Fryeburg Academy, Maine; he will also take an intelligent interest in the athletic affairs of the school, since he was a foot ball and base ball player in college.

The vacation school, so generously supported by The Fortnightly, will open at the Chapin July 11, on a larger scale than ever before, with four teachers in charge.

The office of the superintendent of schools and school committee has been moved from its time-honored quarters in the Town Hall to the new High School building.

To Investigate the Gypsy Moth.

Dr. C. L. Marlatt, first assistant entomologist of the department of agriculture, has arrived in Boston to superintend the investigation by the federal government of the moth pest in Massachusetts. Dr. Marlatt has been commissioned by the secretary of the department of agriculture to make a thorough and exhaustive investigation of the subject which has of recent years assumed such importance in the Bay state.

In the company of Dr. A. H. Kirkland, recently assistant entomologist to the Massachusetts board of agriculture, and a recognized authority, Dr. Marlatt will visit the old stamping grounds of the gypsy and brown-tailed moths and trace their spread into the new territory which they have infested with such havoc during recent years.

Although Dr. Marlatt is only 30 years old, he has attained so high a rank as an entomologist that the federal government selected him a few years ago to visit China to study the origin of the San Jose scale, which was then causing great annoyance in this country. He discovered a parasite of the scale, which proved very effective in fighting the disease. The investigation now on foot in Massachusetts will probably be completed in about a fortnight.

Mrs. Lucy B. Johnson.

Mrs. Lucy B. (Blanchard) Johnson, widow of the late J. C. Johnson, passed away peacefully Friday afternoon, July 1st, in the 86th year of her age at the residence of Mr. Warren Johnson, Washington street. She had been a resident of this town for 50 years, and was born in Boston. She leaves no near relatives except a sister, Miss Hannah Blanchard of Newton.

Services were held Tuesday, at 3:30 p.m. from Mr. Johnson's residence, Rev. S. W. Adriance officiating. The interment was in Wildwood.

THE FOURTH.

A Day of Sorrow to Some and Pleasure to Many.

Oration, Sports and Fireworks Attended by Many Persons.

The weather conditions were ideal for a splendid enjoyment of the Fourth of July and the residents made the most of this fact, some going to the seashore, others to the country while the great majority remained in town and enjoyed immensely the fine program prepared under the auspices of the Selectmen.

The request of the Selectmen that the boys and young men refrain from celebrating until four a. m. did not meet with the treatment that it deserved, for at midnight the racket commenced and the town was given the noisiest demonstration in its history. After the interest the Selectmen had taken in providing entertainment for the day, this was somewhat ungracious on the part of those who contributed to the noise. Eight alarms for fire inside of three hours contributed somewhat toward the wakefulness of the entire town. Two of these were false, two are supposed to be of incendiary origin, while four were of trifling importance.

The sad feature of the day, which is almost certain to mark each Fourth of July, was the death of Mr. Ernest L. Powers of Main street, by a train nearly in front of the station shortly after nine o'clock. The young man in his haste to reach a fire on Thompson street was hit by the locomotive of an express train and instantly killed, his body being thrown nearly a dozen feet into the air, the impact breaking nearly every bone in his body. He came down Common street on the run, not seeing the swiftly approaching cars until too late, and although bystanders warned him of the danger, he continued on. The fact that he was slightly deaf may have had considerable to do with his death. The train was quickly brought to a standstill on the crossing and the conductor and engineer soon joined the crowd about the body. Doctors were soon on the scene, but life was extinct. The remains were taken into the baggage room, and later to the undertaking rooms of Kelley & Hawes. Mr. Powers was married and had one child about a year old, who with his wife had gone a few days ago to Prince Edward Island to pass the summer at the home of Mrs. Powers' mother. The unfortunate man was 27 years of age and a carpenter by trade, of exemplary character and his home was his greatest pleasure. He was a member of the M. E. Church and of the choir of that church. This sad event cast a deep gloom over the many persons who were near the scene of the accident. It is said this same train killed a man in the yard at Lowell when it arrived there later.

Funeral services were held at the Methodist Church Wednesday afternoon, there being a very large attendance of relatives and sympathetic friends. Services were conducted by Rev. Mr. Rankin the recent pastor, Rev. Mr. Dunning and Rev. Mr. Ravi. The carpenter's union of Woburn, of which the deceased was a member, was present in a body and escorted the funeral cortege to Wildwood cemetery where the interment was.

Following are the names of the bearers: Thomas Quigley, J. McDonald, John Webber and Robert Dover.

FIRE ALARMS.

Never before since Winchester became a town were there so many alarms for fire in so short a time as took place between 12:47 and 4:16 in the early morning hours of the Fourth. During that time there were 8 alarms. The admonition of the Chief Engineer in regard to sending in false alarms was not entirely heeded, as two of the above number were false. Starting at 12:47 box 37 was the first summons, where a hen house belonging to Mr. O'Donnell on Harvard street was found to be on fire, and quickly extinguished.

At 1:05, the department was summoned to box 35 on Swanton street which proved to be the burning of a heap of rubbish.

At 1:26 a fire in a barn on Mr. Parker's place on Washington street, caused an alarm from box 33. Soon put out, and supposed to have been set.

At 1:38 box 43 started the firemen on a run to Clark street for a blaze in an outbuilding.

The alarm at 1:58, box 44, was false.

At 3:27 the department was again called to the fire in Mr. Parker's barn which had again been set. This time it was destroyed.

Before the men got away from this place, box 32 sounded at 3:55. This was for a fire in the unoccupied house on Highland avenue near Reservoir street. When the department arrived the house was well ablaze, with the result that it will be an almost total loss. The house was owned by a Mr. Packard and had never been occupied. Repairs were being made and a family was expected to move in next day. Indications are that the fire was set, and Tuesday an officer from the fire marshal's office was in town investigating the cause.

The alarm at 4:16 from box 57 was false. At 9:10 the department went to box 7, on Thompson street where there was a small fire on the roof of the house occupied by Miss Pease. This was the last alarm of the day.

THE ORATION.

Mr. Samuel J. Elder did not attempt an oration but gave a most interesting and instructive history of the events leading up to the immortal declaration, which was much appreciated by the large audience present.

THE SPORTS.

The sports on Manchester Field, commencing at 2 p. m., were largely attended and keen interest was manifested by all. The results were as follows:

In the morning at 8:30 a baseball game was played on Manchester field between the Independents and the Hiawathas. The former team won. The score:

A Convenient Directory.

The Assessors have issued their annual book giving the names of all poll tax payers arranged by streets. In addition the names have also been arranged alphabetically. This makes a very valuable, convenient and up-to-date directory of Winchester that will find a welcome place in the homes and places of business. These books are given away, and they can be procured at the drug stores, at the Town Hall and at the STAR office. The Assessors are to be commended for issuing this book, which will be found of so much benefit to the people.

Starratt—Peabody.

The first wedding since the opening of the handsomely appointed Hemenway Chambers, Boston, took place last week Thursday evening, when Miss Marion Mari Peabody, daughter of Mrs. Lucia Peabody, and Mr. Albert Wilbert Starratt of Winchester were married. The entire first floor of the hotel was utilized for the event. A number of well known society people attended. In the reception parlors, where the ceremony took place, the mantel and floral decorations were of roses and hydrangeas.

The Rev. William E. Gardiner of Quincy officiated. The groom was attended by Henry Anderson, while Miss Margaret Starratt was maid of honor. She was gowning in a sunburst dress of yellow organdie, with chiffon and applique rose trimmings. The bride wore a superb robe of white liberty silk and chiffon, made in a circular flounced effect, with yoke and sleeves of valenciennes lace. Her bouquet was of bride roses. She was given away by her father, Charles R. Peabody. The ushers were Messrs. Jerome Dewing, Howard Gannett of Quincy, Edward Hodgkins and Henry Clarkson of Cambridge, William Woodman of Melrose and Frank Voorhees of Winchester.

A reception followed in the salon of the house.

Mr. and Mrs. Starratt upon their return from a wedding journey, will reside in Winchester.

The Gypsy Moth—How the Legislature Fooled the People.

The people of this district were left without any legislation to help them fight the gypsy moth because the advocates went up to the State House and the members of the legislature fooled them. Some of the time and all the time the pretended advocates of legislation were engaged in opposing whatever form of a bill was proposed. If a bill appeared to have a fair chance of becoming a law, some features of it was found to oppose. Some opposed an assessment upon the property owner, some opposed an assessment upon the town or city, infected, some opposed money for a parasite, some opposed the bill declaring the pest a nuisance, some opposed a law forcing property owners to take care of their own trees. Each one found something to oppose in each bill. Each one was determined to defeat every bill except his own particular form. In the whole thing the people were fooled. No bill was passed and no relief given. The people who understand the methods by which they were fooled last year will not submit to it again. They will demand some relief from the pest and have little patience with the methods of last year. No important legislation is effected without some concessions as to details. The advocates of legislation should have agreed upon a bill and put it into law. —Melrose Journal.

A Correspondent Raises a few Queries.

EDITOR OF THE STAR:
I am told that it took the joint committee only one brief session of less than one hour to settle that whole Highland School business. They say that the medicine was given in the shape of one big bolus by two members of the Board of Health and that the rest of the bunch merely opened their mouths wide and swallowed the dose at one gulp. No offer was made for any one "to fish, cut bait, or go ashore." If this was all the time and labor it took and things were so well greased why in the name of common sense didn't these two committees get together six months ago? Why need tire everybody out by taking up the time of two or three town meetings by long winded discussions? The truth is that it was a big game of bluff and over-reaching from the first. More is the pity that it took several town meetings to force one or two men to show their hand. Was the game worth it? SPECTATOR.

Those Signs Fronting on Parkways.

In the district court at Waltham, last Saturday, the Buttrick Lumber Company, charged with maintaining a sign upon one of its buildings within sight of the Charles river reservation contrary to the metropolitan park commission, was found guilty by Judge Enos T. Luce, and fined $5. An appeal will be taken to the higher court.

This case is similar to several others that will be tried soon in the courts about Boston, where the park commission has jurisdiction. The question of maintaining signs within sight of the various reservation has aroused great interest in a number of communities, and the decision of Judge Luce is of great importance.

Judge Luce said: "The power of the commission to make rules and regulations has recently been considered by the courts. After careful examination of the law I find that these rules are constitutional and do not deprive owners of property of their rights without compensation."

One Lady's Recommendation Sold Fifty Boxes of Chamberlain's Stomach and Liver Tablets.

I have, I believe, sold fifty boxes of Chamberlain's Stomach and Liver Tablets on the recommendation of one lady here, who first bought a box of them about a year ago. She never tires of telling her neighbors and friends about the good qualities of these tablets. P. M. Shore, Druggist, Rochester, Ind. The pleasant purgative effect of these Tablets makes them a favorite with ladies everywhere. For sale by O'Connor's Pharmacy.

Oleomargarine Decision.

The recent decision of the supreme court of the United States upholding the law imposing a 10 per cent tax on all oleomargarine colored to imitate butter is of great interest to dairymen and farmers.

The supreme court holds not only that the law is constitutional, but also that all oleomargarine of the appearance of butter is to be regarded as artificially colored within the meaning of the law, no matter by what process the tint was given it. Even the device adopted by manufacturers as a last resort of mixing high tinted butter with their oleomargarine in order indirectly to tint the latter is placed under the ban.

Hereafter also will avert the yellow peril and will travel in its own bleached complexion. Those who prefer to eat it, either for its cheapness or other reasons, cannot deceive themselves into thinking it is the product of "Old Brindle" that is, unless Brindle has gone through a packing house.

The fact that lightning struck the house of District Attorney Jerome of New York while he was away from home was doubtless for the reason that it was afraid to strike it while he was there.

Port Arthur is Russia's aching tooth. Dr. Japan first tried to plug it, but as the affected molar still gave trouble he has now concluded to extract it. The painless process will not be employed.

Ely's Liquid Cream Balm is an old friend in a new form. It is prepared for the particular benefit of sufferers from nasal catarrh who are used to an atomizer in spraying the diseased membranes. All the healing and soothing properties of Cream Balm are retained in the new preparation. It does not dry up the secretion. Price, including spraying tube, 75 cents. At your druggist's or Ely Brothers, 56 Warren Street, New York, will mail it.

Women as Well as Men Are Made Miserable by Kidney Trouble.

Kidney trouble preys upon the mind, discourages and lessens ambition; beauty, vigor and cheerfulness soon disappear when the kidneys are out of order or diseased.

Kidney trouble has become so prevalent that it is not uncommon for a child to be born afflicted with weak kidneys. If the child urinates too often, if the urine scalds the flesh or if, when the child reaches an age when it should be able to control the passage, it is yet afflicted with bedwetting, depend upon it, the cause of the difficulty is kidney trouble, and the first step should be towards the treatment of these important organs. This unpleasant trouble is due to a diseased condition of the kidneys and bladder and not to a habit as most people suppose.

Women as well as men are made miserable with kidney and bladder trouble, and both need the same great remedy. The mild and the immediate effect of Swamp-Root is soon realized. It is sold by druggists, in fifty-cent and one dollar sizes. You may have a sample bottle by mail free, also pamphlet telling all about it, including many of the thousands of testimonial letters received from sufferers cured. In writing Dr. Kilmer & Co., Binghamton, N. Y., be sure and mention this paper.

Don't make any mistake, but remember the name, Swamp-Root. Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root, and the address, Binghamton, N. Y., on every bottle.

WORLD'S FAIR HOTEL ACCOMMODATIONS.

St. Louis Hoteliers Prepared to Handle Vast Throngs—Prices Not to Be Increased—Hotel Inside of the Exposition Grounds With a Capacity For 6,000 Guests.

Ample hotel accommodations have been provided for the World's Fair visitors at St. Louis both within and outside of the Exposition grounds.

The Exposition management has organized a free information service. A pamphlet has been issued for gratuitous circulation explaining many of the conveniences that have been provided. A list of all the hotels, with rates, is contained in this pamphlet.
The entire city has been canvassed, and many thousands of private house-

PORTION OF VARIOUS INDUSTRIES BUILD-ING, WORLD'S FAIR

holders have arranged to receive visitors. These houses are in every section of the city, and the rates at which guests will be received is a matter of record on the books of the bureau.

The inside inn, a hotel on the Exposition grounds, has a capacity for 6,000 guests. The Exposition management has control of the rates, which have been fixed at from $1.50 to $3.50 per day, European plan, including admission to the grounds. On the American plan the rates range from $3 to $5 per day. The hotel is 400 by 500 feet and is three stories high.

There are more than 150 established hotels in St. Louis, and a signed agreement has been made between many of their managers with the Exposition officials that rates shall not be raised during the Exposition period. Many new hotels have been built on sites adjacent to the Exposition grounds, and the published fixed rates warrant the assertion that no one need pay exorbitant rates for accommodations either at hotels or private houses.

Among the new hotels may be mentioned the Hotel Napoleon Bonaparte, which stands at Clayton avenue and Skinker road, overlooking the Exposition grounds. This hotel will accommodate 5,000 persons. The rates, European plan, are from $1 to $5 per day. The Grand View hotel, south of the Exposition, on Oakland avenue, has a capacity for 5,000 guests, and the rates are $1 to $1.50 per day, European, and $2 to $2.50 per day on the American plan. The Kenilworth, on West Park boulevard and Dillon avenue, has a capacity of 1,500 guests, with a rate of $1.50 per day.

The above mentioned are a few of the new hotels that have been erected near the Exposition grounds for the accommodation of World's Fair visitors. All told there are about two score. All are within easy walking distance, and all are situated on high ground, with comprehensive views of the grounds. All of the structures are well built, and in some of them the most luxurious quarters are obtainable. The rates are established and will not be increased during the Exposition.

NEW MUSIC FOR WORLD'S FAIR

Three Compositions by Famous People.
Band Tournament.

Musical people and all who appreciate good music may thank the World's Fair for three notable compositions, written upon the invitation of the Exposition management. These are the "Hymn of the West," by the most distinguished living American poet, Edmund Clarence Stedman, the music for which was written by Professor John K. Paine, who is at the head of the music department of Harvard university; "Louisiana," a march by Frank Vanderstucken, leader of the Cincinnati Orchestra; a waltz, "Along the Plaza," by Henry K. Hadley of New York, who has won his laurels long before this as writer of operatic and other musical compositions. This music will be heard publicly for the first time upon the opening of the Exposition on Saturday, April 30, and frequently thereafter in the musical programmes of the greatest of world's fairs. These are the only official compositions.

Thirty thousand dollars will be given in prizes for the best bands at a tournament to be held during the Exposition. All through the World's Fair the musical feature will be prominent.
The most famous bands of the world are under contract to participate during considerable periods. Among these are the Le Garde Republicaine band of France, the Royal Grenadier band of England, the American National band, Sousa's band and others.

Riding the Air.

M. Santos-Dumont, the airship inventor, who is shortly to show the world his latest machine in the contest at the world's fair, recently described some of his experiences. The accounts are graphic and thrilling enough to make one believe that the writer could have made quite as much of a success at fiction as he has at aerostatics. His first ascent was in a spherical balloon.
In telling of it he gives an experience common to all balloonists—that of beholding a concave rather than a convex earth:

Suddenly the wind ceased. The air seemed motionless around us. We were off, going at the speed of the air current in which we now lived and moved. Indeed, for us there was no more wind, and this is the first great fact of all spherical ballooning. Infinitely gentle is this upward movement forward and upward. The illusion is complete; it seems not to be the balloon that moves, but the earth that sinks down and away.

At the bottom of the abyss which already opened almost a mile below us in the earth, instead of appearing round like a ball, shows concave like a bowl, by a peculiar phenomenon of refraction, whose effect is to lift up constantly to the aeronaut's eyes and circle of the horizon.

His account of an accident that threatened his life furnishes something of a psychological study. Yet just why a man, looking in the face of almost certain death, should spend the time in psychological studies he does not explain, possibly because it is the psychologic moment. At any rate, the description is lifelike:

For the moment I was sure that I was in the presence of death. Well, I will tell it frankly, my sentiment was almost entirely that of waiting and expectation.

"What is coming next?" I thought.
"What am I going to see and know in a few minutes? Whom shall I see after I am dead?"

The thought that I would be meeting my father in a few minutes thrilled me.
Indeed, I think that in such moments
there is no room for either regret or terror.
The mind is too full of looking forward. One is frightened only so long as one still has a chance.

From all of which it would appear that those who contemplate going up in the air in ships should prepare for a choice bunch of sensations. It is a fascinating prospect, that of riding the wind, but not without its drawbacks.
The idea of falling a mile or two is not alluring.

The Gould Ducks.

Howard Gould, chiefly distinguished as being the son of his father and inheritor of a wad of the patented millions, threatens to break into the Hall of Fame at another entrance. He is not endowing universities and talking to Sunday school classes like another distinguished millionaire, nor does his distinction come from his donations to libraries that carry his name above the door. The Gould renown proceeds from a more humble and less expensive source. By the way, it is startlingly original, at least for a millionaire. It is—now hold your breath—it is raising ducks. Now, a vast multitude of people raise ducks. But only one raises Gould ducks. Just what the difference is nobody exactly knows. But there is a difference. The Waldorf-Astoria and other of the swell New York hotels will buy nothing but Gould ducks. Is not that a difference? It is presumed that there is some reason why they will not. It may be on account of the name the ducks bear; then it may be owing to a more brilliantly colored plumage, a more cultured quack or a certain high bred quality of the meat itself. Whatever it is, the Gould ducks have the call, and that is what counts in New York. It appears that Mr. Gould has a farm down at Sands Point, Long Island, where he breeds and raises his ducks scientifically. Now, a scientific duck is not exactly a novelty; neither is a scientific quack. But a Gould scientific duck—including the quack—is so decidedly novel that it brings a fancy price. So that the young millionaire's diversion is not exactly philanthropic or for his health.
There are certain envious ones who insinuate that Mr. Gould has cornered the duck market, cornering being hereditary in the family. But in this they do the young man wrong. He has only cornered the New York hotels.

The treasury department recently issued a warning against counterfeit quarters, with which the country is being flooded, that are so cleverly made an expert can scarcely detect them.
This will be hard on the church collections.

A great deal of humor is being squandered on wireless telegraphy, featherless hens, seedless oranges, homeless fish, tailless dogs and the like, but they all are not so bad as the jointless jokes concerning them.

A bartender in Chicago was fined $10 for pretending to be a reporter. The barkeeper mixes drinks, the reporter mixes facts, and the fine came for mixing occupations.

A certain sect of free lovers seem to think that the millennium will be a time when we shall love our neighbors as ourselves and our neighbors' wives as our own.

Cornell university has decided to reduce its fossil exhibits. All professors will be retired after the age of seventy.

A New York minister says it is vulgar to be rich. It is at least vulgar to be conscious of it.

The Rip Roaring Cossack.

If the military experts of the world agreed on any one thing, it was that the Russian cavalry was about the hottest proposition that ever did the cyclone act, while the mounted soldiers of Japan were a military joke. First, it was said that the Japs could not ride; second, that their horses were poor things that only needed pushing over, and, third, that the mikado's cavalry had no training, and, even if it had, the men were too light to bear the shock of a cavalry charge.

On the other hand, the czar's Cossacks ate Chinese bandits raw. They cut off their victims' heads and hung them up in cages. They sliced off the ears of those they had killed in battle.
They did feats on horseback that made a circus rider resemble the awkward squad. They rode like bad men from Bitter Creek, whooping and showing their teeth. They carried spears and were strong on whiskers and sizzling expletives filled with consonants. They were fierce and bloody children of the wilderness, who scorned such effeminate arts as reading and writing.
And they succeeded in impressing even the military experts. The tacticians of Berlin, Paris and London admitted that the Jap artillery and infantry might do something, but, as for the cavalry, it would hardly prove a mouthful for the ferocious Cossacks.

But even the military experts miss occasionally. Were it not so, actual fighting in war would be unnecessary.
A few boards of tacticians could sit in some back room and settle the whole thing as they would a game of chess.

The terrible Cossack has met the quiet and smiling Jap cavalry. The Jap continued smiling, and the wild rider of Russia ingloriously turned tail.
In three separate engagements on the Yalu the czar's cavalry was beaten.
Of course this is not conclusive. Nothing in war is conclusive except the last battle. But it is a very large sized straw in the current—in fact, a whole haystack. It not only shows that the mounted soldier of Japan has been underrated, but that the consonant chewing Cossack of the Don has a reputation several sizes too large for him.
Many years ago Colonel Cody, our own "Buffalo Bill," gave it as his opinion that as a rough rider the American cowboy could put it all over the spectacular Cossack. Now, if there is anything that William does know, it is rough riding, and he made the remark after having witnessed a Cossack drill.

If he had also ventured to observe that at rough fighting the Cossacks are somewhat on the order of "sound and fury signifying nothing," he would have proved doubly a prophet.

With her navy out of the running and her Cossack bubble punctured, poor Russia has nothing to fall back on but Kuropatkin, and she finds that reliance not entirely firm, for Kuropat-kin is doing the fall back act himself.

The American Red Cross.

There is no humanitarian agency of modern times more worthy of public support than that which goes under the name of the Red Cross. It is a symbol of peace in the midst of war, a prophecy of the end of strife. Its banner is the most nearly a universal standard of any known on the earth. The soldiers enlisted under it are those of life instead of death.

The American Red Cross has been an occasion of pride to the people of the United States. The movement to include disasters of peace, such as floods, fires and famines, as proper subjects for the activities of the international organization originated in the American society. Clara Barton, the former national president, is known and loved in all lands, her work of mercy in Germany, Russia and other foreign lands having been almost as conspicuous as that in her own country.

It is for this reason that the public at large has regretted the seeming in-harmony in the ranks of the American Red Cross workers. Without understanding the cause, and thus being unable to take sides in the controversy, they could not but recognize it and the threatened impairment of the work consequent thereon.

That the conflict is apparently ended should be a matter for public congratulation. While this settlement involved the retiring of Miss Barton from the presidency of the organization, all sides united in doing honor to her and in acknowledging the priceless service she has rendered the society as its head, in which position her term of service extended over well nigh a quarter of a century.

A former schoolmate of Jesse James is a millionaire. Jesse made the mistake of using a gun to hold people up.
The other told them up by speculation, which is safer, and more profitable.

An Increase of One Dollar.

The town has voted to raise by taxation this year $9500 more than a year ago. This means an increase in the taxes of a little over $1 on $1000. This increase the Assessors are striving to overcome so as to keep the rate down to where it was in 1893. Can they do it?

Settlement of the Highland School Muddle.

There is a suggestion of a mild sort of disguised blessing in squandering fifteen hundred or more dollars upon that old ark of a building which passes under the name of the Highland School. The real blessing consists in the fact that now the school may be kept open as it will doubtless be granted a clean bill of health in September. It could have been kept open just as well for at least two more years without this expenditure of the town's money. The long suffering taxpayer was caught between two grinding millstones and pinched to a pretty tune. Again, it will postpone for at least ten years the erection of a suitable new modern building in the locality. The saving of this six thousand dollars for this time is something to be thankful for, if we can afford to be thankful in taking a backward step in educational affairs. Meanwhile, the people of that section appear to be satisfied with the outcome of this muddle. This is something. The committee elected at the town meeting to spend the fifteen hundred dollars is well made up. If they succeed in patching up the school house so it will fulfill its purpose for the next ten years with any such amount they will in truth do wonders. If they do not receive thanks for their onerous task, it will not be because they do not deserve them. At all events, the Board of Health will withdraw from active operations against that offending outbuilding, and this is an end to be devoutly wished for.

Winchester Boat Club "Pop."

The Winchester Boat Club will hold a "Pop" concert at the Club House from 8 to 11 p. m. of July 15th. If the evening is stormy, the affair will take place the following evening. A series of Hops will be given during August, dates to be announced later.

The annual Float Night will occur early in September. As usual the principal event will be the parade of illuminated canoes. Prizes will be awarded for the best features and each member of the Club is earnestly solicited to participate.

Gophers as Plowmen.

Darwin's twenty years' study of the fish worm convinced him that this humble and wriggling friend of man is responsible for the loamy condition of the soil. Ernest Thompson Seton, after not quite so long a study of the gopher, discovers that this burrowing rodent performs a similar function in a vast area of country where fish worms are not found.

In the June Century Mr. Seton gives the results of his researches in a very interesting paper, of which the following are scattered extracts:

I have visited nearly every state and province west of the Mississippi. I have availed myself of the researches of the agricultural department, indeed of all sources of information, and I am satisfied that the ordinary earthworms are not native to any part of America south of the Saskatchewan or west of the Mississippi valley, exclusive of a narrow humid belt along the Pacific coast. There exists nevertheless a fine stratum of humus in all parts of the country where there is moisture enough to produce annual vegetation. The black earth in Manitoba is from one foot to two feet thick, an amount not exceeded over any large area in the world. This is not a solid bed of decayed vegetation, but it is thoroughly mixed with the upper formation and forms the black loam. There is no doubt that in the absence of earthworms this mixing is done by a number of species of burrowing animals, but by far the most important of these are the geomysine, or pocket gophers. They are found in the whole region west of the Mississippi valley as far as the Pacific coast, south well into Mexico and as far north as the Saskatchewan. In other words, their distribution is general over the whole region that is without earthworms, though it is not likely that the rodents had to do with this limitation. Darwin concluded that the earthworm in five years brings up soil enough to cover the ground one inch thick and that, therefore, the result of its labor is of vast importance. I reckon that the pocket gopher does this in five months. It does not do it in the same way or so effectively, because the earthworm actually digests the substance of its castings, but it is evident that at the gopher's method answers the purpose of fully disintegrating and mixing the dead vegetation with the soil to produce a rich and fertile black loam. From these observations we may form some idea of the work done toward tilling and draining the ground by this continental army of rodents, and it is possible they cause still greater changes by bringing such vast quantities of soil under the influence of the sun and wind. Their aggregate power as active geological agents must be immense, and many million tons of dead home silt are loosened annually by the master plowman of the west.

Teaching Manners.

Gentle courtesy, that has no element of snobishness, is so desirable that it should be taught to the young. Consideration for others, gentleness, amiability, the substance rather than the mere form of good manners—surely there is nothing more needed in our life than these. It is for this reason that a recent article in the Outlook is to be especially commended. Among other fine things, it says:

If we are to have any fine civilization in this country, good manners must be drilled into the school children, and the Outlook proposes to the teachers of the country that they shall organize everywhere in the schools leagues for courtesy, voluntary associations of boys and girls for the purpose of advancing the standards of manners and of developing those instincts of courtesy, kindness and helpfulness which are characteristic of the American in all parts of the country. The American ought to be the most courteous and the best mannered person in the world for his natural kindness, his desire to be helpful and to make himself agreeable are recognized everywhere. He fails, whenever he does fail, not because of bad intentions, but because of lack of training or because of haste. As the use of English is supervised in every recitation in every good school, so the manners of every boy and girl ought to be supervised and corrected in every school recitation.

Would not such a movement in our schools have much to do with modifying the rowdiness, the lack of respect for parents, the tendencies to petty criminality and other like evils now complained of as existing among the young? Would it not add an element of heart education to the too exclusive head education now prevalent in our institutions of learning? Would it not simplify the growing problems in the government of children?

Bovine Tuberculosis.

It is finally established beyond question that cow consumption is transmissible to man. After exhaustive experiments with over 200 bovine animals the royal commission of England, appointed in 1901 to investigate the connection between human and animal tuberculosis, has reached the conclusion that the bacilli of both are identical.

The report is a most important contribution to modern scientific research as to the cause, nature and cure of tuberculosis. At a tuberculosis congress in 1901 Professor Koch, the renowned German bacteriologist, announced that tuberculosis could not be communicated by animals to human beings. In spite of the valuable researches and discoveries already made by Professor Koch the announcement was received with much skepticism by the scientific world, so much so that state health authorities everywhere were admonished not to relax any of the stringent regulations already in force for protecting the people from infected cattle.

American scientists for the most part combated the theory of Dr. Koch at the time of its promulgation. Health boards refused to relinquish their restrictions, at least until the point was actually settled by experiment. In the light of results it is well they did.

Man's Faithful Friend.

A gentleman who is a great traveler and who is always accompanied in his wanderings by a bull terrier, to which he is much attached, arrived one day in the city of Florence. His dog was for some reason intrusted to the care of the porter at the station, and in the excitement of the crowd and under the unusual experience of being separated from his master, who generally kept the animal with him, Bruno was moved to make his escape. The most careful search was made, and before going to his hotel the traveler went to the police station to notify the gendarmes of his loss. It was more than an hour before he reached his hotel. When he got there he spoke of his loss, so that if anything was heard of the dog it would be understood that the animal belonged to him. To his astonishment the porter said: "But your dog is here, sir. He came before you, and we did not know to whom he belonged." "The dog is here!" repeated the gentleman in surprise. How came he here? He ran in, sir, about half an hour ago, and after sniffing about the office for a while, he ran up stairs. I gave orders to have him driven out, but the boys have been busy and he is up there somewhere now." The traveler, of course, went up stairs at once, and there on the mat before the chamber numbered 44 lay Bruno, who sprang up with the most frantic demonstrations of delight at finding his master again. The gentleman remembered that two years previous he had been with the dog at Florence and had stayed at this hotel. He did not re-

Safeguard the Children.

Notwithstanding all that is done by boards of health and charitably inclined persons, the death rate among small children is very high during the hot weather of the summer months in the large cities. There is not probably one case of bowel complaint in a hundred, however, that could not be cured by the timely use of Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy. Mr. Frank Riggs, of Franklinville, N. Y., in speaking of this remedy said: "I have found it expedient to have a supply of Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy on hand. It has been a family safeguard and while especially beneficial to children, it is equally good in adult cases. I recommend it cheerfully and without reservation." For sale by O'Connor's Pharmacy.

The Deadliest Poison.

A new and most deadly poison has been discovered recently by Mr. Lascelles Scott, an Englishman. The substance is scientifically known as dimethylarsine cyanide, or more familiarly as cyanide of acetyl. Three grains of this substance diffused in a roomful of people would kill all present. It is a white powder, melting at 33 degrees and boiling at 140 degrees. When exposed to the air it emits a slight vapor, to inhale which is death. While trying its effect upon animals Mr. Scott experienced the deadly nature of this poison. One millionth part of cyanide of acetyl in the atmosphere of an air tight cage killed a dog almost instantaneously.

MAKING THE SUN WORK.

How Californians Heat Their Baths Without Fire.

The residents of southern California have gone into partnership with the sun. There the sunshine is more plentiful than coal, and so they put the former to work, utilizing the heat rays for many purposes, one of which is known as the "solar water heater."

By the plan they have adopted they make the sun heat the water in the kitchens and bathrooms in the houses and for other domestic purposes. In California and other states where the sun may be depended on the item of fuel may be entirely eliminated, and, however cheap fuel may be, no fuel is cheaper than the sun.

The domestic arrangement for keeping water hot at all hours of the day or night is effected by inserting in the roof a solar heater, consisting of a number of mirrors reflecting the sun's rays, so that the heat is concentrated upon the water in metallic troughs, which absorb the heat rays and soon bring the water to a nearly boiling temperature. The illustration shows the solar heater and how it is placed in the roof.

GROUND BROKEN FOR NEW SCHOOL.

Burdett College on Mt. Vernon Street, Lynn.

Ground has been broken on Mt. Vernon street, Lynn, for the new building to be built by the Burdett College, of Boston, for a commercial school. The building will be a decided ornament to this section of the city and have features which will be new and novel for school purposes as well as affording a large audience and banquet hall for the general public, the latter to be used as well for schoolrooms. It will be built of marble and brick, four stories high, with an attractive front, set back from the sidewalk three feet and ornamented with two large pillars on either side of the vestibule.

The new building will be owned by C. A. and F. H. Burdett, and leased to Burdett College for a branch school. The cost of the building, land and contents will be in the neighborhood of $50,000. It will be about 60x80 feet and will accommodate about 500 pupils.

On the ground floor, connected by entrance, both through the main entrance on Mt. Vernon street, and side entrance on right of way next item building will be coat rooms, laboratories, bicycle rooms, typewriting, dictating, English and shorthand rooms. This room on the rear will open into a small Italian court garden with a succession of blossoms from the crocus, hyacinth and tulip season through the rhododendron, azalia, peony, geranium, phlox and other beautiful flowers, annuals and perennials. Most of these shrubs and plants will be brought direct from the estates of C. A. and F. H. Burdett, in Woburn. This garden will be slightly sunken with the terrace walls and vases, with an abundance of ornamental iron work. There will also be a goldfish pool supplied by jets of water through Dolphin heads.

On the second floor, the main entrance and vestibule will be on Mt. Vernon street, entrance running through, connecting with the reception room and private office, cashier's office, large business department, banks, offices and class rooms.

On the third floor there will be a hall with balcony and boxes seating about 600 people. This hall will be used for the college lectures to its pupils and their friends on vital current issues. This hall will also connect with the ladies' and gentlemen's rooms, with lavatories for each.

The fourth floor will contain executive offices and class rooms across the front and entrances into the balconies. The dome will take the remainder of this story. The building will be constructed of marble and brick, with beautiful columns of modern construction, iron work in abundance, and will be of a distinct type of academic architecture. The architect is J. Williams Beale, of Boston, who has constructed many beautiful residences in suburban Boston and many modern business buildings. The readers will recall the beautiful mahogany entrance of R. H. White's store in Boston as a specimen of his work.

This branch is the beginning of a carefully perfected plan for similar institutions in the leading cities in New England. In the near future branch schools will be established in Brockton, Somerville, Fitchburg and other prominent centres.

Cured of Chronic Diarrhoea After Ten Years of Suffering.

"I wish to say a few words in praise of Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy," says Mrs. Mattie Burge, of Martinsville, Va. "I suffered from chronic diarrhoea for ten years and during that time tried various medicines without obtaining any permanent relief. Last summer one of my children was taken with cholera morbus, and I procured a bottle of this remedy. Only two doses were required to give her entire relief. I then decided to try the medicine myself, and did not use all of one bottle before I was well and I have never since been troubled with that complaint. One cannot say too much in favor of that wonderful medicine." This remedy is for sale by O'Connor's Pharmacy.

A Delightful Celebration.

EDITOR OF THE STAR:

I am a new comer in Winchester and the present is the first of my Fourth of July celebrations in town. I think it just to the town authorities to say that my family as well as myself enjoyed every one of the events culminating in the evening fireworks. In fact I never saw as unpretentious and sensible a function of this kind better carried out. Allow me to say also that the Town Hall, Common and Manchester Field are all admirably situated and equipped for just such celebrations as that of Monday last. I can truly say that those who in the day of small things preceded us as citizens certainly did well in making such permanent improvements from time to time as have led to the great blessing Winchester now enjoys as a municipality. Certainly we of this generation should add our improvements that those who follow us may call us blessed also. I will venture to call attention to one obvious improvement which could be made: a little cost and would add much to the beauty of our local parks. I allude to the dredging and cleaning out the bed of the river from the center to Mystic lake so that it would be more navigable to small boats and canoes. I do not know of a single instance where a little money could be so well expended and do so much good aesthetically and healthfully as in making Winchester's little river what it ought to be, a beautiful adjunct to our Parkway. As the state owns all the land on each side of the stream below the center of the town, and it is all a beautiful park, there can be no good reason why this work should not be done if Winchester citizens would rise to the occasion and subscribe a little money to carry out the project. I know that present Winchester has done much for posterity but I hope that before many Fourth's have passed away, we shall perfect our parkway by cleaning up its beautiful neighbor, the Aberjona river.

Do not think, Mr. Editor, that I am finding fault or picking flaws with the natural beauty of Winchester, or the past work of her citizens in perfecting the work of nature. I glory in what has been done in the past and only allude to condition of the river because I have hitherto lived in a locality where a stream was cleaned out, not half as pretty as Winchester's, much to everybody's satisfaction. The beautiful and poetic use of Aberjona by canoeists who came up from Medford to see the games and fireworks on Manchester Field on Monday and the thought how much more satisfactory to all it would be if the stream could be a little cleaner and a little less shallow and muddy led me to propose the improvement of the river as Winchester's next work. But I have wandered from my subject and will close by again saying that I and mine never spent a more satisfactory Fourth than our first one in Winchester and I hope to enjoy many more of the same sort in one of the best towns in Massachusetts, if not in the world. I feel like thanking everybody in town for my good time. OBSERVER.

Boston & Maine's Booklet on Exposition Upon Receipt of Postal Card.

The St. Louis Exposition is daily drawing large crowds, and the attendance thus far has surpassed the opening month at Chicago.

The Exposition is starting in the completeness of such an enormous and magnificent spectacle. The amusement feature known as the Pike is really marvelous; however, the same may be applied to other portions, and to mention the points of interest would require much space.

If you contemplate visiting St. Louis, send to the Passenger Department, Boston & Maine Railroad, Boston, for their beautiful illustrated booklet telling about the Exposition. It will be mailed upon receipt of a postal card.

FARMING BY NIGHT.

The Great Scope of Electricity in Agriculture.

Many of the large farmers of the west are taking a profound interest in some power which will supersede horses and oxen. Some are using steam tractors, but these, however, endanger the crops by fire, especially in very dry weather. One Dakota farm is now experimenting with an electrical device for this purpose. By this contrivance the power is generated by a mill some distance away, perhaps several miles, and transmitted in the usual way to a power mast forty feet high set in the open ground.

At the top of this mast a double conducting cable is connected, this in turn being connected to the tractor, which consists of a twenty-five horsepower motor on a heavy carriage. A spur ten feet high is carried on the carriage, with a universal joint pulley on top over which the cable is led to a drum on the carriage, which automatically takes up any slack cable as the tractor approaches the power mast, the power being transmitted by suitable connections through the drum to the motor.

The tractor when in operation is hitched to a gangplank, cultivator or harrow, the cable being kept from sagging by the action of the drum. With a cable of about 500 feet in length twenty-five acres can be worked. The work has proved so satisfactory that it is proposed to extend the system to cover 600 acres, which will require twenty-four masts at suitable intervals.

The device should prove quite essential during the spring wheat operations, as each day's delay in seeding is detrimental to the future crop. The owners of the farm on which they are using this method propose when planting time comes for the spring wheat to install are lamps on the masts and carry ing poles, so that their operations may go on night and day, thus saving valuable time.

Fishes' Ages Told by Their Scales.

A new theory is that the age of fishes of the cod family can be determined from the periodic growths of scales. Such growths are known to be annual in the carp, and it is therefore probable that the same is true for salt water fishes. The view is confirmed by observations on various cods by J. S. Thomson, a British biologist. Annual rings seem to be traceable, giving the ages, and it is proposed to test the truth of the theory by returning labeled fishes to the sea for future observation after first recording the present condition of their scales.

Best Temperature For Brain Work.

The best temperature for brain work has been shown by the prolonged experiments of Sir B. W. Richardson to be 64 degrees F. If the temperature is lower the mind becomes drowsy and inactive, and if higher both mind and body are relaxed and soon fatigued.

MUSIC CURE FOR INSANITY.

Chicago Physician Tells How It Relaxes Nervous Tension.

The value of music as an aid in the alleviation and cure of the insane has been pointed out by Dr. V. H. Podstata, superintendent of the Dunning institutions in Chicago.

"The salutary effects of music on the disordered mind are many and profound," said Dr. Podstata in a recent address. "The first effect of pleasing, harmonious sounds is a relaxation of special nervous tension. The harmonious sound wave reduces the horrible inhibition and the mental agony of the melancholy patient. It liberates the pent up energy and diverts the association of ideas.

"In the mania the constant flight of ideas and motor restlessness are moderated and often checked.

"In the purely deluded the attention is diverted so that at least temporary stay is achieved in the abnormal mental aberration.

"In all cases the harmonious impressions cause a relaxation of blood. The congestion is relieved, the anaemia, and as a result not only the brain, but all the organs of the body, are enabled to return to the normal activity. As a further result reconstruction may take place and the patient be given better chance for improvement."

RUNNING of A MUDLARK

By Curran
Richard Greenley

Copyright, 1903, by T. C. McClure.

"Mudlark!" Jim resented the derisive title and was filled with a longing to fall upon and rend the line of grinning stable boys who yelled and hooted as Joe led Barehanks out for his exercise. The shabby blanket draped around the gaunt legs, and the bald Roman nose was stretched to its farthest as Barehanks sniffed at the wet morning. Out in the east a rim of sickly yellow barred the sky. Jim scrambled up, and they went slowly out on the track to the accompaniment of "Hayrack!" "Ki-yi! Get on to de moonshine tru his ribs!" "Three-legged skate!" and a chorus of groans.

Jim's thin little arms went around the bony neck, while a tear trickled a white line down the grime on his cheek. The keen wind cut through the lad's jacket, and the little hands that gripped the bridle were blue with cold. Underneath the track was already sticky. As Jim turned into the field, where later the little red flag would mark the course from one ugly ditch to another, Barehanks laid down to his work. The slippery turf slid away from under his great hoofs in a green glimmer as they rose from hurdle to hurdle.

Over and over the course went Barehanks and Jim, while at the stables, in the doorway of Mayer Bros.' quarters, a man stood peering through field glasses at the brown blur that swept around the field.

Jim slipped to the ground, the sweat pouring from horse and boy alike. Joe's sulky face had under the peak of his cap, gave him a sly glance as he blanketed the horse and led him inside. Jim turned with a question in his eyes to the man who stood pulling his gray mustache and looking away into space. Jim twitched his sleeve, and he looked down into the small, pinched face, its very eagerness rendering it thinner and more pathetic, and answered the unspoken query.

"Yes; he'll do. In for a penny, in for a pound; but if he fails I'll see that you get back to the old farm, all right."

"And him?" Jim pointed to where the bony nose showed through the open door.

The man laughed shortly. "A bullet through his ugly head." The boy shrank back and slipped through the door. Unperceived, he curled down in the straw almost at the feet of Barehanks, who munched contentedly at his provender.

Other eyes had watched that morning gallop. Joe, the groom, had finished the rubbing down when, with an eye on the silent figure outside the door, he sneaked from his stall the bridle that Barehanks must wear in the coming race, drew a bottle of colorless liquid from his pocket and poured a few drops over the bit. Bright eyes watched from the shadow of the feed box, and when Joe, his work done, disappeared, Jim jerked the bridle down and sniffed it. There was not the slightest scent. He hung the bridle back again and resumed his place between the horse's legs, a look of owlish gravity on the queer, puckered, old young face.

The hours wore on. Over on the track, where a drizzling rain fell steadily, men went up and down in mockintoshes. Women in short skirts gathered in knots upon the grand stand, their eyes fever bright with excitement. The crowd grew steadily. Out there, where the little red flag, like points of flame, marked the zigzag of the hurdles, the old wagon drawn by the gray work horse stood loaded with the net, and a surly of boys blew whistles and thither in the wake of the different owners.

There had been wild work when Joe essayed to lead Barehanks out. An old rope ladder hung where the bridle should have been. Joe turned ashy. Jim stuck like a bar to Barehanks and trailed at his heels in his patched and stained jacket, a mere apology for owner's colors. Neither horse, owner nor jockey was a favorite on the town. True to the primeval instinct, the rout was hostile to the shabby encouragement. Nevertheless there was no open affront. London evidently possessed some kind of a pull with Mayer Bros.; hence his occupancy of one of their stalls and the grudging attendance of Joe.

Jim was ready to mount Barehanks when the bell tapped, but as he passed the grand stand, still clinging to the old rope ladder, the crowd yelled and roared as a man.

Off with the saddle and the weighing done, they were mounted again and filed before the grand stand. Barehanks' ugly head reared above his fellows. Then as they would have passed into the field a voice from the judges' stand halted them: "What's the matter with that boy on No. 5? That's no bridle. Where'd he get that halter?"

And with a sure aim he bunched the bridle and flung it to the judge.

At the lad's first word there had been a commotion down there among the crowd of grooms in the paddock. A little, black form darted across the course and made for the outer gate. A dozen men seized him at once and then held their breath for the next move in the play.

Old Colonel Cantwell, the judge, stood up and waved for silence. "Bring him another bridle. I'll take care of this one. Now get to the post." Jim settled in the saddle. Ahead of him the little flags danced in the wind and rain. Garrison's Black Seraph wheeled into Barehanks', and at the end of the line Morgan's Timber Wolf plunged and reared. Three times the red flag fell, three times they struggled back to the post. Then red down, yellow down and a whirl of black, bay sorrel and gray swept away, nose and nose, with the rain adrip on flesh of scarlet and blaze of gold.

"Mudlark!" "Old Skate!" It rang in his ears on the whistle of the wind. The first hurdle—Jim felt the long body gather itself, and they were over, leaving the Black Seraph a balker adrift in the field. Timber Wolf led by a head. There were only four now. Jim grinned and lurched a little forward as Barehanks' great hoofs gripped the slippery grass. Grant's Derrydown was second, the long stride of English hunters showing its nettle from great-grandfather to son. Maxton's Red Ruin and Long's Wild Irishman nose and nose with Barehanks. Up the slope and over the second hurdle, the great shoulders working with a mighty come and go, Barehanks forged on, while the Wild Irishman dropped in a heap to scramble out with a wrenched fore leg. Jim laughed aloud as they swept the turn. The third—he had studied it well and knew the rotten bank, where the Timber Wolf landed, struggled a moment and slid down, his fore legs fighting the air. They were close together now. Derrydown first by a shoulder length, Barehanks next, his ugly, lean head stretched out, with red nostrils wide aflare, and Red Ruin struggling a sorry third.

Over—over again. They had made the round once and for the second time had passed the first three hurdles. Barehanks crept up a few inches on the home stretch, leaving Red Ruin a dozen yards in the rear. The last hurdle lay before them, orange and black thorn, with an ugly stretch of water beyond. Jim's tense little hands crept up closer to the bit as he poured God knows what prayers and promises into the two ears that lay to the big, ugly head. He felt the great muscles stiffen, the bunching of those awkward looking legs, the surge of the heart beneath the girth, the up-over flash—whirl and the sea of faces rose and surged in the billow of sound as the bold Roman nose was thrust under the wire, winner by a neck's length.

From the stand above men came down and over hand, men poured in from the pit, and the shrill clamor of excited women's voices shrilled above the dull roar of the crowd. Jim slid from the saddle and went to the back, singeing under his weight. His slender body all aquiver, then back to sit motionless, enduring, until the moment when Barehanks, swathed in his shabby blanket, stood the center of the stable's attention and envy, and he awoke and lived again, his arms around the brown neck, his face buried in the scanty mane. There could be no question of a bullet in the head of the winner of the Montgomery steeplechase.

Gladdening a Humorist.
The financial burden which Mark Twain carried some years ago weighed on his mind heavily. In these moments of despondency there was one faithful friend who could make the humorist forget his troubles. This was Dan Beard, the artist, who illustrated some of Twain's books.

"Dan Beard, there is no tonic that can equal the company of a cheerful man," said the humorist as he entered the artist's studio.

"Ah, but I have such a pleasant subject to work upon that I am not in need of either man or tonic for my cheerfulness," retorted the artist.

"Beg pardon, it is I that need the tonic, and that is why I am here," said Twain forlornly.

"Then allow me to prescribe a dose of your own medicine," and Mark Twain was handed a copy of his book which Beard had been studying.

"I thank you," replied the humorist. "It took me a year to get that medicine out of my system, and I do not propose to imbibe it again."

A discussion of the book was followed by a hearty dinner, and Twain left his friend, having received the cheer that he needed.

He Obedient Orders.

Old world domestics make the best possible servants because they work like machines, never forgetting an order and doing exactly as they are told, without presuming to think for themselves. But once in awhile this literal adherence to duty produces some awkward results. An American woman living in India, with native servants, once told her butler to see that there was always a napkin at the bottom of the fruit dish, cake basket, etc., when these were brought to the table. The napkin was therefor a'ays seen in its place. But one day a turn of vegetable soup was served, and the hostess began to wield the long, old fashioned silver ladle about in it. Something very like a fringed rag made its appearance in the first plateful. The butler was summoned to remove the dish. "It cannot be that the mom sahib found no napkin at the bottom," he hazarded, much distressed because of this unexplained disapproval. "For I myself placed there the largest one I could find."

COAL FROM PEAT.

Fuel Made by Electricity Through a New English Process.

A process recently invented in England by which peat is turned to what is practically coal by an electrical process is described by William H. Mason, United States consul general. He says:

"At Charlton, in Kent, England, there has been exhibited during the past fortnight an electrical process for converting ordinary peat into firm, smokeless steam coal at a cost which promises to bring the product far within the price limit of steam fuel in Great Britain and continental Europe. The peat is cut and excavated by machinery, loaded in dumping cars which convey it from the bog to the plant, where it is packed into rotary iron cylinders of a peculiar construction. The cylinders being rotated at high velocity, the centrifugal pressure, aided by an interior heating device, expels all but a small remnant of the 80 per cent of water which the material originally contained.

Electrodes connected by conductors with a dynamo are then inserted in the cylinders in such a manner that the mass of centrifugally dried peat becomes the medium through which is completed the circuit between the electrodes. The resistance offered by the peat, like the filament of an incandescent lamp, generates heat which carbonizes the material, producing a mass of disintegrated black globules, which retain all the valuable elements of the original material. From cylinders the carbonized material passes to machines which knead it into a putty-like mass, which is then pressed into briquettes or left to dry and harden in masses, which are broken into lumps, screened and graded like ordinary coal. Among the special advantages claimed for this method is the fact that the electrical current converts, but does not destroy, any of the valuable elements of the peat, whereas coking by fire heat expels a large percentage of these elements in the form of gases.

Briquettes produced by this method can be compactly stowed on shipboard or elsewhere. They are practically smokeless, leave no clinkers at all and have the high thermal value of 10,000 British units. The cost of a plant capable of treating 100 tons of peat per day is stated to be $10,500. The actual cost of producing one ton of peat fuel by this process is stated to be $1.21, equal for all steam generating purposes to a ton of south Wales steam coal, which costs at the mouth of the mine $2.02.

There are in New England and in the middle and western states vast beds of peat which have been heretofore left neglected as waste material in the economy of nature, and which this new process may render extremely valuable.

NOVEL STEPLADDER.

A German Invention of Great Value to Housewives.

German housewives have a step-ladder contrivance which ought to be universally adopted. The ladder is built on the plan of the ordinary household article except that at the top it has a platform which enables the housewife to step from the front toward the wall and within comfortable reaching distance of anything upon which she is working.

Every one knows that many of our ordinary step-ladders, having their base at the back to preserve the equilibrium, keep the worker standing on the top at a distance from the wall, and the higher the ladder the greater is the incline of the base and the farther the woman at the top is from the point she wishes to reach. This is not only inconvenient, but dangerous, for there is always a chance of a fall.

From the top of the German ladder and from the step below is a double platform, held with braces and adjustable, so that it can be folded in when not in use. When the platform is in place the housewife or maid having climbed the ladder to the step below the top steps forward upon the lower platform, which brings her out over the base at the back, in the place where she would be on the ladder proper if she were using the ordinary household inconvenience. The upper platform is carried out a little farther. Standing comfortably upon the section below, well toward the wall, she has her full of water before her upon platform No. 2 and can do her work without effort.

America's Export Trade.
Five millions of Canadians buy of the United States $110,000,000, or $22 each; 40,000,000 of Englishmen buy of the United States $600,000,000, or $15 each; 50,000,000 of Germans buy of the United States $500,000,000, or $4 each.

Spaniards Wear American Rubbers.

Spain now purchases from the United States $15,500,000 worth a year, an increase of 50 per cent since 1898. American ice cream freezers and rubber overshoes are seen in all Spanish villages.

FIRE ENGINES OUT OF DATE.

Philadelphia's Effective System of Quenching Conflagrations.

Philadelphia has a new system of fire fighting which, while doing away with the ordinary fire engine, has, it is believed, put the city beyond the danger of such a conflagration as that which devastated Baltimore. The pressure at the hydrants under this new system can be raised so high that water can be thrown from 500 to 600 feet in the air in greater volume than by means of the portable engine.

The system consists in the laying of mains independent of those fed from the reservoirs, and the pressure from which is so low that the aid of the portable steam fire engine is needed to make service effective. The new mains are supplied with water through the medium of a pumping plant located at Race street and Delaware avenue, which contains a battery of seven gas engines, each of 300 horsepower, connected direct with seven pumps, each having a net capacity of 1,200 gallons per minute. There are also two smaller engines and pumps of 125 horsepower and 250 gallons per minute capacity each respectively.

There are nine and a quarter miles of specially made wrought iron pipes which gridiron the territory protected. These pipes vary from twenty to seven inches. One hundred and sixty-six hydrants are connected with the pipes, each hydrant being capable of supplying six lines of hose of three and a half inches capacity each. At the corner of Eleventh and Market streets, where there are located three of the largest department stores in the United States, there are four of these hydrants.

A marked feature of this plant is the use of gas engines of such high power, 300 horse per unit. There are no fires or furnaces connected with the engines or pumps. In one minute from the time the alarm rings in at the pumping plant one unit, or one engine and pump, can be put into operation with full pressure. The pipes are always "primed," as the engineers term it; that is, water is always in the pipes at a pressure of eighty pounds, at which point it is maintained by a connection with one of the city reservoirs. But as soon as the pumps at the power plant start and the pressure exceeds eighty pounds there is a check valve which cuts off the reservoir supply and prevents the water intended for the fire being forced back into the priming pipe.

For an ordinary fire anywhere in the district one of the pumps is said to be sufficient, but if the fire is of large proportions the entire plant can be in working order, starting from an absolutely inert condition, in seven minutes. The pipes are tested to carry 400 pounds pressure per square inch, and the pumps will give a normal pressure of 300 pounds per square inch, but such a pressure will scarcely ever be necessary. To illustrate the power of this plant, it can force a column of water alongside the plant to a height of 710 feet, through a six inch pipe, and at the farthest point from the plant, one and one-half miles, the water would reach a height of 575 feet through the same size pipe.

To start any of the engines at work an electric spark is used to ignite the gas, and for protection against accident there are four ways provided for getting the spark. The gas supply is furnished from three points, each capable of furnishing all of the vapor necessary to run the entire plant, so that a breakdown at any one point of the gas supply would not cripple the fire service.

IMPROVED LIFTING JACK.

A Simple Device for Raising Axle-trees of Vehicles.

The Scientific American describes an improved lifting jack for use in repairing the wheels of vehicles which combines extreme simplicity with great efficiency. It has a decided advantage over the ordinary screw jack or over the common method of propping up a wagon axle with boards.

As will be seen from the illustration, the jack consists of two sticks, one longer than the other, fastened together near the tops by a bolt loosely enough to allow the sticks to close like the blades of a pair of shears. From this joint or hinge hangs a steel or iron rod with a right angled hook on the lower end. The jack is placed straddle of the axle so that the hook on the rod swings under the axle-tree. A pull on the longer stick, which is provided with a handle, draws the lower ends of the sticks together, raising the axle-tree until the wheel is clear of the ground. It is apparent that there is no danger of the jack slipping during the repairing of the wheel.

The agricultural department announces that copper will kill mosquitoes. So will petroleum, dynamite, a meat ax or placing the mosquito on a flat rock and swatting him heavily with another rock. There are many ways of killing a mosquito—after he bites you—but while the sentence of death and execution are being carried out there are 443 others waiting to get in their work. What the bitten public wants to know is how to keep the mosquito from happening at all. If the agricultural department can give a line on how to kill the pest before he is born, the people will arise and call it blessed.

Two sure cures have been found for insanity. One is music, the other chewing. Why not combine the two operations in a routine and rag chewing composite?

It is frequently reported that the czar is going to the front. If he will only wait long enough the front may come to him.

BRINGS DEAD TO LIFE.

Philadelphia Surgeon Makes Stopped Heart Beat by Massaging It.

Bringing the dead back to life by massaging the heart is a discovery which has just been announced by Dr. W. W. Keen, the eminent Philadelphia surgeon.

This remarkable method of restoring life has thus far been resorted to only in cases in which death has apparently resulted from chloroform.

In twenty-seven cases where death had resulted from chloroform attempts were made by Dr. Keen to restore the action of the heart. Out of this number four recovered.

Dr. Keen cites one specific case in detail. In this case, one in which chloroform had been administered to the patient, the heart had ceased to beat for ten minutes, and to all appearances life was extinct.

The heart was exposed at once and the massage treatment commenced. This consisted in inserting one hand in the cavity of the chest in such a manner that pressure could be exerted from the inside while with the other hand a similar pressure was exerted from the outside.

By means of this method of massaging the heart it soon began again to pulsate. Its action was at first so feeble as to be hardly discernible. It increased in strength very slowly, and it was almost an hour before the beatings were strong enough to be felt in the pulse.

Dr. Keen attributes his success in making this discovery to his extensive work as a vivisectionist. He has always been a champion of vivisection. Last year when he removed a clot from the brain of Missman Hugh Aiken of Annapolis, who had been injured in a football game, he said that but for his work as a vivisectionist he would not have been able to save the young man's life.

UMBRELLA LOCK.

A Guard Against the Absentminded and the Thief.

In order to prevent the misappropriation of umbrellas, whether intentionally or otherwise

Dr. R. R. Waite of Springfield, N. Y., has provided a device which will insure the spring latch of an umbrella to prevent the umbrella being opened by an unauthorized person. The device, as described by the Scientific American, is provided with a simple combination lock, which will render it impossible for any one not familiar with the proper combination to operate the latch.

The lock is so arranged that the owner can open it in the dark, the proper combination being recognized by a number of clicking sounds produced when the lock is being operated. As shown in the illustration, the device consists of a casing which at its lower end fits snugly on to the runner sleeve of the umbrella.

but is formed with an enlarged portion which covers the spring latch. A number of disks are held in the upper end of this casing between an indentured shoulder formed therein and a cap which is soldered to the top. A keyway is cut in each of these disks, and it is only by turning these disks until they are all brought into alignment with the key formed on the runner sleeve that the casing can be pushed upward.

The disks are brought into position by turning the casing a certain distance in one direction and then a certain distance in the opposite direction, these distances being indicated in each case by a predetermined number of clicks, due to a spring pawl formed on the upper end of the casing slipping into notches formed on one of the disks. The illustration shows the disks in the aligned position and the casing partly moved upward. It is evident that further upward movement of the casing would result in pressing down the spring latch, thus releasing the runner sleeve from engagement therewith and permitting the umbrella to be raised.

Serum Treatment of Diphtheria.

The antitoxin stations of the Chicago health department are to be re-established as a safeguard against the spread of diphtheria. The serum treatment for diphtheria was begun in Chicago in October, 1903. During the previous eight years, when the average population of the city was 1,100,000, the total deaths from the disease were 11,488; in the eight years following, when the average population was 1,672,042, the total deaths had fallen, under the influence of serum treatment, to 6,088. During the period before antitoxin was employed the death rate from diphtheria was 12.45 per 10,000 of population, while during the period of serum treatment it was only 4.55 per 10,000. The increase of population was 52 per cent, the decrease in diphtheria deaths 63.4 per cent.

NOVEL SHIP BRAKE.

Enables Vessel Under Full Steam to Stop Almost Dead.

The Canadian government has recently equipped one of its vessels, the steamer Eureka, plying on inland waters, with a ship brake.

As the name indicates, the brake is intended to check the speed of a vessel. It can also be utilized to assist in turning about in a limited shipway.

During a recent trial made in the St. Lawrence river near Montreal the steamer was driven ahead at an indicated speed of eleven knots an hour.

Steam was then shut off, and simultaneously the brake on each side opened. The vessel came to a full stop within a distance equal to her own length.

The brakes were then closed, the vessel was sent ahead until the original rate of speed was attained, when the engines were reversed and the brakes opened, with the result that all headway ceased after she had gone but fifty feet, about half her length. In maneuvering the Eureka at full speed with one brake thrown open. An examination of the hull and brake mechanism after the tests showed apparently no harmful strain or other damage, and in operating the brake no jar or vibration was observed by those on board.

This new form of brake is placed on the sides of the hull and in its construction and method of attachment to the ship resembles somewhat an ordinary rudder.

When it is desired to stop the vessel suddenly, as in the event of a collision, or when making a landing the catches that hold the forward ends of the gate are released, and by means of the bevel gear the gate is slightly opened.

The pressure of the water then catches on the forward edge of the gate, swings it out to the full open position, sudden jar or shock being prevented by means of the water cushions at the back of the slides. The movement of the brake can be controlled entirely either from the bridge or from the engine room, as may be desired.

When it is desired to stop the vessel suddenly, as in the event of a collision, or when making a landing the catches that hold the forward ends of the gate are released, and by means of the bevel gear the gate is slightly opened.

The pressure of the water then catches on the forward edge of the gate, swings it out to the full open position, sudden jar or shock being prevented by means of the water cushions at the back of the slides. The movement of the brake can be controlled entirely either from the bridge or from the engine room, as may be desired.

Be Careful of Your Voice.

A Chicago club woman declares that she can tell the character of a man by his voice. An unfortunate youth who loses his voice on attempting a proposal probably has no character. At least he feels that way. But this is not what the club woman means. What she really does mean is best told in her own language:

Those who have a deep, sonorous voice, like that of a donkey, are indiscreet and quarrelsome.

Those having a sharp, thin, husky voice are weak and yield easily to temptations. A full, deep voice denotes a strong, impulsive, but enterprising man.

A powerful, deep voice generally indicates cowardice.

The man possessing a voice which is deep at first, but raised to a high key as he finishes speaking, is noisy, irritable and of unhappy disposition.

Those having a thin, shrill voice are peevish, ill tempered and passionate.

Now, really, what is left? All the possible varieties of masculine voice are here covered, and they are all bad. They are so bad, in fact, that it is hard to tell which is worst. The donkey voice is quarrelsome. The husky voice is easily led into temptation. The full voice is impulsive. It is not clearly indicated whether this fullness is baritone or bibulous, but at any rate it does not matter, for impulsive would answer for either. A powerful voice is cowardly. A voice that slides up the scale like a steam siren is irritable. It also makes other people irritable. A thin voice is passionate. Poor man! He had best not speak at all, or his vocal apparatus will betray him. The club woman is abroad, and her ears are finely attuned to catch the squeak of hidden characteristics in his tones.

One may mask his meanness behind an impassive face, but his voice sticks up like a sore thumb to give him away. Let him once venture a remark, even on so noncommittal a subject as the weather, and the secret is out. The phenologist may be misled by a thick place in the skull; a physiognomist may be put on the wrong track by an amiable expression that is only skin deep, but the voice detective cannot be thrown off the scent. Whenever she hears the croak, the character behind it is an open book. The only way out of it is for a man to do the clam act when in the presence of a club woman who is trained to look through the cracks of the voice to see the evidence of masculine meanness.

In one Massachusetts factory a pair of boy's shoes was made in ten minutes. That is nearly as fast as they are worn out.

If Tibet will not be friendly, Great Britain will lick it into a more amenable frame of mind.

The Boston Globe asks, "What are the Irish coming to?" America mostly.

Referring to the somewhat absurd project of organizing a society of the "Grandchildren of the War Veterans of 1861-5," an exchange sarcastically suggests that the next in order is the society of the "Aunts of the Heroes of San Juan Hill," the "Brothers-in-Law of Conscripts of the Sixties" and "First Cousins once removed of the Filipino Exterminators." Snobbery masquerading as historic interest or patriotism deserves burlesque but there is a place for societies whose genuine aim is to preserve the memory of great deeds and inculcate the spirit of love of country.—(Wakefield Item).

COLLAPSIBLE HATBOX.

A Recent Invention For Silk Headgear Which Is Not Clumsy.

What to do with his silk hat is a problem which confronts the owner many times in the course of a year. When traveling around from place to place it is a nuisance, but he wants it so often when he has arrived at his destination that he often wears it or carries it with him in a hatbox made for the purpose. In the former instance he is under necessity of having it ironed frequently, and in the latter he is troubled with a bulky package which is of no use to him except when the hat is in it.

The advantage of this box here illustrated is that when not in actual use it can be folded flat and placed on a car seat or on the floor without occupying much space. When it is desired to place the hat in the box the owner has only to open the box as he would a collapsible drinking cup, setting the wire struts in position to prevent its closing again, when the hat may be inserted and the cover closed, as though it were a stiff box. The sections are all united by a flexible cloth lining, which is drawn tightly from top to bottom when the box is expanded and lies loosely between the sections when they are collapsed.

PRICE, FIVE CENTS

A Sad Occurrence.

A pathetic feature in the destruction of the house by fire on Highland avenue near Reservoir street early on the morning of the Fourth was the fact that the building was not insured the policy having been allowed to run out a few days before the fire took place. The house was the property of Mrs. Caroline A. R. Whitney, a widow lady residing in Belmont who had been the owner for many years. Not since it was built had it been occupied, and during many years she had been paying the taxes and insurance, and this with the interest must have cost her considerable. A few weeks ago she succeeded in selling the house after it had been on the market for years, and just on the eve of the passing of the papers, the fire took place, and this caused a loss of practically all the money she had put into the property. Carpenters and painters had about finished putting the building in condition for the new owner who was expecting to occupy it immediately after the Fourth. Perhaps it was because of the sale that the insurance was allowed to lapse, she leaving this matter to be attended to by the new owner. The woman was bound to lose on her investment after carrying the unproductive property so long, and now that the investment has been wiped out, she is entitled to pity.

The exact origin of the fire has not been determined upon, although the Chief of police is firm in his conviction that it was set by parties as a Fourth of July lark. Some persons contend that the fire was caused by spontaneous combustion among rags left by the painters, but this is disputed because of the fact that an old shed close by was twice set on fire just previously. The fire marshal sent an officer here to investigate in the hope of bringing the guilty parties to justice, but he did not so far as known succeed in accomplishing anything.

Patrick Dowd

Patrick Dowd, a well known and estimable citizen of this town, passed away very suddenly from apoplexy on Monday evening. Mr. Dowd had spent the day as usual at his blacksmith shop on Main street, and shortly before six o'clock he complained of a pain in his chest. He decided to ride home and crossed the street to Taylor's stable and asked for a carriage. While the horse was being hitched up Mr. Dowd sat on a stool by the stable door. Mr. Albert Hutchinson, who was passing, saw him slip from the stool to the ground. He ran to his assistance and everything possible was done to relieve him, but in a few minutes he passed away.

Mr. Dowd was 63 years of age, being born in Ireland. He had lived in this town over 30 years, following his trade as wheelwright and blacksmith. He leaves besides his wife, four daughters, Minnie E., Annie L., Marcella F., and Emily M., and two sons, James F., and William J., all of whom reside in this town. He was treasurer of Wedgemere Colony, 134 U. O. P. E., and of the Holy Name Society of St. Mary's Church. At one time he served the town as Overseer of the Poor.

Requiem mass with Gregorian music was celebrated in St. Mary's Church Wednesday morning for the deceased, the celebrant being Rev. Fr. McManmon. Solos were rendered by John Lynch of Woburn and Miss Toner of Cambridge. Miss Alice O'Brien was organist. The bearers were James Mulligan, Dominic Mawn, John Lynch, John McSweeney, Michael Flaherty, John J. McAteer. Interment was in Calvary cemetery.

Frenzied Finance.

Thos. W. Lawson, a leading financier of Boston, proposes to expose soon in "Everybody's Magazine" some of the mysteries and crimes of what he calls "frenzied finance." In an introductory statement he speaks of the "system" which has been responsible for the following: "The enormous losses, millions upon millions—to my personal knowledge over a hundred millions of dollars—which were made because of Amalgamated: the large number of suicides—to my personal knowledge over thirty—which were directly caused by Amalgamated: the large number of previously reputable citizens who were made prison convicts—to my personal knowledge over twenty—directly because of Amalgamated." This series of inside revelations promises to prove "mighty interesting reading" for when the inside workers begin to confess then the people may get a better idea of what is meant by systems of "frenzied finance." It is all a part of the American mania for getting immensely rich, and sacrificing the best things in life to that one end.—[Reading Chronicle.]

Mrs. Elizabeth E. Parsons.

Mrs. Elizabeth E. Parsons, aged 63 years, died at the home of her son, 28 1-2 Water street, Monday. She was born in Portland, Me., her parents being James and Elizabeth Libby, and had but recently moved to this town.

Services were held from her late residence Tuesday at 2 p. m., Rev. S. W. Adriance officiating. The funeral was at Portland, Me.

A Pretty Reception.

A very pretty reception was given by the Third Congregational Church of Chelsea in honor of the pastor, the Reverend Arthur Peabody Pratt and his wife (Miss Helen Armstrong) whose wedding took place early in June in Winchester at her home on Highland avenue.

The church was profusely decorated with marguerites and ropes of laurel leaves, the flowers being arranged to form white draperies and baskets. The front of the church where the receiving line stood was banked high with potted plants and ferns. In the receiving line were Mr. Newell, representing the deacons and Mrs. Newell; Mr. Burns, representing the Sunday School, and Mrs. Burns; the Reverend Arthur Pratt and Mrs. Pratt; Mrs. Fessenden, president of the Woman Workers; Miss Stewart and Mr. Newell representing the Christian Endeavor Society.

Nutter's orchestra furnished delightful music.

At the rear of the large room, a table was spread with dainty decoration of candles, ribbon and flowers. Ice cream, cake and lemonade were served by Miss Florence Mitchell, Miss May Bell Mitchell, Miss Etta Campbell, Miss May Gould, Mrs. Charles R. Irving, Mr. John L. Buck, Mrs. C. M. Kimbarch and Mrs. Butt.

Among those present were the Hon. and Mrs. Edward E. Willard, the ministers of the several churches, with their wives, Hon. and Mrs. Eugene F. Endicott, Mrs. John Loud, Mr. Henry Mitchell, Mr. Walter Dillon of the Boys' Club, and the officers of the Woman's Auxiliary of the Boys' Club of which Mr. Pratt is president.

The ushers were Messrs. George E. Fay, Charles J. Curtis, Fred Hervey, Frank Hall, Walter Stewart, Louis Tuells, Chester Burns, Jesse Gould and Arthur Hayse.—[The Suburban.]

Everybody Scratching.

Scratch? There is nothing else doing in Greater Boston. The Brown-tail moth and the gypsy moth, or their caterpillars, fill this part of the universe with their emanations. We might stand it if they only ate the leaves off the trees, but when they shake down the spicuous of their hairy covering to float through the air and irritate human skins by their poisonous touch, the affliction becomes too personal to be endurable. Without taking an accurate census, but simply judging from what one observes in ordinary social and business intercourse, we would say that three out of every five inhabitants of the metropolitan district are today suffering from cutaneous irritation caused by the moth pest. Most of them do not recognize its origin. A good many imagine themselves attacked by some form of eczema, and perhaps treat themselves with simple soothing embrocations. Others think that the dog must have developed fleas early this year, and subject the animal to disinfecting baths accordingly. Others say it is mosquitoes. But the fact of the scratching epidemic is indisputable, and the caterpillars are the cause of it. Why should not Harvard college be required to abate this nuisance? It is generally understood that these pestilent moths were originally introduced here for experimental purposes by one of its scientists.—[Boston Courier.]

Cross Street Baptist Church.

Last Sunday morning the services were conducted by Rev. Johnson. In the evening at 7:30 Mr. Sellers preached. His sermon was very inspiring and helpful to many who heard him. On next Sunday, in Haverhill, the union will hold its annual meeting. Mr. Jacob Russell of Winchester will preach the annual sermon. Last Sunday there was the following committee chosen to attend to the arrangements of a picnic: Mr. Charles Kirby, chairman, Mr. W. Russell, Miss Charlotte Hunt, Mr. Solomon Berch, Miss Leslie Billips. The committee met the Woburn committee last Tuesday to make arrangements with them on August 4th to go to Wakefield.

Miss Elnora Lewis is now on a two week's vacation.

Miss Jessie Harrell the organist has returned from her trip down east.

Miss Fanny Hunt of Florence street will spend the summer at the beach, where she is employed.

Mr. Herbert Winbush is now on his vacation.

There was a lawn party given by the members of the choir last Thursday evening at 40 Harvard street, for the benefit of the choir. The evening was spent in a very nice way and every one enjoyed himself. There was ice cream and cake for sale, lemonade and watermelon. The committee was Miss Elnora Lewis, Miss Hunt, Mr. Johnson.

Last Saturday the Crescent base ball team was defeated by a score of 20 to 10 by the Riverside A. C. of West Everett. On Saturday the Crescents will play the Barta Press boys of Boston at Boston. A good game is expected. Mr. John Smith of Woburn, of the Crescent players, came very near being seriously hurt by a flying bat. It struck him on the forehead and knocked him unconscious for a while.

Mr. McCall's New Home.

Last Saturday afternoon, I answered my door bell in response to a ring from S. W. McCall, who as I opened the door, greeted me with a smile and a kind invitation to take a seat in his carriage, and with him go over to "Myopia Hill" and look over the elegant and sightly house he is now having erected for his future home. The dwelling now going up, is of fine style and luxurious finish, with all modern improvements for health, convenience and comfort—each room arranged and located with careful design and utility for the occupants. The many rooms are divided, so that each is independent of the other in its approaches and connections. The sanitary and closet fixtures are most carefully provided for with inviting purity and delicacy.

The mansion house has a spacious and impressive exterior—the lower story of hammered stone, quarried from the cellar base, jointed and united with taste and skill, the upper stories finished outwardly with elaborate workmanship and the best of materials to please the looks and resist the waste of time, with projection and windows that give beauty and attraction to the observer. All sides of the house face so as to take a view, slightly and far away, until the horizon spreads its mantle of blue.

The street that leads up to the house from Cambridge street, has been built with great care and expense of crushed stone; it leads to Arlington street, is long and winding with graceful curves and comes out a little ways above the Golf grounds. The Myopia grounds embrace about 60 acres of land, hill and vale, great variety of trees, oaks, pines, birch and others, cover the grounds. The town of Winchester, at a large outlay has introduced water, by high service for the benefit of this part of the town. From every part of the McCall edifice the sight is inviting and picturesque, fascinating and commanding in its distant visions; extending on the north to the hills of New Hampshire and nearer Lowell, Wilmington, Reading, Stoneham, Melrose, Malden and extending over much of Essex County, and to the south, Charlestown, Boston, Brookline, Cambridge and the islands of the harbor, like floats resting in the green sea. I can not fail to mind a more pleasing panorama than is presented from Myopia Hill. The whole region is historic on the west, Lexington with its patriotic record. Concord with her scholarly and devotional love for liberty, Harvard college near by. The electric road running at the base of the hill, the slightly boulevard in close view, and Mystic lake clear and charming as it rests in the lap of quiet, fringed with green shores. The region of Myopia Hill was once the home of Squaw Sachem and an extensive Indian tribe. Fifty years ago Edward Everett contemplated building a handsome mansion on this hill but later built on the shore of the lake which he sold and went back to his city home. Much of this region many years ago belonged to the Gardners, the Swans, the Wymans and others, long since departed; it was then rugged uncultivated and obsolete more than now but the spirit of genius, wealth and refinement has given it new and vigorous life, hastening its steps in the journey of progress. What would old Samuel Gardner and his maiden sisters, Patience and Sarah, say to this march of civilization now going on around their ancestral home—the Swan's and other departed, never to come again.

Raise the veil of time (in imagination) one hundred years later than today. What will the view present? The heart that flutters today with the health of life turned to dust, the soul imperishable with God, or in realms that he has created for joy and rest. Eternity, what is it and where is it. N. A. RICHARDSON.

Winchester, July 12, 1904.

Mutually Tolerant.

Congressman McCall's Fourth of July address at Jamaica Plain was mainly a criticism of his own party for its policy on one of the great national questions—that in relation to the Philippines. His own position was practically that of the Democratic party. The treatment of Mr. McCall's views on this question illustrates the spirit of tolerance in the Republican party—and Mr. McCall's spirit of tolerance, also. The party will undoubtedly nominate him and elect him in spite of his views, and he will heartily support the Republican ticket though he disagrees emphatically with its platform, its policy and its candidates. So long as he is willing to support the party ticket, the party is indifferent to his "views," erratic though they may be, from a party standpoint.—[Cambridge Chronicle.]

Camp Phi Delta.

On a hill-top, three eights of a mile from the sea, in the old town of Scituate, the second annual camp of the Phi Delta Society was pitched on Tuesday, June 28. The spot chosen was an almost ideal one, an abandoned farm overrun with blueberry bushes, and abounding in springs of the clearest water. The view of old ocean was magnificent. On clear days Cape Ann could clearly be made out, far to the north, and the hills below Duxbury marked the limit of vision to the south.

Eleven members of the fraternity were at the camp at one time or another, during the two weeks stay. Messrs. Newman and Pratt made the trip down in a launch starting from Winchester at 11 p. m. on the 20th, and arriving at Scituate at 4 p. m. the next day, after being lost in a dense fog, for most of the night and morning. The launch was anchored in Scituate harbor, two miles below the camp.

Three tents were used this year, a living tent, twelve by fifteen, in which ten fellows could easily bunk, a storage tent, ten by twelve, and a small cook tent.

The first three days in camp were marked by a drizzling, cold rain storm, but the boys managed to keep fairly dry and happy until the storm passed, and the best of weather was experienced after that. A cool breeze always seemed on hand for the warm days.

The boys took turns at cooking washing dishes, and policing the camp. Almost enough food for the two weeks was taken down from Winchester, and this helped out with fish, now and then, kept the boys far from starvation.

The days were spent in taking side-trips in the launch, one being an all day run to Nantasket, sailing in a dory which was hired down there, fishing, bathing, and last, but not least, a very little "fussing."

Deep sea fishing was something that was new to almost all the boys and was thoroughly enjoyed by all of them. One morning's catch amounted to about forty cod, haddock, and pollock, caught about four miles out. All but six of this catch were given to the townspeople in exchange for pies, etc., etc.

It was decided to break camp on Sunday, July 10th, and at two o'clock that day the camping ground was as barren as in the first place, everything having been sent by express, or put aboard the launch.

Four boys came up in the launch, making the trip in a dense fog, in five and one-half hours, a large part of the time being spent in waiting for the tide at the mouth of the Mystic. Those who went to camp were: Bolling Abercrombie, Erastus Badger, Robert Fernald, Ralph Herrick, Harold Hovey, James Newman, LeRoy Pratt, Laurence Symmes, Louis Walling, Philip Webber and David Witmer.

"A Better Looking Man."

Just as we expected—our townsman, Francis Bigelow, was in trouble all the time he was in Chicago and St. Louis, and we can imagine that Joe Hayden of the Somerville Journal was responsible for it. At least he tells the following good thing on Bigelow while at the National Republican convention.

"One of the sensations at Chicago after the nomination of Senator Fair banks was the frequent mistaking of Middlesex County Commissioner Francis Bigelow for the vice-presidential nominee. The resemblance is so striking that on one occasion there was a stampede for the Middlesex country representative, who graciously declined to receive congratulations.

All this was greatly enjoyed by the Massachusetts delegation, especially when one Indiana man rushed up and expressed his pride at the distinguished honor that had come to his state.

"Excuse me," said Mr. Bigelow, "I am from Massachusetts."

The confused and disappointed man looked at the tall Bay State representative with his square forehead, tall, erect form and said, "I shall not apologize to you are a better looking man."—[Natick Bulletin.]

Mrs. Mary E. Nowell.

Mrs. Mary E. Nowell, a life-long resident of this town, born when Winchester was a part of Woburn and called South Woburn, died at the home of her daughter, Mrs. James Johnson of Elm street, Wednesday night. She was born in 1831 in the old and historic Converse house, situated near the present Whitney mill dam, her parents being Joseph and Mary Hunnewell. In 1850 she married Horace Nowell. They had six children, two of whom are now living, Mrs. James Johnson and Mr. Frank Nowell. Mrs. Nowell was in her 73rd year and her death was due primarily to a cancer.

Funeral services will be held this Friday afternoon at 2 p. m. from the home of her daughter, Mrs. Johnson, Elm street, Rev. H. P. Rankin and Rev. Vincent Ravi officiating. The interment will be in Wildwood cemetery.

That Sign Law.

As some business men in Winchester are interested in the sign law as being executed by the Metropolitan Park Commissioners, the STAR prints Judge Luce's decision in the two cases that recently came before him at the court in Waltham. The Judge decided that the Buttrick Lumber company, charged with maintaining a sign upon one of its buildings within sight of the Charles river reservation in violation to the rules of the Metropolitan park commission was guilty. At the same time Charles F. Nutter, proprietor of the Riverview boathouse, charged with maintaining a float on the river without a permit from the park commissioners, was also adjudged guilty. Both cases were dealt with together and each defendant was fined five dollars. In rendering his decision, Judge Luce said:

"The legislature of 1890 passed a law giving the metropolitan park commission the power to formulate rules governing the Charles River reservation, and in 1893 a law was passed providing that the commission may make reasonable rules regarding signs, posters and advertisements adjacent to the various reservations, not to exceed certain lengths and heights, to be considered a nuisance if the size was exceeded, and punishable by a fine not exceeding $50."

Judge Luce then read the rules of the park commission, pursuant to the law of 1893, which states that no sign over 20 feet in length and 15 inches in height may be maintained within sight of any parkway or reservation under the jurisdiction of the park commission. Continuing, he said:

"This rule is much milder than the law, which declares all signs to be nuisances. The power of the commission to make rules and regulations has recently been considered by the courts. After careful examination of the law I find that these rules are constitutional and do not deprive owners of property of their rights without compensation."

"It is claimed by the defendants that the sign was erected and the float placed in position before the law bearing on the matter was passed, and that therefore they have a right to maintain them now."

"In the float case, the defendant claims that he owns the land under the float, and to deprive him of that right is to take the property without compensation. While Mr. Nutter owns the land under the water he doesn't own the waters over it for mooring boats; he hasn't the absolute right to the use of this water, for the public has right as well as he."

"In the sign case, it is contended that the rule is broader than the law, in that it makes the metropolitan park commission a licensing board. The courts have ruled that governing boards have right to issue rules in the form of licenses."

"These rules of the park commission refer to signs that are plainly visible from the reservation, and the phrase, in my opinion, does not mean their nearness, which is a very vague word. Visibility is the important point."

"I have no doubt that the defendants believe that the rules are an encroachment on their private rights, the rights of citizens and of property. In my opinion the sign in question is not a nuisance in the proper sense of the word, and there is nothing objectionable in the float. I have no doubt that if the defendants applied for a license from the park commission it would be granted."

"It appears to me that these rules apply to indecent advertising signs. They are in force not only in the Charles river reservation, but over the entire reservations where the commission exercises control."

"After a most careful examination of the cases, my opinion is that both defendants are guilty of violation of the rules."

Lodge Men Take It Seriously.

The story which the Boston Journal printed to the effect that Henry M. Whitney and the members of his reciprocity league were about to make an attempt to prevent the re-election of Sen. Lodge at the coming session of the legislature is believed by the Lodge people themselves, however the public at large may view it. The Lodge workers think they have discovered genuine opposition in Greenfield, Springfield and Northampton. It is also suspected that the story in the Journal was in the nature of an official warning for all good Lodge men to keep their eyes open. The story that McCall was asked to stand as a candidate against Lodge is also vouched for by the same people, hard as it may be to believe it at first hand.

The hand of Henry M. Whitney has lost its cunning, however, if he has really started on any campaign of his sort. With his public experience there is no man who is better fitted to judge what political chances are, and this unseating of Lodge is such a hopeless task that it is surprising if Whitney has been drawn into it. He may have had some motive, but he can hardly be accused of thinking it possible to prevent the re-nomination of the junior senator.—[Practical Politics.]

Not Very Good Luck.

The eleventh annual fishing trip given under the auspices of Mr. Chas. A. Lane took place place yesterday. The large and fast sloop yacht, the "Actaeon," owned by Mr. George W. Purrington, was chartered for the trip and under the charge of Capt. Philpott the party was conveyed without mishap to and from the fishing ground. When the boat sailed from City Point there was a spanking good breeze and kept the skipper pretty busy until the fishing ground was in sight, when a dead calm set in. The boat on the incoming tide drifted rapidly up the harbor until it was found necessary to anchor to prevent the boat going back to the starting point. After a wait of over an hour, the wind having increased, a second start was made, and the fishing ground reached shortly after one o'clock.

Of course the forenoon is the best time to catch fish, so that the party was laboring under a severe handicap. At the word "let 'er go" the lines went into the water simultaneously and everyone began to fish for all they were worth. Dr. Eaton caught the first fish and this secured him first prize. The Doctor also caught the largest number of fish, but as only one prize was given to the same individual, he failed to connect on this. The largest fish was captured by Mr. Farmer and weighed about ten pounds, for which a prize was given. The honor of securing the largest number had to be divided between—Messrs. C. A. Lane, H. C. Bagley, Fred Hinds and Dr. C. J. Allen, who caught two fish each. The total number of the catch was very small, a majority of the large party not succeeding in pulling in a single fish.

The day was, however, one of exceeding pleasure, the sail in the afternoon being most delightful, without the slightest trace of seasickness. A very fine chowder was served, also coffee, and when the boat reached its anchorage everyone was in the best of spirits and glad that they went on "Charlie's" eleventh annual.

Sleeping Twenty Years.

One of the scientific journals of Paris recently gave an account of a woman who was quite the equal of Rip Van Winkle as a sleeper. She began her slumber on May 31, 1883, and did not awaken till May 23, 1903. She was not always peaceful during her nap, but about once a month had a convulsive attack, but without waking. All nourishment was injected.

On coming out of her long slumber the woman recognized those about her and remembered something of her life prior to the sleeping attack. The events immediately preceding, however, were a blank, as, of course, were all those that took place during the twenty years' slumber. She had only a vague, uneasy sense of a vast time having elapsed. She remembered her childhood well, and when she spoke it was in the dialect of that period. Five days after the awakening the patient died. In discussing the case one of the Paris specialists remarks:

Is this sleep natural sleep? It does not seem so, for if we look at the eyes we perceive that the eyelids are pulsating, blinking, agitated by little quiverings, or by throbbing, and if they are opened it is common to find a sort of strabismus which does not appertain to normal sleep. Besides, the silence in such cases is always absolute, for noise is not heard, and pinching the skin, as well as the most diverse tortures, can be practiced without the subject's retaining the least recollection on awakening.

The title of "the sleeper" applied to this patient and to most of the patients of the same nature is not, therefore, exact, since it is not a question of natural sleep, but rather of a pathologic state which manifests itself by the state of hibernation peculiar to certain animal species, among which, at a given moment, the life of relation and the vegetative life are, so to speak, annihilated.

To a lay mind twenty years would seem anything but a natural sleep. Joe Jefferson could do it once each evening, but then any one who ever saw him would agree that Joe Jefferson is just a trifle out of the normal. A bear will slumber all winter. So will a snake. A toad when shut up in the middle of a rock will even extend his siesta over a number of years. But a human being has to content himself with seven or eight hours a day, and, if there is a colicky baby in the house, with even less. Twenty years seems to be overdoing it a trifle.

How wonderful is Death.
Death and his brother, Sleep, sings Shelley. Surely the sleep of the Paris woman was wonderful. Also it was very much a brother of Death.

The Split Infinitive.

That this is an age of transition is shown nowhere more startlingly than in the recent advocacy by eminent literary men of the "split infinitive." In the old days this crime was cardinal with all who made any pretensions to letters.

Murder might be condoned, but never the placing of an adverb between the "to" and its verb. In the vernacular of the day, that was the limit.

Now that some of the crack rhetoricians and literary magazines are daring to question this time honored dictum it would seem that the world is on the eve of revolution or some other horrible thing. The tenacity of the late Herbert Spencer in daring to attack the art of the old masters was as nothing to this. The respectable conservatism that worships authority and that puts the form before the substance gasped once or twice and attempted to ostracize the discussion by ignoring it. But the Insurgents will not be snubbed. They insist that if they wish to say "to kindly return" instead of "kindly to return" they will not be prevented from so doing by all the precedent worshippers that seek to fix the standards of the world of words.

Inasmuch as this is supposed to be a free country, it would seem that the rebels against form have the best of the argument and that if a man wants to split his infinitives he has the God given right to do so without asking the aid or consent of any coterie of critics on earth.

A Long Island man paid a $150 judgment in pennies. Whether he was trying to realize the weight of his obligation or bear the copper market is not apparent, but at any rate he made the other fellow sensible of the fact that wealth may be a burden.

Work and Play.

The recent preaching of Russell Sage wherein he opposed vacations is chiefly valuable for some of the really fine answers it has called forth. No one particularly cares for the Sage ends, for the simple reason that no one is especially desirous of becoming the Sage type of man. Some would not object to having his money, although money for itself is becoming less and less a goal toward which real men and women are striving. But, if grubbing dollars is to make of each one a man with the Russell Sage viewpoint and outlook of life, then from such a fate, "good Lord, deliver us!"

For all this there are some good doctrines in the Sage gospel of work—for example, these:

If a man will only take an interest in his work, have it, he will not need anything else to recuperate him, and men who learn to love their work invariably succeed.

A man should work "easy," he economized of his time, conserve his forces and not worry. It's a weary and not work that makes the hair gray.

The doctors may recommend a change of air for a man when he's sick, but why be sick? Strenuous work is an irrefragable loss of time. If I had a thousand tongues I'd preach "Save time" with them all. It's infinitely more valuable than money.

Commenting on Mr. Sage's opposition to vacations, a New York nerve specialist makes the point that the average period of rest of Americans is not given to rest at all, but even to harder labor than the work time. He says:

Give heed, all who go from offices and counting rooms to blister their hands at the oars, to roam the woods and to return at night to your summer hotels worn out by the toll of the day. That is not recreation, and after your vacation you will come back to the city more weary than you were when you went away in search of health and strength.

An editorial writer in the Chicago Tribune is moved to assert the "right to be lazy." After passing in review the last century of nervous progress, wherein men spent their time in gaining the means to live rather than in living, he advises:

Just try the grass, the sky and the smoke. It is strange how Babylon, Delhi, Rome, London and Chicago pass before you as unessential phantoms! It is strange how the human soul, your own soul, seems, after all, to be the one thing which these manifestations of energy inclose and which must be nourished by them to its full strength!

Stevenson's essay on idleness and La Farge's book on the right to be lazy—these are the documents which form the new human declaration of independence. Work is good. Mr. Kipling is right. Strenuousness is good. Mr. Roosevelt is right. But strenuous work is only water on the soil of the soul. Is there to be no time for reaping the crop?

Try the grass, the sky and the smoke. Try the sight of the moon hanging blood red over the black pit of the lake. Try the society of men when they are neither clients nor employers nor employees nor customers nor patrons. Try that newest and that oldest of remedies for the shaken, muddled spirit—the remedy proscribed in the verse, "And leave went out to meditate in the fields at eventide." It will be strange how the thickish, suffused, blinding vapors of the spirit will precipitate themselves to the bottom and how the spirit itself will stand forth clear, steady and radiant.

Climb a high mountain and look down on it all. Who is that dark worm boring away with as much prospect over other things as if he were an angleworm in a clod? Myself?

This is a revelation. Therefore it can be believed only when it is experienced. Possibly the secret of it all is to learn the proper combination of work and play. Make your work play. Live the soul life, even while toiling with the brain and the hand. Review your forces from within. There is such a thing as rest and recuperation in labor.

A Pennsylvania young man killed himself because his supper was not ready on time. It is probable that he is now in a country where the cooking is done with sufficient promptitude to satisfy him, inasmuch as it is understood to be a continuous performance.

The funeral of a Chicago man was attended by four ex-wives. This may be called polygamy on the installment plan. If it continues, matrimonial partners will be selected for a certain fixed term unless sooner divorced out of office.

A newspaper writer asks how long couples should be engaged. Judging by the number of divorces now issued, they should be engaged long enough to change their minds. It would save changing them afterward.

WHEN DAVID CAME

By HARRIET G. CANFIELD

Copyright, 1903, by T. C. McClure

Elm Dale was the scene of joyful preparation, for Mr. and Mrs. Ezra Hammond were soon to celebrate their golden wedding. From far and near their children and grandchildren were coming to the old country home under the great elms.

All of the neighbors were interested in the coming event, and a number of them were pledged "to help out on chairs and china." Patience Saybin, familiarly known as "Patty," and her brother lived only a mile from Elm Dale, but they had not been asked to contribute, and Patty felt neglected.

"I've offered to lend them everything on the place, even you, John," she said to her brother, "but Mrs. Hammond says they have all the arrangements made. I did want a finger in the pie."

John laughed. "Never mind, little girl," he said consolingly. "Mr. Hammond says they may ask us to 'sleep' one or two if the old house won't hold them all."

The day before the celebration Mrs. Hammond drove over in the morning to see Patty. "I thought we could stow 'em all away," she said, with a smile, "but I was thinking Mary had four children 'stead of five. I don't see how I came to forget little David when I counted noses. I've been wondering, dear, if you'd let him sleep here—either him or one of the others?"

"Oh, yes!" Patty cried delightedly. "I should love to, Mrs. Hammond."

The old lady smiled. "I brought his picture along," she said, "so you could see what a dear little fellow he was."

Patty bent eagerly over the photograph. A pleasant little face smiled at her from the cardboard—the round, dimpled face of a five-year-old. "He's a perfect cherub!" she cried.

"I'm expecting most of my children this evening, and if his folks come I'll send him over before bedtime."

The dear old lady forgot to tell Patty that the picture of David was taken twenty-three years before.

All that day Patty was very busy preparing "little David's room." An old high chair and trundle bed were brought down from the attic and dusted. Lizzie, the good natured girl in the kitchen, made some little round cakes, and Patty frosted them and put a pink "L" on the top of two or three. When evening came everything was in readiness for the expected guest.

The tin waiter and tiny knife, fork and plate were on the dining room table, and the little rocker held out its welcoming arms in the sitting room. An old rocking horse that had been John's long ago waited patiently for its gallant rider, and a little woolly dog stood on three legs with an air of expectation.

The day had been a long one to Patty. At 7 o'clock she was rearranging the furniture in little David's room when the doorbell rang. She went to the head of the stairs and called to Lizzie.

"Hurry, Lizzie!" she cried. "They've brought little David over. Take him into the sitting room and amuse him. I'll be down in a few minutes." She flitted back to her work and did not hear Lizzie's exclamation of astonishment when she opened the door and saw a big, broad shouldered man standing there. Probably he had overheard Patty's instructions to the girl, for his eyes were full of laughter, though he said soberly enough: "Good evening. I am David Terrell. Miss Saybin was expecting me, I believe?"

"Yes, yes, sir," Lizzie stammered, "but she wasn't expectin' quite"—She paused in embarrassment.

"Quite as much of me?" he asked laughingly.

Lizzie giggled and led the way to the sitting room. The little chair held out its welcoming arms in vain to this guest. David Terrell's eyes rested at once upon the rocking horse and woolly dog, and his expression momentarily grew more cheerful.

"Were these—ahem—these preparations made in my honor?" he asked Lizzie. But before the girl could answer a sweet voice came from the upper landing. "Are you amusing him, Lizzie?" Lizzie giggled hysterically.

"Tell her you are," the young man whispered.

"Yes, sir," she called in muffled tones from behind her apron.

"Show him the picture book," the voice went on, "and if the little fellow is tired take him up in your lap."

Lizzie stepped into the lower hall and turned her laughing face up to her mistress. "Please, ma'am, I can't," she said. "I'd hate to try."

"I'm ashamed of you!" the indignant reply came. "I'll come right down and take him myself."

Lizzie fled to the kitchen, and there was the quick click of heels on the stairs. Then David Terrell saw a pretty picture framed in the wide doorway. Miss Patty stood there, with surprise and disappointment plainly written on her expressive face.

"Where—where is?" she began in a bewildered way.

David came forward. "I don't know where he is," he said. "If I did I'd get him for you, Miss Saybin."

"You?" she asked.

"Yes, I'm little David's successor. Will you forgive me for growing older and larger, Miss Saybin?"

For a moment the sensitive month quivered. She had anticipated so much. Then she held out her hand and said, with a smile, "I suppose you can't help it, but you don't look much like your picture."

"Oh, that's it! Grandmother showed you that small boy photo, did she?"

Patty nodded and smiled again. After all, this David had pleasant eyes, quite like the little fellow's. "I am glad that you came," she said hospitably. "My brother and I are often lonely, and John will be delighted to entertain some one of his own age. I hear him coming now." And she rose and went to the door to meet him. "John," David heard her say, "Mr. Terrell is here."

"Mr. Terrell?" the answer came. "And who is he, Patty?"

"Hush! He'll hear us. It is little David. Don't laugh so loud, John!" She slipped her hand into his and led him to the sitting room, and in a few minutes the three young people were on the short road to friendship.

Late in the evening they adjourned to the dining room for a little lunch. Patty had forgotten the high chair and its accompaniments, and it was with a feeling of dismay that she saw their visitor's eyes traveling in that direction.

"Are these things for my use?" he asked laughingly.

"What things?" Patty said innocently.

"This high chair, tin tray and so on."

"Oh," she said, with a guilty glance at John, "those belong to my brother."

John stared at her in amazement.

His face grew crimson with suppressed mirth when Mr. Terrell said, "How old is your little brother?"

"Twenty-seven," Patty answered demurely, and John exploded with laughter. "No good pretending, Patty," he cried. "Better show him all of my old possessions, including the trundle bed, but we'll not ask him to occupy it."

The morning of the golden wedding dawned clear and bright. It was a day filled with happiness for all who gathered at the old home. At 10 that night David Terrell gave John and Patty full account of "the gathering of the clans," as he called it. In conclusion he said, "I shall have to ask you to keep me another night, but after that there will be room for me at Elm Dale."

"I thought you said you must go to-morrow," John exclaimed.

"Yes; that's so, but since then—and he glanced quickly at Patty—"I've made other arrangements. My brother and I are partners, and Jim is willing that I should have my summer vacation now."

"Oh," Patty cried, "I'm so glad! Aren't you, John?"

"Yes," he said heartily, but this sudden change of plans made him suspicious.

David made good use of those four weeks. His grandmother laughingly accused him of spending half of his vacation with the Saybins.

The last day came, and David walked over for a farewell visit. He found Patty alone on the vine shaded porch. John was away on business, she explained. "Never mind," David said cheerfully. "It is you I wish to see."

Her clear eyes were raised to his in quirkily.

"Will you keep your word," he said gently, "and take me?"

"My word!" she murmured wonderingly.

"Yes. Before I saw you I heard you tell Lizzie that you were coming down, stairs and you would take me yourself." There was a mischievous light in his eyes now.

Patty's face flushed. "You know I didn't mean," she began.

He interrupted her anxiously. "But you will take me, dear, on trial for the sake of little David?"

She smiled into the honest eyes, so like those of the child in the picture.

"Yes," she said, "for the sake of little David's successor."

Dropped the Subject.

"Five thousand dollars for a dog!" he exclaimed as he looked up from his newspaper. Do you believe any one ever paid any such price, Maria?"

"I'm sure I don't know, James," she returned without stopping her needle-work even for a moment. "Does the paper say that much was paid?"

"Yes. There's an article on valuable dogs, and it speaks of one that was sold for $5,000. I don't believe it."

"It may be true, James," she said quietly. "Some of these well bred animals bring fancy prices, and there's no particular reason why the paper should lie about it."

"I know that, Maria. But just think of it! Just try to grasp the magnitude of that sum in my weak, feminine mind. You don't seem to realize it. Five thousand dollars for a dog! Why, hang it, Maria, that's more than I'm worth!"

"I know it, James, but some are worth more than others."

She went calmly on with her sewing, while he turned and spluttered for a moment and then dropped the subject, especially the weak, feminine mind part of it.—Exchange Cafes in the Hungarian Capital.

The trees and the cafes in Pest are Parisian, only there are more trees and more cafes, and in Pest the cafes do not have a crowded existence. There is never the impression of a few tables and a few chairs forced into a narrow space. It seems as if, when the city was laid out and when the buildings were erected, special providence had been made for tables and shrubbery in front of them in the same way that space is calculated for gardens and fountains and lakes in laying out an exposition ground. If old Paris was all on a hill on one side of the Seine and new Paris had been built since 1800 and the Parisian had the free life of the gypsy in his heart and the Russian's fondness for room whether outdoors or in and art and architecture had flourished in Hungary for centuries, there might be some reason for that comparison which frequently occurs to the hurrying tourist.—Frederick Palmer in Scribner's.

SANITARY WATER TANK.

It Insures Protection From Germ Laden Ice.

So much complaint has been made against the water furnished in many cities as being the cause of numerous cases of germ disease that the residents have begun to substitute for drinking purposes bottled water furnished by companies organized to supply this demand. Having taken the precaution to secure pure water, no further thought is given to the matter, but it is generally poured into a water tank, with a cake of ice added to reduce the temperature to the palatable point. This ice may be laden with disease germs, which thus reach the system as easily as though imbibed in the water from the fountains. To guard against this form of infection the cooling apparatus here pictured has been designed.

Under this arrangement there is no possible opportunity for any germs brought into the cooler with the ice to reach the water intended for drinking purposes, as at no time does the ice come in contact with the water. The bottle in which the water is purchased is connected directly with the line of pipe in contact with the ice, flowing out through the tubing when the faucet is opened. When the bottle has been exhausted it is replaced by another, the connection between the bottle neck and pipe being in the form of a clamp to prevent leakage of the water.

MAKING CORN OIL.

An Industry Which Has Lately Sprung Up in the West.

Oil which is said to be superior to linseed oil for painting purposes is now extracted from corn. The process crude oil has been obtained by pressure, but the latest method is to extract it by what is known as the solvent process. This is the method employed at the new corn oil mill at Decatur, Ill., the only one of its kind in the country.

The process of separating the oil from the corn is simple in theory, but somewhat complicated in its practical application. A solvent is used, the solvent being a light oil subject to evaporation. The oil bearing portions of the corn are steeped in the solvent, which takes up the corn oil.

The solvent is then drawn from the bottom of the tank in which this part of the process takes place. The two oils are separated by distillation. The corn oil is passed through filter presses to remove particles of starch or other foreign matter and is then ready for the market. The solvent is condensed and carried back to the storage tank to be used again. The corn from which the oil has been extracted is steamed and is then ready for the market as a feed.

The process of separating this oil from the corn is similar to that of separating sugar from beets, the difference being in the solvent used. The stock feed is not entirely devoid of oil. Enough is left to make it 1 per cent oil, which is claimed, is a sufficient ratio of oil in a well balanced feed. This feed is not in the form of cake, as it comes from the linseed oil mills, but is in the shape of a dry meal, partly cooked and partly predigested.

Waterproof Paper.
Japanese oiled papers, made from the bark of trees or shrubs, are astonishingly cheap and durable, according to a writer in the National Geographic Magazine. As a cover for his land of tea when a rainstorm overtakes him the Japanese farmer spreads over it a tough, pliable cover of oiled paper, which is almost as impervious as tarpaulin and as light as gossamer. He has doubtless carried this cover for years, neatly packed away somewhere about his cart. The rickshaw coolies in the large cities wear rain mantles of this oiled paper, which cost less than 18 cents and last for a year or more with constant use.

Railroad Curves.
The engineers of the last few years in relaying tracks, instead of starting a true circle curve with the sudden lift of the outer rail that causes the jolt and lurch that travelers know, have laid a slight parabolic curve from a point a hundred yards back on the straight track and have elevated the outer rail imperceptibly along that curve to the maximum. The result of the device—in practice quite new—has been the annihilation of curves as regards a passenger's sense.

AS TO THE TOAD.

Reasons Why He Should Be Treated With Respect by the Farmer.

A recent bulletin issued by the United States department of agriculture contains a valuable treatise on the toad, written by A. S. Kirkland, M. S., of Boston. Mr. Kirkland advances elaborate statistics gained by microscopic examination of the contents of the stomachs of thousands of toads to prove that this homely animal is one of the best friends of the farmers.

Summarizing the results of Mr. Kirkland's experiments:

To the credit of the toad we must place the destruction of a remarkably large number of particularly injurious insects, such as cutworms, army worms, caterpillars, gypsy moths, brown tail moths, May beetles, rose chafers, wireworms, cucumber and potato beetles; also snails, thousand legged worms and sow bugs. The quantity of injurious species destroyed forms 62 per cent of its total food. Should ants be included as injurious, as many housekeepers would think proper, this figure would be increased to 81 per cent.

Against the toad must be reckoned the destruction of many beneficial ground beetles, a few spiders, an occasional carrion beetle, ladybird and ichneumon fly, forming, as a whole, 11 per cent of its food.

These figures, derived from careful examinations, show the toad to be a highly beneficial animal and well entitled to man's protection in every possible way.

The amount of food consumed by the toad is remarkable. There are records of finding seventy-seven thousand legged worms in one stomach, thirty-seven tent caterpillars in another, sixty-five gypsy moth caterpillars in a third and fifty-five army worms in a fourth. Under Mr. Kirkland's direction twenty-four medium sized gypsy moth caterpillars were fed to a toad under observation before its appetite was appeased, while another scientist fed over thirty full grown celery caterpillars to another in less than three hours.

The number of insects a toad consumes in a season is conjectural. Mr. Kirkland is satisfied that the amount of food taken in twenty-four hours amounts to about four times the stomach capacity. In cold weather this figure would be lower, while in mid-summer, when insect life is at its height, the quantity would probably be larger.

NOVEL FLY TRAP.

Simple Device Which Should Stay Its Thousands.

A new form of fly catcher has been invented by Mr. Johann Zierl of Ballinger, Tex., which consists of a standard or post covered with a sticky substance which will attract the flies and hold them fast. This device, a description of which we take from the Scientific American, is arranged to be suspended in any convenient place and, as shown in our illustration, is made up of a metal tube, in the upper end of which a flared attachment is fitted, this constituting a holder or reservoir for the sticky substance employed. To the lower end of the tube a bowl is attached, which serves as a holder for the flies, and each end of the device is covered by a cap of conical form. The lower end of the flared reservoir is provided with openings, which register with perforations in the tube, and through these the sticky substance flows from the reservoir down over the tube, smearing its entire surface.

The adhesive substance is sweetened or otherwise made attractive to flies, which when they alight on the tube are held fast and slowly carried downward to the bowl by the flow of the fluid. A sieve forms the bottom of the bowl and serves to retain the flies, while the fluid passes on into the cap below.

When the reservoir is nearly emptied of the fluid the caps are interchanged, thus supplying a fresh quantity for the reservoir and permitting the flow to continue without interruption. The caps are held in place by a form of bayonet joint—that is, each cap is provided with a lug adapted to engage the flanged edge of either the reservoir or bowl, both of which are provided with notches through which this engagement may be effected.

The Value of Dried Bananas.

Bananas dried contain their full flavor and nutrition and weigh but one-ninth as much as in the bunch. It is proposed to evaporate them on a large scale in the countries of their origin and so save cost in transportation, cold storage and loss by decay. Dried bananas are valuable as a substitute for flour, and unquestionably the banana contains more nutriment than any other fruit.

Through Cars to Sullivan Square.

The action of the city government last week granting permission to the Elevated Railroad to double track High street in that city to West Medford, will in all probability ensure through cars to Sullivan square on the Woburn electric railroad. The demands of the patrons of this latter line have been used as a lever to permit of the double tracking of that street in regard to which there have been strong objection because of its very narrow condition at several points.

The Elevated could have granted permission to use its tracks a year or more ago if it wanted to, but this delay has been beneficial to this road in a financial way, as the conditions now imposed have been advantageous in many ways. This is just what was desired. Now that the question is settled, why not allow the Woburn road to use the tracks now and thus bring quickly to an end the needless suffering of many people in their being obliged to wait in pouring rain and blistering sun for the cars.

Hard to Convince.

Mr. J. C. Kennedy is trying to protect his trees on his estate corner of Highland avenue and Mt. Vernon street by burlapping them around the trunks. Tuesday morning we turned up the edge of the burlap on one of the trees exposing to view dozens of the huge creatures. We have had a very sorrowful experience with the brown tail caterpillar, and was surprised at their size, but we soon saw that it was almost a pigmy compared with the gypsy, which is close onto two inches in length. In writing of this latter pest calls to mind the remark of one of the gentlemen who is on here from Washington studying into the moth question. After General Lawrence of Medford had stated to the gentlemen of the committee the destructiveness of the pest, he was asked how much money he had expended in trying to clean his estate of them. He named a good round figure, but said that was not the full amount. Whereupon one of the committee said to another member, "I suspected Mr.
Lawrence was misrepresenting the facts, but his last assertion proves him to be a liar." This is the general idea of the destructiveness of the gypsy moth entertained by those living outside the infested districts.

Safeguarding Human Life.

The frightful loss of life in America through railroad accidents is made all the more appalling by comparing it with that of other countries. It should be remarked that in many European states the railways are owned by the government and in the remainder are under rigid government control. Great Britain belongs to the latter class.
That country has recently published a list of the railroad accidents for 1903.

For comparison the corresponding figures for the United States for the fiscal year ended June 30, 1903, are available. These figures are summarized and compared by the Philadelphia Public Ledger. Great Britain has 22,380 miles of railways against 203,132 miles for the United States, yet the former carried last year nearly twice as many passengers as the latter. In the United Kingdom there were only 235 collisions and derailments. In the United States there were 10,643. In the United Kingdom one passenger was killed for every 47,793,320 carried and one injured for every 1,540,745 carried.
In the United States one passenger out of every 3,363,673 was killed and one out of every 146,808 was injured. The following table tells a discreditable story:

UNITED STATES.
	Killed.	Injured.
Passengers—
Train accidents.....	174	4,424
Other causes.....	157	2,519
Employees—
Train accidents.....	1,919	18,245
Other causes.....	1,314	20,759
Totals.....	3,554	45,977
GREAT BRITAIN.
	Killed.	Injured.
Passengers—
Train accidents.....	25	709
Other causes.....	13	1,912
Employees—
Train accidents.....	9	146
Other causes.....	446	3,629
Other persons.....	556	299
Totals.....	1,159	6,785

Yet it does not tell the whole story.
The American statistics record only the accidents to passengers and employees.
No entry is made under "other persons." In Great Britain these numbered 556 killed and 299 injured. One can imagine how many "other persons" met death in America last year by recalling the frequency with which grade crossings accidents alone were recorded. It is only fair to remember, though, that accidents of this kind are frequently due to the carelessness of the victims and not to the railways, and that the public is quite as much to blame as the railway companies for the existence of conditions in the shape of grade crossings, etc., which make such slaughter possible.

The comparison, as so frequently pointed out, is discreditable to the United States. This country has almost ten times as much mileage as Great Britain, yet the latter, with a vastly more congested traffic, had last year a total of only 7,089 passengers and employees killed and injured as against 49,531 in the United States. As remarked above, if the American figures included the "other persons" reckoned in the British report the comparison would be still less to this country's credit.

It is admitted in this country that in spite of our boasted skill in applied sciences we have much to learn from Europe in respect to safeguarding the lives of the traveling public. Railway accidents in the United States cost every year more lives than did most of the world's greatest battles.

The gospel of greed is being preached and practiced entirely too much.
More consideration for human life and less consideration for dividends are in order.

What We Drink.

The habit of "having something" seems as firmly fixed on Englishmen as it is on Americans. The only difference is in the "something" had. The Yankee runs to coffee, the Britisher to tea. On this side distilled products have the call, while across the water the malt liquors are preferred. For example, Uncle Sam prefers his "whisky straight," while John Bull takes his "nut brown ale" or "arf and arf." Here are the figures for it, as furnished by Consul General Henry Clay
Evans, for the year 1903:

	In United States.	In Great Britain.
Coffee, per capita, lbs.....	10.79	0.87
Tea, per capita, lbs.....	1.3	6.65
Distilled liquors, per capita, gals.....	1.46	1.05
Wines, per capita, gals.....	.48	.36
Malt liquors, per capita, gals.....	18.04	39.24

It must be admitted that the American drinks are slightly more strenuous than those of our English cousins. As for amounts, neither is particularly modest. Taking the matter of alcoholic stimulants alone, the average Yankee manages to absorb 19.08 gallons per year, while the Englishman goes him considerably better with 31.65. When from this average are taken practically all the women and children, and the men who are teetotalers, or nearly so, it leaves the man who does indulge with an average several sizes too large for him.

If Ralsull does come to the world's fair, perhaps he will tell us the right way to spell his name.

Judging by the Russian reports, war has become a thing to cause regret.

Joy in Work.

The spirit of art for its own sake, of beauty for its own sake and of work for its own sake, regardless of the results or rewards that follow after, is coming to be the dominating motive of every one who is worth while. The true secret of recuperation is to make each task a joy. This is likewise the secret of success. A man will do that thing well that he loves. Nor will the doing of it bring weariness, but beyond a little physical wear and tear, which is soon mended, will actually renew and rest him. There are tasks that make us weary before we begin them.
But any work into which the soul enters is a joy and so invigorates and stimulates the mind that it in turn invigorates and stimulates the body.

President Charles W. Eliot of Harvard recently touched this thought in his social relation. He said:

The winning of satisfaction and content in daily work is the most fundamental of all objects for an industrial democracy.
Unless this satisfaction and content can be habitually won on an immense scale the hopes and ideals of democracy cannot be realized. Therefore joy in work should be the all pervading subject of the industrial discussion, for it is at once motive, guide and goal.

A happy people are good citizens. A people to be happy must feel that they have justice and must take delight in their daily occupations.

Work should be made play. No man should follow an occupation that is not congenial and inspiring. The fact that it is otherwise shows that he has not found his niche in the world. Of course there are the derelicts and the indolent to whom any occupation is distasteful.
But they are the exception. The average human being desires to be employed provided the employment is that which belongs to him and for which he is fitted.

Joy in work is the secret of achievement.

Selfishness.

One of the most noteworthy of the baccalaureate addresses of the year was that by President Hadley of Yale in which he offered a just criticism of the tendencies of this "age of scientific progress and material prosperity."
Such an age, he says, finds "the old dogmas by which discipline was supported undermined." Most men are so constituted that with discipline relaxed they are not "at the mercy of blind passion," but they are "at the mercy of an almost equally blind spirit of selfish calculation." The result is disastrous.

It is an unfortunate fact that very few nations have achieved wealth or domination without suffering loss of faith and enthusiasm and remaining with the empty hulk of greatness at the very moment when they deemed themselves most powerful, for along with the acquisition of power there is apt to come a relaxing of discipline. Along with the achievement of the means of industrial ease there comes a philosophy of life which makes industrial ease the goal and end of human effort.

The portents of these things Dr.
Hadley sees in our own country and in our own time. "Almost every evil, political, social or commercial, which constitutes a serious menace to the permanent prosperity of our country can be traced directly to our tolerant acceptance of selfishness as a basis of morality." Is this warning unneeded?
Is the doctrine of "enlightened self interest," so confidently advanced, a standard lofty enough to guide the race to its great objectives? "The philosophy of life which makes industrial ease the goal and end of human effort"—is it as a philosophy either complete or wholesome?

In reply the New York Mail says:

To ask these questions is to answer them, even before the backward of an advancing industrial age brings the answer into view on its own wreckage.
The era which exalts overmuch the gospel of success and neglects the gospel of service carries in it the identical tragedy that poisons, at the moment of victory, the career of the individual to whom the world is only Plato's oyster.

The age of selfishness is passing out.
It has brought to the world all the evils under which men now suffer. From it grew war, greed with all its attendant industrial and social injustice and every species of crime known to man.
Each, if traced to its logical source, will be found to proceed from the taproot of selfishness. Good men and women everywhere are perceiving this truth and are raising their voices against this enemy of mankind. The progress must go on till the motto will be, "Everything for the nation, for the race, for God—nothing for self."

The more the world reads Alfred Austin's effusions, the more it realizes that he is a poet—by appointment.

Will Receive Two Salaries.

Henry Turner and his fellow commissioners on bounty claims are to be given extra compensation for their work on that matter. It would seem as if after all the trouble Gov. Bates had last year on the stump in meeting a similar charge of paying men twice, they would have held back a little when the question of new compensation came up. On the contrary, Henry Turner very promptly told the governor that he would not serve on the commission unless arrangements were made to give him a compensation. Gov. Bates did not enjoy going through this fire again, but he agreed in the end.—[Practical Politics.]

Preventive Sanitation.

The old proverbial sayings become trite from much use, but the ounce of prevention always commands our respect because it is the lesson we pay most dearly for through experience. In this connection a word about Sulpho-Napthol is salutary in the true sense of the word promotive of health or safety. During hot weather extraordinary care is required to maintain sanitary conditions in the kitchen, bathroom, cellar, and their appurtenances, most especially the sink toilets and swill tubs. Sulpho-Napthol is the ideal article for such purposes having received the strongest endorsements of those interested in such matters.

This school now has the most elegant, complete and extensive private Commercial School in America. In the planning and furnishing of its NEW BUILDING
expense has not been considered even in the minutest detail. New fittings of special design will be found to have taken the place of the ordinary furniture used in school buildings. The entire outfit of the school in its old building has been sacrificed that the school in the new home might have only the newest and best obtainable.

EXPERIENCED TEACHERS.
The only feature recognizable will be the able and experienced corps of teachers who have given this school its wide-spread reputation.
The tuition fees are the same as during the previous ten years, and pupils who contemplate attending may congratulate themselves that this year was the chosen time for their commercial course and the finishing of their school work.

A Victory.

At last, after years, we have invented what we have been looking for. Those whose arches of the foot are broken down and have worn irons and springs to relieve them, will say that I have invented a boot which is away ahead of every thing yet. It is made right in the boot and holds its shape; no taking out or putting in of shanks. I have more than 20 pairs in wear by persons in this and surrounding towns who have discarded all other methods. All of the medical profession that I have shown it to indorse it as being the best thing they have seen. All suffering with this trouble, call at my store and I will gladly show it to you and explain its working. At the old stand, Bridges, the American boot maker, 4 Thompson street.

Safeguard the Children.

Notwithstanding all that is done by boards of health and charitably inclined persons, the death rate among small children is very high during the hot weather of the summer months in the large cities. There is not probably one case of bowel complaint in a hundred, however, that could not be cured by the timely use of Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy. Mr. Frank Riggs, of Franklinville, N. Y., in speaking of this remedy said: "I have found it expedient to have a supply of Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy on hand. It has been a family safeguard and while especially beneficial to children, it is equally good in adult cases. I recommend it cheerfully and without reservation." For sale by O'Connor's Pharmacy.

A Mineral From Ceylon.

Spectimens of a remarkable mineral newly discovered in Ceylon have been sent to London for analysis. The hope that this substance might prove to be a source of wealth in containing large quantities of thorium, of which incandescent gas mantles are made, appears to have been ill founded; but, on the other hand, there seems good reason to believe that its potentialities in other directions are much greater than any one could have guessed. It has already yielded signs of containing two elements hitherto unknown to chemists, and it may well turn out to be the most precious product of "Ceylon's Isle."

Motor Lifeboat.

The first motor lifeboat built in France was launched recently at the port of La Rochelle. It is worked by petroleum and is of twelve horsepower. A new life belt has also been invented. It consists of a sash worn as a flannel waistcoat. It has four pockets, in each of which is a small box containing carbonate. On contact with the water the gas escapes and inflates the pockets. Experiments have been highly successful, the wearers rising to the surface in a vertical position, the shoulders above the water, and remaining thus without any movement being necessary.

Potato Alcohol.

The use of potato alcohol to furnish light, heat and motive power has been developed rapidly and to a very high degree in Germany. Germany produces about 55,000,000 tons of potatoes a year and uses for human food, stock food and starch only about 5,000,000 tons. The remainder is converted into alcohol and used as a power generator for both land and water motors and for cooking, heating and lighting. The alcohol vapor is burned like gas, in chandeliers and street lamps, and gives a very bright light. In districts distant from mines it is cheaper than coal.

Germanless Pullman Cars.

The Pullman company has adopted a new standard sleeper which little resembles the ornate cars built a few years ago. The new standard is severely plain and is devoid of all scroll and grill work. The upholstery of the car has been reduced materially and all the angles possible have been taken from the car. Imported mohair has been adopted as a standard curtain, and the entire design of decoration and furnishing is planned with a view to minimizing the work of cleaning the car and preventing the judgment of germ.

The New York court of appeals has decided that an actor is not a laborer. It is evident that the judges never did stunts behind the footlights; also that they never saw some actors.

ASBESTOS.

How This Fireproof Material Is Mined and Manufactured.

A correspondent of the Scientific American describes very lucidly the manufacture of asbestos cloth, the fireproofing material of which there has been so much talk since the Iroquois theater fire in Chicago. Asbestos has been called the connecting link between the mineral and vegetable kingdoms. It is at once fibrous and crystalline, elastic and brittle, heavy as rock in its crude state, yet light as thistle-down when treated mechanically. Asbestos is found widely distributed throughout the world, but the principal supply comes from Canada, about seventy miles from Quebec.

The rock to which the mineral is attached shows on fresh fracture a serpentine material of a green shade containing finely divided particles of chromic and magnetic iron. The act of separating the mineral from the rock is called "hand cobbing." After this process the mineral is shipped to the various factories.

The process of manufacture begins by placing the asbestos mineral in a chaser mill, a machine comprising a rotating edge wheel revolving at the end of a radial arm in a trough, which crushes the mineral, dividing the fibers without destroying them. The result is a snowy mass of mineral wool ready for winnowing, a method of removing the minute particles of rock still clinging to the fibers, very much like the winnowing of grain. This is done by means of a blast of air, which separates and blows away the foreign matter, leaving the fibers in a refined state and in proper condition for the third stage of manufacture.

The fibers are sorted by means of a blower into different lots according to their texture and are ready to be made into articles for which they are best adapted. The fluffy stuff now goes to the carding room, just as though it were genuine wool shorn from a sheep or pure cotton fresh from the plant on which it grows instead of a mineral substance that in its original state was mined like a lump of anthracite coal.

A carding machine similar to that employed in preparing wool, cotton or flax fibers before spinning has been adopted by the manufacturers. This machine has a large central rotating cylinder covered with strips of leather set with projecting wire teeth. Around the main cylinder are a number of smaller and similar cylinders, which engage the teeth of the central cylinder rotating in the reverse direction.

This machine straightens out the fibers and lays them parallel. After passing through the first breaker they are fed into a second carding engine or breaker, which is set to a finer gauge than the preceding. A third and last carding process takes place in a machine called a finisher, or condenser, when all the irregularities are eliminated and the fibers are stripped from the final cylinder by means of a fly comb and are converted into unspun threads, when they are delivered on a traveling apron or endless band and are gathered into rows by reciprocating scrapers. They are then condensed, and the process is continued in the cooling cans.

In spinning the yarn the rovings are delivered to the spindles on a carriage, which then recedes, when the fibers are twisted, and returns when the spun asbestos yarn is wound on the spindles. The spinning frames do not draw the yarn, and no strain is placed on it until after it is twisted. This brings the manufacture of the fireproof material to a point where it is to be woven into cloth, packing or other forms.

Cotton From Pine Wood.

Experiments are being made in Bavaria in the manufacture of cotton out of pine wood. The method is to reduce the wood to the finest layers possible, then to subject it to a vapor process for ten hours. The pulp is then plunged into a soda bath, where it stays for thirty-six hours. It is thus transformed into a kind of cellulose, to which a rostrant quality is given by adding oil and caustic. Then it is drawn out and untwisted by machinery. The process is said not to be expensive.

A Narcotic Bomb.

The narcotic bomb of an Austrian surgeon can be fired from any gun and is claimed to give off powerful narcotic gas enough to render 2,000 men unconscious for several hours.

ANCIENT TURBINES.

Engine of Which So Much is Expected Not a New Idea.

The turbine, of which we hear and expect so much in these days, is by no means an idea new in mechanics. Twenty-seven hundred years ago, in the little nation of the Chaldees, adjoining Armenia, the water turbine was known and built and used in mill.

A CHALDEAN TURBINE

ing. It was then called the "shell wheel." The wheel was used in a horizontal position, no effort being made to secure the greatest value of the water pressure. The wheel was connected to a vertical shaft which turned the stone and ground the grain into a coarse flour.

Near the city of Van, believed to have been built 2,000 years B. C., there still remain canals in a good state of preservation. One of them, sixty miles long, is now used for irrigation and power. At one time, centuries ago, there were forty mills on this canal, and today the remains of these ancient institutions may be seen. Flour mills driven by these simple turbines, of the same type as was used there 2,700 years ago, are still in operation.

The Deutscher Mueller, Berlin, says: "These turbines were brought to the notice of the modern world and quite generally adopted in Europe from 1750 to 1830. These Chaldees are not to be confounded with the Chaldeans of Mesopotamia."

A MADE TO ORDER ITEM

By MARY F. K. HUTCHINSON

Copyright, 1904, by T. C. McClure

Penelope, having instructed the maid to say she was not at home, stood behind the lace curtains to watch the departure of Jack Hale.

"Now, Penelope," began her brother Clarence, who caught her in the act, "I want to know what this means."

"What what means?" asked Penelope, flushing and striving to gain time.

"What what means?" grunted he in scorn. "Pen, will you never learn it's useless to hedge with a newspaper man? I want to know why you are treating Hale in this fashion. He's been in the dumps since he took you to the Commercial club musicale. He's doing poor work, and the managing editor called him down today before the whole gang. If he's discharged he'll spoil his chances for a position on that New York paper. You've had an attack of the indigestion yourself and refuse to see him when he calls. Naturally I want to know what's the matter, for I don't mind telling you I'd rather have Jack Hale for a brother than any man I know."

"Why don't you adopt him, then?" asked Penelope unconcernedly.

"Well, we'll try cross examination," remarked he. "Pen, do you hate Jack Hale?"

"No," decidedly.

"Do you really dislike him?"

"No," more slowly.

"Didn't you really and truly care a great deal for him up to the date of that musicale?"

"I won't answer any more of your questions," snapped Penelope as she started to leave the room.

"Highly tight! Not so fast," said he. "Remember, Pen, I'm not only your brother, but your guardian, and while I take the place of parents and brother, too, I must use my own way of striving for your happiness. I can't let my dearest child and my little housekeeper both cut their hearts out without trying to remedy the matter. Now, little girl, let's have the whole story."

"And you won't tell a word?" came the smothered question from his shoulder.

"Never a word."

"Well, then, if you must know the whole story, nothing happened at that musicale. But the next day Aunt Maria came to spend the day."

"And a day in her company is as a thousand," sighed Penelope.

"And she said she felt it her duty to her dear brother's child to tell me how people were talking about me behind my back. She said I had encouraged Jack long enough and that if he hadn't proposed by this time he never would. He would pay me attention till he got that position in New York, and then he'd find another girl there and forget me. I told her he was nothing but one of your friends, that I never intended to marry, but should always keep house for you."

"Then you proceeded to shut Jack out because he hadn't lived down to Aunt Maria's level of marrying in haste. Jack Hale is the son of honor. If he hasn't asked you to marry him it's because he wants to wait till he has a better salary than he gets on the Times. I'll see if I can show him the error of his ways."

"Clarence," cried Penelope, pushing him from her, "you promised you'd never mention a word!"

"So I did," grunted he. "Well, Pen, I'll keep my word, but I want you to forget Aunt Maria and her views. I'm going to ask Jack to dinner tomorrow night, and I want you to wear your prettiest gown, smile your sweetest and take him back into favor again. That won't be a hard thing to do for my sake, will it, dear?" in his most wheedling tone.

"You don't forget," cried Penelope as she gave him a parting hug. "Reaching the door, she called back, 'I might possibly do for his sake' after which piece of daring she hurried out to see why dinner wasn't announced."

"I surprised as much," Bradford told himself, "and, though I'd sworn to break a promise, Jack Hale will get a pretty broad hint of what I consider his duty."

Hale planned an evening assignment the next afternoon, but Bradford wouldn't take "No" for an answer. "I know well enough what that assignment is," he responded, "and you can get the story just as well in the morning. You're looking fagged out, Hale, and need a rest. Break away from your work early this afternoon and go up and take Penelope for a drive."

The horse has been stalled for more than a week because Pen has had a bad cold. I'll be home in time for dinner, but shall put the whole evening in at the board of aldermen's meeting, so I'm glad you can amuse the child. She's in need of amusement after being cooped up for a whole week."

"Why didn't you tell me?" began Hale. But Bradford was gone. Though he could be beautifully, he could not stand cross examination.

As Jack and Penelope returned from their drive, both in the best of spirits after their spin through the frosty air, Bradford preceded them up the steps. While all three removed their wraps in the hall he pulled a notebook from his pocket and tossed it across to Hale, remarking, "Say, old man, I found your notebook after you left the office."

"Much obliged," answered Hale as he attempted to catch the book which missed his hand and fell at Penelope's feet.

Picking it up quickly, she exclaimed: "Now, I wonder what the very latest sensation is? I do so like to keep up with the times." And she proceeded to flitter the leaves of the book past the canceled items toward the last written pages.

"Penelope, that's a pun, and if I wasn't in a hurry to dress I'd see that you were properly punished for it," called her brother, disappearing up stairs with suspicious haste.

Jack looked over Penelope's shoulder as he answered, "Don't believe there's a thing that hasn't been printed. I'm—"

"Oh, yes, there is," said Penelope. "Here's your very last item." And she passed to read, while Hale exclaimed, "That isn't my writing! Oh, Lord!" in a tragic groan.

For this is the item both read: "Engagement announced this week—Miss Penelope Bradford, dau. of late Hon. Harrison B.—late pres. Nat. Bank, this city. Mr. John Winthrop Hale—rising young lawyer—pop. member Commercial Club—grad. of Harv.—etc. rush on football team—cognate of hosts of friends, etc."

"What does it mean?" gasped Penelope, turning red and white by turns.

"Mean?" ejaculated Hale in desperation. "It means that one of those confounded idiots at the office has been trying to get funny. It means—oh, Penelope, darling," with a complete change of tone, "can't you make it mean something? Don't run away, dear," as he caught both her hands.

"Let me finish now I've started. I've loved you so long that you must surely have guessed that much, and I've only waited to have something worth offering before asking you to become my wife. A man ought not to tie a girl down to any such bread and butter existence as I can offer while I'm on the Times. I wouldn't have spoken if this hadn't happened till I had more. But I'll promise to wait patiently, dearest, if you'll only make this item true."

The item appeared on the society page of the Saturday Evening Post the following Saturday, and Bradford chuckled as he read it.

"Now, that's what I call a made to order item."

Hale, being blessed with his share of newspaper instinct, never tried to find out which of the "confounded idiots at the office" dared to tamper with his notebook.

Writing a "Book."

"I would like," said the youth, "to write a great book. How shall I go about it?"

"Don't, I beg of you," said the novelist. "Write one that pays, as I do, or else—study law."

"I do not care to write a book for the sake of the pay," said the youth. He was very young and must be forgiven for this. "Perhaps, after all, I had better be a lawyer."

So he became a lawyer, but the old ambition to write a great book came over him again.

"Anything but that," said a friend to whom he told his wish. "If you don't like the law, be a doctor."

So he studied medicine.

In time, however, this pulled upon him. He still thought of that book. He felt that he had a mission.

"You could do so much more in the pulpit," said another.

So he preached until the hollowness of it came over him.

One day he woke up and found that the great book was written. And he laughed at the thought.

"It was not I. It was the lawyer, the doctor, the clergyman and the other man who did it." Smart Set.

An Insulted Scotchman.

The following story found at Killarney shows how differently an Irishman and a Scotchman will take a joke. An Englishman who had been fishing in the lower lakes said to his landman, "An extraordinary thing happened to me some time ago. I lost a pair of socks out of my fishing bag at the end of the lake. The next year I was fishing here again and lo and behold I found a very large pile. I felt something very hard inside him, so I opened him, and what do you think it was?" "Begorra, your honor, I'd think it might be your socks only for one thing."

"What is that?" asked the other. "It's only just this, your honor, that there never was a pile in any of the Killarney lakes since the world began."

Afterward the same Englishman tried the same story on a gillie in Scotland. When he asked him, "What do you think was inside the pile?" the gillie replied, "Your socks and me gunk, and the Duke of Argyll and he's a far greater man than the king, would not have insulted me, sir. I'll fish no more of 'ee." And off he walked—"Seventy Years of Irish Life."

Loaded With Money.

Sir Samuel Baker once had a thrilling adventure with an African buffalo bull which he discovered standing in the shallows of a small lake. He fired two bullets without effect, and the animal charged. Sir Samuel had no ammunition left, but, luckily, the bull halted to stare at him. "Suddenly a bright thought flashed through my mind," says Baker. "Without taking my eye off the animal before me, I put a double charge of powder into the right hand barrel, and tearing off a piece of my shirt, I took all the money from my pouch, 3 shillings in silver and 2 anna pieces. Making them into a rouleau with the piece of rag, I rammed them down the barrel. They were hardly home before the bull sprang forward. The horns were lowered, with their points on either side of me and the muzzle barely touching his forehead, when I pulled the trigger and 3 shillings' worth of small change rattled into his hard head. Down he went and rolled over with the suddenity checked momentum of his charge."

A Nice, Domesticated Fourth.

The destruction of life and property, to say nothing of the loss of fingers, thumbs, ears, eyes and other component parts of the American small boy, resultant upon our pyrotechnic and explosive celebration of the glorious Fourth of July, is little less than appalling when taken in the aggregate. So great has the destruction grown that for some years there has been a more or less organized movement to do away with the more violent features of toy pistol, skyrocket and firecracker patriotism. So far this movement has had little or no result. It remained for Chicago to take a step in relation to the celebration of the coming Fourth that may be the forerunner of some practical reform. In a word, that city proposes to municipalize the celebration, to organize it into a public function properly officered and guarded. The city expects to spend $500,000 and by keeping the celebration under control to save life and money. It invites the boys to the parks, playgrounds and specified vacant lots and furnishes the firecrackers. At each rendezvous there will be in attendance a policeman, a fireman, a doctor with his surgical kit, a member of the Illinois naval reserve and a schoolteacher. The boys will be encouraged to make all the noise they can, but will be dissuaded from blowing off their hands and heads or otherwise mutilating their persons.

After the explosives have spent their force there will be concerts in the public parks by the national guard bands, a grand promenade on Michigan avenue and displays of municipal fire works.

This plan has attracted attention throughout the entire country and in case it proves a success is liable to be adopted by other cities and communities.

The Chicago News says:

Probably the change to quieter and more rational methods of celebrating Independence day will have to come gradually and as a result of the growth of sentiment against present methods. If a public celebration of the kind now planned will hasten the change by demonstrating how attractive newer ways of celebrating can be made, it will have served a useful purpose.

The Cleveland Plain Dealer says that the Chicago method is "worthy of imitation" and recommends that it be tried in Cleveland.

The Chicago movement is a reminder of the figures collected last year by the American Medical association, showing that 4,449 deaths and injuries resulted from the celebration of July 4, 1903, in the country at large.

There were 406 deaths due to lock-jaw, for which the toy pistol was responsible. Other forms of mortal injury took 60 victims. There were 10 persons who were made blind, 75 who lost one eye, 54 who lost hands, arms or legs, 174 who lost fingers and 3,670 who received other injuries.

It would seem that some reform is absolutely necessary, and the municipalization plan appears sensible and practical.

FOR THE PHOTOGRAPHER.

A Solution Which Will Remove Stains From Films.

If a plate is "light struck," the resulting fog cannot be removed. The only thing that can be done is to hold back the fog as much as possible with a developer intended to produce great contrasts. It is often impossible to remove stains that penetrate the film. But there are certain surface stains and forms of fog that can generally be removed without much difficulty. One stain of this kind is an iridescent marking around the edge of the negative, a stain that appears brown by transmitted light and produces decidedly lighter shades in the print. These markings may not be more than a quarter of an inch deep around the edge of the negative or they may extend inward several inches. This trouble is usually caused by plates which have begun to spoil through age or by plates that have been kept in a damp place.

Sometimes the negative contains brown spots all over the surface, resembling the above stain, except in location. These spots are generally produced by some which forms in some developers if they stand for a time or if they have been previously used.

A surface fog, caused by prolonged development, is of very common occurrence. Some developers tend very strongly to produce this kind of fog if the plate is at all forced or if the solution is a trifle warm. Other developers will not produce the fog unless development is greatly prolonged or the solution is very warm or is too strong.

Frequently stains are caused by the developing tray not being clean or especially if a little hypo gets into the developer.

All of the above defects of fog or stain can be removed by the use of this solution: Water, ten ounces; hypo, one ounce; red prussiate of potash, five grains.

Place the negative in this solution and rock the tray constantly, so that the action of the prussiate will be even. The negative must be well watched, and as soon as the stains are removed it should be taken from the solution and thoroughly washed. This solution reduces the image, especially in the shadows. Consequently the negative should be removed before it is too thin. The working strength of this bath depends largely upon the temperature. In cold weather it is well to make the solution stronger, and in summer it should be weaker. This bath does not keep; consequently it should be mixed immediately before using.

TO RECLAIM ARID LANDS.

Why Massachusetts Is Planting Grass on Cape Cod Sand Dunes.

So much attention has been directed to the work that is being done in reclaiming the arid and semiarid lands of the west that the reclamation work along the Atlantic coast is almost entirely overlooked. The familiar sand dunes, characteristic of the coast from Cape Cod to Cape Fear, while perhaps artistic, constitute a menace to adjacent cultivated lands and are useless in themselves. Massachusetts at considerable expense has been endeavoring to reclaim the sand dunes that form so large a portion of the province lands of Cape Cod.

It has been found that sand is readily bound together by grass roots and that if sturdy varieties of grass suitable for sandy soils are planted and cared for while obtaining a foothold and maturing they will gradually cover large areas, transforming them from shifting, worthless lands into veritable fertile cultivable fields. Many years of forestry work in Europe have shown that after the grasses have made a start trees can be successfully raised on these erstwhile sand piles, which may thus be made to yield a revenue.

Some of the most extensive and mobile sand dunes in the United States, however, are found in the west, and it is the ambition of the bureau of forestry to cover these with permanent forest growth. Along the Columbia river, in Washington, the sand is very light in character owing to the large proportion of mica it contains and consequently is easily blown about by the winds. In a portion of the lower Columbia river valley great orchards have been actually engulfed with the shifting sands, and the railroads have experienced great difficulty in maintaining their tracks in this district in passable condition.

In order to make a practical test as to the best method of treating these dunes a strip of land on the Columbia river between Willow creek and the John Day river has been set aside by the government for extensive experiments based on the work done in Massachusetts, referred to above. In the east tree planting plans for owners of sandy tracts are being prepared, thus extending the scope of the practical forestry begun by the bureau of forestry.

Electric Locomotives.

Forty of Them Being Built for the New York Central Road.

Forty electric locomotives, to be used in the New York Central terminal and as far outside as Croton, on the Hudson River division and North White Plains, on the Harlem division, are now being built in Schenectady by the General Electric and American Locomotive companies.

These locomotives will develop 2,800 horsepower at maximum rating, almost double the horsepower of the present passenger steam locomotives such as built the Empire State express, and will carry passengers at the rate of seventy-five miles an hour. The Empire State express and Twentieth Century limited, the two fastest trains on the road, have an indicated horsepower of only 1,500 when running at sixty miles an hour.

The new locomotives are built with the expectation that they will carry passenger trains of 435 tons from the Grand Central station to Croton, a distance of thirty-four miles, in forty-four minutes, making several stops.

There will be a separate electric service not involving these locomotives, but similar to that employed on the "L" roads, for all suburban trains within these limits. The large locomotives are to be double enders, running equally well in either direction, and will have four motors, each of 550 horsepower at normal rating.

There are said to be two novel features in their design. The motors will have two magnetic poles instead of four, the usual number in railway motors, and the armature of each of these motors instead of working through gearing will be pressed solidly on the axle, having been previously assembled on a quill for this purpose.

The conditions which these locomotives would have to meet in actual service were laid down by a commission appointed by the New York Central Railroad company, of which William J. Wilgus, fifth vice president, is chairman, and the others are John P. Deems, superintendent of motive power for the Vanderbilt lines; R. J. Arnold, president of the American Institute of Electrical Engineers; Frank J. Sprague, past president of the same institution, and George Gibbs.

A White Negress.

A white negress and her black sister were recently exhibited to the members of the Berlin Anthropological society. She was twenty-one years old, perfectly white from head to foot, with white hair and eyebrows, and yet presented all the other characteristics of the negress—flat nose, thick lips, woolly hair, etc. Her eyes were red. She came from Acra, on the Gold Coast, and was considered by her compatriots a great beauty. While very rare, albinism in negroes is by no means unheard of. Becerra saw several examples in New Guinea; Livingstone and Simonot also describe them, and Deschamps heard of eight cases on the coast of Malabar.

Individuality of Animals.

In a late issue of the New York Independent William J. Long gives some interesting observations on the habits of birds and animals, from which he concludes that individuality is almost as pronounced among the inferior orders as in the human race itself. This is not the first time that Mr. Long has promulgated these views, and because of previous utterances of like tenor he has been taken severely to task by John Burroughs and other naturalists. He answered Burroughs and showed himself well equipped to uphold his theory. In the present article he maintains more stoutly than ever that reason, even though in a primitive form, plays a larger part in brute life than has been supposed; that many things which have been thought to proceed from instinct are really the result of teaching and experience on the part of the animals; that different members of the same species act differently under the same circumstances; that the wild inhabitants of the forests show more evidences of reason than the domestic animals, and that what we term individual initiative is unquestionably present among the higher forms of beast and bird life.

Mr. Long gives a long array of instances to support his assertions and closes his article by citing this analogy:

Sit in a box of a theater and look out over the audience only a few yards away. The men all look alike and act alike. For the moment they are alike. Sit at your window and watch the unconscious Sunday strollers at a little distance. Again comes the impression of general sameness in dress, walk, looks, actions, as if they were all alike clothed by nature and blown along by the south wind, yet these men and women represent all the varieties of human character and individuality. Only as we come closer to them, live with them, know them intimately, do they show the individual characteristics which separate them from all other men and women.

Now apply that to the wood folk. We see the solid creature about invariably at a greater distance and at less leisure than we see the theater audience or the Sunday crowd, and we know far less of their motives and springs of action. They look in a general way alike and act alike, and so we are tempted to the superficial conclusion that they are alike. That means simply that we have seen the surface of things, the passing crowd at a distance. Now go close to the animals, watch them, follow them, win their confidence if possible, and instantly they begin to separate themselves by little individual tricks and traits. This is the secret of the stories of dogs and cats that are multiplying so rapidly and of the records of the few pioneers who have had the patience and sympathy to go among the wild birds and animals to live with them and watch them and find out how, in their dumb way, they live and think and feel. We are simply discovering the individual differences which separate an animal from his kind, which have always existed, but which we did not see simply because we were too far away, and were perhaps blinded also by our prejudices and our preconceived notion that wild animals of the same kind are all alike.

Who that has known and loved some horse or dog or other pet can deny to the creature the rudiments of reason? Learning to open a stable door does not come by instinct. The marvelous things that animal trainers teach their four footed pupils show that the brute goes through mental processes similar to those of man. Why may not animals teach each other? In a universe where no two things are entirely alike, why should there not be individuality in the hairy and feathered folk of the wild?

National Irrigation.

Few more important or beneficent movements have ever been inaugurated by the American government than that of the irrigation of the arid lands of the west. This work is now well under way, as is shown by a recent statement sent out by the department of the interior. In this bulletin is outlined the distribution of the fund appropriated by congress under the law enacted a few years ago. Twenty-seven million dollars will be expended during the next two or three years, and the work of construction, when finished, will have redeemed 1,000,000 acres of land, capable of supporting a population of at least 500,000.

The object of the law is to make the government the agent of the people in turning over the public domain to small landowners on a strictly business basis. The settler can buy of the government the reclaimed land at what it costs to reclaim it. In this way the fund for irrigation will not be exhausted, but will remain intact for making more land cultivable. The eastern farmer is not taxed for the benefit of the western farm, as would be the case if the government sold the reclaimed land at the old figure of $1.25 per acre.

The new lands are to be sold to actual settlers and their purchase limited to 160 acres. So great is the fertility of irrigated land that the average farm need not exceed forty to fifty acres to support a family in abundance. The population being so much denser than in other farming districts west of the Mississippi, life on the farm can give way to life in the village, and the element of loneliness which has heretofore made the vocation of farming repugnant to many will be eliminated.

There is one phase of the matter which is of the utmost importance to prospective settlers on the irrigated lands. It is thus commented on by the Chicago Tribune:

Homesteaders should beware of the organized band of swindlers which is reported at work in several western states. These confidence men pretend to have "inside information" and for a fee of $50 to $100 agree to locate settlers on the best land. They are pure frauds. When the time comes for opening the lands to entry due notice will be given through the public press.

In this connection the vast movements of American population to the south and west is worthy of note. Nothing so shows the greatness of the nation or its future hope than these vast streams of humanity constantly moving to take up all territory where happy homes may be built and the foundations of future prosperity.

The constant influx of new settlers into southern states like Texas and Louisiana is especially hopeful. Nothing could contribute more to the wiping out of old sectional differences and, by the increase of white population, the solution of present race problems.

NEW WAY TO TELL TIME.

A Clock Which Gives the Hour and Minute in Figures.

Samuel Powers, Cashier of New Haven, Conn., has an invention that bids fair to make Yankee clockmakers groan with envy. Mr. Powers proposes to reconstruct the familiar face with which Father Time has been wont to remind us of the passing hours and to do away entirely with the quaint old dial with its Roman numerals in use from the middle ages and likewise take away the old clock's hands.

Instead of pointing the way and letting us figure out the time for ourselves Mr. Powers' new timepiece will tell us in plain figures at a glance just what time it is. It will be no more trouble to tell the hour, the minute and the second than to read the A. B. C's.

Three sets of figures, one each for the hours, the tens and the units of minutes, revolving on separate rolls with measured accuracy and appearing in a given space at the proper time, give us the hours and minutes on this wonderful clock. A pointer constantly traveling in a half graduated circle tells the exact seconds. The pointer and the rolls interlock, and the whole is impelled by a device which is simpler than the simplest clock mechanism ever made, which seems impossible to get out of order and never needs winding.

AN EFFECTIVE INSECTICIDE.

Tobacco Extract Successfully Used on Plant Parasites.

The manufacture of tobacco in all forms is in Austria a government monopoly. For some time, chiefly from Virginia and Kentucky tobacco and presumably from waste, says S. C. McFarland, United States consul at Reichenberg, Austria, an extract of about 40 per cent solidities and 9 per cent nicotine value has had a restricted sale among agriculturists as an insect exterminator. It is retailed in sealed tin cans at about 20 cents per pound, and there is now said to be an export as well as a constantly growing local demand. It is diluted according to proposed use and is immediately fatal to insect life, but, intelligently used, is said to be absolutely harmless to plant life.

For plant lice a solution of only 1 to 12 per cent extract is used; for mites and mite larvae, 2 per cent; for hairy caterpillars and beetles, 3 per cent. The solution is sprinkled or sprayed in the ordinary manner. Among the large number of insects for the extermination of which the use of the extract in the past few years has proved completely successful are mentioned the so-called "hubbard foot" on strawberries, roses, blackberries, onions, etc., spring lice or plant fleas, hump bugs, plant wasps, caterpillars of the grape vine, the larvae of various beetles, earth fleas and mite spinners, rose mites and sawfly and bark beetles. The extract is also used with great success for animal parasites, such as sheep lice.

Tree Planting by Railroads.

Among the large railroad systems to recognize the importance of tree planting in order to guarantee a supply of ties for the future is the Illinois Central. At a point near Duquoin, Ill., 200,000 catalpa trees were planted three years ago. These trees are thriving, and in a few years, when the thinning out process begins, many of the ties in the Illinois Central railroad will be cut from this forest created in the heart of the Illinois prairie. The same road is planting similar forests in Mississippi and contemplates the establishment of others.

A Vassar girl threw a ball 200 feet and hit the umpire. But it is not yet established that she aimed at the umpire.

A Wisconsin man wants the crack in Liberty bell mended. Never! That crack is as sacred as the bell itself.

New York is to have one of the largest religious edifices on earth. She needs it.

The vacation school idea is becoming decidedly popular among the suburbs of Boston. Such schools have already been established in Brookline, Cambridge, Medford, Somerville, Melrose, Winchester, Lynn and other places in this vicinity, and now Lexington has taken up the matter. A vacation school course will be given at the Lexington High school building for five weeks, beginning July 18. The work will consist mainly of kindergarten, sewing, cooking, sloyd, basketry, and there will be games (under a leader), a reading room, and music. The teaching will be done largely by volunteer workers, and many of the necessary supplies will be contributed, but a few teachers will be employed.

THE WINCHESTER STAR.

VOL. XXIV. NO. 4.

WINCHESTER, MASS., FRIDAY, JULY 22, 1904.

PRICE, FIVE CENTS

TAX RATE $16.80.

Gain in Personal and Real Estate $600,000.

This is Owing to Revaluation, Natural Increase and New Houses.

The Board of Assessors have got along fine enough in their work this week to announce the tax rate as being $16.80 on $1000. This is the same figure as last year, and the Assessors have worked long and hard to keep the rate down to this figure, as nearly $10,000 more was appropriated at the March and other town meetings than was the case of a year ago. There has been considerable new property during the past year and this with the natural increase in real estate and the fact that the Assessors have caused a revaluation of the whole town to be made are factors that have prevented a substantial increase in the tax rate.

Never before has a Board of Assessors gone so carefully over town as did the present Board during May and June, and to do this required an unusual amount of time. While the personal estate has not yet been made public, for the reason that the books have not yet been closed, yet it is believed the greater part of the increase will be found due to new buildings and the natural increase in values. Personal property is apt to show a decrease from year to year because of its elusiveness.

Reports from surrounding towns show increases in rates over last year, so that Winchester is to be congratulated in keeping hers down to what it was in 1903, despite the fact of the excess appropriations that have been made this year.

There is no town in this immediate part of the State that offers to its inhabitants more in return for taxes paid than does Winchester. Perfect streets, sewers, an ample supply of pure water, first class fire protection, up-to-date schools, a fine and well stocked public library, etc. All these cost considerably money to maintain, yet Winchester has proved itself equal to the demand and still keeps its tax rate down to figures below the average for the entire State. Detailed figures will be printed as soon as the books of the Assessors are closed, they being kept open for a few days longer in order that minor changes may be made when found necessary.

Auld Lang Syne.

The following was copied from files of the STAR of twenty five years ago, and will be found of interest to many of the younger generation now living. It is the intention of the STAR from time to time to refresh the memory of many of those boys and girls of a quarter of a century ago by printing the more interesting things found in its columns.

Eddy Riley, Harry Holt Charley Tyler, George Riley, George Shattuck and Harry Wheeler are proprietors of bicycles. Eddy Riley and Harry Wheeler are members of a Boston club.

The "Everett" base ball club, Captain Joseph Gendron, endeavored to get up a game with the Lexingtons on the 4th, but have not succeeded.

There will be a brilliant display of fireworks from a raft on the mill pond. Pleasant street on the 4th. Mr. D. N. Skillings and patriotic neighbors have combined to make this one of the events of the day in Winchester.

The "Owl" Club, a new organization devoted to the combined Sciences of Astronomy and Gastronomy, held their first meeting on Friday evening, the 24th inst. Interesting observations of the comet and other planetary bodies occupied the time very pleasantly. The midnight banquet was a decided success.

Blue fishing is on the tapis. A party went to Buzzard's Bay on Tuesday, consisting of Messrs. George P. Brown, J. C. Stanton, Jr., James Houston, D. B. Winn and George F. Parker. They returned on Wednesday morning and reported a good time.

About fifty invitations are out for a "Mother Goose" party to be held at the residence of Mr. D. N. Skillings, this afternoon. Miss Charlotte Skillings, their little daughter, will assume the role of Mother Goose and receive the guests. Lunch will be served on the lawn. Howard Richardson's orchestra of Boston have been engaged for the occasion, which will undoubtedly be very enjoyable.

The "Middlesex" of the west side were severely punished on the morning of the 4th by the "Everetts." It is to be hoped that this defeat will put a stop to the bragging of the Middlesex until both clubs assemble on the diamond again. The teams are made up as follows: Everett—Begley p. Winsor c, Flint 1b, Gendron ss, Richardson 2b, Cate lf, Baldwin 3b, Middlesex—W. Purrington 3b, Barry 2b, Ayer ss, Fitzgerald c, C. Purrington 1b, Sleeper lf, G. Purrington p.

The janitor of the public schools, Thomas Dotten, has been re-appointed by the school committee at an increased salary.

Another party went blue fishing the first of this week, to Hyannis, consisting of Messrs. A. L. Ayer, Geo. H. Carter, Herbert M. Carter, N. W. Locke, F. W. Prince, A. E. Whitney and L. A. Dunbar. They had a splendid time and were very successful, probably owing to the fact that George was bait man. The fishing was solely for the benefit of the skipper. Charity suffereth much.

The Archery Club met at Mrs. Geo. Roger's grounds on the 5th inst. We have been unable to obtain the scores for publication.

It is surmised by our people that the Winchester STAR is not long for this world. Thus saith a young man who undertakes to speak for the people of Winchester! Well, friend, if you will only keep quiet and allow us to die a natural death, we will hire you to write our obituary. That task will be congenial to you, won't it? You are a sort of unsophisticated young man, and have not yet found out that there is such crime as literary piracy. Well, there is, and in this connection let us give you a piece of advice. Don't try to appear too smart, you can't swallow the STAR at a mouthful, you have still a probationary literary course to go through before you graduate. A young, inexperienced man who does not hesitate to pilfer news, and to tell untruths, does not give promise of becoming an old, experienced, honest, truthful business man. These latter qualities are absolutely indispensable in newspaper work.—Editorial.

Several enterprising lads under the firm name of Judkins, Hovey, Snow & Co., have started a "store" on Judkins' grounds, where they exchange confections and bric-a-brac for cash or junk. N. B.—No stolen junk received.

On Monday afternoon last, by invitation of Miss Nellie Judkins, a very happy party assembled on the lawn at Mr. J. B. Judkins' residence, Washington street. Archery was practiced till dark, after which the company adjourned to the house where a very pleasant evening was spent. * * * Among the guests were: Mr. and Mrs. D. N. Skillings, Mrs. Abbie Dunham, Miss Carrie Vinal, Mr. Charles Whitten, Mr. Harry Richards, Mr. George Kiley, Miss Carrie Wadsworth, Miss Hattie Wadsworth, Mr. Charles Hovey and Josie Hovey.

The boat house on Wedge pond has been raised and is undergoing repairs.

A few of our boys enjoyed fishing on the steamer Empire State on Friday last. The largest fish caught was a pollock and Charles A. Lane of Winchester handled the line which secured him.

Woburn is large enough to be a small city.

Piano Recital.

The piano recital given by pupils of Miss Webster at Waterfield Hall, Tuesday evening, was a great success, and it may be truthfully said all acquitted themselves in a manner that did much credit to their teacher.

etta Hargrove, Josephine Noonan, Julia Connell, Mary Sheehan, Annie Sullivan, Nellie Maguire, Elizabeth Williams, Edith Wellington, Minnie Maguire, Lucy Keefe, Anita Bagge, Kathryn McGeeghan, Elizabeth Turner, Beatrice Webster, Frances Noonan, Grace Cook, Eva Paquette, Mabel Putnam, Nellie Putnam, Elmer Thing and Frank Manning.

Prof. Currier Loses a Leg.

It is with sorrow that the STAR informs its readers that Prof. C. F. A. Currier, Chairman of the School Board, suffered the amputation of his right leg above the knee at the Corey Hill Hospital in Brookline, Wednesday. Reports received from the hospital state that he stood the shock well and that his condition is all that could be expected.

The causes that led to the removal of his leg date back for about thirty years when he met with an injury to the knee, water accumulating. The trouble was greatly aggravated when a few years ago he fell down a flight of stairs at his home on Webster street while he was carrying one of his children. From that time he was obliged to carry a cane. The leg had been troubling him so much lately, a sore forming just above the knee, that he decided to see Dr. Meade, who thereupon called in Dr. Richardson the well known surgeon in the hope that the sore might be healed. An investigation showed that the wound was so deep seated that amputation of the leg was absolutely necessary in order to save Mr. Currier's life. That was a week ago. Prof. Currier thoughtfully made all preparation before leaving home for the trying ordeal, even consulting with Supt. of Schools Metcalf in regard to matters pertaining to the schools.

It is said that he has suffered for a long time, but even his most intimate friends were unaware of this fact, as he always appeared pleasant and agreeable and in a happy frame of mind. The entire town earnestly hopes for his complete recovery.

Word received from the hospital this morning is that he passed a good night and that he is comfortable except for occasional pain.

The Suburban Press.

Editor T. P. Wilson of the Winchester STAR, who is president of the Suburban Press Association of New England, is organizing the newspaper men in a stronger way than ever before. The suburban press, united along business lines, is becoming stronger in influence and in business standing.—[Melrose Journal.]

This Association is a strictly business organization, has a membership of over 150 publishers and holds meetings monthly in Boston at which papers are read and discussed and the standing of the press advanced in every way possible along correct lines.

Monday the meeting was held at Salem Willows and was the second of three ladies' days. It was attended by over 60 editors and their wives, and the time was most delightfully passed, after the business had been disposed of, with a fish dinner at Chases' well known cafe, a sail to Baker's Island, and in witnessing a vaudeville entertainment given by one of the Gorman specialty companies in the open air theatre. A most delightful day can be had at Salem Willows with its many attractions, which is easily reached from Winchester by the electric cars.

Nantasket's Famous Hill.

Nantasket boasts of its Atlantic Hill, because what you can't see from Atlantic Hill is not worth seeing. It takes in the twin lights of Gloucester and the Blue Hills inland.

Old residents, looking at the hill today crowded with cottages, recall the days when it supported a small one-story house, which was let to pleasure parties during the summer. This little house was on the very site now occupied by the stately Atlantic House.

All this seems strange, when one contemplates the magnificent residence that Jacob P. Bates, the big grocer, is erecting, which will be, when completed, the most imposing and costly private residence between Jerusalem road and Pemberton.

Among the many prominent persons on the Hill are Mr. George H. Gilbert of Winchester who is occupying the Senator cottage. He has a fine stable of horses. He is entertaining his brother, Colonel Edward H. Gilbert, and daughter, Elizabeth V. of Ware, and William H. Hall of Pittsfield.

S. B. White and family of Winchester are sojourning in one of the handsomest villas on the hill, where they have resided during the past seven summers. They are entertaining Mrs. Dr. Farr of the same town.—[Boston Post.]

Winchester Boat Club Notes.

Members of the Winchester and Medford Boat Clubs who are musically inclined have formed an orchestra, and intend to hold concerts and dances at the two clubs during the season. The first affair will be an informal dance at the Winchester club house this Saturday evening, when the orchestra will make its first public appearance.

Commencing with this Saturday afternoon water sports will be held at the Winchester Boat Club for the Tufts' cups. The events will include tilting, hurry-scurry race, hand paddle, foot paddle and tug-of-war. These novelty sports will be held on Saturday afternoons until September.

TRUE BIRD PROTECTION

Calls for the Destruction of the English Sparrow.

EDITOR OF THE STAR:

In your paper for July 1, I read the piece written by "Bird Protector," who disagrees with the suggestion—as given in my article which appeared in the June 17 STAR—that the destruction of English Sparrows is an aid to the protection of other birds. Furthermore, "Bird Protector" commends that sparrow as a valuable pest destroyer, and proceeds to give examples of the bird's utility in that line. Upon reading his article it is obvious, by certain statements made, that "Bird Protector" maintains a purely amateur attitude toward birds as a class, and is unable—or at least does not—support his claims and beliefs by scientific knowledge gained through careful personal observation. In all due respect for "Bird Protector" I would say a word or two in support and in explanation of my views.

I hold that every true bird protector has ample incentive for doing all in his power to fight the English or House Sparrow. There are sufficient good and perfectly sound reasons for one's opposing this pest.

In the first place it seems impracticable, unreasonable, and even absurd to question the veracity of the views held by practically all of the foremost ornithologists in America—views verified by years of hard study and observation. Some of those to whom I refer are: Mr. William Brewster, president of the Mass. Audubon Society, Mr. Frank M. Chapman of the Am. Museum of Nat. Hist., Mable Osgood Wright, a well known writer and recognized authority on birds, and Rev. Herbert K. Job, a photographer of rare birds and a successful lecturer. This spring I heard Mr. Job lecture in Boston. When he was speaking, in one place, of a group of birds, he finished by saying: "The English Sparrow is not a bird—but a little beast."

I see in "Bird Protector's" article a statement to the effect that during the devastation of Boston some thirty years ago by worms, the English Sparrow was introduced and destroyed the pest effectually. Here "Bird Protector" is either ill-informed or has withheld his full knowledge. A true statement of facts is as follows:

The English Sparrows were introduced into America from a warmer climate where they had been insect-eaters—unlike others of the sparrow family. For a while after their introduction they did their intended work well; but soon the new climate began to effect their habits in an unexpected manner. Inasmuch as they increased immensely in number they soon spread from the city to the country, and here it was that their habits, in a few years time, underwent a complete change. From insect-eaters they became seed-eaters. However, instead of choosing to eat harmful weed-seeds to any extent—as all other sparrows do—they showed a decided preference for tender young oats and wheat in the farmer's fields, and for fruit and shade tree buds. And worse yet, as they increased—which they did alarmingly—it soon became noticeable that they are born tyrants and drive away our natural birds. The man who brought them to America meant well, but he wrought inestimable havoc by attempting to improve upon the laws of nature. Doubtless all birds "are created for a good, all wise and sufficient purpose," where nature places them—but certainly unlimited destruction is brought about by trying to better conditions established by Him, whose wisdom surpasses all. Perhaps "Bird Protector" thinks that all insects are created to do good. Then why strive to exterminate the brown-tail?

Just at present countless numbers of brown-tails litter the streets beneath the are-lights, in places habitually frequented by House Sparrows; so it is not strange that an English Sparrow is occasionally seen to peck at a dead moth—as he would peck at any other carrion or rubbish, and neither is it odd that uncared observers of birds praise these sparrows, in such a case, as pest destroyers.

Next I should like to write from personal observation. The following statements are perfectly true and unexaggerated. For the last five or six years I have been a careful observer of the birds in my yard, and their attitude toward English Sparrows. I have a number of boxes which each year are occupied by tree Swallows and Bluebirds. The first year I saw my Swallows and Bluebirds daily maltreated by House Sparrows, who even went to the extent of tearing up and ejecting from the box the swallows' oft-made nests. Furthermore, a pair of English Sparrows actually drove away two Bluebirds from their box near my window, and occupied the home themselves. This very spring I watched with interest, for two weeks, a pair of downy woodpeckers chiseling their home in a tree near my window. Every morning the downys would work, and then fly down and eat some suet tied by me to a nearby maple. Finally the woodpeckers began their housekeeping, when they were compelled by a pair of House Sparrows to give up their hard-earned home. My downys never came to eat the suet again. Later on this spring I was overjoyed at the appearance of a Savanna Sparrow upon my lawn, for very rarely do these little birds venture from beneath the tangle of grass in fields, to come near houses. This little fellow hopped about, uttering at short intervals his rasping song, while I watched him through my bird-glasses from the window. In about fifteen minutes a House Sparrow flew into the lilacs, and soon spied the Savanna Sparrow. Then like a flash he was upon the back of the smaller bird and pulling out many feathers. When the little Savanna flew for his life the English Sparrow gave chase for over a hundred yards. I wanted to wring that English Sparrow's neck, for I well knew that there was one useful bird that would nevermore trust himself near a human habitation. House Sparrows almost invariably attack other birds through pure maliciousness; and I have never seen one attack any bird that was much larger than himself, except in one case, that of the Robin.

This year I tried a plan. With a rifle which makes very little noise, I shot from the window all English Sparrows that I saw disturbing the Swallows or Bluebirds. The English Sparrows are ever on the watch and appear suspicious (as if from guilty consciences); the other birds pay no attention to the "bang." If shooting House Sparrows, as I shoot them (when necessary), frightens the other birds in the least, I certainly would not do it, and far less advise it to others. This year I have fewer English Sparrows in my yard and more useful birds than even before.

So I claim this:—That the English Sparrow though he rarely kills other birds, is useless in keeping them away from our homes; that the true and scientific protection of birds would most decidedly advocate the killing of English Sparrows, as it would be the most effective way of getting back to our homes and gardens the many now rare and shy birds that have long since ceased to come there on account of the House Sparrow's tyranny; that once back to our lawns and orchards again, the useful birds would be insured perfect safety under the protecting hand of man.

I see that "Bird Protector" also finds fault with my suggestion that fathers teach their boys how to shoot, or else not let them shoot at all. "Bird Protector" calls this permitting "boys to become the arbiters of bird selection." He says that fathers do not have time to teach their boys to shoot. I fear that "Bird Protector" has failed to see my underlying motive for giving this advice. The point I wanted to bring out is this: nearly every boy is bound to have a gun anyway. Now wouldn't it be better to instruct such boys rather than to allow them to "run amuck"? A father who has no time to educate his son is remiss in his duty, while a boy who cannot discriminate between a noisy, chattering House Sparrow and some other bird should never be allowed to possess a gun.

I think it is probable that "Bird Protector" has no conception of the ungodly slaughter of birds which is going on all summer long in the "deep woods of Winchester," especially in a certain locality that I could name. This bird killing is done by a certain class of boys who pass away the time by popping at innocent, confiding little Chickadees and other equally tame and approachable birds. I know all about this, for I have caught these boys red-handed many a time. Perhaps "Bird Protector" now sees my motive for urging the destruction of certain birds by shooting. Since it is apparently inevitable that boys must shoot something, I made the suggestion that such boys at least discriminate, and thus turn their shooting into some practical use. However nothing would suit me better than to have the police prohibit all shooting.

I trust that "Bird Protector" now recognizes the fact that I am a bird protector as well as a bird lover.

Y. M. C. A. Notes.

Mr. I. W. Lawrence of Canada is expected to take charge of the work August 1st. Gen. Sec. Mr. Lawrence is a graduate of the Springfield Training School and comes highly recommended.

This is really our quiet season but a visit to the swimming house will show that there is still life in the Association. About 40 use the bathing privileges a day. Visitors welcome from 3 to 4 p. m. Come over and see the boys.

9 boys are enjoying the privileges at Camp Durrell. All report a fine time.

A number of the boys took a trip on their bicycles to Revere Beach, Thursday morning, and enjoyed a fine swim. The party was in charge of Physical Director Sanford.

The shower baths are in almost constant use these warm days. The boys say the locker rooms are the coolest place they have seen yet. Nothing like a cold shower bath to brace you up.

At the Congregational Church on Sunday Rev. David N. Beach, D. D., will preach, and Miss Mabel H. Burr, of Springfield, a contralto, and Miss Ogilvie will sing.

Why is it?

EDITOR OF THE STAR:

Why is it that the stores in Winchester are closed so much? On three separate afternoons each week, and I do not know how many evenings, different stores in Winchester are closed. No wonder many of "the residents buy their goods in Boston," as many of the tradesmen are continually protesting. On Wednesday afternoons a certain number of stores close and the rest are open. On Thursday and Saturday afternoons the conditions are the same. As far as I can see the merchants close when they feel like it on the evenings. Is it that the merchants and storekeepers cannot pull together?

To close one afternoon a week is only fair to the clerks during the summer months. But why not all close on the same day, as in other towns? It is aggravating to travel to the center for dry goods and groceries one day and find one store open and the others closed, and on another day and find the conditions reversed. As regards the evenings every store in town seems to have a different evening or evenings for closing.

I have been caught several times this summer and am becoming disgusted. I have always endeavored to keep my trade in Winchester and urged my friends and neighbors to do so, but I am becoming tired of finding different stores closed at different times for apparently no great need.

Pop Concert at the Boat Club.

On Friday evening last the Winchester Boat Club held its first pop concert of the season. Although the evening was rather windy, and in the early part somewhat cloudy, it was, nevertheless, fair, and members of the club with their friends to the number of about 200 enjoyed the entertainment. The club house and grounds were brightly illuminated by hundreds of colored Japanese lanterns and presented a most handsome and brilliant scene. On the spacious lawn at the side of the club house, as well as upon the roof garden of the club, tables were arranged for refreshments, and a corps of waiters served ices, light drinks, confectionery and cigars to the satisfaction of the guests. An orchestra of five pieces stationed in the hall of the club house furnished music for those who wished to dance as well as for members who preferred to paddle in the bay in front of the club house.

At 10.30 the number of guests began to diminish and the concert drew to an end.

During the evening the club house was well filled at all times, many using the roof garden and front as vantage points to listen to the music.

"Do It Now."

How much more smoothly the wheels of society would move should the three words which a certain publication has adopted as its motto be incorporated into the daily lives of the people who go to make up the every day world. "Do it now." Those are the three little words, but what a revolution would result should everybody adopt them as a rule of conduct. Have you a disagreeable task to do? Do it now. Is there a sick friend whom you know you ought to visit? Do it now. Is there a life you might brighten by a word or cheer? Why not say it now? What a foolish practice it is to pile flowers about the casket of a departed loved one, who, while in life, never received one blossom from our hands. Why do we seal our lips to keep back the words of appreciation until we are able to pour them forth in sad and eloquent eulogy? Why not say them now? If we have the power to cheer and brighten any life, why not do it—and do it now?—[The Suburban.]

WORLD'S BIGGEST CLOCK.

Marvelous Floral Timepiece on St. Louis Exposition Grounds.

Sixteen times larger than any timepiece in the world is the floral clock on the exposition grounds at St. Louis, which is located in front of the north entrance to the Palace of Agriculture, a description of which we take from the Scientific American. Although it is what is known as a floral clock, it keeps accurate time, for beneath the vines and other plants skilled artisans have constructed machinery similar to the works of a watch, but which in size bears the same comparison as does the dinosaurium, which once inhabited the Miocene beds of Europe and Asia, to the timepiece of today.

The disk consists of a circle of flower beds 112 feet in diameter, and the hands are long, green pointers, the largest of which moves five feet a minute. At the place where these hands join in the center a tall man could be down, and the staff on beneath would extend four feet beyond his head.

This clock, in so far as the machinery goes, is an exhibit of a western manufacturer. The floral part, however, has been planned by the chief of agriculture of the exposition.

ture of the exposition and his assistants. The inner surface of the dial—the smaller circle, which is bordered by a wide rim containing the numerals—is of white, low growing flowers bordered by a thin hedge of foliage plants. Within the rim the numerals of the hours are dark tall foliage plants thrown into relief by intervening white blossoms, the same as those growing in the inner circle. The border of the rim is a circle of low growing flowers, and beyond this again are spears of foliage plants, red alternating with yellow, which indicate the seconds, 1,800 of the one color and the same number of the other, making 3,600 in all.

Surrounding the complete circumference of the dial on the outside is six feet of lawn, and surrounding this again is a broad path of red colored earth.

Curious Use For Balloons.

The French naval engineer Renaud calls attention to the fact that a captive balloon rising to a certain height may be employed to discover the presence of rocks beneath the surface of the water. Every sailor knows that in certain parts of the sea shallows can be detected in time by the coloring of the water. From certain heights the shallows are shown still more plainly, as, for instance, from the hills surrounding the entrance to Brest. Thus it follows that from a captive balloon at a certain height above the surface, especially in waters containing many submarine rocks and tortuous channels, shallows can be located with the eye and, better still, through photography.

CURING SICK GRAIN.

Hospital in Port Arthur, Ont., Where Wheat Is Carefully Nursed.

Most of us are familiar with hospitals and retreats where life and health may be restored to human beings and animals, but a new and interesting phase is a sanitarium for grain.

Plants and flowers are subject to diseases, and as the loss of crops throughout the United States alone has been estimated at some $18,000,000 it becomes imperative that an effort should be made to save the diseased grain. Very often farmers lose the whole crop because of being compelled to harvest in wet weather.

To the new hospital, which is located at Port Arthur, Ont., the farmers may send their grain to be treated and carefully nursed. After passing out of the care of the experts the grain is said to be cleaner and more wholesome than wheat which has not been subjected to this process. Convalescent wheat has been stored away and kept in perfect health for several years.

When the wheat, ill unto death, arrives, a nurse places it in a bath of pure water, where it is brushed and scoured in machines made for the purpose until the grains are highly polished and in good shape for the mill. It is then placed upon a bed made of screening and subjected to a jamming process, first of hot and then of cold air, until it is perfectly dry.

Again the grain is subjected to another cleaning process, after which it is ready to be returned to the owner, with the guarantee that it is thoroughly cured. Strange to say, when it is weighed it seems to have lost nothing, and, being all grain and no chaff, it weighs three or four pounds heavier to the bushel.

PROVES WE EAT TOO MUCH.

Result of Professor Chittenden's Dietary Experiments.

The chief paper read before the National Academy of Sciences at its last meeting was a description of a series of experiments recently conducted by the Sheffield Scientific school of Yale to determine if the average human being is not eating too much.

Professor Russell H. Chittenden, the director of the school, who conducted the experiments and who read the paper, made the statement that the average healthy man eats from two to three times as much as he needs to keep him in perfect physical and mental health and vigor.

Professor Chittenden said three classes of men were experimented on, several professors of the school, including Professor Chittenden himself, several students and a squad of United States soldiers. There was a gradual reduction of meat and other protein foods, with little if any increase in starch and other foods in nearly all the tests. No fixed regimen was required in any case, the endeavor being to satisfy the appetite of each subject. In only one case was meat entirely eliminated from the diet.

At the end of the experiments, which lasted from six months until nearly a year, the entire lot of men who had been Professor Chittenden's subjects were in the best of health. Their weight in some cases was almost exactly the same as when the experiments were begun and in some slightly lower. Their bodily vigor was greater and their strength was much greater, partially owing to their regular physical exercises during the experiments and partially owing, Professor Chittenden believes, to the smaller amount of food eaten.

The daily consumption of food at the close of the experiments was much less than the recognized standard and from a third to a half as much as the average man eats.

GREAT ENGINEERING FEAT.

Moving Big Oil Tanks Miles a Pennsylvania Pastime.

Perhaps one of the greatest engineering feats ever accomplished on the water by any house mover has just been successfully performed in Pittsburgh. The subject in question is the removal of a five-eighths inch steel oil tank eighty feet in diameter, twenty-six feet high, weighing 150 tons, a quarter of a mile down a thirty degree hill to the river, placed upon five sand barges, towed a mile down the river and moved 200 feet up the steep bank. All the more marvelous is it, declares the Scientific American, when we consider that five tracks of the Pennsylvania railroad had to be crossed within forty minutes in order not to interfere with traffic and that the members of the Kress-Hauman firm who engineered the work were but twenty-three years of age.

This monster tank was sunk seven feet in the ground, and in order to raise it a trench four feet wide and seven feet deep was dug around it, and thirty-two holes four feet square, two feet deep and eight feet apart were then tunneled under it and wooden blocks inserted. By the aid of sixty-four five-ton jacks, two under each block, the tank was raised four feet, when it was underpinned with twelve inch timbers, and, the necessary running timbers being securely fastened with seven-eighths inch chains, the tank was gradually moved under the steady power furnished by two horses and the necessary block and tackle, crabs and ropes.

When the railroad was reached it was thirty-eight feet above the ground. After being lowered thirty-two feet chalk lines were stretched across the railroad tracks and the cribbing built on the opposite side of the same. After a battle with the numerous electric light and telephone wires the tank was rolled over the tracks to within ten feet of the bank of the Allegheny river. Being lowered within twenty-four feet of the water, it was moved on five sand flats sixteen feet wide and ninety feet long. These were made stationary by ratchets and steel cable three-fourths of an inch thick, which were placed from the first to the fifth flat, thus making the five flats act as one. The boats being thus made fast, the tank was slowly rolled into position. It was then carried one mile down the river and transferred to its new location.

The work only required twenty-four men six weeks to accomplish the task.

TWO WHEELED AUTO.

As Comfortable and as Easily Operated as a Runabout.

A two wheeled automobile is something of a novelty, yet the wheel steering, single seated motorcycle practically comes under that head. The double frame follows the lines of the straight tube, drop frame bicycle. The engine is mounted vertically in front of the footboard between the double tubes of the frame, with drive to the rear wheel by a twisted rawhide belt. The engine body is mounted on a pair of light elliptical springs, providing a comfortable seat for the rider. The gasoline tank, battery and coil are located under the seat, with all connections carried below the leg space, which is left open to give easy access to the seat.

The motor is started by a crank, the belt being loosened by the movement of a hand lever at the right of the seat, which controls the movement of the jockey pulley. After the motor is started the belt is gradually tightened until the rear wheel begins to drive, when the rider mounts and manipulates the machine as easily as he would a small car.

N Rays From the Human Body.

According to recent advices from Paris, Blondlot N rays have been proved by Professor Charpentier of Nancy to emanate from the human body and more especially from the muscles. To show this the professor suggests a little experiment which can be tried by any one. It is only necessary to take a piece of black paper, part of which has been covered with phosphorescent sulphur, and place it against a muscle in a dark room. The phosphorescence will at once be seen to increase, and the tenser the muscle the greater will be the effect of the N rays. The same effect can be caused with any tense body, such as a bent bow, but what the nature of the rays or emanations is the professor has not yet been able to determine.

TATTOOING THE EYE.

The Latest Thing in Ophthalmic Surgery.

That the color of a person's eye can be changed by the use of tattoo needles has been demonstrated by an operation performed at the Massachusetts Eye and Ear Infirmary.

A young man had been suffering some time with an affection which partially destroyed the color of his eye. Five canaliculi needles were placed side by side with the eye ends inserted into a handle. The needle points were then applied to the cornea and inserted into the sclerotic coating to a depth of not more than a sixtieth of an inch, making five holes.

This was repeated several times, and a small portion of India ink was rubbed into the cornea with the finger. The color of the eye was restored.

New Serum to Cure Tuberculosis.

His new treatment for the cure of tuberculosis was recently described by Dr. Marmorek at St. George's hospital, London. One of his most striking cases was one of so called "galloping consumption," which came under his care in the third week of the disease. Forty-seven injections of the serum were given, and in five months the patient was to all appearances cured. He showed charts and diagrams illustrating the great improvement and apparent cure of several other cases. The patients lost their shortness of breath and gained in weight and strength, although sanitarium treatment had previously failed to do them any good. No other medicine was used during the time the injections were employed.

The worst cheated man in the world is one who marries for money and then does not get the money.

KILLS TYPHOID GERMS.

Copper Sulphate's Efficacy in Purifying Water.

Typhoid fever and Asiatic cholera germs and the disagreeable odors which often taint drinking water, which are almost exclusively due to algae in the reservoirs or lakes, can be destroyed by the use of copper sulphate in a dilution so great as to be colorless, tasteless and harmless to man.

This is the report made to the department of agriculture by George T. Moore, who has charge of the laboratory of plant physiology, and Carl F. Kellerman, his assistant. They have been investigating the purification of public water supplies for three years.

By a series of exhaustive tests they found that one part of copper sulphate to 100,000 parts of water destroys typhoid and cholera germs and other forms of bacteria in three or four hours at ordinary temperature and in less than twenty-four hours in the coldest weather. When the germs have been killed the copper can be quickly precipitated by some soluble hydroxide or carbonate.

Algae and other contaminations of water supplies are eliminated by a solution of one part of copper sulphate to 500,000 parts of water. Even with the stronger solution fish are not injured if the copper is precipitated after the germs have been killed. The solution can be made strong enough to destroy or drive away snakes and other pests and leave the water perfectly clean and clear. The cost of the solution varies from 50 cents to $6 per million gallons of water.

FOR THE LAZY MAN.

A Midsummer Novelty in the Hammock Line.

The invention here illustrated seems to provide considerably more comfort for the occupant than the ordinary style of hammock, which generally has the faculty of wrapping one up, as though rolled in a blanket. The objection to this in warm weather is that it holds the clothing tightly around the body and adds greatly to the warmth of the atmosphere.

This new form of hammock has the advantage of presenting nearly a flat surface on which to rest the body, but will not occupy undue space while not in use, as the frame or stretcher which maintains the fabric in an extended position can be folded up for storage in a narrow space. It will also be noticed that the occupant may recline at any desired angle by simply raising or lowering the adjustment of the supporting ropes.

This is the invention of Gerry E. Knowlton of Bozrah, Ia.

FOR THE PHOTOGRAPHER.

A Formula For Salting and Sensitizing Plain Paper.

A contemporary gives the following formula for salting and sensitizing plain paper: Ammonium chloride, 100 grains; gelatin, ten grains; water, ten ounces.

The gelatin must first be swelled in the cold water and then dissolved by heat, preferably in a water bath. The ammonium chloride must then be added and stirred until dissolved. The solution is then filtered and, while still warm, the paper floated upon it for two or three minutes, then gently raised from the solution and pinned up by its edges to dry.

The prepared paper must be floated face downward for about three minutes upon a bath of silver nitrate 450 grains, water ten ounces and then hung up by its corners to dry in a dark room. It must be exposed until somewhat more deeply printed than usual and may be toned in any of the usual toning baths for gelatin chloride P. O. P. A good combined bath generally gives exquisite tones upon this paper.

Antitoxin For Horse Diseases.

Dr. J. E. King, veterinarian in charge of the horse hospital at the National stock yards, East St. Louis, after three years of study and experiment has discovered what he believes to be a preventive of influenza, distemper and pneumonia in horses. An antitoxin, discovered by Dr. King, is used, the horse being vaccinated much the same as a human being is vaccinated to prevent smallpox. The discovery will save thousands of dollars each year to the horse dealers at the stock yards. In the past fully 50 per cent of each shipment of horses received at the yards have been taken sick with one of the three diseases mentioned.

Motoring as a Consumption Cure.

Motor car exercise will cure consumption, says Dr. Blanchet of Lyons. He speaks from personal experience, having recovered his own health by regularly covering about a hundred miles a day in an open motor car. He avers that by this remedy the cough of tuberculosis patients is gradually abolished or greatly diminished and healthy sleep and appetite produced. It is most essential that the body should be duly protected from cold. The elements of the cure are the long stay in the open air and the increased atmospheric pressure due to the rapid motion, which expands and strengthens the lungs.

TO BREAK OCEAN RECORDS.

Danish Inventor Evolves a New Idea in Ship Construction.

It would seem that the limit in transatlantic speed records had been reached, yet a Danish inventor, Carl Flindt, now comes forward with an invention which, he claims, will enable the largest liners, like the Deutschland, to cross to Europe in three and a half days. To accomplish this result Mr. Flindt proposes to build a boat with a sort of arched bottom, with two keels, in the catamaran style. In the present method of building ocean vessels the screw propellers come out on each side of the stern. Mr. Flindt's propellers are further up in the body of the boat and built in ridges formed by the twin keels, being part of them. The advantage claimed for this combination is twofold—first, on account of the position of the screws, being removed from the stern, the suction which always follows a vessel, retarding her speed, will be carried off from the stern by the two keels; secondly, the propellers are rendered more powerful because their diameter, and therefore grasp on the water, is greater.

In every propeller now being used on steamships there is a certain amount of lost power in the center of the whirling blades. An electric fan is a form of propeller. It forces air out instead of water. If you place your hand in the center of an electric fan you will find that there is no air. The breeze comes from the outside edges of the blades. Mr. Flindt, noticing this, set to work to obviate the difficulty. Clearly a propeller with nothing but blades on the outside edge gripping the water would be more powerful than the present kind. Accordingly he placed a solid metal wheel on his propeller shaft and set his blades on it. That form of propeller answered the purpose, but brought on another difficulty. The wheel on the propeller, being large, caught the water and tended to retard the progress of the boat, taking away the advantage gained by the more perfectly adjusted blades.

Something must be done to cover up the hub wheel. With this problem confronting him Mr. Flindt evolved the new style of ship's bottom. By arching his vessel's bottom the whole length he secured a flow of water under the center of the boat equal to that along the sides and established a bearing for his propeller equal in diameter to the hub wheel upon which his propeller blades were fastened.

The Deutschland's propeller blades are fourteen feet long from the center of the shaft to the tip of the blade. The whole circle which the propeller cuts is more than eighty four feet. Mr. Flindt's new form of propeller is fifteen feet long from the center of the shaft to the tip of the blade. The whole circle is more than ninety feet. If the Deutschland's propeller were increased a foot the powerful engines driving it would not be able to accomplish ninety revolutions a minute, which they now do. It is estimated that they would be able to make about sixty revolutions, and, although the power would be increased on account of the larger area of blades, the revolutions would be diminished, and the speed would be no greater, if as great.

With the new propeller a foot larger attached to the Deutschland under the new construction the 35,000 horsepower engines, says Mr. Flindt, would drive the thirty foot blade at ninety revolutions to the minute. The clutch on the water would be greater, and therefore the speed would be increased with the same machinery.

What Microbes Are.

Since Pasteur demonstrated the fact that many human diseases are due to minute living things which grow and multiply in our bodies there has been a tendency to call all microscopic organisms, whether harmful or not, "germs" or "microbes" or "bacteria" indiscriminately. This confusion may be cleared by the statement that protozoa are the lowest known forms of animals and that bacteria are the lowest known forms of plants, while germs and microbes may apply to the disease causing forms in either group.

Radium a Product of Uranium.

Experiments indicating that radium is a product of uranium have been made by Dr. Bertram B. Boltwood of New Haven, Conn., formerly an instructor of Yale. Dr. Boltwood has announced that his investigations demonstrate almost conclusively that the amounts of radium present in any equal quantities of any two ores or minerals stand in direct proportion to the percentage of uranium present in each of the ores, a matter of very considerable scientific and practical importance, he declares.

Tax Rate.

Notwithstanding that the town appropriated $10,000 more this year than last, the tax rate remains the same as last—$16.80 on $1000. The increase in valuation has been $600,000, mostly in real estate. What makes this all the more gratifying is that this growth of the town's income has been of a conservative nature with not the least tinge of a speculative character.

The Way it is Done in Woburn.

Woburn has a school committee-man who left that city two months ago, moving to Roxbury, and yet he claims membership in that body. The most singular thing is that he is allowed to still continue in office with the acquiescence of the other members. Now another member is to seek a residence elsewhere, and he proposes to take his associate's case as being within the law. Politics in Woburn are indeed of a queer nature, as appears to be the case judging from this, when such a thing is permitted.

Through Cars.

Selectman Carter appeared for the board and petitioning citizens at the hearing before the Railroad Commission last Tuesday on the question of double track location in Medford, and urged the necessity of the Woburn and Winchester cars being run through to Sullivan Square station. The opposition believed these cars should be run directly down Winthrop street from Winthrop Square and not around by Medford Square, as at present, as that route would be more direct and would relieve Medford Square of the congestion of cars. This would be entirely satisfactory to our people, but the L. representatives would say nothing about this route and apparently did not want it. It was admitted that High street would have to be widened in some places west of Winthrop Square and the respondents objected to the city paying the cost. Mayor Baxter favored the double tracks. The Commissioners will decide upon the matter soon, as work must be completed by October first, by the order of the Medford City Council. No doubt it will be granted.

Selectman Carter has worked hard and persistently for through cars to Sullivan square and to him more than anyone else will be due the credit of having brought this about.

An Unjust Accusation.

Some of the Boston papers have been for some time past writing in a jocular and sarcastic vein of the brown-tail moth and the suffering that it has caused people living in the suburban district. Last week the moth struck Boston in countless thousands, and the prospects are that the inhabitants of that city and its trees will suffer equally with those of the suburbs. The Boston Post has seen fit to give its country cousins a severe chastization because they have not exterminated this pest. That city will now have an opportunity to learn how easy a task this will be, and the Post will then apologize for having published the following:

The city of Boston is suffering atrociously by reason of parsimonious neglect of duty on the part of neighboring cities and towns of the metropolitan district.

The swarms of moths which infest the city, the clouds of invisible spiculae which are brought here on the northwest breezes to sting and irritate and poison the flesh, come from Stoneham, Somerville, Chelsea, Medford and other nearby places. There the insects have been allowed to breed under the very eyes of the authorities who should have taken action to suppress the nuisance at its origin.

It would cost something for these municipalities to make themselves clean and decent, and in a niggardly spirit they waited for the Legislature to provide the money to pay for doing what they ought to do themselves. The Legislature refused to charge the whole State with the abatement of a local nuisance, and these towns have allowed the thing to go on until it has become a wide-spreading pestilence.

Nothing so derogatory to the boasted public spirit of New England communities is recorded in recent history. We say it with shame; that a pest which could be suppressed, and which ought to have been suppressed, in the localities in which it made its appearance—just as smallpox or forest fires would be stamped out—has been fostered in its growth by official inaction until it has become a public peril.

So far as the city of Boston is concerned, there is nothing to be done at present. Our people must suffer and our business find detriment by this infliction which the neglect of our neighbors has sent upon us. Precautions will be taken to prevent the propagation of the nuisance within our territory; and that is all.

But how long is Boston to be exposed to the invasion of moth pests bred in neighboring communities.

Decrease of Consumption.

Dr. S. W. Abbott, secretary of the Massachusetts State Board of Health, has prepared a paper on the decrease of consumption or phthisis in New England, which is published by the American statistical association. Dr. Abbott's conclusions are summarized as follows:

1. The death rate from consumption in New England at the present time is somewhat less than 20 per 10,000 living inhabitants.
2. The death rate from this cause has diminished largely in all the New England states, in some, with fairly accurate registration, as much as 50 per cent, in the half century; and this decrease appears to be going on now more rapidly than in earlier years.
3. The death rate of women from consumption has decreased more rapidly than that of men, and is now less than that of men; while in earlier years it was greater.
4. The death rate from consumption at every age of life has also decreased, but more at older than at younger ages.

In his article Dr. Abbott makes no examination or explanation, but simply gives the facts as he finds them.

Mexican Politics.

It seems that Mexico has political troubles as well as the rest of us. Every one had supposed that President Diaz constituted both political parties as well as the executive, legislative and judicial departments of government down there—in fact, that he was the whole political works. This idea seems slightly inaccurate, however. This discovery was made through the reluctance of any one to take the vice presidency. So at least there is a vice president. The unwillingness of the Mexican statesmen to occupy this highly ornamental office may arise from an attempt to imitate Uncle Joe Cannon and other of our own eminent leaders, or it may come from natural modesty. At any rate, one man declined, and it was with difficulty that another was found who would accept the job. This is all the more mysterious owing to the fact that President Diaz is seventy-six years old and will hardly live out his six year term.

The new vice president, Don Ramon Corral, prior to taking his present office of minister of the interior, was exceedingly successful as governor of one of the Mexican federal districts. He is said to be unassumingly dignified in his manners, combining ambition with great prudence and with entire loyalty to President Diaz. Those who opposed his nomination were chiefly the friends of General Bernardo Reyes, formerly minister of war and now governor of Nuevo Leon, a man of forcible and brilliant personality, combining this with an audacity more characteristic perhaps of Mexican leaders of a generation or two ago than of the present day. It was realized, however, by the Reyes party that to openly bring his name before the convention would not only lead to his defeat, but might impair his strength for future and unforeseen occasions. For this reason his followers selected as their candidate Don Ignacio Mariscal, the present minister of foreign relations, who had made no canvass for the vice presidential nomination and did not apparently care for the place, although as chief of the cabinet he will be ex officio vice president until Senor Corral comes into office next December. Senor Mariscal has a large circle of friends, and these did what they could for him, while the united strength of the Reyes party was naturally thrown for him. At the gathering of the national convention the speeches were uncensored, and the galleries, in accordance with methods this side of the border, are said to have been largely packed by Reyes partisans, who loudly applauded the opposition and denied the statements of the administration speakers. All this indicates the existence of sentiments which may find expression for themselves when in course of time President Diaz dies or becomes physically or mentally incapacitated.

The present government of our sister republic is that of a benevolent despotism—that is, the political control beyond the Rio Grande is republican only in name. The president does what he pleases and arranges that he shall be sustained in so doing by those who nominally represent the people in the legislative branch of the government. Undoubtedly President Diaz has endeavored in what he has done at the present time to pick out an "understudy," to prepare some one who would naturally succeed him if he should be removed by death or incapacitating illness. Whether such a succession is peacefully possible has yet to be demonstrated, and it has also yet to be shown by experience whether Don Ramon Corral is the man for the occasion. President Diaz is certainly doing his best to perpetuate the benevolent despotism he has been so successful in establishing and maintaining. But in view of the vigorous expressions in opposition to his wishes in the matter of the vice presidency which the recent convention evoked he can hardly at times fail to have borne in upon him that he may be justified in saying, as the French sovereign did, "After me the deluge."

G. A. R. ENCAMPMENT IN BOSTON, AUGUST 15 TO 20.

Low Rates—A Delightful G. A. R. Booklet Free.

Ten years ago historic old Boston welcomed the Grand Army of the Republic, and the reception which New England tendered the "Vets" has long been remembered. The gala appearance of the Puritanical old city; and the magnificent military pageant which marched through the crooked streets, lined with cheering throngs, made the G. A. R. Reunion of '94 a memorable event. In ten years many changes have taken place in the ranks of these sturdy soldiers; and while they may lack the quick step of their former Boston march, they are still ready for duty; and at the annual encampment in Boston this year, August 15th to 20th, it is anticipated that over 100,000 people will visit the city, and over forty thousand will be in parade. Visitors are expected from every quarter of the country; and the same care and watchfulness will follow the G. A. R. visitors which was exercised over the large gathering of teacher assembled here last summer. Boston is an ideal convention city. Hotel proprietors, citizens and boarding-house keepers all unite in doing their utmost for the ease and comfort of the visitors. As a city of interest, Boston is without an equal; the many famous landmarks, historical buildings and places in Boston and the suburbs, make it doubly attractive as a convention city. Low rates from all sections of the country will apply; and to further aid the visitor, the Boston & Maine has recently published a delightful booklet which tells all about the encampment and contains illustrations of the numerous historic landmarks and monuments in Boston and suburbs. The outside cover of the booklet is in three colors, showing an exact reproduction in colors of the official G. A. R. badge on a white background, with a green wreath enclosing, the whole on a blue setting, while the lower half is in black with red lettering. This booklet is invaluable as a guide and makes an interesting souvenir. Just send a postal card to the General Passenger Department, Boston & Maine Railroad, Boston, and the booklet will be mailed to you free.

The Rubba Mumma.

One of the queerest of the many queer superstitions in the West Indies is that of the "Rubba Mumma," or river mother, of Jamaica. While the colored people laugh to scorn the idea of ocean mermaids, many of them firmly believe that water nymphs inhabit every fountain head of the mountain streams, which are so numerous in their island.

In the old slavery days the sources of such streams were worshipped and sacrifices offered to the "Rubba Mumma." The slaves on plantations used to persuade the overseers or masters to sacrifice an ox or a chicken to her. She is said to be marvellously beautiful, with a lily white skin, long black hair and soft blue eyes. She comes out of the water at noon every day, sits down on a rock in the stream and combs her raven tresses. If any Peeping Tom sees her and their eyes meet he is blasted upon the spot, but if she does not happen to see him it is all right.

Food is sometimes taken to the river head and left there for the "Rubba Mumma." The natives will not eat the fish of the rivers which she inhabits, for they are supposed to be her children. It is said that wherever the river nymph resides, provided the fountain is deep and blue, there is a table of pure gold at which she dines. It is an enchanted table, and at "sun hot" (noon) it rises for a moment above the surface of the water and quickly sinks again.

Safeguard the Children.

Notwithstanding all that is done by boards of health and charitably inclined persons, the death rate among small children is very high during the hot weather of the summer months in the large cities. There is not probably one case of bowel complaint in a hundred, however, that could not be cured by the timely use of Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy. Mr. Frank Riggs, of Franklinville, N. Y., in speaking of this remedy said: "I have found it expedient to have a supply of Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy on hand. It has been a family safeguard and while especially beneficial to children, it is equally good in adult cases. I recommend it cheerfully and without reservation." For sale by O'Connor's Pharmacy.

This school now has the most elegant, complete and extensive private school building in America. In the planning and furnishing of its NEW BUILDING expense has not been considered even in the minutest detail. New fittings of special design will be found to have taken the place of the ordinary furniture used in school buildings. The entire outfit of the school in its old building has been sacrificed that the school in the new home might have only the newest and best obtainable.

EXPERIENCED TEACHERS.

The only feature recognizable will be the able and experienced corps of teachers who have given this school its wide-spread reputation. The tuition fees are the same as during the previous ten years, and pupils who contemplate attending may congratulate themselves that this year was the chosen time for their commercial course and the finishing of their school work.

The Vacation School.

If a person was to believe all that is printed in the Boston papers these days in regard to vacation or summer schools, he or she would come to the conclusion that they were an innovation and something entirely new. As a matter of fact, this is not so as Winchester has maintained such a school for the past seven or eight years. The school during that time has been held in the Chapin building on Swanton street and has been a success from the start, when it was pushed and encouraged by a number of ladies prominent in every good work and principally in assisting the children of those parents who cannot bestow upon them the care that should be required during the long summer vacation. From a small number of pupils the attendance has increased until this year there are 153 scholars. One room was sufficient at the start, but now the entire building of four rooms is occupied. A singular thing about this summer school is that the children like it, and enjoy immensely the lessons and the games which are all of an instructive character, and unconsciously leading the little ones along the road to an education amid most happy surroundings.

As in past years Mrs. O'Sullivan is the principal and to her ability is due in great measure the success of the school. She is ably assisted by Miss Hurley, Miss Murray, Miss Holcombe and Miss Symmes, the latter giving her services gratuitously. Then there is a teacher who comes out from Boston once or twice a week to instruct the children in basket work. Interested persons should visit the school and see for themselves what a good thing it is in providing instruction and pleasure for the children and in keeping them off the streets for a portion of each day during the warm weeks of the summer.

The older boys have already made some things and other sewing work, besides studying the art of basket making twice a week. The oldest girls are making aprons, underclothing and hemstitching handkerchiefs, and the work in both instances is very satisfactory.

The walls and ceilings of the rooms have been whitewashed and painted, also the woodwork. Slate blackboards have been placed in the two upper rooms, carpenters have made needed repairs, and many of the windows recurtained, giving the interior of the building a much more attractive appearance.

Cured of Chronic Diarrhoea After Ten Years of Suffering.

"I wish to say a few words in praise of Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy," says Mr. Mattie Burge, of Martinsville, Va. "I suffered from chronic diarrhoea for ten years and during that time tried various medicines without obtaining any permanent relief. Last summer one of my children was taken with cholera morbus, and I procured a bottle of this remedy. Only two doses were required to give her entire relief. I then decided to try the medicine myself, and did not use all of one bottle before I was well and I have never since been troubled with that complaint. One cannot say too much in favor of that wonderful medicine." This remedy is for sale by O'Connor's Pharmacy.

Cross Street Baptist Church.

Last Sunday the services were conducted by Rev. Mr. Watson and the following week he will have charge of the services while Mr. Johnson is at New Haven on his vacation. Last Sunday the church was represented at the reunion which was held in Haverhill, by C. B. Kirby, Miss Charlotte Hunt, and Mr. Jacob Russell who preached the annual sermon. On Sunday there will be a grand rally at Cross Street Church. The aim of this rally is to raise a sufficient sum to build a church and each and every one is striving to make up the $100 by Sunday. The prominent workers are: O. B. Barksdale, Mrs. Charles Johnson, Mr. C. Richardson, Mrs. Mary Glenn, Miss Mary V. Russell, Mr. Charles Kirby and the pastor.

Miss Lillian Collins of Harvard street, spent Sunday with Miss Mamie Harrell of Cambridge.

The colored population of Winchester is growing very rapidly. There has been an increase of nearly 35 since February.

Mr. George Jackson has accepted a position with Dr. Allen.

Last Saturday the Crescent Club base ball team was defeated by the Barta press. The game was fairly won by the Crescent boys but the umpiring was all in favor of the home team. The Winchester team out played them at all points. At the eighth inning the Crescents were 11 to 7 and by unfair playing they managed to work the score up to 13 to 11. F. Higgins played a good game for Winchester and W. Russell at shortstop. Wade of the Boston team pitched a fine game.

A Victory.

At last, after years, we have invented what we have been looking for. Those whose arches of the foot are broken down and have worn irons and springs to relieve them, will say that I have invented a boot which is away ahead of every thing yet. It is made right in the boot and holds its shape; no taking out or putting in of shanks. I have more than 20 pairs in wear by persons in this and surrounding towns who have discarded all other methods. All of the medical profession that I have shown it to indorse it as being the best thing they have seen. All suffering with this trouble, call at my store and I will gladly show it to you and explain its working. At the old stand, Bridges, the American boot maker, 4 Thompson street.

Newsy Paragraphs.

On Saturday noon a produce wagon coming down Mt. Vernon street was overturned by a break in the horse's harness, which caused the front wheel to turn suddenly. The driver and a little girl were thrown from the seat, but escaped injury with the exception of bruises. The horse parted company with the wagon and started to run away, but was caught father down the street. Eggs and vegetables were at a discount for a time.

Supt. of Streets Spates is devoting his time this summer to needed repair work on the streets, no new work being done whatever. This repair work no doubt is more pleasing to many of the residents than is new construction, as it eliminates may defects close to the home in street and gutter.

The crows cause more destruction to bird life than all other agencies combined. They swoop down on trees close to houses and rob the nests of young birds in a very few minutes. The crows come from the Fells which appears to be alive with them. They are robbers in every sense of the word, and should be dealt with on sight.

Any families who have toys that their children have outgrown are asked to give them to the summer school where they will be found very acceptable to the little ones. Mr. N. M. Rev. Daniel March, 88 Years Old.

Rich in pastoral experience and widespread usefulness, Rev. Daniel March, D. D., pastor emeritus of the First Congregational Church in Woburn, reached the 88th anniversary of his birth Thursday. Dr. March is not free from the impress of advanced age, but he walks briskly every day, rain or shine, from his home on Mishawum road to his study in the church edifice. Last Sunday he occupied the pulpit of the church, preaching an able sermon upon the ultimate domination of the Christian religion.

Dr. March—Woburn's grand old man—was born in Milbury, Mass., July 21, 1816, the son of Samuel March. He was a student at Amherst for two years, and was graduated at Yale in the class of '40. His pastorates comprise Cheshire, Conn., Nashua, N. H., Brooklyn, Philadelphia and two terms in Woburn, where about eight years ago he was made pastor emeritus.

He has been an extensive traveler and a voluminous writer, but in the city, where he has held pastoral relations for more than a quarter-century, his fame rests upon his blameless life, his liberality of thought and action and his uniformly genial manner.

Chasing Shadows.

The world is coming more and more to the conclusion that the mad pursuit of riches, which it had regarded as the securing of substance, is after all but the chasing of shadows. Very many rich men have recently borne testimony to the fact that money is not an end to be sought. Even Russell Sage, the last man who would have been suspected of holding such views, has expressed the opinion that many things are more valuable than dollars. For all this, we have not observed any mid scramble among the millionaires to give away their wealth. They perceive that the idolatry of it is a very harmful sort of fetish worship, and yet by their actions admit that they are still slaves to their possessions.

If material things are but symbols, as the idealist school holds, and money in turn is but the symbol of these material things, then money is the symbol of a symbol, the shadow of a shadow. Yet we talk of those who donate dollars as "giving of their substance." It is in this way that men invert the truth.

It is a hopeful sign that the dollar idolatry is passing out. Money has its function and in its right use and place is helpful. When men cease to regard it as their god, they will find it a very serviceable slave. They should master it, not let it master them.

Everywhere are to be seen signs of returning sanity on the question, even in Wall street. Here, where the great god Mammon was thought to be enthroned and the golden calf was worshipped, at least one man gives gratifying evidence that he sees the inwardness of it all.

As the compilers of dictionaries bear witness, Wall street is a good word factory, turning out daily new terms, about one in every score successfully running the gamut of the word critics and finding its way into the big dictionaries.

"Pseudole" is the latest production of this word mint. The adjective has been coined by a Wall street lawyer, William Augustus Smith, for the title to a good humored but merciless satire on the worshipful pursuit of money. With the buzz of the tickers in his ears Mr. Smith created an embodiment of the moving spirit of the street, and he dubbed it "his pseudole majesty." The word means more than false. It includes the idea of self deception as well as of hollowness and mockery.

In its insane scramble for "pseudole" things the race has lost its way. It is time for it to return to the path.

A Tall Chimney Straightened.

A remarkable feat of engineering has been accomplished at the Narragansett brewery, at Cranston, R. I., where a 132 foot chimney, four feet out of plumb, has been straightened without cracking it. When its fall seemed imminent, J. H. Gerhard, a local civil engineer, by means of steel levers raised the chimney and backed it into place. He placed a course of bricks three-quarters around and then substituted wooden wedges, which were burned away as the chimney resumed the upright.

A Novel Night Clock.

A novel night clock of Professor Hirth of Munich contains an electric lamp which lights up when a button is pressed and which throws an enlarged shadow of the dial upon the ceiling. Though the shadow has the size of a church clock the greatly magnified hands and figures are sharp and distinct.

Cures and Cures.

New cures for consumption are mostly misnomers. They come with such monotonous frequency that they are not new, and they fail so persistently that they are not cures. But here comes one at last that has some appearance of being the genuine article. At least, it is vouched for by an American consul. Of course consuls have stood for many things that turned out to be short of specifications. It may be that this diplomatic representative of Uncle Sam has done the same. The tubercle has come out victor in so many medical battles that it seems too much to hope that an agency has at last been discovered that will put him to flight. But so long has humanity suffered from the scourge that even a remote prospect of escape should be welcomed. Consul Haynes of Rouen, France, believes that a French physician has found the way out.

"A novel cure for consumption has recently been discovered," he says, "by Dr. Canu, 43 Rue Fontenelle, Rouen. At the doctor's invitation I visited his consultation rooms a few days ago and saw his method.

"A patient entered whom physicians had said two months before could not live ten days longer. He had been under Dr. Canu's treatment for six weeks and was gaining in appetite, weight and strength. He was first placed upon the operating table, where the usual saline solutions were injected. Afterward he was seated upon an insulated table and electricity passed through him for some minutes by attaching the poles to metallic plates which had been fastened to his breast and back. During this time sparks could be drawn from any part of his body. This finished the patient inserted the small end of a conical shaped tube in his mouth. Into this tube was put a little broom previously dipped into the necessary medicaments for the healing of the lungs or whatever organism was attacked, and through it, the man's body and an X ray globe in the rear sent the electric current, carrying with it the medicinal "ions" from the broom.

"The doctor gave me authentic addresses of those who have been cured by him, and from what I can see and learn great good to science and humanity would result from his work if he were backed sufficiently financially."

Hail to the electric broom and the medicinal "ions." May they sweep and disinfect the lungs of the world.

A Glass of Cold Water.

Nature is the best medicine. If men would but follow her, sickness would vanish from the world. For example, drink a glass of cold water each morning upon arising. Nothing simpler than that. Breathe deeply and regularly for a few moments. If you are at desk work and are beginning to stoop, stand erect and lean back several times as far as you can. Try to touch the floor with the back of your head. There is no danger of your doing it, so do not be afraid to try. All three of these exercises will not require five minutes. Repeat them three times a day, preferably before each meal. After a month of this sort of thing you will be surprised at the benefit received. Of the "water cure" the Chicago Tribune says:

Sleep has drawn upon the water in the blood, and the instinct of the animal, under natural conditions, is to replenish the circulatory system and distend the blood vessels anew. The food in the stomach which had so much to do toward inducing sleep has disappeared, leaving a mucous substance in the alimentary canal. Yet man would wash his face and leave these half clogged canals to the duties of another day.

Drink a glass of cold water in the name of cleanliness. It becomes one of the shortest and easiest of toilet duties. It is swallowed in a second, and in five minutes it has passed from the stomach, taking with it the clogging secretions of the alimentary tract. It has left behind the stimulus that goes with cold water, and by filling the arterial system to the normal it puts a spur to the circulation that has grown sluggish in the night. It is one of the greatest of awakeners and one of nature's own stimulants.

Drink a glass of water before breakfast, another before luncheon and another before dinner. Water is the best, cheapest and pleasantest medicine.

Keeping well is an easy matter for the average man or woman if you only follow a few simple rules.

Water Bottle Adds to Comfort of the Horse's Sunbonnet.

While inventors of one class are striving to take away all the hard work from the horse and devise machines which can haul the heavy loads of freight and cover long distances without fatigue, another class of inventors has been striving to find ways and means to aid to the comfort of the animals which are still compelled to perform hard work. The bonnets which have made their appearance on the horse's heads within the last few years and which have been laughed at by the unthinking ones have added no little to the comfort of the animal compelled to travel over the hot pavements under the burning rays of a summer sun at noonday. The placing of a sponge soaked in water in the top of this bonnet has added considerably to its comfort and possibly given rise to the idea shown in the accompanying picture.

This device is nothing less than a bottle with a water compartment, designed to cover a large portion of the head. Arrangement is made for filling and draining the reservoir whenever an opportunity presents itself to replace the water which has been warmed by the heated atmosphere with that flowing from the earth into the roadside watering trough. When this cooling agent is protected from the rays of the sun by one of the now common bonnets and filled two or three times a day with cool water, it should be the means of saving many animals from actual suffering during the summer's heat.

EZRA BRIGGS' REVENGE

By D. H. TALMADGE

Copyright, 1903, by T. C. McClure.

My friend the postmaster and general storekeeper of Harleyville was sitting on the front porch of his establishment lazily puffing small clouds of blue smoke into the air and blinking comfortably at his slippers, feet, which were resting against a post on a level with his face. I spoke to him, and the feet slipped down with a thud.

"Howdy," he said. "Some warnish, ain't it?"

I nodded, wiping from my face the perspiration engendered by an ill advised walk of two miles over a road unshaded from a merciless July sun. The family at the farmhouse where, from motives of economy, I was spending my vacation had gone to a funeral, and I had wearied of my own company. Wherefore, the afternoon being too hot for fishing, I had come to Harleyville to seek companionship.

"I'd have went to Ike's funeral myself," said the storekeeper when I had explained thus to his understanding, "only the rest of the folks wanted to go, and I didn't like to close up the place on account of the postoffice. I was down to Ike's when the great damp breath blew his lamp out. I set up with him two or three nights along at the last."

"He was a close friend of yours?" I asked.

"Well," sighing explosively, "there ain't much doubt he was considerable close, and we was always friends, him and me. I had a feeling of sympathy for him during the last years of his life, too—sort of an admiration for him because he took his medicine like a man. 'Tain't every made human that does."

"Then he had long been an invalid?"

"No; that ain't the idea. He wasn't sick a great while. The story dates back nigh on to twenty years, when him and Ezra Briggs was rivals for the hand of Martha Telford. 'Twas nip and tuck between 'em, but Ezra finally won the match. Ike was fit of enough to get and about it, and when his pad, leaving among his other effects a mortgage on the old Briggs place where Ezra was living, his parents both being defunct, he foreclosed the thing and made a regular dilapidation of a bad mess. Ezra could have paid it off but he didn't wait six months, but he wouldn't wait. That was the beginning of a mighty hard time for Ezra. Nothing he touched after that seemed to prosper. Him and Martha—there wasn't no children—come at last to live in a house not much better than a shanty down by the mill yonder, and the woman's love, so my wife and daughter say, sort of took sick and died. I've heard tell there ain't much female love that's proof against poverty long drawn out, and heaps of what passes for real honest affection leaks away through the worn out places in woman's clothes."

"It's my opinion that Martha wasn't a real comfortable person to live with during the last two or three years of Ezra's life. I've got a suspicion, more or less founded on fact, that she was sorer than the dogs of vinegar and that her patience sort of shot off like a Gatling gun once it had burst. Ezra took sick finally with somebody or other's disease of something or other that the doctors said was incurable, and he didn't keep up after that, just poked around and groined till the trouble knocked him down into bed."

"He kept his own counsel pretty much, but I've got a notion he was nursing a feeling of bitterness against Ike most of the time then. I said to myself 'twould be a blessing if the old death angel would only drop down and carry him off before he done anything that would shock the community."

"But I was worrying mindfully. However much he may have been figuring on revenge, there wasn't no bloody violence mixed into his figuring. He did give the community sort of a shock, though, such as 'twas. Most of us couldn't understand then why he done as he did, but it is as clear as molasses to me now."

"The river yonder five years ago lost March got on a ripping tear owing to a sudden thaw, and among other things it done it swooped down across Ike's barnyard and carried off a lot of live stock and things, including Ike himself, who was trying to rescue a valuable calf he'd paid a big price for at the state fair."

"He went along with the flood and never stopped till he stuck in the branches of a small tree about seventy or eighty feet from shore near where Ezra's house stood. And as chance would have it Ezra heard him yelping for help and dragged himself out of the house, where he was staying alone with his disease while Martha washed dishes up to the hotel over at Bottom village."

"Now, 'twould have been no more than natural for a man in Ezra's position to have done nothing but gloat over the situation. But Ezra didn't do nothing of the kind. He hustled around as fast as his disease would let him to save Ike before the tree came uprooted."

"He got a long rope and tried to throw one end of it to Ike, but it fell about five feet short every time, so he waded out into the water, though the doctor had told him 'twould kill him to get his feet wet. When Ike had tied one end of the rope to himself Ezra tied the other end to a fence post and the current done the rest."

"That wotting of his feet and legs was the beginning of Ezra's finish. That night he had a chill, and his disease simply got rampagous. The doctor said 'twas hopeless the minute he seen him and give him a week to live. If he didn't drop off in the meantime. And Ike—well, Ike come around penitent and humble as anything the Old Testament ever produced, saying Ezra saved his life, for he couldn't swim a stroke, and asking if there wasn't anything he could do to make amends to him. There wasn't, of course. The time had gone by for that. But Ike hung around the place clothed in figurative sackcloth and ashes most of the time till Ezra passed along to the next world eight days later."

It seemed to me rather a pretty story of the greater love-bath-no-man-than-thy sort and heap-coals-of-fire-upon-his-head sort, and I said as much to the storekeeper.

"Shucks! That wasn't Ezra's revenge at all, though I thought it was till I learned different. Ezra was simply saving Ike for the torture; that was all. Two days before he died he sent for me, and he says, with a shivery chuckle, when he'd sent the others out of the room: 'Old friend, I've got to tell somebody this, and I've chose on you. It'll be easier dying if I know that somebody alive knows how I got even with that cuss. I've forgave him and all that; but, say, and he drew me down closer to him, 'I've made him and Martha promise solemnly, with their hands touching mine, that they'll get married as soon as decent, and, oh, glory, won't she just knock the plaster off of him?' He was chuckling hard when I left him, and I reckon he died chuckling. My wife said he looked real peaceful and contented and satisfied and sort of natural in his coffin."

"And Ike?" I asked after a short interval, during which the storekeeper's gaze rested upon a distant hilltop where white stones gleamed in the sunshine.

Once more he sighed, more softly this time. "Poor Ike," he murmured. "I never see a man who seemed so glad to die as him."

Poetry and Science.

Poetry has perhaps no place in the exact sciences, partly because exactness is incompatible with poetic license, partly because of the unalterable tendency of the poet to get things wrong. A curious example of this was noticed in a lecture at the Camera club by Mr. Duncan on cuttlefishes. The modern cuttlefish is a descendant of the fossil belemnite, but the only descendant of the coeval ammonite is the paper nautilus. Better known is the Portuguese man-of-war, with which the paper nautilus is sometimes confused and which is really allied with the belemnite group, because, while its shell appears external, it is not really so. The poets Pope, Byron and James Montgomery all easily fell into the error, and Pope's well known lines in the "Essay on Man":

Learn of the little nautilus to sail, Spread the thin oar and catch the driving gale—embody a wrong description of this very interesting survival. Pope believed, with many other people, that the little nautilus comes to the surface level downward and spreads some fleshy oval and eiliary expansions in the form of two sails and six little oars. But it does nothing of the kind. The two little oval expansions—the sails—are never raised at all, but always tightly clasp the shell. They form, in fact, part of the shell. Moreover, the nautilus comes to the surface upside down, if we may so express its position.—London Post.

Noise as a Curative Agent.

The Chinese doctor sets up a terrible racket when called to treat the sick. This is supposed to drive evil spirits away, and it unquestionably acts well in a great many cases. Civilization demands rest and quiet. All noise is barred from the sickroom. The Chinese have demonstrated unknowingly a great psychological or psychopathological fact. A patient of mine had received the last rites of the church, the pulse had ceased at the wrist and he had sunk into that coma which precedes death. Some one in the next house struck up the "Anvil Chorus" from "Il Trovatore." I was very much annoyed and distressed and tried to stop it. Suddenly the pulsation at the wrist began again, the patient gradually opened his eyes, motioned to his sister. She bent low, and he whispered in her ear, "Te dum te de; that is my favorite tune." We roused him, fed him, and today, ten years after the event, he weighs 210 pounds. The therapeutics of vibration or noise is yet to be written. So I have discovered that anything that can arouse the subconscious, subliminal self will cure my patient when all drugs fail, and noise is a very cheap agent.—Medical Brief.

Deer and Sleep.

Deer reverse the apparent order of nature, for they sleep in the daytime and feed at night. How much sleep they do take is a matter of contention even among experienced stalkers. Some say little, others much. On the whole, we are inclined to agree with the former, for it has to be remembered that they claw the end when lying down. Two most experienced and observant foresters, the one in Argyleshire and the other in Aberdeenshire, thus gave their opinions: "Deer sleep or rest from about 10 or 11 a. m. to 4 p. m." "Deer sleep from noon to 5 p. m."

It is no uncommon occurrence to come on deer asleep. A stalker in the Blackmount had the rare experience of coming upon a parcel of seven stags, all sound asleep. A herd was seen to move in Glenfeshie, but one stag remained behind, lying motionless. On a careful approach he was found to be asleep. Perhaps, however, the oldest occurrence of this nature happened in Braemar, when a stalking party on going up to the stag which had just been shot found a three-year-old doe to it fast asleep. In fact, it is by no means rare to get within a yard or two of a sleeping deer.—Scottish Field.

A NOVEL FIRE ESCAPE.

Travelers May Now Slide to Safety in Their Satchels.

The problem of the skyscraper hotel is a very serious one for the traveling public, but it seems to have been solved in a very ingenious manner by an Englishman after a brief but scared visit to this country, says the Scientific American.

Lying in his bed at night on some incredibly lofty floor he read all kinds of uncheerful things about fierce conflagrations that have devastated entire cities. He wondered whether there was no way of sleeping in peace and comfort of mind, even on the twentieth floor, with an infallible fire escape at the foot of his bed, thus rendering him absolutely independent of extraneous assistance.

He went home and devised the ingenious traveling bag escape shown in the accompanying cut. This will cost at any bag and trunk maker's very little more than an ordinary portmanteau of the same kind, and, moreover, the fire escape part of it does not interfere to any extent with its capacity for holding your dress suit, boots, shirts or a hundred and one other things requisite for the traveler.

In one small compartment will be found some hundreds of feet of that fine, light rope used by mountaineers in the Swiss Alps for roping themselves together while crossing glaciers and climbing precipitous ice slopes. There is also a particularly ingenious little brake arrangement and two pairs of steel snap hooks. That is all, but it certainly enables the possessor of this useful article of baggage to rest easy in his bed in a skyscraper hotel.

Let us suppose that an alarm of fire is given in the dead of night and the flames cut off every means of communication with the outside. The possessor of this portmanteau fire escape simply slips out of bed, snaps one set of hooks round the bed leg or other substantial piece of furniture and the other set to the sides of the portmanteau. This last he then throws out of the window, gets into it himself and lowers himself just as quickly or as slowly as he pleases by means of the brake. This useful article of baggage has not yet made its appearance in this country, but beyond question it will do so speedily.

WIRELESS TELEGRAPH.

Two Lads of Colorado Town Said to Have a Valuable System.

Frank Glendon Myers and Richmond McDonald of Florence, Colo., aged thirteen and nineteen years respectively, have invented a wireless telegraph system that is said to excel that invented by Marconi, says the Cleveland Plain Dealer. A practical test was made recently, and messages were sent and received by experienced telegraph operators for a distance of five blocks with the greatest ease.

The electric solution used is the invention of the boys. A large plate of sheet iron is nailed to the house tops of the sending and receiving stations, a distance of five blocks, and those catch the sound through the medium of the electricity through the ground. Myers is the son of a telegraph operator and has a liking for electrical questions. The boys have been working on their invention for many months.

New Powder Without Recoil.

Tests of a new powder which the inventor claims is without recoil are about to be made by United States government officials. If the inventor's claim can be proved true it will revolutionize ordnance and may perhaps revolutionize methods of warfare. The greatest difficulty that a maker of big guns has to overcome is the recoil, which in time puts the gun out of commission by destroying its machinery. The new powder, it is said, has no perceptible recoil, and a child may hold its hand on the breech of a big gun when it is fired without fear of being injured.

Steel Block Paving.

It is reported from Bordeaux that an inventor has submitted to the authorities details of a new process for paving streets with steel. The steel is formed into blocks, which are scored to prevent horses from slipping an motor cars and cycles from skidding. The cost of these blocks is $2 a square yard, while the cost of wood paving in Paris is over $5 a yard.

MUSIC FOR THE MASSES.

Low Company Will Furnish All Kinds of Tunes by Wire.

Edward Bellamy's dream in "Looking Backward" as to the period when any household can be flooded with music ranging from Wagner to ragtime is about to be realized. Leading capitalists of Baltimore are now incorporating in Massachusetts the Cahill Teleharmonic company, and it is promised that in two years New Yorkers can push a button and music will come by electricity.

Households can be filled with stirring music in the morning to arouse the occupants to begin their day's work or at night to lull them into peaceful slumbers. It is only a question of time, it is declared, when this service will be furnished commercially, just as gas, electric light, water and telephone service are now supplied. The invention is a machine for producing every primary vibration known to the human ear. These range from the minimum vibrations that can be heard sixteen a second to the maximum of 8,000 vibrations a second.

F. C. Todd, president of the company, says: "It is planned to have six classes of selections. All will be sent out over a pair of wires. The subscriber who gets this service will receive all the music. Another method will be to have six wires, so that subscribers to this may select just what they want to hear, and still another will serve theaters and halls, giving full orchestral effects. For public playgrounds, hospitals, factories, hotels, restaurants and homes the world's best music will be within the reach of all."

"It is contemplated even to have slumber music, so that the sufferer from insomnia may be lulled to sleep. It can be transmitted long distances, across the continent if desired. It may be sent to subscribers over telephone or incandescent circuits. One may unscrew an incandescent lamp, connect the translator and have the service without interfering with lights on the same bracket. The telephones may be used to ring up the exchange or the subscriber, but not to talk over when used for this service."

SIMPLE ELECTRIC FAN.

May Be Attached Directly to the Lamp Socket.

Every year brings out some new design in electric fans. What is probably the latest thing in this line is the little contrivance shown here. Compactness and economy are its chief recommendations.

The construction is very simple and the cost slight. The fan can be screwed directly into the socket of an ordinary bulb, consuming the same amount of current as a sixteen candle power lamp. The speed of the blades is said to be 1,600 revolutions a minute.

A JERSEY PNEUMONIA CURE

Fried Onions Said to Be an Infallible Remedy.

Owing to the prevalence of pneumonia and the great mortality which attended its ravages the past winter and spring several boards of health in northern New Jersey have been taking measures against the disease. The health board of Little Washington has published a remedy which is said to be a sure cure for pneumonia, and other health boards are looking into the matter with a view of having the same thing published for the good of the general public. The infallible cure is:

Take six to ten onions, according to size, and chop fine. Put in a large spider over a hot fire, then add about the same quantity of rye meal and vinegar enough to form a thick paste. In the meanwhile stir it thoroughly, letting it simmer five or ten minutes. Then put in a cotton bag large enough to cover the lungs and apply to chest as hot as patient can bear. In about ten minutes change the poultice and thus continue by reheating the poultices, and in a few hours the patient will be out of danger.

This simple remedy has never failed to cure this too often fatal malady. Usually three or four applications will be sufficient, but continue always until perspiration starts freely from the chest. This remedy was formulated many years ago by one of the best physicians New England has ever known, who never lost a patient by the disease and won his renown by simple remedies.

Railroad Ties From Shoe Leather.

The latest form of railway tie is made of leather. The scrap leather from shoe shops is taken into a disintegrator, ground very fine, subjected to a refining process and molded. The tension of the molding machine can be so regulated that ties hard enough to take a spike or tie through which a spike cannot be driven can be produced. The three great essentials in a cross tie are apparently found in this leather sleeper, for it is guaranteed to hold a spike, the fish plate will not splinter in it and it will not rot. Sample ties which have already been down twenty-eight months fail to show the least wear.

MONSTER VALVES.

Remarkable Features of Chicago's New Sewerage System.

The accompanying illustration, taken from the Engineering Record, is of interest as showing the magnitude of the machinery needed in modern public works.

The new sewerage system of the city of Chicago has several massive check or flap valves with inlet ports nine feet in diameter. These valves were placed on the delivery ends of centrifugal pumps and automatically close if the pumps for any reason are shut down.

The use of such valves in this case was imperative, as the centrifugal pumps deliver water under a head of several feet and no sliding gate could be closed quickly enough to prevent flooding or damage to the pump.

The body of each gate is of gray iron and is partially imbedded in the concrete wall. A large iron flap of such huge dimensions made strong enough to withstand the sudden strains would, however, have proved far too heavy and furthermore would have greatly impeded the delivery of water through the pump.

This obstacle was overcome by devising a partially buoyant float valve composed of a cast steel rim reinforced by a concentric rib to which were securely riveted two sheet steel dishes plates.

The concave sides of these plates were riveted together and joints called, these in turn being riveted to the ring.

Each valve was pivoted on a steel axle hung within bronze bearings. The tackle shown in the illustration is of course not used when the machinery is in operation.

These gates were designed and made in Boston.

WATER AS A MEDICINE.

How Japanese Jin Jitsu Experts Account For Their Vigor.

The unique progress of Japan and the remarkable efficiency of its people in everything they undertake suggest some interesting questions as to the influence of diet and personal hygiene on national welfare. The British Medical Journal says that the Japanese themselves attribute their high average of physical strength to a plain and frugal diet and the system of gymnastics called Jin Jitsu, which includes a knowledge of anatomy and of the external and internal uses of water.

Although during the period of their ascendancy the samurai kept the secret that their great physical superiority was due in a great measure to the internal and external use of water, the belief that it used liberally and intelligently water is an infallible weapon against disease is now generally held. By those who go in for Jin Jitsu an average of one gallon a day is drunk. It is noteworthy that rheumatism is almost unknown in Japan. It is probable that the absence of meat from the diet, combined with the use of plenty of water, accounts for this immunity. Bathing is indulged in frequently, even by the poorest.

In the matter of diet they are frugal to a degree, rice being the staple food in every Japanese house and appearing at every meal. Japanese troops have often made record marches on a diet consisting solely of a little rice. The Japanese appreciate above all things the value of fresh air. Night and day they keep their windows open and their rooms ventilated, and they do not fear drafts or damp air. Breathing exercises are an important part of their physical training—deep, careful breathing, which is only acquired by practice.

Pneumatic Street Cleaner.

A Michigan man has invented a pneumatic street cleaning machine devoid of any brush or broom appliance. When the cleaner is drawn over the surface it draws up the dust and dirt by means of an exhaust which takes the place of brushes and brooms. The device draws the dust and dirt into a repository, where it is held until dumped into a cart, and so the dirt is not allowed to stand in unsightly piles around the streets waiting to be hauled away by wagons. The inventor claims that his machine will clean a street so thoroughly that it will not need sprinkling, but the surface to be operated on must not be damp.

New Use For X Rays.

A writer in Electricity says it has been discovered that the aging of a violin can be artificially secured by exposing the wood to Roentgen rays. The beautiful tone which has heretofore resulted from a natural aging of the wood for fifty or sixty years can thus be obtained in a single day. If this be true, Stradivarius violins will be no longer at a premium, except in so far as perfection of manufacture is concerned, though it is probable that, as in most other processes, the natural aging will yield the better tone.

RADIUM AS EARTH HEATER.

Young British Scientist Startles His Elders With a New Theory.

The New York Herald recently published the following from its London correspondent:

Is the heat of the earth due not to the fact that it is a molten mass, which has been slowly cooling for millions of years, but to the presence in it of that mysterious fascinating element radium?

Professor Ernest Rutherford, a young but already distinguished pupil of Professor J. J. Thomson of Cambridge, who first measured the mass and velocity of radium electrons, threw out the latter suggestion in a lecture before the Royal Institution in London the other night.

Lord Kelvin had calculated that, assuming the earth to be a molten mass when it first started its own career, it would take 100,000,000 years to cool down to its present temperature; but, added the lecturer, inclining his head toward the gray-headed scientist who was present, Lord Kelvin had shown a prophetic insight when he added, "provided a new source of heat is not discovered."

Mr. Rutherford thought that radium was proved to be in sufficient quantities in the earth to supply a new theory as to the source of the earth's heat, so that we should not require the many millions of years which geologists and biologists had reckoned out as the time taken in the cooling process before life on the globe was possible.

This startling new theory, ventured modestly, was not discussed after the lecture, but the scientists went away greatly interested in a proposition which in effect means a reconstruction of hitherto accepted facts.

The London Daily Mail points out that Mr. Rutherford's calculation leads to the conclusion that the earth may have been habitable for many millions of years and that it further upsets all accepted theories as to the duration of life, since a millionth portion of radium only exhausts itself in 50,000,000 years.

NEW STREET SWEEPER.

The Broom and Shovel Displaced by Automatic "White Wings."

There is no other city pavement which seems to meet with the favor of asphalt, with its smooth surface and lasting qualities, and in view of the growing use of horseless carriages it is probable that as the city pavement of the future it will stand alone.

With the advent of the smooth pavement seems to have come also an increased desire to keep the streets clean, and it is customary to station men at intervals along these pavements to keep free from dirt sections of pavement varying from one to three squares. Originally the only implements with which the man worked were the shovel and heavy broom, requiring two distinct operations to do his work, in addition to wheeling a heavy cart about with him.

Now, however, the street cleaner can simply push a machine back and forth over the section of pavement assigned to him, forgetting that he ever had to handle the broom and shovel. This latest machine is entirely automatic in its operation, scooping up the dirt from the pavement, elevating it to the required height and depositing it in a bag at the rear. The operator has extra sacks with him, and as one is filled he replaces it with another, depositing the full one at the curb for collection by a wagon.

Daniel B. and William R. Cliffe of Marion, O., are the inventors.

Felt Tents.

A Copenhagen dispatch tells of a Dane who has invented a new military tent fashioned of felt. There may be some new method of treating the material, but felt tents are not a new device. The Turcoman tribes of Transcaspia, not to seek further, have used tents of felt for ages. The use of them had a curious effect upon a Russian expedition thirty-five years ago. General Lomakin assailed the stronghold of the Tekkes and fired in terrific volleys of grape and shell among the tents of felt. But no serious damage seems to have been done, and when the troops attempted the storming of the felt encampment they were repulsed and fled in wild panic.

Submarine Bicycling.

Submarine bicycling will never, it is safe to say, become a popular form of recreation, but the wheel has nevertheless been used below water with success. An experiment of this kind was made off the coast of England near Plymouth. The cyclist was a diver, fully equipped, while he employed a tricycle with heavy flat tired wheels. On a smooth surface it was found that the wheel could be propelled easily, if somewhat slowly, and with much less effort than is required to carry a heavy suit of armor the same distance.

Concrete Floors With Hollow Beams.

In Switzerland concrete floors are made with hollow beams which are one part cement to four of coarse sand. They can support four times as much weight as wooden beams, are fireproof and easily placed. Being hollow, they protect against extremes of heat and cold and may be warmed by passing hot air through them.

OIL BURNING STEAMSHIP.

The Nebraska's Successful Voyage Around the Horn.

The American steamship Nebraska recently arrived in New York from San Francisco after a voyage of 12,724 nautical miles, during which her furnaces were fed exclusively with oil. The trip was made as an experiment by the officials of the Hawaiian-American Steamship company.

The Nebraska covered the distance from San Francisco to New York in 21 days 7 hours and 27 minutes, making an average of 10.35 knots. She is said to be the first steamship that has ever made the voyage from San Francisco to New York without a stop at some intermediate port.

When the Nebraska last left New York she was fitted with coal burning furnaces. At San Francisco she was altered so that the space between her bottoms could be filled with oil. That part of the vessel is now a tank and can hold 10,500 barrels, counting forty-two gallons to the barrel. She still had 1,200 barrels left after her trip round the Horn.

From the tank in the hold the oil is pumped as it is needed into a large tank in the middle of the ship and reaching from the keel to the main deck. From this it is carried through tubes to the furnaces. There, by means of blowers, it is sent to the grates, where it burns and turns the water in the boilers into steam. The oil is sent on to the grates in a spray from the nozzle of the tubes.

Contrary to expectation, the burning oil did not make a perceptible odor. When the vessel arrived she was just as "sweet" as any of the big coal using liners and much cleaner above deck. The saving by the use of oil was found to be very great. Seventy-five per cent more space was necessary to store the coal. Time was lost in having to stop to replenish the coal. The financial saving, it is said, was more than 100 per cent in the cost of fuel alone, and three men were employed in feeding the furnaces where formerly twelve were required. The three men, however, received higher wages than did the coal passers, being selected not for their brawn, but for their skill.

AUTOMATIC WRENCH.

Jaws Instantaneously Adjusted by Use of a Spring.

Nearly every man who has work to do around machinery, whether in a machine shop or in a manufacturing plant where different kinds of complicated automatic apparatus are in constant use, has a set of tools and implements with which to make repairs and replace broken parts of the machines over which he has charge. A few will be content with a screwdriver and a hammer, but the expert machinist is not satisfied unless he has a complete outfit of all the latest appliances with which he can make complicated repairs without calling in an expert from outside to assist him at expense to either himself or the firm which employs him. The man with the full outfit of tools may command higher wages, but he requires little assistance.

THE AUTOMATIC WRENCH.

In this outfit, if the machinery he cares for only has a few bolts, will be found a set of wrenches for the different nuts, thus saving time in making adjustments of one wrench to fit the different sizes. But if much work with a wrench is required one adjustable wrench can generally be set to fit a nut quicker than the fixed jaw wrench can be selected from the set.

The latest idea in this line, however, is a wrench which can be adjusted so quickly that it does away with the objection formerly raised. There is a loose jaw similar to that on the old form of wrench, except that its movement is controlled by a spring in the handle. It will be seen that the movement of this jaw is permitted by the release of the ratchet on the underside. The machinist has but to hook the fixed jaw over the nut, touch the ratchet with thumb, and the loose jaw will slide forward under the action of the spring. As soon as the two jaws enclose the nut the ratchet is released and engages the proper tooth of the sliding member, locking it securely and producing practically a fixed jaw wrench of the required size.

Ancient Engines of War.

Several catapults—ancient engines of war, such as were used at the siege of Troy and in the campaigns of Julius Caesar—have been dug up at Metz from ground where Roman legions, Germanic warriors, Gallic tribes, and hordes of invading Huns in turn fought great battles. These catapults are a striking object lesson in the progress made in ordnance. Projectiles used in the experiments made by the Lorraine society of Metz were hurled 990 feet. One of these pieces of artillery of the great Caesar's period would cut an insignificant figure beside the 130 ton gun on Sandy Hook, which throws a 2,400 pound sixteen inch projectile twenty-one miles, more than a hundred times as far as the catapult sends a bit of wood or stone.

The Moon's Velocity.

The moon moves with a mean velocity of 3,350 feet per second—a little faster than the highest speed yet given to a cannon ball.

A Chicago broker who recently failed admitted that he had lost $100,000 at poker within a year. It does not pay to load up on too many forms of gambling at once.

There is a man walking around the world on a wager who will not talk unless given a dollar. If some men could only get their wives to take a similar resolution!

A Boston court decides that a cat, no matter how valuable, is not personal property, and therefore it is not a crime to steal one! That may be law, but it isn't sense. The same decision will cover dogs, birds not suitable for food, and many other things. If the cat or dog or bird were dead and stuffed, it would clearly be stealable. The railroad commissioners, with that degree of conservatism which marks their usual plan of tardy action, have given forth the information that they will consider in September the question of having waiting-room accommodations furnished patrons of the Winchester cars, if the cars are not run continuously to the Terminal from Winchester before that time. In all probability the railroad managers will save the commissioners the trouble of considering that subject. It has only been because of the existing condition of things that the cars have not been run to the Terminal before this. —[Medford Mercury.]

WINCHESTER, MASS., FRIDAY, JULY 29, 1904.

PRICE, FIVE CENTS

A BIG REAL ESTATE DEAL.

The Most Important Sale to Occur for Years.

S. J. Elder, Esq., the Purchaser, to Build an Elegant Residence on Myopia Hill.

Agreements have been signed for one of the most important sales of vacant land in Winchester for a number of years whereby Samuel J. Elder, one of our most influential citizens will become the owner of some 270,000 square feet of land on Myopia Hill with an option on a third lot. This is a part of the land which Congressman Samuel W. McCall and Mr. George A. Fernald have opened up for development. It is very high and has a magnificent view of Mystic Lake in the foreground and the distant views are unsurpassed. It is just off the county road, on the line of electric and is extremely accessible both from Winchester and Arlington, and is near the grounds of the Country Club, Boat Club and other large estates.

Mr. Elder is to build immediately one of the finest residences in this section, a well appointed stable and other buildings, by plans of Robert Coit, Architect. A new road is to be built immediately making an entrance to his property, the whole plan being laid out by Frederick O. Olmsted. The broker was Geo. Adams Woods.

In connection with this transaction a handsome property belonging to Mr. Elder on Central street has been sold by Mr. Woods to a syndicate for improvements. The sale includes a large lot of land, 14 room house and stable, the whole valued at over $20,000. Mr. Woods has also sold to another well known attorney property on Arlington street, Myopia Hill, Winchester, known as the Folsom estate which consists of two frame houses and about 25 acres of land and is valued at about $12,000. The location is on the crown of the hill affording a magnificent view of the surrounding country. The old buildings will be removed and a handsome house and stable erected.

Mr. Woods has also sold to Edward Harmon property on Oxford street, Winchester, consisting of a 12 room house and 14,000 feet of land. The property belonged to Mr. William M. McInnes and is valued at about $9,000. Mr. Harmon will occupy at once.

He also reports the renting of house No. 3 Hillside avenue for Mr. John Murray Marshall to Mr. Maurice Saunders who will occupy in the fall.

Rented for Fanny C. Boone house on Fenwick road to Mr. S. H. Taylor of New York.

Sold for Mr. L. V. Niles lot of land containing about 1,100 square feet on south side of Sheffield road to Mr. W. S. Sawyer who is contemplating building thereon.

Rented for F. T. Dow house on Maxwell road to Mr. G. H. Root for immediate occupancy.

Rented for J. W. Newman house No. 3 Cottage avenue to Mr. F. W. Brewster.

THE LEGEND OF THE ABERJONA.

Young Jonah was a comely lad,
Lived by the source of Mystic—
And ah! he met a fate so sad,
It claims a mournful distich.

For Jonah he loved Abby Gray,
And Abby she loved Jonah;
But Ingins red tore her away,
'Twas theft! they didn't own her.

She struggled so, they dropped her in,
While crossing o'er the water;
Their arrows riddled Jonah's skin,
As he jumped in and caught her.

They both were drowned. Disconsolate
The stream doth still bemoan her,
It's very name recalls the fate
Of Abby and of Jonah.

THE SILVER MINE.
The silver mine which has been discovered at Middlesex Falls, of which we spoke a few weeks since, is attracting general attention. Mr. F. W. Morandi of this town who discovered it and has bought the land, feels very confident that it contains ore in considerable quantities. The surface mineral assays $9 to $200 a ton. Mr. Morandi has gone down in one place ten feet, and the assay was $55 a ton. He has had it inspected by mining engineers who speak very favorably of it. Mr. Morandi has made contract with a mining engineer to sink a shaft twenty five feet and work on it will commenced today, but he does not anticipate finding the fissure short of 100 feet. The mine lies on a side hill near Spot pond and undoubtedly contains both silver and gold, but in what quantities remains to be seen. Note—The remains of the old mine are still to be seen on the north shore of the South Reservoir.—Editor.

Moth Bites.

We were never wickered enough to wish that the brown tail and gypsies would overrun the district where the newspapers attacked a state appropriation, and where the legislators fought it, but some of these communities seem to be getting it now all right. The Boston press has wakened at last to the occasion. Let some more of these antagonistic communities get a little of the itch and do a little scratching, and the appropriation will pass the next legislature easily enough.—[Malden News.]

It is wonderful how prolific the newspapers are now-a-days regarding the feelings of the editors towards the gypsy moth ravages where a few months ago they were poking fun at such an inconsequential matter. If these same papers had taken hold of the question last year when the Mercury urged them to do so, the legislature would not have so completely ignored the subject. Keep up the firing all along the line, and send forth a mighty fusillade from now until January and beyond.—[Medford Mercury.]

A New Departure.

An entire new departure has been made by the Boston & Northern and the Old Colony Street Railways in the matter of handling the special excursion parties this summer. There are many thousands of people who use the trolley for pleasure who find one of the great drawbacks to be the failure to get a seat in the car, in addition to this they are sometimes required to change cars. It is to appeal to this class that the street railway companies have arranged to conduct a series of special car excursions for this summer to Lynn, Marblehead, Salem, Beverly, Gloucester and around the cape to Nantasket Beach, Brockton, Taunton, Fall River, Newport and other places. There will be no changes of cars on these trips and every passenger will be assured of a seat. The charges for the trip includes not only transportation, meals, and guides, at the option of the passenger, and only a slightly increased fare is asked.

The cars will be run only in pleasant weather and at the leading places guides will meet the party and conduct them to places of interest. As the companies are making an experiment and wish to find out whether or not the increased facilities for travel will be appreciated, only weekly trips to each place will be made by the special cars beginning August 2d. It is quite likely that the patronage will necessitate the making of more frequent trips and the personally conducted excursion cars on the electric lines is probably destined to become a feature of travel on pleasant summer days to the various places of interest north and south of Boston.

There is no other section of the country where the street railways have inaugurated such a plan. These special trips will be run under the personal supervision of R. H. Derrah who has made a special study of pleasure travel in this section for years. A complete itinerary of the trips may be obtained at any office of the Boston & Northern and the Old Colony Street Railways or at Derrah's Trolley Information Bureau, Archway Bookstore, 365 Washington street, Boston.

Anxious for Cong. McCall's Services.

Some of the Massachusetts congressmen who have been taking things easy in past campaigns are going to find themselves drafted for the coming campaign. The national committee is preparing to take them right out of their summer or fall homes and put them to work. Cong. Lawrence, according to present plans, will be sent ahead and so will Gillette, who has had a pretty easy time of it as the dean of the Massachusetts congressional delegation. Even Tirrell will have a hard task to persuade the committee that he has a local contest at home which requires his presence. Cong. Lovering will also be requested to prepare to slumber in sleeping cars for the good of the cause. The members of the committee are particularly anxious to lay their hands on Cong. McCall. The peculiar hold which he has in Massachusetts is appreciated, and they believe that inasmuch as he is listed as a republican congressman, he should "make good," as the popular term goes, and lead the people up to the republican national ticket on election day.—[Practical Politics.]

Colbert—Callahan.

Joseph Parker Colbert, Holy Cross '89, and son of Parker Colbert of Winchester, and Elizabeth J. Callahan, daughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. Thomas J. Callahan of Woburn were married in St. Charles Church in that city Tuesday morning.

Rev. J. D. Colbert of St. Joseph's Church, Wakefield, a brother of the groom, officiated at the nuptial mass. The best man was Dr. Joseph T. Callahan, a brother of the bride. The latter was gowned in imported aedon cloth. She was attended by her sister, Miss Charlotte A. Callahan, who was attired in pink silk muslin and lace, and wore a white and pink picture hat. The following clergymen were present at the mass: Rev. Fr. James J. Keegan, Rev. Fr. McGeary, Rev. Fr. Philip O'Donnell, Rev. Fr. Henry A. Walsh.

A wedding breakfast was served immediately after the ceremony at the bride's home 19 Winn street.

Mr. and Mrs. Colbert will reside on Winn street, Woburn.

Useful Booklets.

Of all the booklets or guides issued in connection with the approaching G. A. R. Encampment in Boston, nothing equals in completeness or artistic value that given out by the Boston & Maine R. R. It is a souvenir well worth preserving. The literary bureau of the Boston & Maine R. R. is certainly splendidly equipped. This book gives all the necessary information in connection with the great G. A. R. parade and it can be had by applying at the office of the Boston & Maine Railroad. The company has also issued another book called "Resorts and Tours," also handsomely illustrated, with maps, in which the tourist, the visitor to seashore, mountains, lakes, etc., may glean all the information necessary to enable him to know where he would like to go this summer. These and other equally fine and valuable publications may also be obtained by application to the General Passenger office, North Station, Boston.

FOR A NEW EPISCOPAL CHURCH.

Epiphany Parish to Meet Aug. 5 to Act on Plans.

The Proposed Edifice on Church Street to Cost $40,000.

The Wardens of the Church of the Epiphany have called a parish meeting at the church for Friday, Aug. 5, at 5 p. m., to act on plans for a new church building on report of the Vestry, which as a committee has had the matter in hand.

The plans as drawn by Warren, Smith & Biscoe of Boston, of which firm F. Patterson Smith of Winchester is a member, provide for a church building of brick construction, with stone trimmings, 120 feet in length, 28 feet wide and 36 feet high, to seat 400 persons, and to cost complete, exclusive of organ and chancel furniture $40,000. In the scheme as proposed, the church fronts on Church street, running parallel with Central street, the front entrance being set about 40 feet back from Central street. It is so located to allow for erecting the proposed parish house along the back of the fine lot the parish owns, and also leaving a site for a rectory which it is hoped at some future time to build in the southwest corner of the lot.

The hour of the meeting is fixed in the afternoon so as to enable those members of the parish who are spending the summer at the shore to be present and return if desirable to beaches the same day.

It is thought possible, if the plans should now be adopted by the parish, to begin actual work in the month of September, in which case the laying of the corner stone could take place during the triennial general convention of the Episcopal Church, which is to be held in Boston in October.

A very interesting piece of stone which the parish has in its possession, and which is designed to be incorporated in the building, is a finial from the altar of the ancient cathedral church at Winchester, Eng., which the Rev. D. D. Addison of Brookline secured from the dean, while on a visit abroad two years ago, sending it to the church here in Winchester, Mass.

Mr. Bicknell Has an Exhibition.

Mr. W. H. W. Bicknell, the etcher, has opened an exhibition of his etchings at Plymouth. In the old days, before he had deserted painting to take up the needle and copper plate, Mr. Bicknell lived for some time in Plymouth and taught classes there. His present art show will give South Shore friends and summer residents a good chance to survey the work which he has been doing the past decade, and which has put him into the fore-front of American etchers. The remarkable series of reproductions from Howard Pyle's drawings which Mr. Bicknell made for the Bibliophile Society is included in the present showing as well as all the literary and historical portraits etched for editions de luxe.

A preliminary view of the entire collection at the etcher's home in Winchester was a revelation of the strength and versatility this artist has shown. There is some talk of his rendering a series of masterpieces of American landscape, including examples of the work of such men as George Inness, Homer Martin, A. H. Wyant and Winslow Homer.

It is to be hoped that the project will come to something, for such a series would undoubtedly be a notable contribution to the comparatively small body of good reproductive work done on this side of the Atlantic. Mr. Bicknell is one of the few American artists who have really mastered the art of etching.

Country Club Notes.

The Winchester Country Club is planning to entertain the Vespers, Aug. 20. Two years ago 38 members of the Lowell organization went to Winchester and played golf. It is thought the visitors will number fully 50 on the coming gala day. An inviting programme is being outlined.

Competition for the Sanborn cup was brought to a close when E. A. Kelley beat C. H. Hall, 3 up and 2 to play, at 36 holes. This event was perhaps the most interesting of the season.

Moonlight play on the new clock green is in order this month. This green is proving a magnet for players of both sexes, and its novelty is by no means on the wane.

Monday's Fire.

The department was called out Monday forenoon at about 11:30 in response to an alarm from box 44 for a fire in a house on Winchester park, occupied by Henry Mason. The fire was caused by children playing with matches, one of whom was overcome by the smoke in the upper rooms, where he had fled after the fire started. He was taken out by James Haley. The damage was considerable.

EDITOR OF THE STAR:
I wish to express my opinion regarding the closing of the Winchester stores on three afternoons each week to be in accordance with that of your last week's correspondent. I hope the matter will be considered by the merchants. R. D.

McKay Picnic.

The third annual picnic and field day of the Relief Association of the McKay factory last Saturday suffered a severe handicap because of the heavy rain during the early morning hours. The picnic was scheduled to take place rain or shine for the reason that it was found impossible to cause a postponement because of the closing of the factory on that day and the arrangements made with the electric road and the owners of the grove where all the attractions were taken in charge by the Association for the day. It was thought that twenty cars would be required to transport the large number who would desire to attend but the rain cut the number down to ten cars and prevented the men in the Beverly and Boston factories from being present.

The picnic was held at Mountain Rock Park, Lowell, a most delightful place combining pleasing natural scenery, a fine grove on a large lake. Everything passed off in fine shape and when the party arrived at the park at 10:30 a raid was made on the dining room, but they were not ready for them, and those who carried a lunch were in luck. There was plenty of shelter for all and after the orchestra arrived there was dancing until nine o'clock P. M. The bowling alleys and boats did a good business, every boat being let all day.

A long list of sports was arranged for, but the rain prevented the carrying out of the entire list. The features that did not come off will take place on Manchester Field this Saturday afternoon and the number and interest promises to draw a large crowd. It is expected the Beverly men will come here in one or more special electric, while the Boston shops are expected to be well represented. To complete the sports will require the whole afternoon, while the tub race will take place after the other sports on Wedge Pond it is thought. The events will commence on Manchester Field at 2:30.

The result of the sports tried out at the picnic last Saturday were as follows:

High jump—1st, C. Stokes; 2nd, J. Horn.

Shoe race for boys—A. Cameron, 1st; O. Larivee, 2nd; A. McMillan, 3rd.

Egg race for girls—Miss B. Hunnewell, 1st; Miss M. Kelley, 2nd; Miss M. O'Brien, 3rd.

Boat race—R. McKittrick, 1st; I. S. Richardson, 2nd; E. Glines, 3rd.

Swimming race for boys—W. Kerrigan, 1st; J. Nowell, 2nd; L. Newlands, 3rd.

Men's swimming race—E. Glines, 1st; G. Nowell, 2nd.

Penny scramble for boys—Geo. Montgomery 1st.

Donkey game—Lizzie Turner 1st, Olive Hunnells 2nd, Willie Hevey 3d.

3 legged race for girls—Mary Kelley 1st, Tessie Crowley 2d.

There was a bowling contest between teams from the four floors of the local factory. The men from the second floor won out. The highest string went to J. E. Writing paper at Wilson's.

There used to be rate wars in the old stagecoach days in England. At one time, early last century, one stagecoach company not only cut the price from Lewes to London to a very low rate, but gave also other inducements. As the coach started from Lewes at a somewhat uncomfortable early hour in the morning, by way of ridding over the difficulty the proprietors allowed the more slothful of their passengers to go overnight to Brighton, where they were accommodated with good beds free of expense, and could proceed comfortably to London by the company's morning coach.

MAY DAY FESTIVALS.

They Were Celebrated in the Time of the Ancient Romans.

For ages May day has been a time of general rejoicing. All over Christendom its advent is hailed with delight. The birds, the bees and the flowers join in an annual celebration of the day. Nature has at last thrown off the snow quilt with which she has braved the ravages of winter and glows resplendent in buds and blossoms. The streams have broken their icy fetters and burst forth into joyous accompaniments to myriads of bird choristers. And humanity, overpowered by the same glad spirit, seeks the woods and the fields to revel in the wealth of verdure so lavishly spread out.

Among the Romans this feeling found vent in their Floralia, or flora games, which began on the 28th of April and lasted several days. We read that "nations taking more or less their origin from Rome have settled upon the 1st of May as the special time for fetes of the same kind. With ancients and moderns alike it was an instinctive rush into the fields to revel in the bloom which was newly presented on the meadows and the trees."

The barbarous Celtic populations held a heathen festival on this day, but we are not told that it was in any way connected with flowers. It was called Beltain and was celebrated by kindling fires on the hilltops at night. Within the remembrance of many the peasantry of Ireland, the Isle of Man and of the Scottish highlands also held similar celebrations.—Table Talk.

THE DIAMOND.

It Was Probably in Its Original State
a Vegetable Product.

Originally the diamond was probably a vegetable product exuded from some ancient tree. Positive evidence of the subject is not forthcoming, but the concurrence of such authorities as Newton, Brewster, Jameson and Lavoisier, who trace it to a vegetable source, must, in the absence of decisive negative proof, make this hypothesis probable.

The crystalline form of the diamond is undoubtedly due to the action of heat, and the occurrence of these stones in igneous rocks and mica slate, especially at the Cape, lends color to the view that they have been metamorphosed, as has been the case with graphite.

This complete change may have been directly or indirectly due to the internal heat of the globe or may have resulted from volcanic action. Indirectly it would be accounted for by the immense heat evolved in the crumbling, fracturing and grinding together of the earth's crust in the attempt to adjust itself to the cooling and contracting interior. Directly it may have been the result of a change in the direction of the internal heat, causing a fusion of the rocks of the crust, the diamond and other crystals being formed when they again cooled.

The Name Niagara.

"Everybody pronounces Niagara wrong," said a philologist. The accent of this beautiful Indian word should not be put on the syllable 'ag,' but on the syllable 'ar'—the penult—the one before the last. Niagara means 'hark to the thunder.' Its accent should fall on the penult because the Indians themselves accent it there, because in practically all our Indian names of places the penult is the accented syllable. Think of the Indian names you know. Don't you accent nearly all of them on the syllable before the last? There are, for instance, Toronto, Mississippi, Alleghany, Appalachicola, Narragansett, Tuscaloosa, Saratoga, Ticonderoga, Oswego, Conshohocken, Wissahickon and Hochelaga. In all these names the accent is on the penult. Niagara is a Huron word, and if you can find a Huron word, you will find that he accents it as he does Saratoga or Tuscaloosa. I don't know how we have fallen into the habit of accenting it wrong."—Chicago Chronicle.

A Picturesque Wooing

By ERIN GRAHAME

Copyright, 1904, by Charles N. Lurie

IN certain confidential moments when he had partaken with unreserve of the beer that made Milwaukee famous, Mr. Hiram Thorne would admit that he had begun life with "one damned dime." In other respects Mr. Thorne was not an offensively self-made man, and you heard more in sadness than in wrath that he was a millionaire. He was not such a very multimillionaire, for he had only a bowing acquaintance with the steel trust and as yet he had bestowed no public library upon an innocent community. The source of his modest millions was cheese-cream cheese and his daughter fervently thanked God that she was not as other Chicago girls were, who had to look upon breakfast bacon as the streaky origin of the paternal fortunes. Hiram had shown himself so ungrateful as to refuse to bestow thousands upon the Sanskrit department of a certain university, he had treated ungenerously requests from a school of practical science, and the press of his beloved metropolis had hinted that he was lacking in public spirit. Therefore he decided to go to Europe and, as he expressed it in a moment of rare mellowness, "blow it all in on a castle."

Mrs. Thorne had died when the cream cheese was in its early stages, and the millionaire's only child, Elizabeth, was the typical daughter of the man who has achieved financial greatness. She was slender, buoyant, beautiful—and a certain clubman declared that she had the air of having "fed on the roses and lily of the field."

Through acquaintance with certain American notables and by right divine of grace and gold Miss Elizabeth Thorne had attained unto the experience of a London season. Hiram had been under the horrible impression that American expects every woman to demand a duke, and the thought of confronting a large band of hungry creditors belonging to a certain "grace" had disturbed his peace. But he was spared such a financial shock, for every member of the magic eight strawberry leaves was abroad or already provided with a father-in-law, and at the end of the season there were but two members of the aristocracy who were any serious annoyance. There was Sir Aubrey Penrhyn, who was possessed of a tumbledown castle in Wales and of many ancestors whose deeds had been of doubtful sanctity. The castle was sadly in need of repairs, and its owner had an appreciation of maidens with golden hair and calm gray eyes. Therefore when his monogamous glance rested upon Elizabeth Thorne he felt that fate had been more than polite to him, and he proceeded to compass the fair American with floral observances. But he was elderly and impervious to jokes, and his nose was crimson tipped, like Burns' mountain daisy, but there the comparison ceased, for it was neither wee nor modest. Sir Aubrey had made known the fullness of his heart, though he made no mention of the emptiness of his exchequer; but Elizabeth had deferred her reply until October, when she was to meet Sir Aubrey at the Ainslees house party. The other azure blooded suitor was the Baron von Reisen, who was an Anglo-German of undoubted possessions. His castle was in better shape than that belonging to Sir Aubrey, and the same might be said of his nose. He was decidedly good looking in a heavy blond fashion.

HE WAS ELDERLY AND IMPERVIOUS TO JOSES.

"But I know he'll be fearfully fat some day, and he smiles so eternally," grumbled Elizabeth to her chaperon, Mrs. Carr-Gordon of New York.

It was the month of September, and they were at a delightful Devonshire village, where Elizabeth was gathering strength and decision for the house party in October.

"My dear child, there is always something wrong, and a husband with a perpetual snile would at least have an unusual fault."

"And Sir Aubrey would be very tiresome. There is something of the feudal days about him. I believe that he says 'What, ho' and 'Gadzooks' when his foot is on his native heath. He would be as bad as a historical novel."

"Then," said Mrs. Carr-Gordon impatiently, "you had better marry Warren Page after all." Elizabeth's cheeks were of a delicate geranium pink as she replied:

"But a lady can't do the asking. If it is the twentieth century."

In this speech the maiden was acting with not the strictest regard for that truth which the Father of His Country held dearer than many cherry trees.

Mr. Warren Page was an English artist, the younger son of an aged family, and his talent was surmised by a circle of admiring friends. He had been introduced to Miss Thorne at the New York horse show, had fallen in love with her at the Louvre in Paris and had endeavored more than once to lay his heart and his prospects at her feet, but man's desire to propose had been foiled by his own consciousness of the disparity in dollars, by the lady's consciousness of a certain heart failure and by the determined guard kept by Sir Aubrey and the noble baron. These two gentlemen had so far remembered the repose that stamps the caste of the De Veres as to snub severely the aspiring young artist. But this is an age when India ink is mightier than blue blood, and Mr. Warren Page boarded these insults in his heart until, like Mr. Zogbaum, he was prepared to "draw things with a pencil."

On a certain morning in September, when the sea was shifting from purple to emerald and the sky was one blue rebuke to those who would revile the climate of Devon, there came to Elizabeth a sketch that aroused wrath in her gentle soul. In the background was a venerable castle, decidedly the worse for centuries of wear, and the ravages that time had made on its walls were being repaired with round and radiant American dollars. Occupying a prominent place in the foreground was the figure of Sir Aubrey, and occupying a prominent position in the face of Sir Aubrey was his patriotic proboscis. The eyes were lusterless, the mouth was a wavering line, and the forehead was of a retiring nature, but the artist had spent his best efforts on the woman in the scene. Beautiful in its willowy grace, but with a suggestion of utter weariness, was the form of the young creature whose face was that of Elizabeth. There was a sadness about the proudly cut mouth, a bitter regret in the dreamy eyes. The tears were not far away as the flesh and blood Elizabeth read the line beneath:

Oh, there's nothing half so sweet in life as love's young dream!

She thought of the garden party where Mr. Page had done his manly best to secure her undivided attention and where she, with a slight dread of the inevitable hour, had objected to a tete-a-tete and had continued to absorb the glassy admiration bestowed by Sir Aubrey's glances. She had been cold and Sir Aubrey had been colder to the youthful artist, and, behold, the better man had taken ink vengeance.

"It's too bad of Mr. Page," Elizabeth said in anger. But she looked at the slender, stately girl, and a pleased dimple came in her right cheek. She looked at the grim form of Sir Aubrey, and a yawn widened her dainty mouth. The more she considered the woman in the picture the more kindly she thought of the artist who had dealt so tenderly with her beauty. The more she considered the figure of Sir Aubrey the greater fatigue she experienced. But when she regarded the good American dollars that were making strong the Welsh habitation she rebelled against such use of her country's silver and thought that more diamonds were rather to be chosen than an old name.

When a second parcel came directed to that bold yet delicate handwriting she opened it almost as eagerly as if it had contained a hat from Virot. The sketch was entitled "Europe to America," and in audacity it exceeded Mr. Page's former production. It depicted once more an exceedingly attractive maiden who bore a startling resemblance to Miss Thorne. At her feet knelt two grotesque figures, in which, however, might be seen a fatal likeness to Sir Aubrey and that worthy Teuton, the Baron von Reisen. Each gentleman was extending a battered coronet, and beneath the picture was the legend, "You pay your money and you take your choice."

"It is very insolent of him to insinuate that my fortune is the only attraction. And yet—and yet the girl isn't ugly."

Three days afterward Mr. Hiram Thorne came down to the Devonshire village, and Elizabeth saw that something had happened.

"My dear, there's no use in trying to keep trouble from a cute woman like you. The truth is that I've lost a pile of money. I'm not quite sure about it yet, but there is very little hope. We won't be beggars, for I'll save about $50,000. But we'll have to go home and live quietly in some pretty little town in New York state instead of having a high old time. But I may pick it up again, and there's no use kicking."

"I'm awfully proud of you, daddy," said Elizabeth, with a slight catch in her voice. "You're a hero even if you weren't at San Juan."

"Well," said Hiram composedly, "I guess an American can be as cool as the next one."

"Have you told any one in London?" asked Elizabeth.

"I told Lord Bromley at the club last night, and he acted like a trump. But of all the 'cads,' as the English call them, that I ever met those two good for nothing creatures that were hanging round you for two months are the worst. They happened to be near me, and I thought the only square thing was for me to tell them all about it. It was like taking a trip to the north pole. They froze me up completely, and I came near knocking that confounded glass into Sir Aubrey's eye. I don't think you'll be troubled with either of them, but if you ever recognize their existence on this planet you're no daughter of mine. I was going out when I met that artist fellow, Mr. Page, and he's a white man, no mistake about it. He seemed so glad to see me that I told him the whole business and added a few remarks about Sir Aubrey and the other blamed fool. He just got hold of my hand as if I were his long lost uncle and said, 'Well, I'm awfully sorry for your sake, Mr. Thorne, but it's a good thing to meet a man.' Then he came to see me this morning and asked me to give you a letter or something from him. He said you'd get it sooner if I took care of it."

Lost fortune and vanishing lovers were of small moment in comparison with the dainty white parcel that Miss Thorne carried down to the seashore, while her father remained to break the news to Mrs. Carr-Gordon. There was a small sketch which Elizabeth did not regard, and there was a letter which she opened with great eagerness and her best latpin. And this is what she read:

My Dear Elizabeth—Your name has become so familiar to my thoughts that I have concluded to think aloud. You know perfectly well that I love you, for you have been trying to keep me from telling you so for the last six months. You do not know how much I love you, but I shall try to tell you about that when I come down to Devonshire tomorrow.

I have been rather a coward for not trying this subject on your notice before, but you were so disgustingly rich that my virtues paled before the gleam of your millions. I am no better than I was yesterday, but you are poorer and therefore all the dearer to me. Your father is a brick, and I hope he will come and live with us in a house made of the same material. I have a small fortune which my mother left me, and I am paid pretty decently for my work, so that we shall be able to keep our bicycles and have an occasional dinner at Richmond. Very much and always yours,

WARREN BERESFORD PAGE.

"If all this check!" gasped Elizabeth. But she was troubled with insomnia that night, and when Mr. Page found her near a picturesque old rock the following morning she found it difficult to say much, because one is obliged to open the lips to articulate distinctly. When she was allowed the use of all the organs of speech her only remark was:

"My hat is all crooked. It seems to me that you've taken things very much for granted."

"The man who hesitates is lost. What did you think of my last sketch?" It was even then lying at her feet, and Mr. Page rescued it from an encroaching wave.

Boldly prominent in red, white and blue were the stars and stripes with the union jack. Cupid had halted beneath their folds and was busily tying them with a love knot.

"My dear little girl," said the artist softly, "the only lasting Anglo-American alliance must be made by hearts—neither clubs nor diamonds."

A Natural Curiosity.

James Pompelly, a cobbler at 901 Hewitt avenue, has one of nature's curios in the shape of an endless alder root that evidently grew around a log about a foot in diameter. There were originally several small branches, but it is impossible to discover the point where the ends grew together, forming an almost perfect circle. The curio was found by a small boy—Everett (Wash.) Record.

MINOT LEDGE LIGHT.

The Historic Storm Which Destroyed the Original Structure.

The lighthouse on Minot's ledge stands within the shadow of a tragedy. It is the second structure erected upon the ledge. The first lighthouse and the lives it held were claimed by the sea. Begun in 1847 and completed in November, 1848, it was overwhelmed in April, 1851. Its destruction was the most tragic event in the history of our lighthouse establishment. The structure was an octagonal tower supported upon wrought iron piles strengthened by braces. The piles penetrated five feet into the rock. On the braces, thirty-four and a half feet above the rock, the keeper had constructed a platform for the storage of bulky articles and had fastened to the lantern deck, sixty-three feet above the rock, a five and a half inch hawser, which he had anchored to a seven ton granite block. Along this hawser articles were hoisted up to the platform and there landed. These improvements were convenient and fatal, however, to the keeper who made them, for he was or shore when the storm which has come historic for its fury burst over the coast.

On Monday, April 14, 1851, there was a strong easterly gale blowing. At that time there were on the tower two assistant keepers and a friend of the principal keeper. The visitor became frightened at the first indication of a storm, and in response to a signal from the tower a boat put off for Colonsset and took him ashore. On Tuesday the wind swung around to the northeast, the most dangerous quarter from which the elements can hurl themselves upon Minot's, as they then rejoiced in the accumulated fury of miles of wind torn sea. By the 16th it had increased to a hurricane, and the tower was so completely buried in the heavy seas that nothing of it could be seen by the group of anxious watchers at Colonsset.

About 4 o'clock in the evening of the 16th the platform was washed ashore. Then the watchers knew that the water had risen to within seven feet of the tower. At nightfall it was seen that the light was burning. It was observed at fifteen intervals until 10 o'clock that night, when it was finally lost to sight. At 1 o'clock on the morning of Thursday, April 17, just at the turn of the flood, when the outstreaming tide and the rushing hurricane met at Minot's, a violent tolling of the lighthouse bell was heard. After that no sound rose above the din of the storm. About 6 o'clock in the morning a man walking along the shore saw a chair washed up a little distance ahead of him. Examining it, he recognized it as having been in the watch room of the tower. After this discovery no one had any doubts of the tragedy which had been enacted behind the curtain of the storm. When it lifted naught was seen over Minot's ledge but the sea, its white crests streaming triumphantly in the gale.

It is believed by those competent to judge of such matters that the destruction of the tower was due to the surface which the platform constructed by the keeper offered to the waves and to the strain of the hawser upon the structure. Every time this hawser was struck by a sea it actually tugged at the tower. There seems also little doubt that the sum appropriated by congress for the building of the lighthouse was insufficient by about two-thirds for such a structure as the perilous situation called for. Century.

Playing Cards.

The invention of playing cards has been attributed to the Chinese, Hindus, Arabs and Romans, but cards as now used were invented by Jacques Gringonneur, a painter, in Paris in the fourteenth century. They were supposed to have been first made for the amusement of Charles VI. of France, who was deranged. The French had particular names for the twelve court cards. The four kings were David, Alexander, Caesar and Charles; the four queens, Angeline, Esther, Judith and Pallas; the four knaves, or knights, Ogier the Dane, Lancelot, La Hite and Hector de Garland. Cards seem originally, however, to have been taken to England direct from Spain, having probably been introduced into that country by the Moors; the clubs in Spanish cards not being trefoils as with us, but cudgels—that is, bastons—the spades, or swords, espadas. They were at first stamped from wood blocks in outline and filled in by hand, but after the invention of engraving the best artists engraved them on copper and struck them off at once. Columbines were spades; rabbits, clubs; pinks, diamonds, and roses, hearts. Human figures opposed to those of flowers and animals were the ancestors of court cards.

The Chimney Swift.

One of the popular errors concerning the chimney swift is the belief that it is a swallow, and it is called the chimney swallow by nine-tenths of the people. As a matter of fact, however, it is not even closely related to the swallows, being much more nearly akin to the humming birds and the goatsuckers. Like birds of the latter class, swifts feed on insects which they capture on the wing. Their powers of flight are marvelous, while on foot they are practically helpless. Their wings have been developed to a wonderful degree, but their feet, through disuse, have become weak and quite useless for purposes of locomotion. Their toe nails are sharp, however, and enable them to cling securely to the inside of a chimney, and when, for any reason, a nest gives way and falls down, as it often does, the young birds, if not too small, scramble up to the top of the chimney to be fed by their parents until they are able to shift for themselves.—Washington Star.

Why the Location was Selected.

No doubt many persons have thought it singular that the parish of the Epiphany should select a location for their proposed handsome church edifice on the west side of the town at the corner of Church and Central streets, and not in what is known as the centre of the town. When one stops to consider this location it will be found to be in about the geographical centre of the town. The members of the parish evidently having before them this fact when they decided on this location, were only looking into the future, doubtless knowing that the greatest extension of the town in the future will be in that section where land for building purposes is abundant and available. Fifty years is bound to bring about great changes in Winchester judging by the past quarter century.

Prof. C. F. A. Currier.

Word received from the hospital in Brookline reports Prof. Currier as continuing to improve from the after effects of the amputation of his right leg last week. This will be found pleasing news to the many friends of this gentleman. It is not expected that he will be so far recovered as to fully assume his duties as Chairman of the School Board when the schools open in September as under the most favorable conditions he will not be able to leave the hospital for three months.

Prof. Currier has taken a deep interest in the schools, perhaps to a greater degree than most people suppose. This work comes in line with his duties as a professor in the Massachusetts Institute of Technology, where he is much respected for his ability, so that in Mr. Currier the schools have had the experiences of an up-to-date educator.

An Injustice to the Public.

The decision of the Railroad Commissioners, after the hearing last Tuesday on the Woburn and Lexington trolley fares, was a little better than a farce. They decided that the rich man, or woman, may ride on the L. & N. cars for 5 cents between Woburn and Lexington, while the poor man, or woman, must pay 10 cents! It was an official endorsement of the old moss-back theory, or system, that, one would think, a State Board composed of supposed intelligent men, would set their faces against, and adopt something more rational, and just to poor people. They ordered that the Lexington & Boston Street Railroad Company should continue to tax 10 cents for single tickets between Woburn and Lexington, and sell books containing 20 tickets for $1.00! The decision was clearly an injustice to the public, for which the fairness of the Board of Commissioners, or their intelligence, is open to challenge. Woburn interests were represented by the leading business men, who made strong pleas for 5-cent fare between here and Lexington. But it was no go, the Commissioners, for an easily explained reason, favored the Company, and poor people must either pay 10 cents for a trolley ride to Lexington, or go afoot.—[Woburn Journal.]

Railroad Building in Korea.

That the Japs are quite as effective in an industrial as in a military way is shown by the rapid manner in which they are pushing railroad construction in Korea. A recent report from United States Minister Allen states that south of Seoul there are 50 miles now completed on either end out of the whole 208 miles, the whole to be completed this year.

To the north the Seoul-Wiju railway is also progressing very fast. Blasting goes on day and night in a deep rock cut near Seoul. This is expected to be completed to Pyongyang this year.

This will give a complete line from Fusan, on the south, to Pyongyang, on the north, by the beginning of the new year. That a nation whose attention is engrossed in a gigantic war can yet find time to push the construction of a railroad in such a rapid and effective manner is little short of marvelous.

Concerning the building of the southern line, from Fusan to Seoul, the Japan Daily Mail of Yokohama recently said:

We learn from the Ji Ji Shimo that the total length of this line is 208 miles and that it is divided nearly equally by Yongsong, which lies 120 miles south of Seoul and 128 miles north of Fusan. Work is being carried on vigorously from Yongsong in both directions and from Fusan and Seoul toward the north and south, respectively. The whole will be finished, it is expected, by the end of this year. Already construction trains are running from Fusan to Chongdo, 30 miles, and from Seoul to Phyoonghak, 50 miles. A section of 38 miles southward from Phyoonghak and 13 miles northward from Chongdo will be finished by June or July, making 151 miles open in all. The portion not yet actually completed, but the intention is to carry temporarily line over the hills so as not to delay the opening of the service. Two bridges of from 1,200 to 1,300 feet and one of 2,000 feet will have to be built.

The orient is truly awakening. Korea, the dirty and sleepy corner of the far east, is to be reclaimed. The railroad is the harbinger of progress, and where it has made its appearance trade and civilization will certainly follow. New lines are constantly being built in China, and it is only a question of time when the swarms of dead humanity in the yellow kingdom will be touched with a new life. England is pushing into Tibet, and that land of mystery and seclusion can no longer hold back the tide of invasion from the west.

The human race is one race, and the whole earth must be claimed for advancement. What has happened to Japan must happen to all Asia.

In the Matrimonial Market.

Those wonderful Japs! Whether in martial or matrimonial affairs, they are worth studying. The praise of the geisha girl has been sung the world around. But it seems that she is not the only portion of female Japan that is worthy of note. For example, there is the widow. The widow of any clime has a charm of her own, but the widow of Japan is a dream, and the best of it is that she is a dream that comes true.

All of these things the world already knew. But here is a delightful piece of femininity from the Flowery Kingdom that has just come to light. The marriageable ones—maiden or widow, as the case may be—let the fact be known in the way they wear their hair. Think of the convenience of it! A man there need not be lost in following a blind lead.

Widows—of whom there will soon unfortunately be a greatly increased number—cut their hair short and comb it back plainly without a parting, unless indeed they are prepared to accept fresh hints, in which case they give a broad hint of their inclinations by twisting their hair round a long shell hairpin placed horizontally across the back of the head. Marriageable maidens distinguish and, as it were, advertise themselves by combing their locks high in front and arranging them in the form of a butterfly—which is something to be caught—or a fan half open and adorned with these significant designs with bright colored baubles and gold or silver cord. Speaking generally, the dressing of the hair, which is changed at intervals from childhood upward, is an indication of the age and position of the simple minded and fascinating female Jap.

While praising the soldiers and sailors who are busy reducing the inflation of the Russian ego, let us not forget the dainty femininity of the island empire who are considerate enough to let a man know when they are in the matrimonial market.

A twelve pound New Jersey fish recently caught had in its stomach a watch stolen three years ago. Query: Which is the greater miracle, the fish swallowing the watch or a man swallowing the story?

There are seven candidates for president: Roosevelt, Parker, Watson, Swallow, Debs, Corrigan and Scott. There will be six victims for the slaughter.

A St. Louis man wants a divorce because his wife has not spoken to him for eleven years. That is not the complaint of most men.

The discomforts of summer railway travel will now be doubled by the importunities of the straw vote man.

City Ownership.

Walter C. Hamm, American consul at Hull, England, makes a very interesting report of the progress in that ancient city since the inception of the policy of the municipal ownership of street cars five years ago. Up to that time Hull had been considered one of the most uninviting places in Great Britain. It had no public improvements, the streets were exceedingly narrow and ill paved, the street car system was inadequate and antiquated, and altogether conditions were so bad that the place, although the third port in the kingdom, had such an unsavory name that it was avoided by tourists and was only visited by those who had to go there on business. But with the advent of the mayoralty of Sir Alfred Gelder in 1908 a new policy was introduced. The wand of progress seemed to pass over the city, and a transformation has taken place. Broad avenues have been cut from the business center of the city to the corporation line, many new buildings have been erected, the streets have been paved in the best and most enduring manner, the car lines have been acquired and modernized, an unending supply of filtered drinking water has been introduced and the dock systems improved and enlarged until the city today is one of the best, if not the best, provided with docks of any city in England. As a result the city's trade and population have rapidly increased.

The city ownership of the street railway lines has revolutionized the service in the city. From being the most antiquated they are now among the most improved in England.

One of the chief peculiarities of the Hull tram system is the double decker car. All the cars, of which there are 110 in number, are of this pattern. In adopting the double decker, however, Hull has only followed the style in use in every city in Great Britain and Ireland. Recent statistics show that of the 6,000 electric cars in use in the United Kingdom 90 per cent are double deckers and only 10 per cent single deckers. In this way the seating capacity of the cars is more than doubled, the upper deck accommodating more passengers than the lower deck. The Hull cars are of two different dimensions, the smaller seating twenty-two passengers below and thirty-five on top.

After careful investigation Mr. Hamm concludes that the double deck cars are suitable for American use and enters into a rather extended argument in their favor.

Next to the style of cars the chief distinguishing feature of the Hull tramway system is the cheapness of the fares. These are 1 penny (2 cents) on all lines and for all distances. The financial results of this low fare system are equally interesting. During the latest twelve months reported on there were ten miles of double track, or twenty miles of single track, in operation. The gross income was about $445,000. The cost of operation was about $233,000. This left a gross profit of $212,000 and, deducting interest on the investment and the sinking fund, left a net profit of $122,000, or an average of over $12,000 a mile of double track, which went into the city treasury.

Mr. Hamm closes his report with this significant statement:

These are the results of the municipalization of city transit in Hull. They give American cities a striking proof of the mistakes they have made in surrendering their streets to private companies that operate the lines for their private benefit and often to the detriment of the public. If the advocates of the municipalization of street car lines in the United States wish a good object lesson on their side of the question they cannot do better than to study the Hull tramway system.

Utilities that are public in their nature should be operated for the public good rather than for private greed. When they are so operated, the world's progress, prosperity and happiness will be correspondingly increased.

Milking by Electricity.

A recent consular report from Germany tells of a newly invented apparatus for milking cows by electricity. In which rubber hoods are attached to the udder of the cow. These hoods are connected with a vessel for receiving the milk by means of a rubber tube, from which the air is exhausted by means of the electrical device. It is claimed that the suction thus secured resembles very closely the sucking of a calf and that for this reason the cow "lets down" her milk more freely than when milked by hand. It is also claimed that absolute cleanliness of the milk may be secured when this method of milking is employed.

The courts have decided that the Igorrotes do not have to wear trousers. It is evident that the judges who made the decision have had experience with St. Louis climate in summer.

So long as our two most prominent cities are Oyster Bay and Esopus we have no stones to throw at the outlandish names of towns in the far east.

A warning has been given to Washington policemen not to chew toothpicks. Evidently there should be a school of cop etiquette.

The campaign managers should secure some of the Russians who report Japanese losses to make ante-election estimates.

Stamina and Grit.

No man can arise to anything very great who allows himself to be tripped or thwarted by impediments. His achievement will be in proportion to his ability to rise triumphantly over the stumbling blocks which trip others.

When I hear a young man whining that he has no chance, complaining that fate has doomed him to mediocrity, that he can never get a start for himself, but must always work for somebody else; when I see him finding unconquerable obstacles everywhere, when he tells me that he could do this or that if he could only get a start, if somebody would help him, I know there is very poor success material in him; that he is not made of the stuff that rises. He acknowledges that he is not equal to the emergencies which confront him. He confesses his weakness, his inability to cope with obstacles which others surmount. When a man tells us that luck is against him, that he cannot see any way of doing what he would like to do, he admits that he is not master of the situation, that he must give way to opposition because he is not big enough or strong enough to surmount it. He probably hasn't lime enough in his backbone to hold a straw erect.

There is a weakness in the man who always sees a lion in the way of what he wants to do, whose determination is not strong enough to overcome the obstacle. He has not the inclination to buckle down to solid, hard work. He wants success, but he does not want it badly enough to pay the price. The desire to drift along, to take things easy, to have a good time, overbalances ambition.

Obstacles will look large or small to you according to whether you are large or small.

People who have a tendency to magnify difficulties lack the stamina and grit necessary to win. They are not willing to sacrifice a little comfort and pleasure. They see so much hardship in working their own way through college or starting in business without capital that they do neither. These people always look for somebody to help them, to give them a boost.—Orison Swett Marden in Success.

A Public Nuisance.

Col. F. S. Hesselstine of Melrose in a communication to the Boston Record says of the pests that are making such havoc in this part of the State:

The brown-tail moth is not harmless and it does poison the sensitive skin of any person where it touches. I have, within 24 hours, seen the neck of a person where one alighted while this party was in the house, all covered with blotches and she suffering from the irritation. We should destroy every one of the moths that we can. They are at night in swarms around the electric lights in Melrose and it was the strong north wind that drove them into Boston. Every one of them, if possible, should be destroyed before they make their nest.

Just now we are suffering from the gypsy moth and I have been studying the animal and how to deal with them. On my place at Melrose within a few days I have gathered and destroyed several thousand, filled one two-gallon dish with them and took a quart from my trees this morning. I wind burlap around each tree and nip them off into a small can containing kerosene oil that kills them.

I have drafted a bill which I shall present to the next legislature, declaring that the cultivation or the permitting of the growth of brown-tail and gypsy moths creates a public nuisance which the owner or occupier of each place of a limited area shall abate and failing to do so the city or town may abate it at the expense of the owner. There must be a general action by all the citizens to terminate this pest and it can be done if every man and his neighbor will act.

The government, state, city and town should do their part. Information and instruction should be given in the newspapers, public places and schools as to the best method of terminating this great evil. Unless something is done and that speedily there is no knowing to what extent this evil will increase. Cities and towns should organize societies for cruelty and death to this animal. They are the only animal I enjoy taking the life from.

A Victory.

At last, after years, we have invented what we have been looking for. Those whose arches of the foot are broken down and have worn irons and springs to relieve them, will say that I have invented a boot which is away ahead of every thing yet. It is made right in the boot and holds its shape; no taking out or putting in of shanks. I have more than 20 pairs in wear by persons in this and surrounding towns who have discarded all other methods. All of the medical profession that I have shown it to indorse it as being the best thing they have seen. All suffering with this trouble, call at my store and I will gladly show it to you and explain its working. At the old stand, Bridges, the American boot maker, 4 Thompson street.

WILL RE-OPEN IN ITS NEW BUILDING, SEPT. 6, 1904.

This school now has the most elegant, complete and extensive private commercial building in America. In the planning and furnishing of its

NEW BUILDING expense has not been considered even in the minutest detail. New fittings of special design will be found to have taken the place of the ordinary furniture used in school buildings. The entire outfit of the school in its old building has been sacrificed that the school in the new home might have only the newest and best obtainable.

EXPERIENCED TEACHERS. The only feature recognizable will be the able and experienced corps of teachers who have given this school its wide-spread reputation.

The tuition fees are the same as during the previous ten years, and pupils who contemplate attending may congratulate themselves that this year was the chosen time for their commercial course and the finishing of their school work.

COURSE OF STUDY.

The course of study prepares pupils thoroughly for all the duties of the counting room. Book-keeping (by any system); Stenography (Graham and Pitman systems); English Composition; Commercial Correspondence; Commercial Law; Commercial Geography; Commercial Arithmetic; Typewriting; Civil Service (preparation for examinations); Normal School Course (preparation for teaching).

Safeguard the Children.

Notwithstanding all that is done by boards of health and charitably inclined persons, the death rate among small children is very high during the hot weather of the summer months in the large cities. There is not probably one case of bowel complaint in a hundred, however, that could not be cured by the timely use of Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy. Mr. Frank Riggs, of Franklinville, N. Y., in speaking of this remedy said: "I have found it expedient to have a supply of Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy on hand. It has been a family safeguard and while especially beneficial to children, it is equally good in adult cases. I recommend it cheerfully and without reservation." For sale by O'Connor's Pharmacy.

A Good Recommendation.

An Irishman was charged with a petty offense.

"Have you any one in court who will vouch for your good character?" queried the judge.

"Yes, sorr; there is the chief constable yonder," answered Pat.

The chief constable was amazed.

"Why, your honor, I don't even know the man," protested he.

"Now, sorr," broke in Pat, "I have lived in the borough for nearly twenty years, and if the chief constable doesn't know me yet, isn't that a character for me?"

ONIONS AND SOUP.

One Girl's Imagination Was Better Than Her Palate.

"Make some chocolate and some cream tomato soup. I think that will be enough, with the apple sauce we had left from yesterday and those nice bakery rolls that came this morning," said Helen Bostwick to the cook, who had come to the sitting room door to see what the "young ladies" wished for luncheon.

"And, Molly," called Helen as the good natured Irish girl was leaving the room, "be sure to put a little onion in the soup. It's perfectly flat without it."

"Sure, Miss Helen," answered Molly. Laura Bostwick, who was visiting her cousin Helen while their mothers were in the south together, looked up as if about to speak and then, suddenly changing her mind, closed her lips.

An hour later the girls left their fancy work and sat down at the luncheon table. Molly brought in the steaming soup, and Helen began eating it with apparent satisfaction, while Laura put her spoon into her dish very gingerly and took the merest taste.

"I'm so fond of cream tomato soup, with just a touch of onion in it," said Helen in a few minutes. "Why, Laura, you have eaten scarcely any of yours. Why didn't you tell me that you didn't like it? We could just as well have had something else."

"I do like it usually," replied Laura, who never found it easy to dissemble. "Isn't it made the way you like it? I was quite particular to tell Molly how I wanted it."

"Yes; I know you were," Laura was making a brave effort to force a spoonful of it down. "It's very nice, I'm sure; but, you see, Helen, I never eat anything flavored with onions. It's so inconvenient not to like them. But I seem absolutely unable to eat them in any shape or manner."

"Well, they have such a pronounced flavor that I suppose if you do dislike them you must dislike them very much indeed. I'll have Molly cook an egg for you."

"Oh, no; please don't. I hate to have anything extra done for me. I can make a fine meal on those good rolls and this delicious apple sauce."

"Well, I do wish that you had spoken when I was telling Molly to put in the onion."

"I was going to, and then I knew from what you said that if it was made to suit my taste it would be spoiled for you. It's a small matter anyway. Mother says most of us give too much importance to what we eat, and I'm sure she is right. Let's talk about something else."

As often happens when a change of subject is desired, neither could think for a moment of anything to say. Before either girl had made a remark Molly entered the dining room.

"I just wanted to say, Miss Helen, that I hope you won't think I forgot your orders about the onion in the soup. I'd have put some in, like you said, but I never noticed till the soup was most done and 'twas too late to send for any that there wasn't a scrap of an onion in the house."

"Very well," said Helen. As Molly disappeared the cousins looked at each other in chagrin for an instant and then burst into laughter. —Youth's Companion.

Nonpoisonous Phosphorus.

Very valuable properties are possessed by the new scarlet red phosphorus, according to United States Consul General Guenther at Frankfurt, Germany. This phosphorus is not poisonous and is easily changed into new chemical combinations. It has been used in the manufacture of matches which are not poisonous and can be ignited anywhere, not requiring a specially prepared friction surface, as is the case with the familiar safety match.

"Rush the season!" cried the man to the waiter, desiring the salt and pepper in a hurry. —Philadelphia Bulletin.

THE AFTERNOON NAP.

Modern Conditions Killing the Siesta Habit in Mexico.

There are people in Mexico City who take their afternoon nap every day, and are greatly benefited thereby, but their number appears to be growing less year by year. Whether the siesta is beneficial or not, or whether in this high altitude it is a necessity for many persons, as is claimed by some, its death knell as a general custom seems to have been sounded since the city adopted its modern enterprise and push. Many old residents will tell you of the time when a person in the city of Mexico would have been considered almost crazy if he neglected his afternoon rest, but gradually, with the advent of the railways, the street cars and the electric lights, came the inevitable sleeplessness which is one of the most noticeable characteristics of modern civilization.

There are several supporters of the siesta idea in this city who express regret that the custom appears to be passing away. These persons, who are themselves devotees of the practice, claim that it is a healthful and nerve restoring habit and that if it were indulged in systematically by the people of the United States and other progressive countries there would be fewer cases of nervous wrecks for the newspapers to report. "Early rising and a short nap after dinner" is what these people advocate, claiming that the best work of most persons is performed in the morning. —Mexican Herald.

FIRST USE OF TEA.

An Ancient Legend Ascribes It to a King of China.

By whom or when the use of tea for drinking purposes was first discovered is lost in antiquity. It is spoken of as a famous herb in Chinese literature as far back as 2,000 years B. C., at which time its cultivation and classification were almost as thorough and complete as they are today. One of the ancient legends says that its virtues were accidentally learned by King Shen Nung Shu, the Chinese monarch who is also known as "the divine husbandman," who, the record says, flourished forty centuries ago. He was engaged in boiling water over a fire made of the branches of the tea plant and carelessly allowed some of the leaves to fall into the pot.

The liquid which he expected to come from the vessel simply as sterilized water was miraculously converted into an elixir of life by the accidental addition of the tea leaves. Soon after it became highly esteemed in all the oriental cities and was used as a royal gift from the Chinese monarchs to the potentates of southern and western Asia.

This same King Shen Nung Shu not only earned the title of respect by which he was known through the discovery of the virtues of tea, but because of being the first to teach his people how to make and use plows and many other implements of husbandry.

A NOVEL HOUSE CLEANER.

Washes the Exteriors of Buildings With Soap and Water.

Out in the country, where the smoke and dust from factories and paved streets are unknown, it is comparatively easy to keep a house looking bright and clean on the outside, even when it has been standing several years. But in the city, where all is dust and smoke, a newly erected stone building or a freshly painted frame structure soon shows the effects of the dirt laden atmosphere. In recent years several companies have been started for the purpose of cleaning these buildings of their accumulation and are already doing a thriving business, scrubbing the stone with wire brushes and a liquid whose formula is generally known only to the company which does the work.

A Canadian inventor has just designed an apparatus intended for use on frame structures where the paint has become dingy and in case the own er does not feel that he can stand the cost of fresh painting. This machine, which is here illustrated, has a water reservoir, an air compressor and a soap containing chamber, together with lines of hose and scrubbing brushes. The idea is to mix the soap and water while under pressure and before it is discharged into the bristles.

This treatment would seem to necessitate first class waterproof paint, though perhaps even poor paint would stand against a weak mixture and light scrubbing with the brush. In the case of stonework the laborer need have no scruples about exerting his strength, as it is impossible to injure the hard face. There is obviously no necessity for transporting a bucket of cleaning liquid around on ladders and scaffolding, as heretofore, the cleaning fluid being pumped directly into the brush where it is to be applied. The pressure is easily controlled by means of the valves in the handles of the brush, as is also the proportion of soap and water.

NOVEL CURTAIN POLE.

So Arranged as to Render Use of Rings Unnecessary.

A deathblow will be dealt to curtain rings if the idea of an Ohio man is adopted by the ladies of the land in hanging their curtains and lambrequins. His plan, which he has just patented, consists of a curtain pole which not only sustains, but holds in place evenly and firmly, all hangings of the curtain species.

The pole is a hollow cylinder, presenting in outward appearance no appreciable difference from the ordinary curtain pole. It is divided longitudinally, however, and the two sections hinged at their upper side and drawn together by a strong spring or series of springs situated near the center of the hollow casing.

To hang the curtain it is only necessary to open the jaws of the sectional pole and insert ever so little of the upper end of the curtain. The jaws clamp the goods squarely, firmly and evenly, and there is none of the annoyance generally experienced with the common pole and rings which are now in everyday use.

Fuel Without Smoke.

A French naval officer has made it possible, with certain changes in the fireboxes, to burn a fuel in the form of petroleum briquettes, which gives off no smoke. The officer claims his invention will give fuel of which one pound is equivalent to four pounds of coal. The briquettes are made by adding to petroleum oil for each liter 150 grams of ground soap, 150 grams of resin and 300 grams of caustic soda. This mixture is first heated and stirred until near solidification, when it is poured into molds, which in turn are then placed in an oven for ten or fifteen minutes, and the briquettes are ready for use after cooling a few hours. Greater solidity may be obtained by the addition of a small quantity of sawdust and a little clay or sand.

Chauvinism.

Chauvinism is a term that has come to mean an extravagant and absurd patriotism and pride in one's own country, with a corresponding enmity toward and contempt for foreign nations. It is the French equivalent for the English of the London music halls after Lord Bunsford's return from the congress of Berlin in 1878. The origin of the word is due to Chauvin, the name of a figure in the comedy "La Cocarde Tricolore" (1831) by the brothers Theodore and Hippolyte Cognard, the action in which includes the conquest of Algeria. Chauvin is a young recruit who speaks much, displays great courage and sings several couplets with the refrain, "J'ai sur le Bonnet." The authors of the comedy, however, borrowed the name from that of Nicolas Chauvin, an old soldier of Napoleon, well known in his time in Paris for his devoted enthusiasm for the emperor. Chauvin is a Latinized form of the same family name.

No Danger of a Salt Famine.

The amount of salt in the sea water of the globe, if extracted, would be greater in mass than the land so far as it appears above the surface. The seas cover 73 per cent of the earth's surface, estimated at 9,200,000 German square miles. The percentage of chlorination in the sea is the same at all depths. Assuming that the average depth of the sea is a half (German) mile, there are then 3,400,000 cubic miles of sea water. A cubic mile of sea water contains on the average about twenty-five kilograms of salt. The 3,400,000 cubic miles of sea water would therefore contain 85,000 cubic miles of distilled pure salt. From the German.

Tibetan Praying Wheel.

"To the Yellow God, the Black God, the White God and the Green God—Please kindly take us all up with you and do not leave us unprotected, but destroy our enemies." Such a prayer is to be found on a Tibetan praying wheel. The Tibetan is a martyr to folklore, conceiving, as he does, his spiritual life to be a struggle against demons which are just as hard to conquer as the passes and deserts of his country. A novel feature of this prayer wheel, which the Tibetan spends much of his time in turning, is that if turned the wrong way everything done before is undone.

QUEER LIFEBOAT.

A Norwegian Invention Which Has Proved Its Efficiency.

Recent tests of a life saving "globe" invented and perfected by Captain Doenvig, a Norwegian, prove that the craft easily carries its occupants to safety in a sea that would swamp the ordinary lifeboat. The Scientific American describes it as follows:

"It is now about a year ago since the first trials were made with Captain Doenvig's new invention, the life saving globe. These were all preliminary, however, and it is the practical tests, now just finished, that beyond all doubt have established the reputation of the new invention.

DOENVIG'S LIFE SAVING GLOBE.

"These recent trials were conducted on the coast of Jutland in very stormy weather under the supervision of Norwegian naval officers and other maritime authorities. Two life saving globes were used for the experiment. They were both set out from the Norwegian man-of-war Heimdal. The first one had no human beings on board, but sand ballast corresponding to the weight of sixteen men. It was launched without trouble and made a successful landing.

"This fact ascertained by signals from shore to the Heimdal, the second globe was set out. On board this one were two officers and three sailors. This also cleared away from the ships the breakers toward land. It made a successful trip, and half an hour later it landed. At the time it was blowing hard from the northeast, and the sea broke on four feet of water. The globe landed about fifty yards from the mainland. The men got out and waded ashore. By experts it was considered that an ordinary lifeboat would have been of no use under the circumstances.

"The globe is made of sheet iron five-sixteenths inch thick at the bottom, three-sixteenths inch at the sides and one-eighth inch at the top. It is eight feet in diameter and six and a half feet high and has a double bottom. It draws two and a half feet of water when loaded. The globe may be entered through three water tight trap-doors. Under the deck, which is located about one foot below the water line, are placed four galvanized iron tanks with capacity for holding 150 gallons of fresh water. Along the sides runs a low seat or bench, and the space underneath the same is filled with canned goods. In the center of the inner room is a funnel that may be shovelled up, thus letting fresh air into the globe.

"There are three small windows in the top for the double purpose of letting in light and providing openings through which rockets can be sent up. The globe has a movable keel, which can be let down from the inside, and also a rudder that may be applied in the same manner. Some small oars are also kept inside. A cork belt runs around the globe on the outside, on which the men can stand and row. There are also an anchor, with a hundred feet of steel rope attached, and a set of small sails, the funnel serving as mast.

"There is no need for launching the globe. When the ship sinks it will simply float. Its weight is about two tons, or the same as that of a large ordinary lifeboat. It costs about $500 and has accommodation for twenty men. It requires less deck space than an ordinary lifeboat."

Emerson on Lincoln.

The president impressed me more favorably than I had hoped. A frank, sincere, well meaning man, with a lawyer's habit of mind, good, clear statement of his fact, correct enough, not vulgar, as described, but with a sort of boyish cheerfulness, or that kind of sincerity and jolly good meaning that our class meetings on commencement days show in telling our old stories over. When he has made his remark he looks up at you with great satisfaction and shows all his white teeth and laughs. He argued to Sumner the whole case of Gordon, the slave trader, point by point, and added that he was not quite satisfied yet, and meant to refresh his memory by looking again at the evidence. All this showed a fidelity and conscientiousness very honorable to him. When I was introduced to him he said, "Oh, Mr. Emerson, I once heard you say in a lecture that a Kentuckian seems to say by his air and manners, 'Here am I; if you don't like me, the worse for you.'"—Diary of R. W. Emerson in Atlantic.

FEARLESS FIGHTERS

POLAR BEARS ARE CUNNING AND FURIOUS IN BATTLE.

The Way One of These Arctic Terrorists Handled Six Assassilants—Darling of Eskimo Hunters—How the Bears Catch and Worry the Seal.

When a winter is unusually severe in Baffin Land and Labrador the polar bears wander off among the ice floes in greater numbers than usual in quest of seals, upon which they chiefly feed, and on these occasions the crews of the Newfoundland sealing fleet have many encounters with these monsters.

When he is well fed the polar bear is easily worsted, but if hungry he fights with fury. Hence encounters with bears are not sought unless fishermen are included in the party, but sometimes there is no alternative. On one occasion several men armed only with seal clubs had to fight an old male bear.

One man thought he saw a seal behind a hummock and started off after it, a second following him. Just as the first topped the hummock he raised his club and struck, when to his horror he found he had hit a polar bear over the snout. The bear turned on him with an angry growl and would have dismembered him with a single stroke if the second man had not got in and hit him on the snout also. This blow half stunned him, and he fell backward into a small hole of water.

Still, though dazed, he struggled to get out, and so there was nothing for it but to fight him, and this the men did successfully, the whole seven joining in the struggle. Yet he broke one man's ankle, lacerated another's thigh and splintered the arm of a third man before he gave in. His skin and fat weighed 400 pounds and his carcass probably as much more, so that he was as bulky as a small horse.

On another occasion there was a fierce fight, within full view of a ship's crew, between a bear and six men. Bruin had been asleep for the night on a small pan of ice and was awakened in the early morning by the sound of the steamer's whistle, blown to call her crew to their day's toil. The bear, aroused from slumber, raised himself on his hind paws with a mighty growl, as if in challenge to the ship. His defiance was accepted in this sense by six young seamen, who promptly made at him with only their clubs.

The bear was unable to leave the small pan he was on, owing to six enemies assailing him, and so he had to fight it out there. He made a game defense, too, notwithstanding all attacks of his adversaries. One of these struck at him with a club, but he reared up, caught it in his mouth and jerked it from the owner's hand, and, shaking it as a terrier would a rat, hurriedly banged the owner with it and felled him senseless with a blow over the head. The other assailants he kept off also in the same way, and it was not till a man came from the ship with a rifle and put four bullets through him that he showed any weakness. At last he became dazed, and a well directed blow on the snout stunned him, while a shower more apparently killed him.

A rope was lashed around his body and he was swung up by the ship's winch to be got on board, but just as he came over the rail the rope broke and he disappeared from view in the water. The cold bath revived him, for in about five minutes he was seen to emerge in a blowhole in a floe, and after two or three painful attempts, laboriously climbed on to a high pan. Three men were at once dispatched after him, and he was stunned, stabbed to the heart and then dragged to the ship to be skinned. He was nearly nine feet long and twelve feet in his greatest girth, and was altogether a formidable adversary.

Men who go to the seal fisheries for the sport or experience as passengers in the ships of the fleet usually derive their keenest enjoyment from stalking polar bears, as it is quite a novel form of big game hunting. The scene is the great floating ice field, and from hummock to hummock and berg to berg the hunter will dog his prey until a lucky shot will enable him to bring down the victim.

Sealing captains will never let their guests go off unattended on such a mission, but send a couple of expert riflemen with them, as at times Mr. and Mrs. Bear and their offspring may be at home on the floe, and they would be rather too formidable a combination for the inexperienced hunter.

The Eskimo of Greenland and Baffin Land are notable bear hunters. The Eskimos have trained their dogs to run the creatures down and torment them until they can come up themselves and give the quietus with lance or gun. The daring of the Eskimo hunters is great, and they will attack the infuriated bear the moment they come within striking range.

In northern Labrador they are also to be got in goodly numbers. One season a Newfoundland fishing skipper found two men entangled in his nets in O'Brien harbor, at the entrance to Ungava bay, and was able to kill them with but little trouble. Another skipper sighted a third and sent two men in a boat after him, but their first shot only wounded the brute, and he made back at them, upset and tore apart their boat and badly gashed one of the men before the schooner ran down and poured a whole battery of bullets into him.

The Hudson Bay company's factors are always keen to secure skins of this white water bear. Last year one station secured fourteen of these skins, the largest of which measured thirteen feet and brought $15 at the company's annual auction in London. Another station, Nakvak, the most northern and therefore the best situated for them, collects about sixty a year. About 400 bears are killed along Labrador every twelvemonth.

These bears are extraordinarily cunning. They catch seals in exactly the same way as the Eskimo, by waiting at a blowhole, having first built up a little wall around it. They show cleverness almost human in grasping a seal when it comes up to breathe and transferring it to the ice.

If the bear is not hungry he will play with the seal just as a cat does with a mouse, patting it till it wriggles away, catching it again, tossing it into the air and torturing it in various ways, but always keeping between it and the blowhole, and eventually killing it by jumping on it with all four paws.

The bears also will wait, nose down, against the floe by which seals, narwhals and even white whales swim, and when one of these will rise to breathe, spring upon it like a cat on a sparrow, hugging and tearing it to death in the water and eventually dragging it up on the ice, to be devoured at leisure. When no better food offers they subsist on some of the innumerable diving birds that abound in northern seas. The bear will immerse himself in the water where the birds are swimming, and then, sinking beneath it, will leave only the black nose visible, up to which the unwitting bird swims, only to find itself a victim to his maw.

It is while abroad on the ice that the bears are carried off by adverse winds and swept south to perish of starvation. On one occasion the steamship Hanover, crossing the grand banks on the way to Baltimore, sighted an iceberg on which were moving objects first thought to be human beings, but subsequently seen to be six polar bears. They had been ferried hundreds of miles from their arctic home and were doomed to perish by drowning or hunger. Similar scenes are often witnessed by the crews of vessels fishing on the grand banks.

On another occasion two eastward fishermen from one of the ships on the banks pulled toward an iceberg to get some fragments to melt into drinking water, but found it populated by a starving polar bear, which plunged into the sea and made after them on catching sight of them. They had to row their boat to escape, as these bears can swim as well as seals, and it was only when he saw he could not reach them that he returned to his lonely eyrie, bellowing forth hoarse growls of rage the while. THREE FAMOUS PIONEERS.

Pen Pictures of Daniel Boone, Davy Crockett and Kit Carson.

In his book, "The Way to the West," Emerson Hough gives sketches of three famous pioneers. Of Daniel Boone he says: "Boone was neither a tall nor a thin man. He was not angular or bony. His frame was covered not with cloying fat, but with firm and easily playing muscles, and he carried none of the useless tissue of the man of civilization. His weight was about 175 pounds. Audubon, who met him late in his life, says: 'He approached the gigantic in stature. His chest was broad and prominent and his muscular powers were visible in every limb. His countenance gave indication of his great courage, enterprise and perseverance.' Yet in person Boone did not quite reach the six foot mark, but was just below five feet ten inches in stature, some say five feet eight inches, being therefore of exactly that build which good judges of men esteem to be most desirable for combined strength, activity and endurance. He was rather broad shouldered; that is to say, his shoulders nicely overhung his hips. All agree that he was of 'robust and powerful proportions.'"

Davy Crockett when he was first elected to congress is described as a "finely proportioned man, about six feet high, forty-five years of age, of very frank, pleasing and open countenance." He was dressed in homespun and wore a black fur cap on his head when seen by a traveler who called at his house. Going thus into public life, he began to show "an unusual strength of mind and a memory almost miraculous." Uncultured, benighted, terribly handicapped by lack of training and opportunity, he overcame it all. In Washington he won national popularity. "We see in the Crockett of 1834," says Hough, "a figure not approached by any other American statesman so nearly as by that other rugged westerner, Abraham Lincoln."

Kit Carson was a grandson of Daniel Boone and was born in 1805. Hough describes him as follows: "Five feet six, with twinkling, blue-gray eyes, a large and well developed head, with hair sandy and well brushed back. Kit Carson at his best was the reverse of impressive. He was simple, peaceable and quiet in disposition, temperate and strictly moral in a time and place when these qualities made one a marked man. Yet throughout the length and breadth of the Indian country this little man was more feared, single and alone, than any other trapper or Indian fighter in all the west. He was respected as well as feared."

Poetry.

Poetry does not mean only the clothing of beautiful thoughts in harmonious language; it means also the spiritualizing of life, the tingeing every common object with the warm sunshine of sympathy and love. Just as on rainy days the slush and grimy mud are swept away and put on one side, so the sunshiny nature will naturally dismiss all mean and sordid thoughts and turn to what is true and noble and pure, as "the sunflower turns to the face of its god."

An Expensive Wedding.

"The bride nearly fainted during the ceremony and had to be supported by her father until it was over."
"Yes, and now I hear her father is supporting both of them."

Fooling His Stomach.

Landlady—You did not wear glasses when you first came here. Why do you wear them now? Boarder—Why do you make the food look as large as possible!

There is no question but that Lieut. Gov. Guild will receive the Republican nomination for Governor. In the selection of men for these offices and also Congressmen and State Senators the voters have nothing to say; they are not even consulted.

It's "the smile that won't come off" that has been worn by Charles T. Brooks and Editor T. P. Wilson of the Winchester STAR the past week, and all because of a fishing trip. A boat loaded down to the water's edge is their report, from which fine specimens were selected for table use, so that it enabled the Brant Rock colony to carry out their plan of "breaking the meat trust" for several days at least.—[Natick Bulletin.]

Grand Knight James F. McGrath of the K. of C. of Woburn received last week a check for $1000 payable to the widow of Thomas Curley, a brother member of the Woburn Council, who died suddenly in Winchester, June 30.

The meat strike is over, but the people will be compelled to pay high prices, in all probability indefinitely, the same as after the coal strike. Increase in wages means higher prices to consumers every time.

Mr. H. C. Nickerson showed his love for children in a practical way a few days ago, when he took about 75 of the little folks living in the neighborhood of Symmes corner on an excursion to Provincetown in the steamer. The party had a most enjoyable time and all received the best of care and attention.

Wedge Pond contains large numbers of German carp, the pond being stocked years ago by Mr. E. A. Brackett of the Mass. Fish and Game Commission. The fish are extremely sluggish and hard to catch, but when one is captured he is certain to be of heavy weight. As a toothsome delicacy for the table the following recipe taken from a Western paper may prove of interest to the persons who succeed in catching them: "Clean the fish nicely and let it dry two days in the sun. Nail the fish to a pine board and cover thoroughly with salt. Let it stand for two days longer and then put in an oven and bake slowly for six hours. Then remove the nails, take the carp from the board, throw it away, eating the nails and the board, which are said to be the best part of the fish."

William H. Nash, tax collector in Abington, has had no pay for the past few years, because, it is alleged, the selectmen insist upon full returns for the year being made before he was given his remuneration. This he was unable to do, it is stated, because he was unable to find out who was responsible for the taxes upon them. He asked the selectmen to either reassess or to abate the taxes and they refused to do either. As a result he has been unable to make complete returns. Now the collector is out for his stipend, and the selectmen have been cited to appear before the Supreme Court in Boston to show reason why Nash shouldn't be paid the $1,200 due him.

Medford's tax rate for this year is $18.80, on a thousand valuation, which is a decrease of $1 on each thousand.

Congressman McCall ought to have the privilege of running a paper on his own lines. It wouldn't hurt anybody, and McCall would know more about the business than he does now perhaps.—[Watertown Enterprise.] Mr. McCall has had that privilege and he was successful, too. His recent address at Harvard College on the yellow press was one of the best addresses ever made on this subject.

Mr. Foss wasn't elected a delegate to the Chicago convention, on the reciprocity issue, but he must be reasonably happy over the endorsement of reciprocal trade which the business men of Boston and other parts of the state are giving. Reciprocity may not be consistent with the doctrine of protection, but Senator Lodge must keep his eyes open, or Massachusetts Republicans will wake him up rudely, one of these days.—[Cambridge Chronicle.]

Considerable money changed hands on the result and this game will be for blood. Sullivan of Winchester High is pitching a fine game for the visitors. The Walnut Hill team may be strengthened by addition of Wall of the South Borders behind the bat and Ex-captain Hearn will probably play in the infield.—[Woburn Times]

The police department of Stoneham has been provided with a typewriter. The Winchester department should have one. It gives dignity to official correspondence.

Of all strange accidents the one in Lexington last week which extinguished every electric light in town, called out the fire department and threw the town into commotion was the strangest. The engineer of the light plant, it appears, was over come by the heat and fell across the great belt that drives the monster generator. His fall threw the belt off the pulley, stopping the generator and extinguishing the lights. The assistant engineer sounded the alarm bringing out the firemen, police, linemen and repair gangs. And not the least strange part of the incident is that the engineer was not killed or even seriously hurt.—[Wakefield Item.]

Cured of Chronic Diarrhoea After Ten Years of Suffering.

"I wish to say a few words in praise of Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy," says Mrs. Mattie Burge, of Martinsville, Va. "I suffered from chronic diarrhoea for ten years and during that time tried various medicines without obtaining any permanent relief. Last summer one of my children was taken with cholera morbus, and I procured a bottle of this remedy. Only two doses were required to give her entire relief. I then decided to try the medicine myself, and did not use all of one bottle before I was well and I have never since been troubled with that complaint. One cannot say too much in favor of that wonderful medicine." This remedy is for sale by O'Connor's Pharmacy.

Newsy Paragraphs.

Dr. and Mrs. F. H. Harding and Dick left this week for New Hampshire, where they will spend a few weeks.

The Episcopal church is now closed for the summer. The last service was on Sunday and the church will be closed for the next four or five weeks. Rev. Frank P. Johnson of New Orleans (formerly of Woburn) who has officiated in Winchester during the first four Sundays of this month, will preach at Grace church in Medford next Sunday morning.

According to the census figures for 1900, just published, there are 1,833,630 women in the United States engaged in gainful occupations—and housekeepers are not included. This is a pretty good showing that women are not dependent upon the sterner sex for their support. In justice to them there ought to be some way of telling how many women there are who contribute to the support of invalid husbands—and oftentimes lazy ones—children and parents.

Justice Johnson of the District Court said recently in open court that any person hereafter convicted of the larceny of milk bottles would be sentenced to the House of Correction. The court record shows that last week and on Tuesday fines were imposed for this offence, but from what the Justice let drop in court, sentences hereafter will be more severe.—[Woburn Times.]

The bureau of industrial statistics estimates that the total number of workmen thrown out of employment in the last 20 years on account of strikes is estimated at 4,105,694, and a loss in wages of over a quarter of a billion dollars. More than 12,000 establishments were involved. There was an average loss of $50 to each person involved. New York came first in the number of strikes and Pennsylvania second, the former having over 20,000 and the latter over 18,000 strikes. The coal industries experienced more strikes than any other.

Bird Protection.

EDITOR OF THE STAR:

I feel like apologizing for taking up any more of your valuable space on the subject of bird protection, as I feel the ground has nearly all been covered. I take exception, however, to what I would term over-zeal of Bird Lover and the singleness of purpose that does not admit any extenuating circumstances or mitigating conditions at, exist.

I assume from the character of the letter in your issue of the 22nd instant that the writer under the nom de plume is a woman, and with all a woman's intensity she defends her theory. In spite of the fact that Bird Lover challenges my practical knowledge of the subject and attributes my remarks entirely to sentiment, I beg to differ entirely with the conclusions arrived at, because I assure Bird Lover that my suggestions were eminently practical and were not in any way warped by sentiment, and I do not think that Bird Lover's sentiments are as impartial as mine.

Therefore, I shall only take up one or two statements appearing in the letter in question, to point out to Bird Lover, in spite of her claims to particular observations ornithological and entomological, that inconsistencies appear in her argument that are not reconcilable with common sense.

I am not surprised at Bird Lover's views, if, as I assume, she is a disciple of the personages mentioned in her letter, none of whom are careful students, but are intense sentimentalists with preconceived ideas and views, and if I remember rightly were prominent in the crusade a year or two ago against the English sparrow both on the Boston Common and in the suburbs, which resulted in failure and ridicule to those who were guilelessly led away by their sentimental agitation. I remember a person in Wakefield last year bribed boys to shoot the English sparrow, and it is a well known fact that over eighty per cent. of all the birds brought in on which head money was paid, were not English sparrows, but little wrens, finches, field sparrows, vireos, etc., etc., that resembled in a slight degree an English sparrow. It is a pity, but it is true.

The fact that Mr. Job, who is a photographer and successful lecturer (sic?) stigmatizes the English sparrow as a "little beast" is not conclusive evidence. Bird Lover states that Bird Protector "is either ill-informed or has withheld his full knowledge," and immediately after this Bird Lover admits that what Bird Protector stated was absolutely true, but states that the sparrow has changed his coat, or in other words, the coat of his stomach, and has acquired a new taste by environment. This is neither plausible nor true. Since Bird Protector wrote his letter on the subject, several people in Winchester have had their curiosity excited to watch the actions of the "little beast," and they find that said "little beast" does everything for the extinction of the brown tail moth attributed to him in my letter, and is a destroyer of insect pests, in spite of the claim that his taste has undergone a change, and that he is evolutionizing rapidly towards prepared breakfast food. He is a sensible bird, and I think it stands to his credit if it is a fact as stated by Bird Lover that he prefers "delicate young wheat and oats" instead of the seeds of "harmful weeds." He shows that he is a bird of discrimination. I do not deny that he is omnivorous.

But to proceed. If Bird Lover is really consistent and desires the protection of birds from their natural enemies, she might direct her attentions to the domestic cat. The cat is well known as the most persistent destroyer, without discrimination, of every kind and description of feathered biped, and with the little rifle with which Bird Lover is armed the cat would be noble sport, instead of a poor innocent brown-coated sparrow, who simply has been given a bad name, without deserving it, in my opinion. The cat, likewise the hawk, the owl, etc., etc., destroy birds; the sparrow admittedly changes their location only.

In further refutation of Bird Lover's statement, it was my pleasure and privilege within a few years to make a trip to England, the home of the "little beast," and there to my surprise I found in spite of the deplorable character he has earned in this country, that he is far more numerous on his native heath than he is here, and furthermore, that the woodland songsters in England outnumber the same class of birds in this country more than ten to one. The air is filled with their harmony and song morning, noon and evening, and the "little beast" does not interfere with them to any appreciable extent. How does Bird Lover account for this? The sparrow stays by us winter and summer, and other birds are migrants. The sparrow is pugnacious, so are the males of all birds and animals; it is the instinct of self preservation which is inherent in the animal kingdom.

I am pleased that Bird Lover coincides with my views with regard to the danger of allowing boys the use of guns, which ought to be prohibited or licensed, and am only sorry that our views do not closer agree on the rest of the subject, inasmuch as our aims are the same.

BIRD PROTECTOR.

What Happened in Winchester 20 Years Ago, or Thereabouts.

Taken From Files of The STAR . . .

Winchester High school numbers some sixty scholars.

Winchester has had four alarms of fire in three weeks and the fire engineers have ordered the firemen to discontinue riding on their machines to fires.

At a special meeting of R. Waldmyer Hose Co. No. 1, the following officers were chosen to fill the vacancies caused by the resignation of four members: J. Enman, foreman; F. L. Corcoran, Asst. foreman; James McLaughlin, treasurer.

The Selectmen have decided to erect half-a-dozen lamp-posts on Main street and vicinity—Black Horse Hill, Madison avenue, near Harrison Parker's and near Washington street.

A telephone was established in Josiah Hovey's this week. Connects with Boston via Chelsea.

Mr. C. H. Herrick was agreeably surprised on Tuesday evening by a large number of residents, among whom were: Messrs. W. Underhill, G. Blaisdell, W. Brewer, F. Covell, W. Cowdrey, G. Nichols, C. Cleaves and Misses Hovey, Whitney, Carter, Pond, Tyler, Simonds, Mason, Coffin, Conant, Houston, Holton, Smith, Adams, Cleaves. Mr. and Mrs. W. H. Herrick added much to the enjoyment of the occasion. Mr. G. A. Blaisdell was master of ceremonies. The supper was of an excellent character and ice cream was served during the evening. The party broke up in the small hours.

If there were more surprise parties than at present, our young people would become better acquainted with each other. Two of Boston's new Herdic coaches passed through Winchester on Sunday last.

Three R's—Ramsdell's Remarkable Reasons for purchasing at his store. Taylor's barge was the first team to break the snow between Winchester and Woburn Wednesday morning last.

Master Ernest Eustis, Stephens street, was surprised by a visit from a number of his young friends on Tuesday night. They were agreeably entertained and dispersed at an early hour, well pleased with the success of their visit.

The names of Judge Littlefield and Allen F. Boone have been mentioned in connection with the vacancies on the School Board. Two good men.

Winchester Boat Club Notes.

The weather seems to have designs upon the Boat Club orchestra. For the second time since its organization the dance to be given by it has been postponed on account of rain. A third attempt will be made this Friday evening at the Winchester Club.

Three canoes left the club house this week, one belonging to Earl Frazer, one to William Twombly and the third under Ted Willis' management. The boats will be used by the campers at Lake Winnepesaukee.

On last Saturday afternoon the pond was covered with canoes. Probably more parties ate their lunch on the pond in the evening than at any time this year. Many attended the dance in the evening at the Medford club, where there was good music and a large crowd until a late hour. The club house was very pretty, with its adornment of lanterns, and could be seen for miles from the hills.

The water sports for the Tufts cups will be held this Saturday afternoon at the club. A number of events will be run off, which promise to be very interesting.

Prof. Currier Improving.

Latest reports from Professor C. F. A. Currier, who suffered the amputation of a leg at a Brookline hospital a short time ago, are very good. He is said to be doing finely. The only possible danger now is that the marrow in the bone of the leg may be slow in healing from being affected by the disease which caused the amputation. This is, however, a remote possibility.

Some Tax Rates.

Everett's tax rate is $18.20; increase $1.20.

Watertown, $18.75, the highest rate for years.

Woburn, $19.60, an increase of $1.10.

Melrose, $17.40.

Newton's tax rate is $17.80, an increase of $1 over last year.

THE SILVER MINE.

Several young men belonging to town went on an excursion to the Silver mine in Middlesex Fells, on Sunday last, and came home filled with enthusiasm and bearing precious spoils.

On the ground is a large stationary engine, used for keeping the shaft clear of water. A large hut adjoining it is where the workmen live. They are divided into two "gangs," who relieve each other, work being kept up day and night. The engineer is a man who had a large mining experience in Australia and the West. The main shaft of the mine is 85 feet deep, and was cut out of solid rock all the way down. At the bottom of the shaft a tunnel runs from 25 to 30 feet, and is about 7 feet high.

Mr. Morandi of Malden, the owner of the mine, visited the scene of operations Sunday, making collections of magnificent specimens. The first ton of ore which the mine yielded was valued at $8. A few weeks afterward the yield was $40 a ton. It is undoubtedly a "big thing," and it becomes a question whether there is not more like it in the same rocky neighborhood.

CHOICE LANGUAGE.

For choice language the following beats anything we have recently seen:

"By the way, this gentleman is laying himself out for the Judgeship strong. It looks as though he would knock the socks from all competitors and rake in the emine. He is willing that Woburn should have the clerkship of said Court, and Burlington the judicial supes; but Winchester is entitled to and must have what is known in common parlance as the lion's share. Here's hoping our legal brother's pole will bring down the persimmon."

This, from the pen of a cultured correspondent of the Woburn Journal. Note—The above was published in connection with the contest for the Judgeship at Woburn, Geo. S. Littlefield, Esq., being the candidate from this town, and eventually winning the office.

Mrs. Rhoda C. Symmes.

Mrs. Rhoda C. Symmes, wife of Horatio Symmes, a resident of Winchester for 36 years, died Monday at her home on Mt. Vernon street.

She was born in Woburn 75 years ago being the daughter of Luke and Rhoda Fowle. Her maiden name was Rhoda Clark Fowle. Mr. and Mrs. Symmes were married Sept. 24, 1848. The former survives her.

For seven years she had been bedridden as a result of a stroke of paralysis. She was a sister to Luke W. Fowle of Woburn and almost a mother to him, having assumed care of the younger children on the death of her mother. Mr. Fowle was devoted to her, and during her seven years' confinement called upon her every Sunday, with only three exceptions.

Besides Mr. Fowle, she leaves three sisters—Mrs. Frank Eastman of Cambridge, Mrs. Eliza Bellows of Texas, Miss Emma Fowle of Woburn—and one brother—Rev. James Fowle, a missionary in Turkey.

Her husband, two daughters—Mrs. Myron Abell of Colchester, Conn., and Miss Nellie Symmes of Winchester—and three grandchildren—William, Flora and Chester Stover of Cape Neddick, Me.—survive her.

Funeral services were held from her late residence Wednesday afternoon, Rev. Daniel March, D.D., of Woburn, officiating. A quartette, composed of Mr. A. T. Downer, Miss Jessie Macdonald, Miss Lizzie Macdonald and Mr. Alexander Macdonald, sang "Lead Kindly Light" and "God Be With Thee." The interment was in Wildwood Cemetery.

Woburn Bank to Liquidate.

The directors of the First National Bank of Woburn last week Thursday night issued a notice to the stockholders, informing them of the expiration of the present charter of the bank on Jan. 18, 1905, and advising them to wind up the affairs of the bank and dissolve it for the reason that "in place of active resident manufacturers and merchants who brought custom and business to the bank, the stock is now largely held by those whose only interest in its success is to draw the dividends that may be earned for them by the management."

"Abby Jones' River."

In an editorial this week upon the changing of some of our common-place and even ugly names, as applied to towns or public places, to the picturesque and beautiful, in some simple manner, the Boston Herald gives an example the instance of our Aberjona river. It says:

"Here in Greater Boston, too, we have a case with a similar origin ascribed. The little Aberjona river, in Winchester, is a lovely stream, beloved of canoeists and famous as a feature of the Mystic Valley parkway. Its derivation is really a mystery. It looks scriptural rather than Indian, but it appears to be neither. It has been suggested that, in the old colonial days, there may have lived thereabouts one Abigail Jones—some lone widow or solitary spinster, it may be—and that hence the stream became known as Abby Jones' river, eventually to achieve its apotheosis in the Abajona. It seems to be nothing more than a plausible assumption as yet, but perhaps local historians may solve the mystery."

We might infer that the Herald grasped this derivation from the piece of poetry published in the STAR from an issue of 25 years ago of "Abby and Jonah," but that was written simply as a play upon the name of the river, and had no historical significance.

None of our local historians have touched upon the origin of the name of our river, and while it is possible it was originally "Abby Jones' river," or the "river of Abby and Jonah," we have our doubts. Possibly our friend Col. N. A. Richardson can throw some light upon the matter.

McKay Sports on Manchester Field.

On Manchester field last Saturday afternoon the sports postponed from the McKay relief association picnic of last Saturday were held. More than 2000 persons witnessed the events which were most satisfactorily conducted. The baseball game between teams captained by H. Simonds and T. Howe was won by Capt. Howe's team by a score of 8 to 5.

The athletic events resulted as follows:

100-yard dash—Won by James Horn, A. E. Taylor second, J. McKittrick third. 100-yard dash for boys under 16—Won by John McGuire, Arthur Cameron second, John Nowell third. Potato race—Won by Albert Horn Thomas Dunn second, S. S. Richardson third.

100-yard dash for girls—Won by Mary Kelley, Eva Morin second, Mary Montgomery third.

Heavy weight race—Won by V. M. Place, F. E. Ackerly second, George H. Costain third.

W. C. T. U. Notes.

On Wednesday, Aug. 3, the Woman's Christian Temperance Union entertained a class of twenty five girls from the Frances E. Willard Settlement which is located at 23 South Russell street, Boston. Mrs. George H. Hamilton kindly offered the use of her house and grounds, and with the help of a committee from the Union took great pains to make the day a pleasant one for the girls. Swings, games and sailing on the lake were greatly enjoyed. Refreshments were served and the day passed so rapidly that some were loth to leave when the time arrived for them to return. There are about five hundred boys and girls connected with the Settlement and the great work which is being done for these needy ones can hardly be estimated. Should any one feel inclined to invite Miss Hill, the Supt., with another class of girls or boys for a day's outing, it would be greatly appreciated by the children and would surely be doing work for the Master.

The Boston W. C. T. Union with the assistance of other Unions will furnish lemonade for the G. A. R. veterans during their encampment in Boston.

Mrs. Simpson, State Supt. of Flower Mission, is again doing a noble work. Flowers are sent every Saturday to Hospitals, Homes, Prisons and Almshouses, and the Floating Hospital for sick children is not overlooked.

The Winchester Union will hold its first meeting after the summer vacation Friday, Sept. 9. Will each member who has not already done so, please send her annual assessment for 1904 to the treasurer, Mrs. L. L. Blood, before Sept. 1st as the funds are needed to carry on the work, and the State and County dues must be paid very soon.

MR. JAMES A. LAWRENCE, WHO ASSUMED THE DUTIES OF SECRETARY OF THE Y. M. C. A. THIS WEEK.

The New Y. M. C. A. Secretary.

Mr. James A. Lawrence, the recently appointed secretary of the local Y. M. C. A., entered on his duties this week. He is an exceedingly bright appearing young man, one who will unquestionably keep the local association in the advanced position it has attained for many years through the work of its able secretaries. The boys and young men will no doubt find in him a true and devoted friend, one who at all times will look out for their welfare.

Mr. Lawrence was born at Pettaquamscutt, N. B., Sept. 10, 1875. His father, John P. Lawrence, who died in 1887, was a successful lawyer, and his ancestors were among the early settlers of New York State. Mr. Lawrence received his education at Truro Academy, N. S., and at Truro College.

In 1897 he became Assistant Secretary of the Truro Y. M. C. A. and in 1898 went to Springfield, Mass., to train for

Dr. Blaisdell Hurt.

Dr. Albert F. Blaisdell was seriously hurt on Friday afternoon last by falling from a rapidly moving electric car on Massachusetts avenue near Porter's station. Dr. Blaisdell was in company with Supt. of Schools Robert C. Metcalf, the two gentlemen being on their way to visit Professor C. F. A. Currier at the Corey Hill Hospital, Brookline. There being some question undecided about the transfers for Brookline, Dr. Blaisdell decided to speak to the conductor. When he stepped out upon the running board of the car it is presumed he missed his footing, and the first intimation Mr. Metcalf had of the accident was when the car stopped and he saw Dr. Blaisdell lying in the street.

He was assisted to a drug store opposite Porter's station and a physician dressed his injuries, which consisted of numerous small cuts and bruises besides a badly scraped arm and cut leg. He also received a slight concussion of the brain, which, although considered slight by the physician, was sufficient to cloud his mind for 24 hours.

Dr. Blaisdell was assisted to his home, 18 Brooks street, by Mr. Metcalf and at the present time is progressing finely. Altogether he had a very narrow escape from what might have been a fatal accident.

Selectmen's Meeting.

August 1st, 1904.

Board met at 7 30 p. m. Members present, Messrs. Carter, Coit, Ellis and Ferguson.

Records of last meeting read and approved.

Voted to grant permission to the Arlington Gas Light Co. to lay a gas main on Vine street from house of G. H. Hamilton westerly about 150 feet; lines to be given by the Town Engineer and work to be done to the satisfaction of the Supt. of Streets.

R. E. Stinson appeared in regard to the condition of Myrtle street. Was informed that the Board had the matter under consideration.

Voted that the Supt. of Streets be authorized to purchase a set of double harness.

Voted to notify the Fire Engineers that the street watering at present done by the firemen on Sundays will in future be done by the Street Department.

Voted to make several small repairs in the Town Hall building.

Received communication from George Guy in relation to the fence at the lower end of Spruce street. Referred to Mr. Spates.

Received communications from A. E. Whitney declining to sell land adjoining the Town Hall lot, also regarding sidewalk and street on Main near Parkway, and condition of Mystic avenue.

Discussed street work for rest of the season at length then laid matter on table till next meeting.

Mr. Spates was authorized to let the steam roller when not needed by the town.

Secretaryship at International Y. M. C. A. Training School. He graduated in 1901 and was called to Kingston, Ontario. In June 1902, he married Grace B. King of Springfield, Mass., daughter of Wm. C. King of King, Richardson Publishing Co.

Mr. Lawrence found the work in poor condition at Kingston, Ont., but succeeded before leaving in building up a good committee force and winning many friends for the Association after his three years' work. He also organized the first boys' camp ever conducted by the Association.

Mr. Lawrence expresses himself as pleased with Winchester and is anxious to meet and make its people his friends. Considering the time the Association has been without a secretary, he finds the work in good condition, which speaks well for Mr. Gay.

As early as possible a study of the town will be made in order to find out definitely what Association work is most needed in Winchester.

A Good Woman Passes Away.

EDITOR OF THE STAR: Last Wednesday I attended the funeral of Mrs. Rhoda, wife of Horatio Symmes for many years living on Mt. Vernon street, where for seven years she had been a patient sufferer from constantly increasing bodily afflictions, during all this time submitting with Christian grace and fortitude to the will of God.

Mr. Symmes, the husband, has stood with resolution, a loving and kind heart by his wife in her severe and long sickness. She leaves behind a husband and two daughters, all of whom have the sympathy of the community. Mr. Symmes belongs to one of the oldest families in town. His social and agreeable ways unite him in friendship with the whole town. His deceased wife represented one of the oldest and most respected families in Woburn coeval with the town's history, her father, Luke Fowle, being identified with the civil, political and religious influence and growth of Woburn fifty years ago and made his mark with deep impress. Luke Warren Fowle, a brother to Mrs. Symmes, has a personal history of which any citizen can cherish with pride. He proved a faithful, generous and devoted brother, and was constant in his weekly visits to his sister, with hands full of gifts and heart overflowing with love.

Rev. Daniel March of Woburn conducted the services with that fervid and inspiring manner that gives solemnity and interest to all his addresses. The singing was sweet and elevating in devotion and sentiment.

Who for a moment can doubt but what Mrs. Symmes has gone home to receive the reward of a long and noble life, though tinged with pain and anguish for many years.

Winchester, Aug. 4, 1904.

Fogg-Benedict.

The many friends of Winchester's popular and well-known artists, Miss Gladys Perkins Fogg and Mr. Milo E. Benedict of Concord, N. H., will be interested to hear something of the very pretty wedding which took place at the Weirs, Lake Winnepesaukee, August third, at the little chapel near the new music hall. The Rev. Lorin Webster, pastor of Holderness School, an intimate friend of the young people, performed the ceremony. Mrs. Herbert L. Cox of Winchester was matron of honor and Miss Edith Mae Lord of Tilton, N. H., bridesmaid. Owing to their several professional engagements in the near future, the bride will not be at home to greet her friends before Oct. 18th. After the ceremony they were met by many congratulations from musical friends. While on the piazza of the Hotel Weirs, the strains from Mendelssohn's wedding march were heard from the music room, and showers of rice descended upon the unsuspecting couple.

THE GAME OF POKER

IT SEEMS TO HAVE ORIGINATED IN NEW ORLEANS.

The American Version of the Game Is Apparently an Improvement on the Old French Game "Le Jeu du Pique" or German "Pochenpiel."

All the evidence about poker which has come to light points to its origin in New Orleans. The question is, Where did New Orleans get it from, or is it an improvement on some game known to the population of that city, who, it must be remembered, were French and used French terms in any games that they played?

There is no French game played with only twenty cards, as poker was played at New Orleans in 1832, but there are several French games in which all the poker hands are to be found except four of a kind. Ambigu, brelan and many others will at once suggest themselves. But all these French games are played with three cards only in the hand of each player. Where could the inventor of poker have found a game played with five cards in each hand and the pack consisting of twenty cards only?

The standard pack of cards in Europe from the earliest days has been what is now called the piquet pack, which is the same as our American euchre pack, thirty-two cards. There is only one country in the world that uses a pack limited to twenty cards, and that is Persia. There is only one country in the world where poker has always been played with five cards in the hand of each player, and that is Persia, but the game is not called poker. It is called as nas.

Those who are familiar with this ancient Persian game unhesitatingly assert some Frenchman must have brought it to New Orleans in its primitive form, with the pack limited to twenty cards and the hand of each player increased to five. The question still remains, How did it change its name?

The old Persian pack had no aces, court cards and spots, like ours, but each suit was made up of pictures which ranked: Lion, king, lady, soldier and dancing girl. This pack was called varak i nas, varak i asands or simply as, from the game as or asands, which was played with it. This ancient game was simply twenty card poker, as it was first played in America at the beginning of this century.

But if poker was originally known as asands, how came it to lose that name? It seemed to the writer, and also to Mr. Jessel, that the answer to this question must be looked for in the language of the people who brought the game from Europe, if they did bring it.

If they brought it to New Orleans from Persia, or if some resident of that city was familiar with the Persian game and thought it an improvement on the French game of ambigu and brelan, the introducer was probably French and more familiar with French games and French terms than with Persian.

Curiously enough, one of the oldest and most authoritative works on card games was published in France and ran through a great many editions. This is the famous "Academie Universelle des Jeux; Chez Theodore Le Gras, au Palais, Paris."

In the 1695 edition of this work we find the first description of the game of hoc.

The game of hoc continues to be described until the edition of 1702, with no mention of any improvement or change in its form. In 1733, however, page 305, we find a description of le jeu du pique, which exactly agrees with the game known to all German children as pochenpiel or pochen. The "Academie des Jeux" speaks of pique as a descendant or offshoot from the older game of hoc.

The peculiarity of pique is that after the cards are dealt and each player has taken from the common pool the counter for the rank of the highest cards held he is at liberty to bet upon the various combinations of cards he holds, triplets, pairs, etc. In the French description of the game we are told that a player opened the betting by saying, "Je pique d'un jeton," or two chips, or as many as he pleased, and that then the others could see him, raise him or drop out in their turn.

In the German game pochen as it is played today we find exactly the same expressions still in use, "Ich pöche eins," or as many chips as the player cares to venture, and the answer of the player entering the betting against the opener is invariably, "Ich pöche mit." Both pique and pochen are played with piquet pack, thirty-two cards.

Now, it is very curious that in the English translation of this "Academie des Jeux" and in all the English descriptions of the game of pique we find the players are instructed to say in English, "I pique for so much," and the following players are to respond, "I pique against you."

Show this word "pique" to any ordinary English speaking person not acquainted with French, and he would undoubtedly separate it into two syllables and call it po-que. In the German the word pique is already as near poker as the vowel sound will admit.

What more natural than that a resident of New Orleans of French birth or extraction already familiar with the game of pique and seeing asands played for the first time should use the expressions "Je pique d'un jeton," etc., and that the English or German speaking person adopting the game should say, "I po-que."

From this it is a short step to drop the curious and difficult foreign name of asands altogether and call the game po-que and later to spell it poker.—Chicago Inter Ocean.

A Triumph of Love.

In this prosaic and commercial age we are liable to forget the tenderer and more beautiful side of our humanity. Then some little incident comes to strike into music the lost chord within us.

Such is the case of a mother in a Rocky mountain city who lost her baby boy fourteen years ago. She was told that he was dead. But the mother love gave her faith that her child still lived and with it hope that some day she would see him.

This chapter out of common life has in it the elements that make romance. It is a tale of the bitterest hardship softened at last by a great joy.

The mother was taken from her two little ones by some mental disorder. While being treated in the county hospital one of her boys died. The father placed the other boy, a mere baby, under the care of a strange family, giving the child an assumed name. Then the man, giving out word that this boy also had died, killed himself.

Upon being released from the hospital the mother returned to a home left desolate. She was told of her triple bereavement. Yet without any apparent reason she would not believe that her baby was dead. Later in a dream she saw him still alive. And at last, after so many years of waiting her faith was rewarded. Her dream came true. Her boy was found and returned to her.

We in our superior wisdom are apt to sneer at dreams. And yet there may be things we do not know. When the world with its noise has receded, something may touch the soul that tells of things unseen. Possibly the simple mother's faith was wiser than our science. Possibly it is we who dream and she who touched reality.

Sometimes little things happen that give us fleeting glimpses of worlds and worlds which are not visible from the sense windows through which we look.

However that may be, this trust sustained a soul through the long night of trial. It was worth while it only for that—worth while even though the boy had never returned.

We all need more of the faith and hope that are born of love. We need them in our everyday life. We need them to help us do our work. We need them to lighten our burden.

Without faith and the hope that is born of it life would be a treadmill, an unendurable round of effort that promised no result.

But with faith—boundless faith—in the final triumph of good, faith that our own will come to us, faith that our labors will bring us blessing, faith that the seed we sow will bear a golden harvest, faith that a brighter way is before us if we toil on to reach it—with such a faith life grows beautiful, and from out of the heart forever bubbles a song.

But with faith—boundless faith—in love, and like the bereaved mother, you can bear whatever comes to you. And who knows, after all, but that some time, some place, the very presence of your faith may bring its own fulfillment?

Men have made themselves poets, teachers, philosophers and rulers by faith. Have faith in yourself if nothing else, for that has conquered armies. It was Napoleon's faith in his own destiny that made him invincible.

Faith is the dynamo of energy within you. It carries you over the hard places and keeps you going till you accomplish results.

Faith, confidence, holds the business world together. You cannot have too much of it, for it is the mainstay of the soul.

The Camera Scores Again.

The possibilities of photography, like those of electricity, seem endless. A California artist has succeeded in producing a photograph thirty-six feet long. Taken by itself this might be considered a mere freak to serve as a nine days' wonder. But experts give assurance that it is only a question of time when photographs will be produced every day in the colors of nature. Every year brings the color photographs nearer to perfection. When this is accomplished landscapes and the countless marvelous scenes of beauty and grandeur the world over can be produced on a scale commensurate with their natural proportions.

When a Kansas City woman rushed up to a man and kissed him under the impression that he was her long lost brother, the brute had her arrested. There is no need for any other candidates for the meanest man medal to apply.

Chicago lawyers are to form a labor union. Any one who doubts that lawyers are entitled to form a labor union should carefully observe the amount of hustling the average limb of the law goes through in getting a case.

BUYING BEE STINGS.

Philadelphia Chemists Make Rheumatism Medicine of Them.

After long experiment by bacteriologists in their employ an incorporated firm of wholesale chemists of Philadelphia has sent agents to Texas with instructions to obtain all the bee stings they can for medicinal purposes. An order for 50,000 stings was placed with one bee farmer in that state. A serum for injection through the skin will be made from the potent fluid with which the tiny weapons are charged. Of stings efficacy for the cure of rheumatism the chemists say their experiments have left no doubt. The tale of how scientists hit upon the idea of experimenting with the stingers is told thus:

A farmer afflicted with rheumatism was set upon by a swarm of bees and frightfully stung. His face, neck and limbs were covered with red spots and swollen for days. When the swelling subsided, to the farmer's delight, the rheumatism was cured.

Supplemented by similar cases, this tale came to a man who was interested in bacteriological experiments. The loss of its sting, if carefully amputated, will not destroy the bee's honey making ability. A special laboratory is being constructed near Philadelphia for the transformation of bee stings into a serum. The stings will be transported thither from the bee farms in air tight glass tubes in specially constructed cases so designed that the temperature surrounding the tubes may be kept the same as that of the bee's body.

In its finished state the product will be sold in small vaccine points of the same form as antitoxin and the small-pox virus. That an ample supply of the raw material may be available the company will encourage the establishment of bee farms in Delaware and Chester counties and northern Delaware.

A UNIQUE PROTECTOR.

Asphyxiates the Unwary Burglar Who Starts It Going.

The usual type of burglar alarm is arranged to sound an electric gong and arouse the occupants of a room or building on entrance of a burglar. But such an alarm obviously affords little, if any, protection for isolated buildings such as country stores, or the like, which are unoccupied during the night.

For such buildings what is needed is a device which will cope with the intruder himself, and not merely sound an alarm. We show herewith the method of dealing with such a case invented by Lyman M. Beckes of Vincennes, Ind., and illustrated in the Scientific American. It consists in a means for distributing noxious fumes in a room or building on entrance of the burglar, so as to overcome the man and prevent him from carrying out his unlawful designs. The noxious material, which preferably consists of formaldehyde, is held in a light steel cylinder, closed by a cork at one end and by a wall at the other. A small tube, closed at its outer end, is threaded into this wall and serves as a holder for a charge of gunpowder. A plunger in the cylinder is formed with a shank which fits into this tube against the powder. A fine heating wire inserted into this charge is connected in series with an electric battery circuit.

The circuit, however, is normally open, but is so arranged that by stepping on a door mat or in some similar way the burglar will complete the circuit, lighting and exploding the charge, which will force the plunger and cork out and discharge the formaldehyde. By arranging a screen before the muzzle of the cylinder the material, on striking the meshes, will be considerably diffused, and the rising fumes will make it impossible for the burglar to remain in the room and retain consciousness.

Silver Bolts to Mend Bones.

A new and distinctly novel method has been devised by Dr. Stephen H. Watts, assistant resident surgeon in the Johns Hopkins hospital, Baltimore, for joining broken bones. His device consists simply of a silver bolt and nut. After the broken member is exposed the broken bones are mortised, stepwise; then a small hole is drilled through the joint thus made and the silver bolt is inserted. When the nut is screwed down tight the joint is immovable, and the natural knitting process of the bone may proceed with less liability to interruption than is usually caused by change in position and lack of rigidity. Dr. Watts made a test of his new method for the first time about a year ago and since that time has used it with continued success.

A New Storage Battery.

A storage battery patent was recently granted to Mr. V. G. Apfel of Dayton, O., the construction of which is thus described: The whole case is divided into two compartments, the inside surface of each compartment being electro chemically active. Each compartment contains a series of liquid tight conducting cases, one within the other and insulated one from the other. Their respective interior and exterior surfaces are electro chemically active. Within the inner case of each compartment a central element is provided which constitutes one electrode.

Bobby Burns and the Mayor.

On one occasion, arriving at Carlisle on horseback, Bobby Burns is said to have turned his steed out to grass for awhile, and the animal strayed on to a meadow belonging to the corporation and got impounded. Although the horse was given up to him, the poet retaliated upon the mayor, whose tenure of office was to expire on the very morrow of the incident, as follows:

Was e'er purr poet aye befted? The malster drunk—the horse committed! Purr harmless beast, tak' thee nae care; Thou'll be a horse when he's nae mair (mayor).

BRIGHT'S DISEASE CURED.

By Injecting Drugs Directly Into the Kidneys.

The important feature of the fifty-fifth annual meeting of the American Medical Association at Atlantic City was an address by Professor Winfield Ayres, associate professor of urology of the Postgraduate hospital of New York, who startled the convention by an unheralded announcement that he believed that Bright's disease, in the early stages, at least, was curable.

This disease has heretofore baffled all efforts to master it, but Professor Ayres thinks it can be done and backs up his claim. His treatment consists of injecting curative drugs directly into the kidneys. By doing this he is able to use much stronger medicines than could possibly be used through the stomach.

The professor claimed to have effected forty-three cures and said that out of ninety-three cases treated only one failed entirely to respond to treatment. He believed that further research would result in the finding of a treatment, which could be used at later stages of the disease, which would be equally effective.

A Successful Hay Fever Cure.

The treatment of hay fever by antipollen serum has been successful in a number of cases, and in a list of 285 patients to which it had been given under different circumstances and in different countries, recently compiled in Germany, 60 per cent are reported as completely relieved, 20 per cent partial cures and 11 per cent failures. Hay fever is supposed to result from the pollen of various plants, and the serum was prepared by inoculating horses with this pollen. It may be used in liquid or powdered form and is applied locally, no attempts having been made as yet at subcutaneous injection. There is strong evidence to believe in the efficacy of the serum, and in the majority of cases it was found possible to relieve the patient and to shorten materially the seizure. Although it does not, however, prevent a recurrence of the attack, it has great value as a prophylactic.

Collecting the Garbage.

The wisdom of the town collecting its garbage instead of letting the work out by contract has been demonstrated these warm summer days to the satisfaction of the inhabitants and the Board of Health who brought about the change from old conditions. Complaints, which now happily are few, are attended to more promptly and satisfactorily and the town is given a better service than ever before and at but little or no more increase in expense.

A Well Deserved Rest.

The many friends of Mr. E. A. Holbrook, the veteran grocer, who retires from active business this week, wish him the enjoyment of a well earned rest coupled with the hope that a cessation from the worry of business cares may restore him to perfect health. A more agreeable and courteous man would be hard to find. His aim, during his many years in the grocery business, has been to please and satisfy everyone and to these traits is attributed his success.

Winchester Managed on Business Lines.

Winchester teaches a lesson in municipal investment which should not be lost. A decade or less ago the town commenced a system of macadamized highways. The expenditure was something which threw the old moss backs into conniption fits. The conservatives were also undoubtedly somewhat disturbed. Outside communities waited and watched with a certainty that such a course of extravagance would some day result in a very bad state of finances. But the Winchester people were wise beyond most people. Their town has built up on lines which all may envy. The tax rate is down to $16.80 this year, due to a gain of $600,000 in real and personal estate. What appeared to be an exorbitant expenditure has been the means of a development, through attracting a most desirable and substantial element to the town, which probably could not have been brought about in any other way. Do not these results warrant the belief that highways may be so constructed that they will become an investment rather than an expense?—[Reading Chronicle.]

Winchester has been fortunate in having successful business men who are interested in its advancement willing to take hold of affairs. They believe that a town, to become attractive and strong, should be conducted on the same business lines as their own private enterprises. People like good streets, schools, sewers, water supply, fire department, library, etc., and prefer to live in a city or town that has these improvements, even if it should be necessary to pay a higher tax rate. Another factor in Winchester's favor is that its affairs are economically managed, the taxpayers receiving dollar for dollar expended.

Don't forget to take a writing table and a good fountain pen with you on your vacation. Wilson has some of each which are of the very best.

"Too Old."

Recently in two American cities two aged men have committed suicide because they could not obtain employment. One of the cases is reported from New York. A man about seventy-two years old had applied to the night watchman at a lumber yard for work and was told to call in the morning. He sat down by a pile of lumber where a number of men were gathered and appeared quite dejected.

"No one wants an old man," he said. As the night wore on the others went away, and the watchman in making his rounds found the old man stretched at full length, breathing heavily. He appeared to be in great pain, and his lips were burned.

The man was taken to Roosevelt hospital in an ambulance and died three hours later.

The other case occurred in Chicago. Andrew Wermilen, forty-five years old, could not obtain employment. "Sober, industrious and a first class mechanical engineer," was his description in his letters of recommendation, but all these qualities counted for nothing with the men to whom he went seeking employment. "You are too old," they told him. So Andrew Wermilen committed suicide.

The Chicago Record-Herald in commenting on the latter case well says:

We are apt to spend much breath from time to time in denouncing the drones and "spenglers" on society—whether beggars or idle rich—and often we use the very practical argument that they consume what they do not produce and that they are consequently wasteful members of society. What shall we say of the waste that is involved when society itself can find no place for competent men over forty-five, who are thus driven either to destitution or to lower grades of work or to suicide? The blame rests on society, which means on ourselves.

Does a man get "too old" to be denied the treatment of common humanity? Are we civilized, or even half civilized, when those who have grown aged in service can appeal to us in vain? Are not the soldiers of peace entitled to our care and consideration as well as those of war? Are those who fight to give life less entitled to kindness than those who fight to kill? When men ask not for charity, but only for a chance to earn, are we to turn from them because they have a few white hairs? Is there not enough for all did not the selfishness of man rise up to murder his brother?

There are the almshouses, we say. True, but they are often overcrowded, and some would rather die than lose their own self respect. They do not want to sponge, but to serve. They desire to give an equivalent for what they receive.

What shall we say of a society where things like these can occur? Surely it needs more humanity and less greed.

Russia's Port Arthur Fleet.

Sanguinary speculators about the Russian naval problem in the far east have laid much stress on the fact that with all the battering of Togo's guns and torpedoes and the accidents that befell them the Russians came out with a couple of battleships and twice as many cruisers in good sailing as well as good fighting trim and a couple of battleships effective after damages were patched up as floating batteries. A warship is not done for until it is mangled or sunk. With what the brave and ill-starred Makaroff left to his successors there still remained a chance to do something not only heroic, but telling on the naval situation. All the world remembers what Cervera might have done when he sailed out of Santiago harbor to cover his name and that of his fleet with imperishable renown. But glory was all that lay ahead of the Spaniards had they chosen to run amuck with Sampson's fleet instead of running away. The situation could not have been changed. There was no haven for a lucky ship to run to in case of escape, no friendly fleet bearing down to succor the surviving ships.

But not so with the Russian fleet either in Port Arthur or the open sea. Its partially disabled ships might land a few telling shots in an enemy's hull before going to the bottom or striking the flag, and the sound ones should give a good account of themselves unless the spirit of Makaroff has fled from the Russian navy. And if all should be lost in an encounter the sinking of a Japanese warship or two would be far better than surrender without a fight or the destruction of the fleet to keep it out of the enemy's hands.

Mayor Harrison has been asked to name the most beautiful woman in Chicago. If he wants to kill off his political enemy, he might delegate the job to John P. Hopkins.

If somebody will only find a red ant that will kill the brown tail moth, the people will rise up and petition for his appointment as an agricultural department expert.

Mrs. Maybrick is free at last. Justice gets her innings some time, though she frequently has to wait a long time—at least in England.

The number of widows a man leaves seems to increase in direct ratio with the number of dollars he leaves.

Boston is said to be sinking about a foot every century. Heavy thinking has its penalties.

Interest in the St. Louis Exposition—Beautiful Descriptive Booklet Free.

Mid-summer and the St. Louis Exposition is drawing thousands. This year many people are spending their summer's vacation on the Mississippi viewing the world's greatest Exposition. Newman Will Not Defend Famous A. C. A. Trophy.

James A. Newman, who won the famous sailing trophy of the American Canoe Association at the annual meet in 1903, said last night, that he would not be present at the races to take place at Sugar Island, St. Lawrence river, this month, and therefore would not defend possession of the cup. The Winchester Boat Club, of which Mr. Newman is fleet captain, it is understood, will not be represented in the sailing events, and the fight for first place in that class will, in all probability, be between D. B. Goodsell and F. C. Moore of the New York Canoe Club.

Sick Headache.

"For several years my wife was troubled with what physicians called sick headache of a very severe character. She doctored with several eminent physicians and at a great expense, only grew worse until she was unable to do any kind of work. About a year ago she began taking Chamberlain's Stomach and Liver Tablets and today weighs more than she ever did before and is real well," says Mr. Geo. E. Wright of New London, New York. Goldenrod Tonic For Hay Fever.

Serum obtained from animals inoculated with the pollen toxin of goldenrod has been experimented with as a remedy for hay fever, and a report of ten well developed cases shows gratifying results in the treatment of nine. The application of the serum to the nose relieves hay asthma, but has no effect upon similar conditions due to other causes.

Catarrh Cannot be Cured

It is prescribed by one of the best physicians in this country for years, and is a regular prescription. It is composed of the best tonics known, combined with the best blood purifiers, acting directly on the mucous surfaces. The perfect combination of the two ingredients is what produces such wonderful results in curing catarrh. Send for testimonials, free. F. J. CHENEY & Co., Prop., Toledo, O. Rameau and the Dog.

Many eccentricities are pardoned in musical geniuses, especially by those who do not suffer from them. Unfortunately the object of a musician's wrath is quite apt to be unable to appreciate why he has offended.

One can fancy the possessor of the untrained voice who figures in the following story thinking hard things of the celebrated composer Rameau.

One day Rameau while calling on a lady fixed a stern glance on a little dog who sat in her lap and was barking good naturedly. Suddenly Rameau seized the poor little fellow and threw him out of the window.

"What is the matter?" asked his hostess, much alarmed.

"He barked false!" said Rameau indignantly.

Economical.

Hasband—You are not economical. Wife—Well, if you don't call a woman economical who saves her wedding dress for a possible second marriage I'd like to know what you think economical is like.—Glasgow Times.

No Substitute Offered.

Say what you will about druggists offering something "just as good" because it pays a better profit, the fact still stands that ninety-nine out of a hundred druggist recommend Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy when the best remedy for diarrhoea is asked for, and do so because they know it is the one remedy that can always be depended upon, even in the most severe and dangerous cases. THE NEW FACTORY OF THE UNITED SHOE MACHINERY COMPANY AT BEVERLY.

The new factory plant of the United Shoe Machinery Company is being rapidly pushed forward to completion in Beverly, Mass. In all the notable examples of modern factory construction that have been brought prominently before the manufacturing world in the past few years, and there have been many, it is probable that none have attracted more widespread attention than this fine group of buildings, a faithful likeness of which in their completed state we are privileged to present herewith.

The conception of this plant dates back to the Company's formation, but so busy were its officials with the organization of the immense interests which the Company owns, that no active steps, looking towards its realization, were taken until some two years ago, when a committee, made up of factory experts chosen from the executives of the Company's principal factories, was appointed to gather the information which would place the Company in a position to build along the most advanced and reliable lines in construction and arrangement. This committee spent a year in visiting the principal factories of note in the United States, and gathered a great mass of interesting and valuable data in connection with every department of factory work. From this information, the Company's officials fortified their own conceptions of a factory in which the greatest economy could be realized in the production of the great variety of machines and shoe-making supplies which the United Shoe Machinery Company manufactures, and in which, also, the comfort and convenience of the small army of employees required in its operation would be fittingly conserved. After much study and careful consideration, the plans which are now being worked out in Beverly were decided upon.

Immediately, it was decided to build the new plant, Boards of Trade in the principal New England cities, realizing the great importance of the factory and the commercial advantages that would accrue to the community in which it was located, made most strenuous efforts to secure the Company's favorable consideration for the choice locations and very flattering proposals which they had to offer. After visiting the various cities and locations and carefully weighing the advantages afforded by each, the Building Committee decided that Beverly, in which the Company already has a large factory, offered facilities and inducements greater than those afforded by any other city, and it was therefore determined to locate there.

The site of the new plant is one of unusual advantage. On its eastern side, the main tracks of the Eastern Division of the Boston & Maine pass in close proximity, and suitable spur tracks afford easy and rapid means of handling the immense amount of incoming and outgoing freight which the magnitude of the business requires. On its southern side is a wharf property, with well dredged channel, providing a means by which coal, moulding sand and heavier materials used by the Company may be brought practically to its door by water freight; by this also a means of egress for the factory products is established, should the railroad, for any reason, prove unable to handle them.

The natural features of the site are most attractive. As it is approached from the higher land on the opposite side of the railroad tracks, the beautiful vista of the mill-pond, with its dam, stretching away toward North Beverly and the fine section of high land on its further side, which the Company owns, never fails to charm the eye of the beholder. They form a most beautiful setting for the factory, the coming of which is to bring about such a remarkable transformation in this community.

This plant consists of six buildings which have been, for convenience, lettered from A to F, inclusive. The building A, in the foreground, is 320 feet long, 62 feet wide, and four stories high. Running parallel to it, and duplicating it in size, is building B. The third building, C, is 202 feet long and 62 feet wide, and extending in line with building B, is building D. Still further to the left is the foundry building, E, and at the further angle of the parallelogram, which the group of buildings form, is the power house, F. All the buildings are of harmonious design and exceptionally well lighted; the glass areas being 90 per cent. of the wall space.

A feature of exceptional interest in the buildings, and one that is holding the attention of those throughout the country who have to do with large building propositions, is the fact that the whole group of buildings are of concrete construction. They form, undoubtedly, the largest and most notable example of this method in factory construction that has been attempted.

If one were to enter the factory with raw material, they would come in on the spur tracks, between building E and C. The heavy foundry supplies will be delivered direct to building E. In this building, many ideas have been incorporated which make it distinctive in its arrangement. The basement will be devoted to the storage of raw foundry materials; on the ground floor will be conducted the making of flasks, cleaning of castings, storage of patterns, and hot and cold pickling. Space has also been provided for the storage of castings, and the necessary toilet arrangements for employees in the foundry, separate shower baths and individual lockers. The first floor is the moulding room, with core making and brass foundry. It is provided with a large elevator running to the ground floor for carrying castings to the cleaning room, moving flasks, etc. The third floor is the charging room. A large elevator, directly connecting with the basement, will convey the raw materials used in the furnace to this floor.

The building D is but one story in height, but has been constructed to meet the requirements of the drop forge department. A special equipment for handling the immense variety of drop forgings, which the Company uses in the construction of its machines, will also be installed here as well as a considerable space devoted to the blacksmith shop and hardening department. In building C will be systematically stocked all the raw materials other than foundry supplies, used in the Company's manufacturing and from it will be issued the materials required by the different departments.

The ground floor of building B will be devoted to chuck work, Screw Machine Department, and the manufacture of Forepart Cutters. On the first floor will be the heavy machine work and the setting up of the heavier machines, which the Company manufactures. The second floor will be used for the preparation of the multiplicity of small but accurately made parts which perform important functions in machines of the Company's manufacture. The third or top floor of this building will be divided for the use of several departments, and will include the manufacture of awls and needles, the preparation of Sinker Taps, systems, wood and metal pattern making, as well as the making of Lasts and Forms for Leveling Machines and Moulds for Moulding Machines—a department in which the Company has been able to score a marked success—by producing for its patrons much more accurate results than they had been previously able to obtain and at a very material reduction in cost.

In building A, the ground floor will be used for the storage of small machine parts. When it is understood that the Company, in the regular routine of its business, manufactures some 60,000 different machine parts, many of which are in constant demand, the space required for systematically storing them can be readily understood. A portion of the first floor will be devoted to the factory offices, in which every method in keeping with the best practise in systematizing and accounting for factory work will be found. The balance of this floor will be used as a setting up room for the large number of smaller machines which the Company manufactures. On the second floor, accommodation has been arranged for a finely equipped drafting room, but the greater portion will be devoted to the manufacture of auxiliaries and findings of a very superior grade which the Company is now regularly supplying to its patrons. The entire third floor will be devoted to the Experimental and Tool-making Departments and will be thoroughly in keeping with the importance that the Company's officials attach to this work. A constant effort to improve upon existing machines and methods has been made in the past, but it is felt that much that could not be done, on account of the incomplete facilities afforded in the present factories, will be accomplished in the new building. This department will provide separate rooms for its inventors of which a large corps is regularly employed, and afford complete facilities for thoroughly trying out the different machines as they are produced.

The Power House Building, F, is most interesting in its equipment. The entire plant is electrically driven by motors, arranged for what is known as the motor group system. This requires 40 motors, ranging from 75 horse power down. The electric current required by these motors will be generated on the ground floor of the Power House, where a battery of four 275 horse power boilers, with room reserved for two more, will supply the steam necessary for heating the plant and power for two steam turbines of the Curtis type, directly connected with generators, each of which is capable of supplying 500 K. W. All the auxiliary devices necessary in the operation of such a power plant will be installed here, including Motor-driven Exciter, Steam-driven Exciter, Boiler Feed pumps, Fire pumps and pump for domestic water plant. Joining buildings A and B are two wings, which are designated as A. B. N. and A. B. S., the latter letter in each case being used to distinguish North from South. Building B and C, and B and D are also joined by wings. In these wings are located the clothing rooms, bath and toilet rooms, the entire sanitary arrangement being such that each individual is served on the same floor on which he works. The first floor of wing A. B. N. is the Women's floor, and will contain toilet rooms, bath rooms, a finely furnished resting room and individual lockers with keys. The Emergency Hospital, which will be equipped with every appliance necessary in first aid to the injured, will also be located here. In wing A. B. S. will be the toilet room for men, shower baths, and locker rooms. The other wings, although smaller, provide similar accommodations.

The heating of the entire plant will be accomplished by means of hot air, the indirect system being used. The air will be taken from a point above the roof, drawn into a heating chamber and then forced into the different parts of the factory. By a special ventilating system the foul air is also forced from the buildings. The pipes which convey steam for heating purposes, as well as the wires which carry the electric current to the different portions of the buildings, are laid in a tunnel which makes a complete circuit of the buildings which makes it possible to inspect any portion of the wiring or piping at any time. It is estimated that at least nine miles of piping will be required in the equipment of the heating plant alone, and that 30,000 pounds of steam per hour will be required in zero weather.

One of the most interesting phases in the development and arrangement of the new plant is the exactness with which every detail of space and equipment has been determined. Long before the plans were drawn, the Company's officials knew just how much floor space would be required for present needs, and were in a position to estimate accurately on requirements for future developments. This was accomplished by a thorough canvass of every process employed by the Company in its manufacturing and careful consideration of its relation to other details in the factory system. The machines were placed, together with the tools required, and the space occupied, with that required for their operation and care of parts in process was carefully computed. In this way, every portion of the factory space has been arranged to accomplish the most desirable results. It is expected that the new plant, when in operation, will form the most notable example of achievement in modern manufacturing.

Tuners Appoint Examiners.

Officers of the Helmholtz National Society of Pianoforte Tuners of America Report That the Society is Progressing Rapidly.—Second Vice-President Atton Visits New York.

W. H. Atton, second vice-president of the Helmholtz National Society of Pianoforte Tuners of America, who resides in Baraboo, Wis., was in New York last week and called at the executive offices of the association. Mr. Atton appeared to be very much impressed with the work that has been accomplished so far and made a glowing report of the progress of the association in the West.

C. A. Gregory, who recently resigned the position of secretary of the association, will continue an active member and his former duties will be assumed by Alexander Hart, first vice-president.

At a recent meeting of the officers of the association the following members were appointed examiners in their respective territories: C. H. Sawyer, Foxcroft, Me.; R. Newton Johns, Oshawa, Ontario; J. Edward Black, Springfield, Miss.; J. L. Miller, Ft. Worth, Texas; F. A. Locke, Boston, Mass.; J. McCulloch, Memphis, Tenn.; and W. H. Atton, Baraboo, Wis.

Fake tuners are becoming so numerous and are spoiling so many pianos that a National Society of Tuners has been formed to protect the people from them. We notice that Frank A. Locke, the well known piano tuner of our town, has been appointed an examiner for Boston and vicinity.—Editor.

More Thunder Storms.

Winchester has been visited by some unusually severe thunder storms this summer, and that of last Monday night was no exception. To the average citizen, who was trying to get a little sleep, it seemed as if half-a-dozen storms passed over the town during the night. From the first shower, a little after five o'clock in the evening, until Tuesday morning the thunder and lightning reigned supreme except for a brief intermission early in the night.

No serious damage was done, except the washouts on the streets and sidewalks. The side hill streets were almost all more or less gutted and some of the more level thoroughfares also suffered. Supt. Spates had practically all the damage repaired by Wednesday.

At intervals during the night the fire alarm sounded, caused by the electricity. No reports of the lightning striking in town were received.

Taken With Cramps.

Wm. Kirmse, a member of the bridge gang working near Littleport was taken suddenly ill Thursday night with cramps and a kind of cholera. His case was so severe that he had to have the members of the crew wait upon him and Mr. Gifford was called and consulted. He told them he had a medicine in the form of Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy that he thought would help him out and accordingly several doses were administered with the result that the fellow was able to be around next day. The incident speaks quite highly of Mr. Gifford's medicines.—Elkader, Iowa, Argus.

To enable worn-out human beings to lapse into soothing slumber as soon as the head touches the pillow is the purpose of a recent invention in the shape of a pillow the soporific vapors from which are conducive of immediate and restful sleep. The results are accomplished by inhalation.

The uniform success which attends the use of this remedy in all cases of bowel complaints in children has made it a favorite wherever its value has become known. For sale by O'Connor's Pharmacy.

THE SNIPE'S DRUMMING.

A Naturalist's Theory as to How the Sound is Produced.

It is disputed whether the snipe's drumming is a curious noise, suggestive of a miniature thrashing machine, is made by the bird with its wings or by its tail or by both wings and tail. Some recent observations incline me strongly to believe that the tail plays, at any rate, the more important part. During the performance the bird flies at a great height round and round in a wide, sweeping circle. At intervals he makes a sudden and rapid descent, holding his wings partly flexed and his tail spread to its full extent. The outermost tail feather on either side points outward at a greater angle than those adjoining it, so that when the bird is watched through a good field glass daylight shows between it and the next, and, if I am right in my view, the drumming sound is due to the rush of air against this isolated feather. The snipe's tail feathers seem so puny that it is at first difficult to believe that they can produce so great a result. But if an outer one be taken it is slightly scimitar shaped, with the outer web much reduced—and swung rapidly through the air the drumming noise may be distinctly heard, though it seems but a very faint echo of the loud, thrashing hum that startles one when it suddenly descends from an ethereal height, and the small bird is described, hardly more than a speck to the naked eye, circling round in wild career and now and then swooping headlong downward and thrilling the air with his weird music.—London Nature.

THE LITERARY DETECTIVE.

His Hunt is One That Adds Spice to His Reading.

There is a certain type of literary man who seems content to take little part in the struggle of letters beyond keeping an eye on his contemporaries and pouncing down on them every now and then to accuse them of having given a meaning to such and such a word which that word should not possess. It is strange that the number of these literary detectives is not larger, for there are few more fascinating occupations than this. It lends a spice to one's reading. The duldest book becomes as readable as the most deftly written novel. Certain words have taken to themselves meanings in the course of time which they have no right to possess. "Phenomenon" is a very hardened offender. To use this word as meaning something "strange" instead of something "that appears and is visible" is to insure arrest at the hands of the detective. Lately the word "temper" has been exposed. Through long impunity it has come to imply bad temper, whereas, if it were its rights, it should mean just the reverse. We strongly advise every one who desires a never failing source of amusement to read the next novel he takes up with the eye of the detective. Starting with the easier words, like "phenomenon," the novice may go on from strength to strength until before long nothing can escape him. The exercise, moreover, is not only a pleasure, but a duty.—London Globe.

Why Windmills Burned Down.

Of the production of fire by the friction of wood against wood windmills of the old construction gave on a large scale some disastrous examples. When the force of the wind increased the miller was obliged to bring each of the sails in succession to the ground in order to unclutter it, but when sudden squalls came on this was impracticable, and the mill in extreme cases ran away—that is, could not be stopped.

Everything was now done to increase the grip of the wooden brake round the great wheel on the driving shaft, and water was poured copiously over them, but in spite of all this flames would sometimes burst out from the intense friction, and the mill be probably burned down as the result. The beautiful machinery of the modern windmill, by which the miller controls the action of the sails from the interior of the building, has reduced this danger to a minimum.—Notes and Queries.

Memory.

There are too different varieties of memory, and perhaps we cannot altogether choose which we will possess, though every sort, when we have the genius of it, may be cultivated. To learn anything by heart the best plan is to read a sentence and repeat it without a book, then read the next sentence and repeat the two, and so on. Repetition is of great importance, "line upon line." More is learned and remembered by reading through one book twice than by reading two books once. After a thing has been learned it must be recalled and gone over at intervals, or the impression will fade away.

Spats.

Where did spats come from? Highland soldiers wore them first. Because of the bravery of highlanders at Lucknow and elsewhere in India during the Indian mutiny the people of England looked about for some way to show their admiration. Scrutiny of the highland dress disclosed that spats were the most suitable for adoption, so they were adopted and have been commonly worn ever since.

We all spend too much time in complaining that we lack time to do things.—Athenian Globe.

NEW VOTING MACHINE.

A Hartford Device Which is Regarded as Nearly Perfect.

A voting machine in which the inventors and their backers, New York capitalists, have the greatest confidence has just been perfected in Hartford, Conn.

The instrument has been finished with the greatest care. William M. Delavan, the inventor, has worked on it since 1900, and even before that time he had made a study of voting machines. Now he believes that he has solved a problem that has confronted every village and every city in the Union. He is convinced that he will usher in the era of quick voting when results of elections will be known at once instead of sometimes days afterward.

The device, which has been named the Triumph voting machine, stands five feet nine inches high and is eight inches deep. It rests on two pairs of legs two feet one inch high. It is placed against a wall, and the voter is secluded by metal wings. The metal inside the machine is bronze, while the outer case is sheet steel.

The operation is simple. It is worked by a system of levers instead of buttons, as in many other mechanical devices for quick voting. The voter raises an entrance bar and steps to the face of the machine, on which he finds a complete Australian ballot. If he wishes to vote a straight ticket, he pulls a straight party lever. This lever makes connections with a counter for each candidate on that ticket. When the voter leaves the booth, a vote for each candidate on that ticket is registered.

Should a voter wish to split his ticket he pulls the small individual levers opposite the names of the several candidates, these names being indicated on the Australian ballot.

To cast a ballot that is nearly straight he will pull down a straight party lever and then pull small individual levers opposite the names of the particular candidates on the other tickets whom he wishes to aid. The pulling of these particular individual levers automatically returns the corresponding individual levers in the column of his own straight party ticket.

To vote for three or four candidates alone out of twenty a voter need only pull the levers opposite the names of these.

The polls having been closed and the machine locked so as to prevent further voting, the rear doors are unlocked. The vote for each candidate is shown on the counters and is easily transferred to paper.

A LUMINOUS DRINK.

Used by Doctors to Light up Patients' Interiors.

The discovery of a greenish fluid which when shaken gives a peculiar light and which when used in conjunction with electricity illuminates the interior of a person's body so that physicians can gaze through the abdominal wall has aroused the greatest interest among New York doctors, who predict that abdominal disorders, cancer, dyspepsia and similar diseases will now be easily cured.

The new system has already been applied to patients at the Bushwick central hospital and at other institutions.

The greenish fluid is called fluorescein, or Kemp's fluid, Dr. R. Coleman Kemp of Manhattan having been its discoverer and the first to experiment with it.

The mode of treating dyspepsia and other diseases by fluorescein is as follows: A tiny incandescent globe is swallowed by the patient. This light is no bigger than a tiny marble, the lamp being attached to two small copper wires incased in rubber tubing, the wires attached in turn to an electric battery.

The patient is given ten grains of quinine and an eighth of a grain of fluorescein, a dram of glycerin and twenty or more grains of sodium bicarbonate. Then the light is turned on, the greenish fluid making the interior of the stomach visible in detail to the physician. The work of effecting a cure is thus rendered easier.

The discovery is said to be superior to the X ray.

LIECHTENSTEIN.

A Little Known Country in the Heart of Central Europe.

A people who tax their prince, a country almost unknown in the heart of central Europe, an independent and whimsical principality of sixty-eight square miles, lying in the eastern Alps, bordering the upper Rhine, hemmed in by Switzerland and Austria and but a few miles from the German frontier—it has been independent for over two centuries and was forgotten by Bismarck so runs the local peasantry—at the reorganizations following the Prussian wars with Austria and France.

It is not tucked inaccessibly away. Thousands of Americans on their way to Innsbruck have seen from the train the towering mountains of the little state. Others, on their way to Davos-Platz, have glanced at a distant little town at the foot of a castle rock without suspecting that they were looking at one of the capitals of Europe.

There is no military service. There is no national debt. There is a nominal tax, only a tenth as large as that of Austria. The ruling prince gives freely for the good of the people out of his huge private fortune. So far from deriving any revenue from his principality, he pays heavily for the pleasure of holding it.

Following the close of the war between Austria and Prussia, in which Liechtenstein allied itself with Austria, there came another gravely presented protest. The citizens were weary of the expense of a standing army, an army which, consisting of eighty men, with a captain and a trumpeter, had bravely marched toward the scene of hostilities, but too late to arrive before the war had come to its swift end.

There is now a written constitution. There is a little parliament of fifteen members. Three members are named by the prince; twelve are elected by the people, every man in Liechtenstein over twenty-four years old having a vote. The little body meets once in every year and remains in session for several weeks, engaged in the very attention of discussion of petty things.

It is Lilliput ruled by its Gulliver. And, although on account of the fiscal arrangement Austrian coins and stamps are generally used, the prince's personal pride in his possession has led him to have his own stamps and coins as well, bearing his name and face and title.

And there is another touch to add to the unreality of it all. Coming to Vaduz only at infrequent intervals and bustled as he is at his private estates or at Vienna—for, besides being sovereign prince of Liechtenstein, he bears an Austrian title by virtue of which he is a member of the Austrian house of lords—he can at any time call up his principality by long distance telephone—Robert Shackleton in Harper's Magazine.

Bogus Advertising.

The promoter of a bogus enterprise understands the peculiarity of that portion of the public he seeks, and instead of inch items he announces "The Rising Star Elevator-African Mining, Development and Ameliorating Corporation, Limited," in advertisements that cover solid pages in the daily papers. This is the peg of the successful advertising swindler: Show the "come on" that it's well advertised and he will throw in what ready cash he has, mortgage his house and lot and then make himself a missionary for the Rising Star Elevator-African among the army of his wife's relations. When the wife's relations throughout the country have been rounded up and yielded over everything but their humoral souls, the Rising Star Elevator, etc., goes into the hands of a receiver, and the divisions and brigades of maternal relatives may think it over. The Rising Star is never heard of again. Some months after, when things have quieted down, the promoter of that institution suddenly flares forth as the "Wind and Water Promoting and Pyrotechnical Company," controlling untold millions in Popocatepec county, Salt River, Jumping-off place. Again the solid newspaper page. Again what shekels the mourners of Rising Star Elevator-African have managed in the interim to save or borrow.—Atlantic.

A Quaint Epitaph.

In the churchyard of St. Leonard's, Shore-ditch, is perhaps the most curious gravestone in London. The stone is inscribed:

1807.
Dr. John Gardner's Last and Best Bedroom.
Who Departed this Life the 8th of April, 1836, in his 84th year. Also here interred two of his Sons and two of his Grand-sons.

Dr. John Gardner, according to T. P.'s Weekly, practiced as a worm doctor in Norton Folgate, that quaint continuation of Bishopsgate street without. He was a well known character and as late as 1890 a correspondent of Notes and Queries was able to recall him as a stout, burly man, with a flaxen wig. He rode daily into London on a large roan colored horse. Some years before his death he set up his own gravestone in the churchyard of St. Leonard's and inscribed it with the words quoted.

Sauerkraut.

Here is an imaginative story illustrating the estimate that some German citizens place on sauerkraut as a food staple. A German was speaking about the high price of cabbage. "I tell you, these kabbages is awful high this year," he said. "Me und me vife puts up six, seven, eight barrels of sauerkraut every year, but we can't die year. Dem kabbages dey cost too much." "You put up some sauerkraut, didn't you, Chris?" he was asked. "Oh, yes; two or three barrels; just to haf in de house in case of sickness."

GASOLINE LOCOMOTIVES.

Adapted to Traffic on Ordinary Railway Lines.

The extending use of automobiles has given gas engine design an impetus which has resulted in placing on the market gas engines of a size and reliability for hard, unfavorable road work which was not thought to be possible a few years ago. It is but natural, since traction was the primary cause of this improvement, that we find many methods being tried for adapting this form of power to a locomotive to be used on the ordinary steam or electric railways.

We give an illustration of a locomotive built by the Prouty-Pierce Locomotive Manufacturing company of Kansas City, Kan., using a gasoline engine for power, which is a good example.

This gasoline engine is of the vertical single cylinder four cycle type and has a heavy flywheel. The exhaust valve is opened by a cam and the inlet valve by the vacuum formed by the descending piston. It is water jacketed, the water being circulated by a centrifugal pump driven from the main shaft. The ignition is by means of an electric jump spark.

The engine runs continuously in one direction, and the power is transmitted to the wheels through a reversible clutch. This is so designed that the car is started and stopped smoothly and can be run in either direction, while the engine runs continuously one way. The faces of the friction lock the driving gear by impingement. The clutch is on an intermediate shaft, which is geared to the driving shaft.

The weight is distributed to three points by making one support over the center of the axle and equalizing it across to the boxes.

The storage of gasoline is carried on the tank in a tank with walls over one-half inch thick. The gasoline is not fed by gravity, but is carried over by mechanical action only when the engine is moving. A lower grade of gasoline can be used, thus reducing the operating cost considerably.

The passenger locomotive shown has power enough to haul an ordinary passenger coach or interurban car at a good speed. It carries enough supplies to last for a hundred mile run without a stop and only requires one man to operate it.

GENIUS A DISEASE.

Professor Robert MacDougall of New York Thinks It Is.

The influence of health upon mental activity has been receiving attention from Professor Robert MacDougall of New York. From the traits of five American men of science, as estimated by twelve independent judges, he infers that executive ability, with breadth and sanity of mind, vary directly with physical health, but is inclined to suspect that general mental efficiency is prompted by conditions of unsound health.

The central nervous system is perhaps overdeveloped at the expense of the rest of the body. Original mental endowment, quickness and clearness of grasp appear to be independent of the health. The virtues of will-energy, courage, capacity for leadership fall off rapidly with extreme weakness, but are often highly developed in medium health. Reasonableness, unselfishness and the like appear to belong neither to the strong nor to the frail or nervously unstable. Emotional sensibility and refinement reach a maximum in the delicate and a minimum in the strong.

A New Alloy.

Invar, an alloy which when heated contracts instead of expands, has recently been invented by Dr. Guillaume, the physicist. It consists of nickel and steel, therefore of two metals which each for itself expands rather considerably in heat. Correct measurements have, however, shown that Dr. Guillaume has really produced alloys which when heated expand even less than marble or wood and when slightly changed in their composition even contract when heated. Proportions of compositions of alloys have also been found so that they neither expand nor contract, but remain the same in all degrees of heat.

A Lamp Made of Microbes.

A curious lamp has been constructed by a professor. A glass globe placed on a metal stand is nearly filled with a liquid composed of luminous marine microbes. There are two tubes running from the globe, and through these a supply of air can be sent to the interior when the light grows dull, the effect apparently being to revivify the microbes. The light from this lamp will last for several weeks without renewal of the illuminating medium.

Leprosy Not Contagious.

Leprosy has been investigated by Jonathan Hutchinson, the great English pathologist, in all parts of the globe where it prevails. He finds nothing to justify the idea of contagion, as attendants in leper hospitals do not contract the disease, nothing like an epidemic is ever known, and even transmission from husband to wife is rare. He attributes the disease to decayed or badly cured fish, not to any excessive use of fish in good condition.

At an examination in an English school the teacher was so pleased with his class that he said they could ask him any question they liked.

Some were asked and replied to. Seeing one little fellow in deep thought, the teacher asked him for a question. The boy answered, with a grave face: "P-lease, sir, if you was in a soft mud heap up to your neck and I was to throw a brick at your head, would you duck?"

The answer is not recorded.

Supt. of Streets Spates has had a busy week making repairs caused by the heavy rain of Monday night and Tuesday morning.

The N. Y., N. H. & H. railroad which has by its wretched suburban service kept its patrons in a constant state of protest, has now aroused them to the highest pitch of indignation by taking off a score or more of local trains in order to save dollars for dividends. In one respect at least we who live in the northern part of Greater Boston have an advantage over the suburban towns in the southern part in having the excellent service of the Boston & Maine rather than that of the New York owned road on which they have to depend. — [Wakefield Item.] It is not believed there is any State in the Union that receives better service than that given by the Boston & Maine. This condition is bound to make the territory north of Boston become more populous and more sought after for residential purposes. It does not pay to be too economical and niggardly at the expense of the people.

Mr. Henry C. Nickerson and family are spending the month at Chequesset Inn, Weymouth, Mass.

Mr. George W. Davenport, formerly of this town, third vice president of the Niagara Falls Power Company, sends the STAR an illustrated circular giving a detailed description of that wonderful plant which has succeeded in putting to harness a portion of the great energy of Niagara Falls and converting it into electricity.

Rev. Doremus Scudder, the beloved pastor of First Church, Woburn, now in Honolulu, H. I., is expected to visit that city next October.

Comparisons are generally interesting even if at times and under certain conditions they are odious. For the sake of offering a basis of comparison we give the rate of taxation in this and adjoining places. — Arlington $18.70, Lexington $19.00, Medford $18.80, Somerville $17.20, Watertown $18.75, Winchester $16.80. These figures are copied from columns of our exchanges and in commenting on them our contemporaries have noted a large increase in valuation, but as seems to be the general rule now expenses have increased in even larger ratio and in the main, the rate is the same as last year, though to this rule Arlington this year offers an notable exception, the rate a year ago being $21.00. — [Arlington Advocate.]

A skunk was captured last Friday night by Mrs. Cassidy and her daughter Mary. He was kept under cover until Saturday noon. He was then shot by Mr. Charles Hemingway.

Mr. A. H. Richardson and family have returned from E. Orleans.

Miss Margaret Sands has been spending the past two weeks in Bridgewater.

Mrs. F. S. Collar of Boston has been chaperoning a party of Winchester people at "The Gables," Brant Rock, among them Alice M. Crawford, the Misses Browning and H. L. Vose.

Louis Adelman, aged 24 years, of Wakefield, is totally blind as the result of a peculiar accident. A few days ago he went in bathing in Lake Quannapowitt, and after dressing and returning home his eyesight gradually failed until he became totally blind. Eye specialists say that nothing can be done to restore the sight as the optic nerve is paralyzed.

Newsy Paragraphs.

Charles P. French was awarded the contract for plumbing the Highland school.

The heavy rain the first of the week cost the town about $300 for washouts.

Miss Elizabeth Downs, who has been spending several weeks in the mountains, is now at North Conway.

The engagement of Mr. Calvin W. Rice of Eaton street to a Chicago lady is announced.

Judge Littlefield's Trolley Party Goes to Salem Willows.

The Mystic Valley Trolley Club took its fourth trip of this season to Salem Willows, on Thursday, going by way of Stoneham, Reading, North Reading, Andover, Middleton, Danvers and Salem, returning through Peabody, Lynnfield, Wakefield and Stoneham. One of Chase's celebrated fish dinners was eaten at the Willows. Bowling and watching a baseball game between two colored nines filled up the odd time.

The loss of Edwin's hat and its rapid recovery by Conductor Dulong; the strike inadvertently made by Harry, which for the rest of the day turned his head and the unexpected Moxie treat given by him to the crowd were among the thrilling incidents of the trip. President Littlefield and Lieutenant Payne were present as usual. The only unfortunate occurrence was the inability of one of the party to find any berries on the route.

The next trip will take place on Thursday, Aug. 11th. The Sequantum Inn is the destination of the Club. The start will be on the 7:25 Arlington car.

What Happened in Winchester 20 Years Ago, or Thereabouts.

Files of The STAR

THE MYSTIC VALLEY R. R.

Is going ahead rapidly. On Saturday a number of horses passed through the centre on the way to the west side. About forty men have been engaged for this section and ten or twelve horses. It is estimated that in three months the road from North Wilmington to Somerville, about seventeen miles, will be completed. Many of the men employed have been railroaded in the West, and are experienced in that business.

The road, starting at North Wilmington, is over the old bed running to North Woburn, Woburn Center, rear of town library crossing Pleasant street—Winchester—west side, crosses the B. & M. R. R. at Mystic Lake, into Medford to East Somerville, where it will connect with the B. & M. Main Line.

On Monday last the Winchester section was staked off, and Tuesday and Wednesday the men and teams got to work. The weather is very favorable to railroad ing.

Our stores will experience a stimulus in their trade on account of this work and altogether Winchester will benefit by it.

The work of putting in a connection with the Boston & Maine railroad was completed Tuesday by putting in a switch and the laying of some rails on the Mystic Valley Railroad. This was done to facilitate the further building of the road as a means to transport ties and rails when needed as the road is built, also to be used in grading the road as the work progresses.

From a later issue:

Deputy Sheriff Fiske has posted at the Winchester post-office and in Woburn a notice of auction sale, on the 18th day of February, 1882, at 1 o'clock p. m., at the passenger station of the Boston and Lowell railroad, in Winchester center, of "the franchises of the Boston & Mystic Valley Railroad Company with all the rights, privileges," etc., etc.

It is said that the present owners are not disposed to put any more money into the concern, but on the contrary, are negotiating for a return of the funds already paid for it. It is said on good authority that they will return the road as they took it to the former owners for the return of the endorsed paper which they gave, amounting to $16,000, and that the $1200 in cash which was paid down they are willing to lose. If these negotiations are completed and the former owners get possession again, they have another customer ready to take it off their hands, complete it, and put the road in thorough working order and run it for what it is worth.

As near as can be learned, the old board and the new have got into something of a muddle, and exactly what the result will be is at present difficult to ascertain. But one thing is certain—it is a most unfortunate road, and any future rumors, in the direction of rebuilding the road, will be accepted with a small quantity of salt.

Note—This Mystic Valley Railroad was to be built in competition to the Boston & Lowell R. R. (now the So. Div. of the B. & M.) and the old road bed is still visible in many parts of our town. On the west side it may be seen where it crosses Everett avenue, also the bank on the shore of Mystic Lake, where it was to cross just north of the aqueduct. It is also visible on the Plains, etc.

Rice-Weibezahn.

At noon, Saturday, a quiet but extremely pretty home wedding was observed at the residence of Mr. and Mrs. Edward H. Rice at No. 20 Eaton street. The ceremony was the uniting of their son, Mr. Calvin Winsor Rice of New York City, and Miss Nellie Moseley Weibezahn of Chicago in marriage. Rev. Henry E. Hodge, pastor of the First Baptist church, officiated. The ceremony was private, and witnessed only by a few very intimate friends and relatives of the couple. The bride was charmingly gowned in cream white tulle, crepe with lace and carried a bunch of the valley. The ceremony was performed in a veritable bower of green; palms, asparagus fern and pink gladioli being used in the decoration of the rooms. Besides a profusion of cut flowers, making a most handsome adornment to the large airy rooms.

Following the ceremony a wedding breakfast was served, friends and relatives to the number of 65 being present from New York, Chicago, Burlington and Winchester. Mr. and Mrs. Rice then left on a wedding tour, after which they will reside in New York, where Mr. Rice is consulting engineer for the General Electric Company. The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William E. Weibezahn of Chicago, while Mr. Rice is well known in this town, he having graduated from our High school and the Institute of Technology, Boston.

The array of wedding gifts was most

A BRILLIANT SLEIGHING PARTY.

Mr. Charles Tyler was instrumental in getting up a grand sleighing party for Thursday evening last and Mr. Winn furnished and drove a spirited team. The party was composed of the following:

Messrs. Chas. Tyler, John Mason, George E. Blaisdell, Charles Herrick, Will Brewer, Philip Cutter, Irving Whitney, Harry Holt, George Nichols, Fred Nichols and Misses Clara Whitney, Gertrude Tyler, Cora Simonds, Carrie Pond, Grace Conant, Nettie Coffin, Hattie Carter, Ella Houston, Addie Mason, May Mason.

MEMORIAL DAY

In Winchester was observed as a general holiday, and the town bore a decidedly holiday aspect.

In the morning the P. Waldmyer Hose Co. were photographed in front of the Central Engine House. They presented a handsome appearance in their new uniforms. When the photographing business was finished the company went out for a practice on the grounds at the foot of Walnut street. Everything worked charmingly.

At 4 o'clock the members of the Post assembled in their hall and commanded by W. A. Snow, and headed by the Everett band, they paraded through the town, marching to Wildwood Cemetery. The Post was escorted in their parade by the P. Waldmyer Hose Co. in uniform.

Geo. P. Brown offers a reward of $10 for information relative to the recent forcible entering of the Winchester Club's boat house on Wedge Pond.

Newton Knapp and George Huse captured a young fox the other evening while out driving.

On Thursday the Mill pond yielded to Burt Carlton's wootings a 3 lb. bass.

The fish dealers are praying for a continuation of the high price of beef. But they are a notoriously wicked crowd. It remains to be seen whether they will succeed in making themselves heard.

On Saturday last the Myopia Club had a grand time at their club house.

The public library had to be closed Saturday evening at six o'clock instead of eight on account of the disagreeable odor of the new varnish which had been recently used in the room.

An interesting game of nine pins was played in Arlington this week by Winchester parties. Note—Presumably Judge Littlefield was one of the "parties."

Mr. Henry C. Miller has been elected president of the Young Men's Association.

Some of the Town officers for 1882 were:
Town Clerk, Warren F. Foster.
Collector, Mral Cushman.
Treasurer, John T. Manny.
Selectmen, Highway Surveyors and Overseers of the Poor, Albert Ayer
Warren Johnson
Charles H. Dunham.

Police, F. A. Patterson, Andrew T. Todd.
Supt. of Street, A. C. Quimby.

Lamp Lighter, J. D. Sharon.
Lockup Keeper, F. A. Patterson.

On the tennis courts, Sept. 3 and 5, will be played men's singles (handicap) and mixed doubles. The ladies' championship singles (scratch) is set down for Sept. 10 and men's championship singles (scratch) comes Sept. 17.

A Dig at Mayor Feeney.

Mayor Feeney's pet project, "Woburn teachers for Woburn schools," gets a bad beating at the hands of the city's School Committee, which apparently believes that the best teachers to be obtained, regardless of their place of nativity, are none to good. And that's the common-sense way of looking at it.—Boston Journal.

SANITARY HOUSING.

What Is Being Done in Germany in That Line.

According to United States Commercial Agent Harris at Elberstock a great deal is being done in Germany for the benefit of the working people, especially in the matter of providing them with suitable dwellings. Large manufacturing establishments, municipal bodies, charitable organizations and private speculators, Mr. Harris says, have each and all done much toward bettering the hygienic conditions and general welfare of the skilled workman and his family in every part of the empire.

Since 1842 the Prussian government has expended about $2,000,000 in dwelling houses for the coal miners in the district of Saarbrücken, and the miners repay the loan by monthly installments without interest. Similar methods were adopted with success by the royal munition factory at Spandau. The building societies at Gladbach, Garmen, Dresden and other cities of the empire have also proved successful in that respect.

The Krupp establishment at Essen takes the lead in providing comfortable houses and cottages for the laboring classes. In 1901 the value of the dwellings used exclusively by its workmen was $3,875,000. There were 1,600 houses of two rooms each, 1,800 houses of three rooms each, 448 houses of four rooms each, 150 houses of five rooms each, 63 houses of six rooms each and 84 houses of seven rooms each, making a total of 4,274 houses.

During the past ten years a great improvement has taken place in the conditions surrounding the dwellings of laborers, and the increased attention on the part of municipal authorities to sanitary arrangements and the police laws against too many persons occupying one room, Commercial Agent Harris says, have had a salutary influence.

POSTAL MONEY CARRIER.

Novel Method of Sending Small Coins by Mail.

Since the success which a number of large firms have made through the mail order business numerous concerns have made small beginnings along the same line, sometimes with only a single article at a low price, but often meeting with considerable success in the venture. One difficulty with some mail order business is the necessity of sending a small coin through the mail. If a money order is used it increases the cost of the article to such an extent that it may be bought at home as cheaply, and if the coin is sent loose in an envelope it may work its way through and be lost in transit.

Some firms have made use of the coin card to prevent this, but this necessitates two cent postage. To reduce the cost still further a coin postal card has been designed by a Pennsylvania man, an illustration of the card being shown in the accompanying drawing. All that is necessary with this arrangement is to insert the coin in the little pocket on the face of the card, seal the flap with a one cent stamp, write the name and address on the face and the order and information on the back.

Possibly this device would come under the same class as the private mailing card already authorized by congress, and each firm can send out its own cards ready for use by the customer.

The designer of this invention is William G. Hough of Jacobs Creek, Pa.

Incombustible Celluloid.

It is reported that two Frenchmen, MM. Mabile and Leclerc, have patented a process for making a kind of celluloid which is incombustible. To a solution of celluloid is added a mixture of ether and alcohol containing certain iron salts. A clear liquid of the consistency of sirup results, and if the solvents are driven off from this an incombustible nonflammable celluloid remains. It would appear from the announcement that a chloride of iron is used, since it is stated that should the celluloid become heated the gases of the chloride components would extinguish the flames. The material can be worked as easily as the ordinary celluloid, and it is thought that it will be valuable in the manufacture of electrical apparatus.

Diseases of Trees.

Most diseases of trees are due to fungi, which attack roots or trunk and sometimes branches or leaves. The older the tree the more liable it is to be attacked, while wounds open the way for infection. M. Schrenck, a French forester, has been studying these fungous diseases and their remedies and has learned many important facts. The forcing of antiseptic salts into railway ties, which are being destroyed by fungi in great numbers, is the best method of preservation yet known.

Phthisis Microbe Found.

Professor Schron of Naples, the discoverer of life in crystals, has found a new microbe which causes phthisis, a microbe quite different from that causing tuberculosis. Professor Schron affirms that this discovery explains why Dr. Koch's serum not only did not cure phthisis, but aggravated it. Phthisis and pulmonary tuberculosis have been considered as practically if not actually identical, the popular name for both being consumption.

Improving the Race.

A new science has been inaugurated. It is called "eugenics" and relates to the improvement of the race, chiefly in a physical way. In a word, it concerns the breeding of stronger children. Professor Francis Galton, the famous English biologist, says of the new science: "The aim of eugenics is to represent each class or sect by its best specimens, causing them to contribute more than their proportion to the next generation; that done, to leave them to work out their common civilization in their own way."

What can a learned society do to further such a science? Professor Galton suggests the following course of procedure: First, dissemination of a knowledge of the laws of heredity so far as they are surely known and promotion of their further study; second, historical inquiry into the rates with which the various classes of society have contributed to the population at various times; third, systematic collection of facts showing the circumstances in which large and thriving families have most frequently originated; fourth, a study of the influences affecting marriage; fifth, persistence in setting forth the national importance of this kind of study. Says the writer in conclusion:

"There are three stages to be passed through before eugenics can be widely practiced. First, it must be made familiar as an academic question until its exact importance has been understood and accepted as a fact; secondly, it must be recognized as a subject the practical development of which is in near prospect and requires serious consideration; thirdly, it must be introduced into the national conscience, like a new religion. It has indeed strong claims to become an orthodox religious tenet of the future, for eugenics co-operates with the workings of nature by securing that humanity shall be represented by the fittest races. What nature does blindly, slowly and ruthlessly man may do providently, quickly and kindly. As it lies within his power, so it becomes his duty to work in that direction, just as it is his duty to be charitable to those in his fortune. The improvement of our stock seems one of the highest objects that can be reasonably attempted. We are ignorant of the ultimate destinies of humanity, but feel perfectly sure that it is as noble a work to raise its level as it would be disgraceful to abase it. I see no impossibility in eugenics becoming a religious dogma among mankind, but its details must first be worked out sedulously in the study. Over-zeal leading to hasty action would do harm by holding out expectations of a near golden age which would certainly be falsified and cause the science to be discredited. The first and main point is to secure the general intellectual acceptance of eugenics as a hopeful and most important study. Then let its principles work into the heart of the nation, which will gradually give practical effect to them in ways that we may not wholly foresee."

It surely is time that matters of this sort be talked of in purity and frankness. The upbuilding of the race in every possible way should become a passion with us all. The chief question of life is not "What can I do to get rich?" or "What can I do to become notorious?" or even "What can I do to save myself?" but "What can I do to make the world better?"

In Darkest Russia.

To realize just how unjust and outrageous governmental oppression in Russia has become the following story, taken from the New York Evening Post, is illustrative:

Not long ago a number of students at Lemberg sent an address expressing sympathy with the Japanese in the present war to Tokyo. The Russian police in Warsaw declared that some of the signatures were those of Polish Jews and made this the excuse for making domiciliary visits, issuing summonses against the sons of prominent families, opening private letters, etc. Sometimes they experienced resistance, which was magnified into a story of organized rebellion. There is abundant testimony that the Socialists are making rapid progress in Warsaw, as in other parts of the Russian empire, and it is said that the police are neglecting all their ordinary duties to keep watch over this particular danger. Public security in the streets is decreasing to the vanishing point. Latterly the lower orders have been arming themselves with long knives or daggers and the natural consequence is the multiplication of fatal assaults and robberies. The criminal classes are practically free from supervision, the police devoting all their time and attention to the Socialists and the students.

"Whom the gods would destroy they first make mad." Surely Russia is going to the verge of madness in her seizing of English vessels and her treatment of her own subjects. Nobody wants the nation destroyed, but the majority of mankind would be pleased to see the despotism smashed that oppresses the Russian people.

Judging by prices, the beef trust is hitching its meat wagons to a star, though not exactly in the Emersonian fashion. The public is soaced by the fact that prunes and breakfast foods promise to be cheap.

The Philadelphia man who was run over by a horse is a testimonial to the fact that the funeral is about the most active thing in the Quaker City.

A Chicago man wants pay for the time he spent in courting a girl who refused him. It is plainly the girl who is entitled to damages.

A PORTABLE TENT.

Roomy, Light, Strong, Durable and Easily Erected.

We show herewith an illustration, taken from the Scientific American, of an improved portable tent which is light and roomy, very strong and durable and capable of erection very quickly in a storm proof and reliable manner, either on rocky, sandy or loam soil. The use of ridgepoles, upright and inclined posts and the numerous belaying pegs usually employed is entirely dispensed with, and in their place a pair of detachable frame arches and several anchors are used.

Each frame is made up of two straight and two curved wooden sections, and is braced by a rod formed at the ends with pins, which fit into sockets in the ends of the frame. The frame sections are held together by metal socket pieces or couplings. In erecting the tent the two frame arches are spaced apart at a suitable interval and the tent cover is drawn over them.

This covering is made with strapped seams and is approximately semi-cylindrical in shape, with tapered ends, as illustrated. The latter are secured by pegs driven into the ground, and guy ropes extend from the top of the frame arches to a suitable anchorage on each side of the tent.

If the tent is erected on rocky ground a hook may be used to anchor the guy ropes, but in sandy ground the anchor is formed of a metal plate, from the periphery of which several wire strands extend to a common ring, to which the guy rope is secured.

The tent covering is formed along its edge with an outwardly extending flange, and the door of the tent opens into one or both of the tapered ends. Curtains separate the main body of the tent from these tapered ends. The inventor of this improved tent construction is Mr. Frank H. Gotsche of San Francisco.

Labor Is Divine.

Service is the highest badge of nobility. Any one who would despise a man because he works with his hands is a perverser and a mockery of the God who made him.

Sir Hiram Maxim has been reproving the British for the prevailing disposition to look down on manual labor and the too common sentiment among British manual laborers that they are doing something unworthy. He tells them that they do not wear a badge of infamy who use their hands and that those who thus toll err in losing their self respect and striving to save their children from manual labor by putting them at some work for which they are not fitted.

In driving this rebuke home Sir Hiram says that "the false shame of laboring with one's hands is losing to Great Britain a most important class, a class that is sending America ahead by leaps and bounds." Sir Hiram ought to know whereof he speaks, for before he was an Englishman he was an American. He was born in Maine, served an apprenticeship at coach building and has by hard work with both hand and brain risen through the gradations of mechanic, inventor and scientist. He was for years a part of the industrial world, just as he is now a part of the titled British world.

Of course he is right about the dignity of labor and the desirability of being a good manual laborer rather than a poor clerk. The man who is in a place where he fits is happier and a better money earner than he would be elsewhere. Manual labor has been honorable since the world began and will continue to be so more and more as the world grows older and wiser and better.

He is blessed who serves rather than he who is served. To toil for one's family and one's kind is a privilege, for it is thus that we build character.

Walking on the Ceiling.

Few people probably know what it is that enables flies to walk on the ceiling. It has been supposed that their ability to do so was due to the fact that each of their feet is a miniature air pump. This theory was found to be unsound, and it was then explained that the feat was made possible by means of a viscous substance which exuded from the hairs on their feet. This theory also was abandoned as being only partly accountable for the facts, and the preferred explanation is that flies are enabled to walk upside down on smooth substances by the help of capillary adhesion. An investigator has found by a series of nice calculations, such as the weighing and measuring of hairs, that a fly would be upheld by capillary attraction were it four-plinths as heavy again as it is. Each fly is supposed to be furnished with from 10,000 to 12,000 minute foot hairs. These exude an oily fluid, and it is because of the repulsion between a watery surface and this oily fluid that a fly finds it difficult to mount a dampened glass.—Harper's Weekly.

Life and Death Struggles

are continually taking place in the sick room between the forces of health and disease. The great destroyer and eradicator of all that propagates and furthers the spread of sickness and disease is Cabot's Sulpho Naphthol. It is the best germicidal agent for cleansing all vessels, utensils, clothing, etc., the best deodorant for purifying the air, an important factor in the care of the sick, and, from its germicidal and anaesthetic properties, one of the best antiseptics for sores, wounds, inflammation, irritation, etc.

Spanish Etiquette.

There is a curious story of how the Duke d'Aosta, when king of Spain, told a muleteer to whom he was talking to cover himself, the sun being hot, forgetting that by so doing he made him a grandee. Marshal Prim, to prevent this catastrophe, knocked the man's hat out of his hand, and according to some the muleteer had something to do with the assassination that followed a few days afterward.

The Exception.

"I am getting up a subscription list for the relief of the poor. Can't you put your family down, sir?"

"Madam, since you ask a personal question, I don't mind telling you that I can put 'em all down, except my wife's mother."—New Orleans Times-Democrat.

Sensible.

Cholly—Charming widow, isn't she? They say she is to marry again. Algy—I wouldn't want to be a widow's second husband. Cholly—Well, I'd rather be a widow's second husband than her first, doncher know.

Expensive.

"They say her wedding beggared description."

"Oh, more than that?"

"Indeed?"

"Yes, it beggared her father."

Violent Attack of Diarrhoea Cured by Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy and Perhaps a Life Saved.

"A short time ago I was taken with a violent attack of diarrhoea and believe I would have died if I had not gotten relief," says John J. Patton, a leading citizen of Patton, Ala. "A friend recommended Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy. I bought a twenty-five cent bottle and after taking three doses of it was entirely cured. I consider it the best remedy in the world for bowel complaints." For sale by O'Connor's Pharmacy.

SHEEP IN INDIA.

They Are the Favorite Beasts of Burden in Mountainous Regions.

In Tibet and among the mountainous part of India sheep are employed as carriers. The mountain sheep of these districts, true to its nature, is remarkably sure footed and can carry loads of twenty-five pounds, or even more, over steep crags and precipitous paths where hardly any other animal could find a footing.

In the inner ranges of the Himalayas the yak and the hardy mountain sheep are the favorite beasts of burden. Sheep withstand the intense cold of the higher parts of Tibet much more easily than the yak and can better face the stony roads.

Sheep carrying from seventeen to twenty-five pounds of baggage and living entirely on the scanty grass found growing by the way accompanied Nain Singh, the famous Indian explorer, on a journey of more than a thousand miles. It is very common in the Himalayas to load sheep, high up in the mountains, with borax and then to drive them down to the plains, where they are shorn of their wool and return laden with grain or salt.

Money Thrown Away.

"So that city doctor helped ye right smart, did he, Silas?" asked Mrs. Glue on her husband's return from a week's visit to a specialist in a neighboring town.

"Well, I guess he did! I'm feeling fine as a fiddle now, an' he says I won't likely have any return of it if I just keep ter what he tells me."

"What did he say was the matter with ye?" inquired the wife eagerly.

"I forgot now what he called it, but—"

"Silas," she cried, "ye don't really mean ter say ye paid out all that money an' didn't git no good of it after all!"—Exchange.

Modest Abbe Deille.

It is said that the French Abbe Deille once had in his household a very quick tempered relative, with whom he sometimes had animated disputes and who sometimes went so far as to throw books at the abbe. The abbe must have been a person of great amiability and self control. Once, when a particularly large and heavy volume was thrown at him, he caught it gracefully and said:

"My dear friend, I must beg of you to remember that I prefer smaller gifts."

MISREPRESENTED

THE name I. John Lynde (as the gentleman always writes it) has a regal look. It suggests the old proclamations signed "I, the king." And, indeed, history is littered with kings who had not half his power or sphere of influence. He is the head of gigantic enterprises.

Edward Shoreham was not a beggar, but he felt himself to be a failure. He was nearing the age of forty. He had made money, though not very much, and had lost it. At the date of this narrative he held a minor executive position in a corporation so conservative that promotion therein was very slow. This corporation was closely allied with some of the big Lynde companies, but Shoreham felt that his own work was of microscopic size in the broad field of the great man's vision. Therefore when he waked one morning to find a personal communication from I. John Lynde waiting for him he was inclined to believe that he had not waked at all; that the incident belonged to the visions of the night.

The note was brief: "Please call at my office tomorrow (Wednesday) morning at 9 o'clock."

At 9 o'clock Shoreham presented himself at the potentate's office with an uplifted heart, but at fifteen minutes past 9 he was the most disappointed, perplexed and tormented man between the two oceans.

The ways of I. John are sudden as a hawk's. Everybody knows that. He selects men to serve him or dismisses the unworthy with a Napoleonic flash of decision. Therefore Shoreham was amazed beyond measure to discover that I. John had not made up his mind.

"I have an unknown friend as well as an unknown enemy," Shoreham said to himself as he left the office. "Somebody has spoken well of me, some one has spoken ill of me. I must thank the first and defeat the other."

Upon the matter of thanks he was not greatly in doubt. Though Shoreham had never met Lynde before he had the great good fortune to be acquainted with the mighty potentate's niece, Miss Alice Lynde. This young lady dwelt with her widowed mother in a style of great simplicity. Shoreham entertained for her a gloomy, secret, despairing affection, and it was sweet for him to fancy that she had brought this good fortune within his reach. He called in the evening to express his gratitude.

In the parlor of Mrs. Lynde's house he was distressed to find a gaunt, weak-kneed, silly looking and not altogether reputable young man named Lucius Trevor, a distant cousin of the Lyndes.

Shoreham had met Trevor several times and had paid no particular attention to him. Upon this occasion, however, it seemed that the fellow looked at him in a peculiar manner. Trevor soon took his leave.

As soon as Shoreham was alone with Alice he offered her his thanks for the event of the day, but she would not receive them.

"I have never spoken of you to my uncle except once, and then he asked me a few questions about you. Why, it was last evening!" exclaimed the girl. "I had forgotten."

"Did he mention Wilmot, Shoreham & Co.?" inquired Shoreham.

This was the firm whose brief but eventful career in Galveston, Tex., had cost the junior partner all his money.

"He did," replied Alice. "And I was very glad that you had told me all being there?" cried Shoreham. "But let's be calm. Dudley Drew is the best friend I have on earth."

"Look here, my friend," said Alice, raising her dimpled chin, as she always did when especially earnest. "I will believe no such thing of Dudley Drew. I take your own word for him. It was through you that I came to know him and to admire him for an honest and loyal fellow."

Shoreham felt the blood rush to his face.

"You you really like him very much?" he stammered. "I—I am glad."

"You express yourself enthusiastically," said she, with a laugh.

Shoreham arose and walked half way across the room and then returned.

"I was falling into a very old and common error," he said. "Really, Drew is not at all the man to take such an advantage of me."

"An advantage?"

"Miss Lynde, I am getting upon dangerous ground where I have no right to be. If this were a melodrama and I were one of the leading characters instead of being the meekest supernumerary on the stage there might be a plot here. But there isn't."

"I understand you perfectly," said she. "I am the leading lady of your play and Mr. Drew is the villain. You are very silly."

"I love you," said he. And it was the very last possible combination of words that he would have supposed himself about to utter.

The perfect mechanism of the speech, the complete surprise of it to himself, half stunned him. He stood there rigid, pale, desperate, yet incapable of action or even of thought.

In fact, he could not have done better. There was never a plainer picture of sincerity than he presented at that moment.

"I am glad," whispered the girl, her eyes suddenly brimming with tears; "I am glad."

"Mr. Dudley Drew," said a maid so startlingly close to Shoreham's ear that he nearly jumped over the back of the chair upon which his trembling hands were resting.

When Mr. Drew was ushered in there was nothing to indicate to him that he had interrupted a conversation of more than ordinary importance.

"Good evening, Miss Lynde," said he. "Good evening, Edward. I hoped to find you here."

"Yes?" said Shoreham, whose emotional balance was not yet fully restored.

"There's something in the wind for you, Edward," continued Drew. "You may know all about it, but I don't believe you do. I think it's in the bud yet. Anyway, I'll tell my story if Miss Lynde will excuse me. It has to do with a member of her family."

"What did you tell him?" demanded Alice, coming straight to the point, in the way of the sex.

"Why," said Drew, somewhat taken aback. "I gave Shoreham a great send-off. Mr. Lynde is looking you up, Edward, and it means something big. He asked me if you hadn't made some rather serious mistakes in the matter of Wilmot, Shoreham & Co. I told him it was a plain case of hard luck and that you were all right."

When the men had left the house Drew said:

"I know your Nemesis. It's Trevor. He met me on the street and asked me to walk along with him to his uncle's house. I trailed along. We played some billiards, and he sprung old I. John on me. Trevor must have found out that I knew about the Wilmot-Shoreham case, and he hoped that I. John could get something damaging out of me. Well, he didn't."

About 5 o'clock on the following afternoon Shoreham was walking to his lodgings when his eyes beheld a spectacle that rooted him to the spot. Upon the opposite side of the street in earnest conversation stood Lucius Trevor and James Wilmot.

Shoreham had had no idea that his former partner was within 10,000 miles of that place. The last news he had heard of him was that the man had gone to New Zealand.

The two men talked for a matter of ten minutes, while Shoreham, unobserved, watched them from the other side of the street. When they separated he followed Wilmot and presently called him by name. They had not parted in a cordial fashion five years before, but they greeted each other like old friends, as is the way of the world.

This is what Shoreham learned in the ensuing conversation: That Trevor had in some unknown way discovered Wilmot's presence in the city and also the fact that the man was nearly penniless; that he had offered Wilmot ra-rious inducements if he would tell the story of the failure to I. John Lynde "in the right way," meaning thereby the way that would hurt Shoreham the most; that Wilmot had resisted this temptation and had not seen I. John, but instead had written him a letter praising Shoreham's honesty and business ability and asserting that only the hardest kind of hard luck had been the cause of the disaster.

"This is mighty good of you, Wilmot," said Shoreham. "Call on me tomorrow and I'll see what I can do to square it."

In the evening of this day he received a call from Dudley Drew, who came in a state of great excitement with an important piece of news. He had discovered what work it was that I. John had designed to put into Shoreham's hands, and both men spoke of it in tones of reverence.

Shoreham groaned.

"I'll never get it," he said. "Wilmot has turned up. Trevor has him in tow, and everything is going to blazes. And to think that this should have happened to a man in sight of heaven!"

"See Lynde again tomorrow. Go in and win!" exclaimed Drew. "Good heavens! Lynde knows the way of the world. He knows what hard luck is. Make him see what you were up against in that Wilmot-Shoreham affair."

"I will if I can," replied Shoreham, "but the chance looks mighty black to me."

On the following day Shoreham called upon I. John. He knew when he walked into the office that he had reached the crisis of his life, and he prepared to meet it with desperate appropriateness to its aspect of finality.

I. John was smoking a very short end of a cigar.

"I want to ask you some more questions," said I. John. And then suddenly, "This isn't my usual way of doing business."

"I know it," said Shoreham, "and I am forced to conclude that you take a personal interest."

"Not a bad guess," responded Lynde. "It's a fact that I would like to give you this chance if I could, but I have the usual prejudice in favor of successful men. However, there may be circumstances which alter cases. Now, as to this affair of yours in Galveston. You had rather hard luck there, I'm told."

"My failure there," said Shoreham firmly, "depended upon a series of rather common errors, resulting largely from inexperience. I believe that I understand my mistakes perfectly now and that I shall never be caught in the same way again. There was no luck in it. If you have the time I will tell you precisely why Wilmot and I went to pieces and exactly where I myself was at fault."

"You are all right," he said. "This is all that I want to know."

Shoreham sank back into his chair with a faint gasp.

"I had looked you up," continued I. John. "I'd made up my mind that you were a strictly first class man. But at the last moment you were misrepresented to me by your friends, by my niece Mr. Drew and others. I had a letter from your former partner, Wilmot, just before you called upon me the other day—very foolish letter, so foolish that I knew you couldn't have had anything to do with it, which was fortunate for you. It was all hard luck, hard luck. I guess the man was trying to tell the truth, but he told the same story that I'd heard from all sides. I said to myself: 'This fellow Shoreham hasn't learned his lesson. He thinks that he's all right and that circumstances are all wrong. I've got no use for that kind of man.' Still I remembered what my nephew had said to me."

"Trevor?"

I. John nodded.

"He told me that you had been an idiot in the Wilmot-Shoreham business and that you had admitted it to him."

"I never did," said Shoreham.

"Well, I rather hoped it was true," said I. John. "Anyway, it was a good word for you. I like a man who knows when he's made a mistake and admits it, at least to himself. But blast a fellow who runs around telling everybody how unlucky he is! There's something wrong with him."

"I agree with you perfectly," responded Shoreham.

"And now," said I. John, "we'll close this matter up in two winks. By the way, are you engaged to my niece?"

"Not—not quite," stammered Shoreham.

I. John wagged his head slowly.

"Better close that bargain if you can," he said, with a dry smile. "She's a fine girl."

"There was no luck in it."

The ingenious Japanese have developed a trade in a commodity which has been decided by the general board of customs appraisers at Washington to be hitherto unheard of and not enumerated in the Dingley act. Midzume is a doughy, elastic substance produced from Japanese millet and rice. The chemists say it is mainly starch and dextrine. The best quality is a fine yellow, and its palatability is beyond all cavil. The producers are themselves great consumers and seem to Winchester Ponds—A Chance for Improvement.

EDITOR OF THE STAR:

What makes the water in Winchester ponds along Main street so black and muddy in summer time? I bought my Winchester place in the spring when the town was beautified by the clear blue water in the various ponds near the center of the town. I wish the water could remain as it was when I first saw it. I noticed that the level of the water has not been reduced but slightly below the level of the mill dam to lay bare the flats therefore I ask, what is the matter with the water and can anything be done by the community to improve Winchester water scenery.

INQUIRER.

In answer to "Inquirer" we can say after looking up the matter, that much might be done by the public to improve the appearance of the pond near the center of the town. The ponds are naturally shallow and as no one actively torbids it, the public feels at liberty to dump anything into the ponds they want to get rid of, therefore the ponds are fast growing more and more shallow which allows the water to get more and superheated in summer time which encourages the growth of many kinds of minute water plants which discolor and make bad smelling water. The Metropolitan Water Commission controls the use of this water for domestic purposes but for the past four years has done nothing to keep the water from contamination as Boston did when the city controlled the water. No inspection or care of any kind is taken of this water supply by the State of Massachusetts, therefore it is fast lapsing into a deplorable condition and the public drain whatever they wish into the stream without let or hindrance. For the past few years cranberry meadows at the Highlands have been much injured by the foul water emptied into the stream by manufactories above, which were restrained from such pollution when Boston controlled the water. Naturally the ponds are too shallow for water reservoirs and to allow them to fill up and to take absolutely no care of them whatever is certainly poor policy on the part of the State which should either give up its control of the Mystic Water System or properly take care of it both below and above Main street in Winchester.

The town of Winchester is also a little remiss in its treatment of the ponds near the center of the town as it allows much filling to wash in from the town highways which might be prevented by properly constructed catch-basins. At Swanton street bridge and at

Main street near the Gifford schools, at the Town Hall and many other places the wash of the town highways is fast filling up the ponds making the water more and more foul. The state parkway, under the control of the Metropolitan Park Commission, also drains into the ponds in many places. On Walnut street, near Main, a very large drain pipe has already filled quite a bit of the pond and bids fair in connection with the Town Hall drain, to spoil it for a mill pond within a comparatively few years. On being interviewed, the present owner of the mill pond absolutely declines to take upon himself the cost of removing filling deposited by the state of Massachusetts or the town of Winchester. He claims that both corporations are trespassers on his property and are abundantly able to take care of their own rubbish and refuse matter without his assistance. The ponds are no worse for him to look at (so he claims) than for the public in general and as the public seem to be willing to allow the trespassing to continue thus "fouling its own nest," he will not go to any expense at present to abate the nuisance although he thinks the public, if it owned the ponds, would not think it right for him to do as they are doing, filling it up with street washings.

The facts in this matter are as above stated and the STAR would suggest as a practical outcome to this discussion that a committee be appointed at the next town meeting to consider the whole subject matter of improving the Aberjona river and ponds. Such a committee could get the town and state officials together and they could confer with such private parties as have any rights in the water and see if some understanding could not be arrived at whereby joint improvements might be made at little expense to all interested. We are sure the town would not be backward in doing what would be the right thing in this important matter. Winchester has always led off in joint improvements and she would not be backward in coming forward in the present instance. We have always had some improvement on hand to work out. We have not been standing still but have been busy with more important enterprises than the improvement of our water scenery. Now that we have no great "new thing" on hand, we trust the town will appoint the committee above referred to to look into the matter "Inquirer" writes about as if it were a new thing, by the way, although many of our citizens have thought about the future of our ponds and had it on their minds for several years.

This disease has lost its terrors since Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy came into general use. The uniform success which attends the use of this remedy in all cases of bowel complaints in children has made it a favorite wherever its value has become known. For sale by O'Connor's Pharmacy.

Winchester to Squantum Inn

The Mystic Valley Trolley Club took its fifth outing of the season on Thursday. Leaving Winchester at 7.25, the trip was through Arlington, Cambridge, Watertown and Newton to Needham; thence to Dudley St. transfer and to Neponset Bridge via Geneva Ave. The 11.30 car from the Bridge landed the party at Squantum at 12. Dinner at the Squantum Inn and inspection of the harbor occupied the Club till 3 o'clock, when return trip was made by Atlantic, Neponset, Field's Corner, subway and elevated to Sullivan Square; thence by Medford home. The return trip was completed at quarter before six. Fares for the entire day, 45 cents.

The principal incidents were the protests of certain members at not being allowed to pay more fares and the loudly expressed sympathy of one ex-railroad man for the stockholders of the corporation which furnished the members of the party, at an expense of 15 cents each, with three hours and ten minutes riding. Another member spent much time in trying to induce the owner of a house boat to ship his cable and take the party direct to City Point, but met with no success.

The Nestor of the party so far lost his reckoning at one time, as not to recognize the city of Boston, when he first saw it, in spite of the assurance given by one of the old residents that the club was within the city limits. He was finally convinced by the real estate quotations given, though another member doubted their accuracy.

Owing to engagements of members the excursions will be omitted for the next two weeks, but it is hoped that two more trips may be arranged before the season closes.

Praise for Worcester Railroad.

"The Boston & Worcester Electric railroad is the finest interurban trolley system in the country, and is superior to 90 per cent. of the steam roads in the United States," was the statement made by Mr. H. H. Vreeland, president of the Metropolitan Street Railway Company of New York, in a speech at the Country Club dinner the other night, given in honor of Mr. Vreeland and his New York associates, by James F. Shaw, president of the Boston & Worcester line.

"The Boston & Worcester," said Mr. Vreeland, "is equipped with all the latest and most perfect safety devices, and I can only be envious of Mr. Shaw and his associates and try to emulate their property in the equipment of the Metropolitan roads."

Among the New Yorkers present were: Vice-president S. J. Gannon of Mr. Vreeland's line; Mr. Harry Sanderson, president of the New York Transportation Company; Major Wells, president New York First National Bank; Mr. Jacob Wendell, Jr., general manager Frank Hedley of the Interborough Elevated; Mr. A. T. Potter, vice-president of the Providence Company, and Mr. Robert J. Todd, general manager of the same.

Among the Boston street railway men present were: Mr. C. C. Pierce of the General Electric Company; Mr. C. S. Sergeant of the Boston Elevated; Mr. Huntress and Mr. Philip Mohan.

Making a Sure Thing of It.

"What in the name of Jupiter have you sewed up all the pockets of my overcoat for?" asked Mr. Wilson.

"My dear," said Mrs. Wilson, "I have an important letter to my milliner that I want you to post."

This year's program is just as elaborate; the parade will be the striking feature; but then all Boston will be ablaze with various entertainments for the "vets." and a grand water carnival will be held at Charles River. Accompanying visitors will find their chief delight in roaming around Boston's historic and famous haunts and the interesting nearby cities and towns, such as Salem, Medford, Lexington, Concord, etc., where there are so many reminders of revolutionary events and Colonial history. The homes and abodes of Hawthorne, Longfellow, Lowell, Emerson, Thoreau, Holmes and other literary personages will receive many callers.

For the benefit of all interested, a handsome souvenir and guide-book has been issued by the Boston & Maine Railroad. Winchester Boat Club Notes.

The dance at the Winchester Boat Club given by the boat club orchestra on last Friday evening was quite a success considering it was the first one to be given by the boys. About 25 members were present for dancing and many enjoyed the music from the lake, preferring to paddle rather than dance. The orchestra was composed of the following members of the Medford and Winchester boat clubs: "Jack" Howard, "Curly" Neilson, Fred Adams, William Frazier, Chauncey Heath, "Jim" Newman, "Lou" Redding and Lawrence Geddis. The music is reported to have been excellent, and much better than some hired for more auspicious occasions.

On Saturday afternoon many canoeists were out, the water sports at the Winchester Boat Club being the center of attraction. The sports were for points for the Tufts cups, and will be held until the middle of September on designated afternoons. At the end of the season the man having the largest number of points to his credit in each event takes the cup for that event. The results Saturday were as follows:

Tug of war—Roy Pratt, first; Dr. O. Kelley, second; William Hyde, third.

Hand paddle—Roy Pratt, first; William Hyde, second.

Upset race—Roy Pratt, first; William Hyde, second; Chester Melendy, third. Tilting—Hyde and Pratt first, Kelley and Ladd second, Melendy and Geddis third.

Hurry scurry race—Chester Melendy, first; Roy Pratt, second; Waldo Manson, third.

There were fewer canoes from the two boat clubs on the pond Sunday than on any similar day this season. The lively, however, did a thriving business.

A party from the Winchester Boat Club took advantage of the tides Sunday and paddled down the river to the harbor. The party consisted of Messrs. William Hyde, Chester Melendy, Roy Pratt, and Mrs. William Hyde, Miss Carrie Cunningham and Miss Hattie Cole. The party left the club house at about 8.30 a. m., paddling down the river to the Chelsea Yacht Club, where a short stop was made. From here they paddled to the Navy Yard where lunch was eaten, after which they went along the water front to Ft. Pt. Channel. Later they visited the cruiser Des Moines, which was lying in the stream, and received permission to go over the vessel. After returning to the Chelsea Yacht Club the party embarked for home, arriving at the club about eight o'clock. They reported a most enjoyable trip, with fair winds and skies. Another party is planning to make the trip soon.

The Eastern Division, A. C. A., sailing canoe race, scheduled for Sunday, was postponed. The race for the Tufts trophy cup was won by James Newman, over Messrs. William Ladd, John Brazier and Waldo Manson.

Steward Balkam is a busy man these days, when so many are taking advantage of the warm weather to paddle or sail. His universal obliging and courteous manner has won him many friends at the club.

There will be water sports at the club this Saturday afternoon.

Taken With Cramps.

Wm. Kirmse, a member of the bridge gang working near Littleport was taken suddenly ill Thursday night with cramps and a kind of cholera. His case was so severe that he had to have the members of the crew wait upon him and Mr. Gifford was called and consulted. He told them he had a medicine in the form of Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy that he thought would help him out and accordingly several doses were administered with the result that the fellow was able to be around next day. The incident speaks quite highly of Mr. Gifford's medicines. — Elkader, Iowa, Argus.

This remedy never fails. Keep it in your home, it may save life. For sale by O'Connor's Pharmacy.

Grade Crossing.

EDITOR OF THE STAR:

I am, as you say in a late edition, agitating the abolition of the grade crossing in Winchester and shall continue to until it is accomplished, knowing well what I am up against. It is not the fear of expense to the town as you state prevents it, but other reasons. Let an awful accident, same as the one in Chicago where a mother and four babies were killed, happen, and it is bound to come, you will find I will have others to help in doing away with the most dangerous grade crossing in New England. After the courts say the grade crossing must go, you then should give the credit to those who now oppose it, as you are now doing in the matter of through trolleys to Boston.

Houses Entered.

On Monday night the town was visited by a gang of burglars. Chief of Police William R. McIntosh received reports of breaks, all in the Highland section. Whether or not any of the large number of unoccupied residences, whose owners are enjoying their vacations, have been entered, is being made the subject of investigation.

In every case the houses were entered by kitchen windows, and the evident idea of the burglars was to secure money, for in all the houses no attempt was made to carry off any of the silver, although it was examined and laid aside.

The first break was in all probability made about 11 o'clock, when the house of William P. Buckley, 148 Washington street, was visited. Entrance to the house was effected by a window in the rear of the house. The result of the search was the finding of $5 in money which the thieves carried off.

The house of Forbes D. Smith, 22 Clematis street, was next visited, and there entrance was gained in the same manner as at the former house. The sum of $25 was taken.

The gang evidently journeyed from the Smith house back across Washington street to Forest street, where they made a call at the home of Hamilton Curry at No. 144. They met with a setback. An attempt was made to enter the dining room of this house. Just inside was a table on which, among other things, was a large glass bouquet holder. In attempting to enter, the holder was displaced and fell to the floor, breaking with a loud crash. The noise evidently frightened the burglars away as well as awakened the members of the household who were asleep in the upper rooms. One of the thieves jumped from the sill of the window, leaving the imprint of his feet in the soft earth underneath. From this it is evident that he wore no shoes and that his feet were encased in something similar to the felt socks worn in rubber boots. Nothing is missed by the Curry family.

After leaving this house the course of the thieves is traced along Highland avenue to Reservoir street. Patrolman Thomas P. Dotten resides at No. 10. He was off duty and asleep in his room on the upper floor. The thieves here opened a bulkhead leading into the cellar. They found it impossible to force an entrance by the door leading from the cellar, but were obliged to force a window. In the kitchen and dining room of the house everything movable was turned upside down, closets opened and the silver thrown aside in a heap. In the hall was Mr. Dotten's uniform coat, with its brass buttons and official badge. It was removed, together with the hat which hung with it and the coat pockets turned inside out. In an inside pocket of the coat was found the sum of $16.

The next house to receive attention was that of Mrs. Thompson, 12 Reservoir street. A pocketbook was found, from which a ruby ring and a little over $3 in money were taken. The other trinkets in the pocketbook were not disturbed.

The house of Walter H. Dotten, 12 Alben street, was visited next. The rooms on the lower floor were ransacked, but so far Mr. Dotten has not found that anything was taken.

After leaving the Dotten house, the burglars returned to Highland avenue and proceeded to Mt. Vernon street, near the entrance to the Middlesex fells. The first place on this street which they visited was that of Charles E. Corey. There is no evidence that an attempt was made to enter the house proper, but Mr. Corey reports the loss of clothes, which were taken from the line in the back yard.

No 34 Mt. Vernon street, the next house, is occupied by Roger DeBussey. The same thorough search which marked the thieves' work in the other houses was continued here, with the result that the sum of $5 is missing. No attempt was made to take away any of the silver or bric-a-brac.

James E. Corey, whose house is at 36 Mt. Vernon street, next door to the DeBussey home, was favored with a visit from the thieves. Evidently the gang were somewhat hungry at this time, for they visited the pantry of this house and carried off four glasses of jelly that were cooling off and a large cake. No money is missed by Mr. Corey or his family.

In only one of the nine houses entered was it known until the next day that the house had been entered.

It is supposed in some quarters that this gang is the same that was reported to the police of Medford early in the afternoon as acting in a suspicious manner in the eastern section of that city. It consisted of three men, one of them colored, and it was reported that they had been seen attempting to open windows of at least one unoccupied house when frightened away.

Thieves attempted to enter the residence of Rev. H. J. Madden Tuesday night, but were discovered and frightened away.

The Great Fire at Chicago Which Burned Down One-Third of the City.

This account ought to be immortalized by a poem as stirring as "Sheridan's Ride" or "The Charge of the Six Hundred."

On the morning of that terrible Monday, when one third of the Garden City went down in the maelstrom of fire and flame, there occurred one of the strangest, and probably most fearful, trotting races on record. It was a race wherein the fire-fiend and storm-king went in double harness, with death for the driver, against Mr. Fred Blackmar and his brown mare, Kittie. It was a single dash of less than a mile, contested with all firmness of fate on one side, and only a hope of salvation on the other. Kittie, who had become a well-known equine to all those who frequented the boulevards, was stabled in a barn on Dearborn Street, almost opposite the post office. The fire had eaten far into the city and was rapidly swallowing building after building in its rapacious jaws. Southward and northward along famed Newspaper Avenue, as Dearborn Street was sometimes called, the fire was driven by the fierce gale, which swept in eddies from over the prairies.

Blackmar, who lived in the west division, had gone down early in the fight to assist in saving property from the store, and it was not until late on Monday morning that he thought of brown Kittie. Then he started for the barn only to find the front one vast sheet of flame. Nowhere could he see the hostler. Through the back door he rushed into the stable, and there stood his pet shivering in every limb. With a cry of joy she recognized her master and, while he was unfastening her halter, the grateful creature placed her nose against his face and gently rubbed his cheek. A moment later and the mare was hitched to the light wagon, the back door was thrown open, Fred sprang into the seat, and while the burning hay dropped down on him in flakes, he drove forth into the hell of flame. There was a narrow alley with the buildings on fire on either side of it for him to drive through, and faster than Kittie ever went before went she through that gauntlet of flame. Once a tongue of flame reached across the alley and scorched poor Kittie's handsome mane and almost burned out one of her bright eyes, which were almost human in their expression; but Fred spoke gently to her, and with never a skip she went onward and onward across State Street, and no chance to return to the right nor left with buildings blazing up in front and death, with the double team crowding him closely in the rear. Now Wabash Avenue was reached, and like lightning the little darling turned the corner and flew with the speed of thought southward along the broad thoroughfare, whose westward side was already one long row of flame. With a straight road before him, perfectly level, and laid with Nicholson pavement, Fred sent the mare along faster and faster. Away off toward Jackson Street he could see the black smoke and the red flames reaching across trying to seize upon the opposite side of the way, and should they succeed before he passed the spot, then all escape was impossible. "Gently, Kittie, gently!" They were the first words he had spoken for some time. "Now then, my little lady," and for the first time in all his life he touched her with the whip. The mare broke into a run and there was no stopping her. Like a thoroughbred she sped before the wind and almost in a trice she had cleared the fire and was still running desperately to the southward. Presently Blackmar succeeded in pulling her down to a trot, and finally she jogged along at a pace so slow no one would have supposed her the best little equine in Christendom. Fred wouldn't take thousands of dollars for her now; and when, a few days after the fire, he drove around on Ashland Avenue, and told another of her escapade, handsome Kittie was petted and caressed by fair ladies

RAISING DISH RAGS.

A Remarkable New Horticultural Industry in California.

A novel enterprise, that of raising dish rags, is being projected by a number of prominent southern California horticulturists who received inspiration for the scheme from Mr. Charles Richardson, whose beautiful gardens in Pasadena are becoming world famous for their remarkable vegetable and floral productions. Mr. Richardson has successfully raised many wonderful growths never before initiated in American soil, and this year he is exceeding all previous horticultural triumphs by raising thousands and thousands of dish rags, enough to supply an ordinary family for a lifetime.

The graceful, well-foliated dish rag vine is highly ornamental and bears in great profusion flowers of a delicate pink color, which are used for buttoning purposes as well as for scouring pans and kettles. Imagine yourself picking dish rags in your garden just as you would pick blackberries, or imagine having dish rag vines all laden with dish rags hanging over your kitchen windows, so that all you need to do is to stretch out your arm and pull one in.

The seeds of these remarkable vines were gathered in South Africa by Mr. Walter Richardson, son of the horticulturist, who during his hunting and exploring expeditions was always on the lookout for rare plants for his father's garden. Mr. Richardson was accompanied in his jungle explorations by several natives, who acted as cooks, guides and burden bearers. These dusky skinned Africans found the vegetable dish rags invaluable for scrubbing pans and kettles, and whenever camp was pitched the first thing on the programme was to go dish rag gathering.

In the land of their nativity these vines are accustomed to tropical climate, and it was feared they would rebel against American influences. They have grown vigorously, however, in their new home, and, though the spines produced are smaller than those in Africa, where they sometimes attain a length of two feet, they grow quite as abundantly on the vines.

These curious vegetables, which are annuals, assume the form and appearance of cucumbers and hang on the vines until their green coats become brown and dry like parchment. At this stage they are ready to harvest. After they are picked the brown coat is removed, and an extremely strong and compact fibrous sponge is revealed. Through the center of this sponge in three legitimate compartments are many black seeds, which shake out readily. In the Pasadena garden these sponges have averaged eight inches in length and three inches in diameter.

Sex in Eating.

A woman enjoys well cooked, well served food, but her happiness does not depend upon it so completely as does a man's. Without regular, abundant meals a man is disturbed in spirit and considers himself abused. When a man loses his appetite it is because of some physical ailment, never a mental one. A great blow may make the touching of food an actual impossibility for his sister for hours, or even days, but, no matter if the foundations of the earth were shaken, the ordinary man can eat. He can eat at any time or all the time. I know a man who is "living on the street" during his wife's absence, and he confesses to averaging five meals a day.

Food so often is not more than rationed with a girl. Investigate the light housekeeping arrangements of sky parlors, or even first class rooms, and consider the well-gowned girl therein and see if it is. I know a girl, and a college girl, who existed on 87 cents for one week in order to buy an expensive rifle her mother's good sense had denied her. Shopgirls, they say, sacrifice their lunches to buy a Laura Jean Liberty novel, but where is the pain that ever goes without a reasonable amount of good food for any need he may have?—Brown Book.

Powerful odor of Ambergris.

The druggist told in his hand a lump of gray substance like putty. It was smaller than a baseball and as light as cork. Through it, here and there, ran streaks of yellow and black.

"This is a lump of ambergris," the druggist said. "It is worth about $500, I judge. Smell it."

The patron put his nose to the ambergris. Then he said, surprised: "Why, it has no smell."

The druggist, smiling, rubbed it with his sleeve, and immediately a powerful, musky odor filled the air.

"Crude ambergris," he said, "never smells until you warm it or rub it. This chunk of ambergris here smells like musk. That is because it is crude. The odor of prepared ambergris has not the least resemblance to musk."

He rubbed his hand over his sleeve. "From handling this," he said, "my coat will smell for months. My hands, no matter how I wash them, will smell for several days."—Seattle Post-Intelligencer.

Crystallizing Flowers.

The process of crystallizing flowers is simple and can be satisfactorily accomplished by any one who has artistic skill. Arrange some basket forms of any desired pattern with pliable copper wire and wrap them with gauze. Into these tie the bottom violets, ferns, geranium leaves—in fact, any flowers except full blown roses—and sink them in a solution of sugar of one pound to a gallon of water. Wait until the solution has cooled, as the colors will then be preserved in their original beauty, and the crystallized alum will hold them faster than when formed in a hot solution. When you have a light covering of crystals that completely envelops the articles, remove cheerfully and allow it to drip twelve hours. These baskets make a unique ornament and long preserve their freshness.

BOOTS AND SPURS.

Quaint Account of Hungarian Cavalry in Olden Days.

A contemporary manuscript account of the diet of Ratisbon, held in 1530 by the Emperor Ferdinand II, on the occasion of the landing of Gustavus Adolphus of Sweden in Germany, mentions as a remarkable fact that the Hungarian cavalry who rode through the streets to the cathedral wore their spurs on their boot soles.

It is difficult to credit that these spurs were fixed on the flat of the boot, for thus shod the horsemen could neither walk nor stand, especially when the large size of the spurs worn at the period is considered. Probably the writer intended to indicate that instead of being fastened to the heel in the usual fashion they were made to project from the fore part of the military boot, which is a portion of the sole.

Frederick von Hammer, who quotes this in his "History of the Sixteenth and Seventeenth Centuries, Illustrated by Original Documents," passes the matter over without comment. The same manuscript adds that the Hungarian horses had their manes, tails and feet painted red.

Ancient Drinking Guilds.

It is gravely said by an authority that the Dutch guilds, the most ancient of workmen's organizations, had their origin in the drinking guilds, which, although they did not, as in the case of the Greeks and Romans, exact drink to the rank of a duty, made it a kind of civic duty. These drink guilds and drink brethren existed from the earliest times until the latter part of the sixteenth century, when their excesses led to their suppression. It is held that men who worked together drank together and thus formed the primitive club which developed into the guild.—Notes and Queries.

Hose of Olden Time.

In the very long ago hose were not stockings as now worn, but made long and were often drawn up even to the waist, and, oddly enough, had pockets in their sides. We read, moreover, that in the time of the Tudors and Stuarts they were of great variety, both of material and color, and for such as could command the luxury were richly trimmed and costly; they were often called "nether stocks."

BLOTTING PAPER.

It Was Known and Used as Far Back as the Year 1675.

There is a pretty prevalent belief that blotting paper is a modern invention; that a hundred years ago it was unknown, white sand being used in its stead.

Blotting paper, as a matter of fact, was a recognized convenience of the writing desk as far back as 1675. In last year there was issued a book called "Townsend's Preparative to Pleading," a copy of which is in the possession of a Chicago antiquary, and this volume contains on page 8 the following paragraph:

"Let the dusting or sanding in books be avoided, rather using fine brown paper to prevent blotting if time of the ink's drying cannot be allowed, for sand takes away the good color of the ink, and getting into the backs of books, makes them break their binding."

The sand that was used for blotting in the past was, the Chicago antiquary says, very clean and white and fine, and it was called silver sand. It was kept in a casket with a perforated lid, like a salt crust, and thence it was sifted over the wet writing. An odd thing about it was that the ink never seemed to stain it. It could be used over and over and it remained to the end as white as snow.

BATTLE STANDARDS.

So Ancient That Their Use is Mentioned in the Bible.

The custom of carrying flags or standards in battle dates back at least to 1490 B. C. We find in Numbers II, 2, that "every man of the children of Israel shall pitch by his own standard with the ensign of his father's house." Each standard of the twelve tribes thus distinguished was supposed to have been of a color to correspond with the stone in Aaron's breastplate, which bore the name of that tribe. Under the generic name banner are included many species, such as standard, ensign, pennon, flag, etc. These have been used from earliest times and in all countries to direct movements of troops.

The earliest Roman standard was a bundle of straw fixed to the top of a spear. This was succeeded by figures of animals, such as the horse and the bear, which soon gave place to the eagle, the chief Roman ensign, afterward assumed by the German and French emperors. By every warlike people the banner has been regarded as an emblem of national honor, in defense of which each soldier was at all times ready to die, while banners and flags taken from the enemy have always been special trophies of victory to which places of honor in public buildings have been assigned.

A Tale of Two Centuries.

The pendulum of the ages swings by centuries.

We have swept outward to the end of the arc and are ready to begin the return.

At the end of each hundred years is a time to balance accounts.

It is a time when men reckon up the movements of the past and ask themselves, What of the future?

The nineteenth century accomplished much, yet it was but an earnest of what will be accomplished by the twentieth.

In the past hundred years the progress was individual and material. In the next hundred years it will be social and spiritual.

In the former it was toward political liberty. In the latter it will be toward industrial liberty.

The nineteenth century was prolific in discoveries in the realm of physical science. The twentieth century will be prolific in the discoveries in mental science, which lies behind the physical.

The nineteenth century saw the extension of trade and empire throughout the world. The twentieth century will see the extension of religion and civilization.

The nineteenth century was remarkable for the growth of many strong and splendid states. The twentieth century will be remarkable in that it will witness a federation of the nations—a republic of the world.

The nineteenth century struck the shackles from the black chattel slave. The twentieth century will unbind the limbs of the white wage slave.

In the nineteenth century competition brought about its most splendid results and reached its logical end by destroying itself. In the twentieth century will be ushered in the era of co-operation.

In the nineteenth century Christianity was carried to the so-called heathen world. In the twentieth century the true and higher Christianity will be taught to the Christian as well as to the heathen world.

The nineteenth century ran mad with extremes—of riches and poverty, of culture and ignorance, of high character and degeneracy; the twentieth century will see more equitable conditions, an uplifting of the entire mass, a more general diffusion of prosperity.

The nineteenth century was filled with war; the twentieth century will finally usher in a worldwide peace.

The nineteenth century was marked by noisy struggle and barbaric splendor; the twentieth century will be marked by more silent, but more systematic, effort and by the cultivation of the artistic and beautiful.

In a word, the progress of the nineteenth century was outward; the progress of the twentieth century will be inward.

The centuries form the rounds on the ladder of advancement.

Humanity is about to make another step upward.

Be not dismayed. The world grows better, brighter, happier.

Be not dismayed. Our side may lose in a factional struggle. It is but an incident in the world progress.

Be not dismayed. Things may not move as rapidly as we would wish, but they do move, and that is much.

Be not dismayed. There is a beneficent intelligence in the universe, and through all things runs a purpose; the law of evolution still operates, and the human race is not retrograding, but is moving onward.

Do not be so egotistical as to imagine that, simply because things do not go your way, the Lord has quit doing business.

Remember it is always possible that you may have been the one mistaken.

The world is not perfect, and is not apt to become so in a hundred years, or a thousand, either; but it is going in the right direction and it will reach the goal of a higher civilization by and by.

Be an optimist. He is the only sound and healthy philosopher. It is not necessary to shut your eyes to present evils, but do not let them distort your vision of the future.

With a reverence for what has gone, let us turn unto the new.

John D. Rockefeller's old school teacher is collecting John's schoolboy poems with a view to publishing them. Here is a chance for Rockefeller to make an educational contribution and to gain eternal public gratitude by buying the old man off. Standard Oil and poetry do not mix.

The fact that the war correspondents in the far east have been permitted to go to the front would indicate that the Japs are about to do something to the Russians and want the world to see how it is done.

The Guatemalan red ants imported into this country to devour boll weevils are eating native red ants instead. Somebody could make a fortune by selling them to picnic parties.

Carrie Nation got knocked down for swiping a cigarette out of a young man's mouth in Kentucky. Carrie should resume her hatchet as a weapon of defense.

The English are to tax cars something over a dollar per head. Look out for a bowl.

Monarchy Is Outworn.

Despite the opinion of a few people to the contrary, the idea of monarchy was never at so low an ebb as it is today.

The republican form of government has proved itself vital and practical. The seeds of democracy have been sown in every nation of the world. Those seeds have germinated, are growing.

The mental and moral poverty of most of the kingly tribe furnishes a horrible example that is vastly aiding the spread of republican sentiment.

The spectacle furnished by the hereditary rulers supplies a more powerful argument for the democratic idea in government than all the books that could be written on the subject.

Look at them—in most cases a lot of mediocre degenerates who are poisoning the moral atmosphere of the world; profligate, idle, sensual, their blood depleted by intermarriage, there is scarcely a virtue, clean or really able man in the whole list.

William of Germany is probably the strongest of the lot. He has escaped the moral taint that disgraces most of them. He can boast of intellectual attainments, though his attempt to pose as a universal genius has made him the laughing stock of thinking men and women everywhere. He really believes he is endowed with the divine right to rule, and his attempts to play in that high and mighty role are often ludicrous, sometimes even painful. His spectacular and sensational exhibits of egotism are not particularly harmful, but his opposition to the new spirit of the age is. Taken all in all, however, he is probably the least objectionable of any of the monarchs of the greater nations. But, granting this, is he such a man as a free and great people would voluntarily choose to rule over them? Without the accident of birth, would he be considered for a moment in that relation?

Edward of England can hardly be considered in the light of a ruler. He is a figurehead, tolerated because of a tradition. He simply serves to consume a large amount of public revenues that might be used in more beneficial ways. He is a good fellow, and when that is said practically all is said. True, it is reported that his influence had something to do in ending the Boer war. But that attitude was probably due to no love for the Boers, but to the more selfish desire that there might be nothing to mar his coronation. Even his most ardent admirers have never played him up on the score of intellectuality. Morally his claims to public regard are still less.

Nicholas of Russia is the creature of an autocracy, a bureaucracy and an aristocracy stronger than himself. He is to be credited with a desire for peace, which he has not been vigorous enough to make of any effect. These three monarchs are all descendants of Victoria and from that fact are not so discreditible as some of their brethren. There are three others that can be mentioned with some degree of respect—Oscar of Sweden, Franz Joseph of Austria and the new king of Italy. Little is known of the last, but he has shown some friendship for the people, and because of this much can be forgiven him.

Outside of these the list is sorry enough. Gaze on them: Alfonso of Spain, whose escapades since he came to the throne have caused his best friends to believe him insane; Leopold of Belgium, whose conduct has shocked all Europe and who recently drove his daughter from the body of her dead mother;

Peter of Serbia, who gained his throne through the assassination of his predecessor; George of Greece, whose affairs have become so common that they have almost ceased to cause comment;

And, last and worst of all, Abdul Hamid of Turkey, debilitated by excesses before his time, in terror of his life, paying his debts at the point of the guns of an ironclad!

Do they not furnish an elevating spectacle?

Compare this precious company with real men like the presidents of France and of America. These men have won their way from the ranks by the sheer force of character and ability.

They are a shining testimonial to the rule of the people.

In this day, when our food eaters are bowing down to foreign kings, when there is a secret desire among a few simpletons for the "stronger" government of a monarchy, it is well to call attention to these things.

The republics of the world will grow more and more democratic, and those peoples unfortunate enough to have over them effete royal relics of an outgrown system will arise in the name of liberty until every throne is swept from the face of the earth.

Spotted It All.

A farmer went to hear John Wesley preach. Wesley said he would take up three topics of thought. He was talking chiefly about money. His first was, "Get all you can." The farmer nudged a neighbor and said: "This is strange preaching. I never heard the like before. This is very good." Then Wesley discoursed on "Industry," "Activity," "Living to Purpose," and reached his second division, "Save all you can." The farmer became more excited.

"Was there ever anything like this?" he said. Wesley denounced thriftlessness and waste, and he satirized the willful wickedness which lavishes in luxury, and the farmer rubbed his hands, and he thought, "All this I have been taught from my youth up," and what with getting and what with hoarding it seemed to him that "salvation" had come to his house. But Wesley advanced to his third head, which was "Give all you can." "Ah, dear, ah, dear," said the farmer; "he has gone and spoiled it all!"

Heliotropism.

Heliotropism is the peculiar property shown by many plants, notably the sunflower, of always turning toward the sun. In the case of seedlings the phenomenon is especially marked. The cells on the light side are apparently retarded in growth, thus causing a curvature toward that side. Professor Romanes experimented with an intermittent light, such as that of an electric spark discharge, upon mustard seedlings and found the heliotropism effect produced in this way far greater than that caused by the sun or any other form of light. Strange to say, however, this abnormal influence is unaccompanied by the generation of chlorophyll, the green coloring matter in plants which requires sunshine for its proper production.—Fall Mail Gazette.

First English Letter.

The oldest letter written in English of which there is record was that to Sir John Pelham in London by his wife, who was then in Kent. That letter is dated March 22, 1339, and was sent to London by messenger.

Up to the commencement of the reign of Edward I., all letters, even of the most private nature, were written in Latin. About the time of Edward's accession, French, which had been the spoken language of the court from the time of the conquest, began to be used in written correspondence. In the reign of Edward III. the English language, in pursuance of an act of parliament, was made the language of legislation.

"You mean before you began to get bald?"

"Yes. Now they speak of my hairs."—Philadelphia Press.

The engagement is announced of Miss Helen F. Winn to Mr. Albert W. Caldwell of Buffalo, N. Y.

When the work of improving Dix street was in progress, some person hinted, and quite plainly, too, that Selectman Ferguson, who lives on that street and has investments there, was instrumental in causing the work to be done as an improvement to his property. Selectman Ferguson was not only amused but somewhat incensed at the floating around of this report, as the work was laid out and ordered by the Board of last year of which he was not a member, so that whatever he did in the matter was done as a private citizen and not as a Selectman. The fixing up of the street was a good move, the benefits of which are shared alike by all living on it.

Mr. Thurston Hall is playing in Chicago for seven weeks with Mrs. Wiggs of the Cabbage Patch. The piece has made a big hit there. It will open at the Savoy in New York City on Sept. 3rd. Mr. Hall is living in La Grange, Ill., a quiet and beautiful suburb of Chicago, with Harry Leves, formerly of Winchester, who is engaged in bridge engineering with the C. B. & Q. R. R. Co. On Aug. 26th Mr. Hall will put on a big vaudeville show in La Grange for the benefit of the new Carnegie library fund of that town. Among those who will participate will be Mr. Walter Ware, whom the Winchester people will remember as Walter Hubier, and who is now rehearsing in Chicago with "The Great Mogul."

In connection with the recent burglaries in town, considerable amusement was created when Mr. B—, who was returning from his work one night this week, was mistaken for a bold, bad thief. It seems that Mr. B— in company with Mr. L— was walking home at about 10 o'clock. Arriving at the residence in which Mr. B— lodges, the two gentlemen parted and Mr. B— started into the house. As he was about to open the door Mr. L— was confronted by a little girl of the family, who said, "who are you?" Mr. B— being occupied with his thoughts, did not immediately reply, whereupon the child ran screaming through the house that "the burglars had come." Her screams aroused others, who also yelled, and it is said that the noise could be heard to blocks. Doors began to open and heads were thrust out of adjacent windows, while partially clad neighbors were very much in evidence. It was some time before the cause of the disturbance was ascertained and the noise and excitement quieted. By that time it is said that Mr. B— was in bed.

Last Sunday occurred the annual election of Sunday school officers for the year as follows: Mr. Charles Kirby, superintendent; Miss Elnora Lewis, assistant supt.; Miss Lillian Collins, secretary; Miss Leslie Billips, assistant secretary; Mr. O. The picnic which was given by the St. John's Church of Woburn and the Winchester Church proved a grand success, financially as well as socially. There were sports of various kinds, first the croquet match between the girls, in which the Woburn girls were beaten as usual. Then followed the base ball game in which the Winchester girls won. In the afternoon followed the game between the Crescent A. C. and the Vesper club. At this game Woburn was victorious for the first time. The events were not held on account of lack of time. The race between Miss Harriet Miss Billips, Miss Lewis was a close one. Miss Billips had it won easily, only some one yelled out, "you look real foolish," she thought they said finish, she stopped and Miss Lewis won.

The Crescent base ball team was defeated last Saturday by the close score of 13 to 11 by the Riversides of Malden. Both teams played a good game. Yancey and Russell pitched a good game for Winchester while Taylor played a good game for Malden. A hot game is expected on Saturday, the opposing team will be the Olympics of Newton at Winchester.

What would the proprietors of all the health foods or "cereals" do in a country which has no summer? Likewise, what would the patent medicine fellows do in a world which has no springtime and no need of spring tonics? — Medford Leader.

Literal Meaning.

Judge Stanchfield of Elmira, N. Y., speaking of literal men, tells a story of a shock he had in a case in which he was recently associated. Several witnesses had sworn there was a hole in a certain road. Then, to the surprise of counsel, the principal witness, a farmer, on whom they mainly depended to establish their case, swore there was no hole in the road. After Mr. Stanchfield and his associates had recovered from their astonishment they sought to draw the witness into some explanation of the remarkable testimony. What they eventually got was this:

"There wasn't any hole in the road. Here's my hat. If I jam my hand into the top of it without pushing it through it does not make a hole. It makes a dent. That's what was in that road—just a dent." — New York Times.

OLD WINCHESTER.

An Old English Capital Replete with Historic Memories.

The following interesting letter from Winchester, England, written some years ago, will no doubt be read with much interest by the residents of our new Winchester, notwithstanding the fact that it was not named after its old English namesake, but for Col. Winchester a resident of Boston:

Winchester is sixty-six miles from London by the London and Southwestern Railway. Having been the ancient capital of the kingdom, the capital of the British, the Saxon, and the Norman kings, and the favorite resort of later sovereigns, it possesses an historical interest beyond any other city in Great Britain except London. Its houses stand upon the foundations of palaces and monasteries, its very soil is composed of the dust of kings and queens, prelates and nobles, heroes and martyrs, and every object has been associated with some stirring event in the annals of the past.

The cathedral, the beautiful college, built and endowed by William of Wykeham, and the Norman Hospital and Church of St. Cross are the main objects of interest. But everything is antique; the massive gateways, the tall peaked roofs, the projecting gables, the low pointed arches leading into houses, once the palaces of nobles, niches with antique figures of saints and Virgin, memorial stones embedded in the walls of more recent buildings, all speak of the remote past. St. Swithun was Bishop in 855, and here fell the dismal rain for forty days when the monks sought to change his burial place. St. Swithun and St. Peter have streets named in their honor.

The city lies in a valley, traversed by the River Itchen, a clear tranquil stream, and is surrounded by the downs, as the English call the gently swelling hills. In the centre rises the cathedral, and south of it Wykeham's College, looking like another church with its noble tower, and down the valley St. Cross half hidden by surrounding trees. Within the old city walls are the ruins of Wolversley castle, built by Henry de Blois, the brother of Stephen and Bishop of Winchester in the twelfth century. It was used as the Bishop's palace until destroyed by Cromwell when Winchester was besieged.

Winchester was especially the seat of royalty in the Saxon days, the days of Uther Pendragon, the father of Arthur, whose "round table" is shown to the curious. Egbert, the first King of England, was crowned here, and in A. D. 828 issued an edict calling the island England. Here Alfred was born, crowned, died, and was buried: Canute, Hardicanute, William the Norman, William Rufus, Henry Beauclerc, Stephen, and Matilda all walked these streets and looked upon these scenes. William the Conqueror loved Winchester, and built himself a castle next to the north end of the cathedral, where some of its foundations still remain, the castle having been destroyed by Cromwell. Here William came to hunt in the neighboring New Forest: for, says the Saxon chronicle, "he loved the deer as though he was their own father." Here Richard, his second son, killed while hunting in the forest, was buried, and through these streets the corpse of William Rufus was brought in the cart of a charcoal-burner after he was slain by Tyrrel's arrow in the same fateful forest.

Winchester was the scene of Matilda's struggle with Stephen. Twenty churches, the palace, and two monasteries were destroyed by their contending forces, and here was signed the compromise which made Henry Plantagenet heir to the English crown. Richard the Lion-hearted, coming home after his crusade and his captivity in Germany, caused himself to be crowned in the monastery with great ceremony. Henry III. was born in Winchester: Henry VIII. spent a week here entertaining Charles V. of Germany. Alas for the goodly city that he did so thus gaining the knowledge of the rich endowments which he afterward swept away with a ruthless hand. Many have been the royal weddings and coronations. Henry Beauclerc here was married to Maud the Good, to the joy of the English people: Stephen was crowned King among the rejoicing people, who afterward welcomed the Empress Matilda. Henry III. wedded Joan of Brittany, and Mary Tudor here made the "Spanish marriage" with Philip of Spain. The chair she sat in that occasion is still preserved in the cathedral.

Winchester was besieged and taken by Cromwell, who blew up William the Norman's castle, demolished the bishop's palace and the Norman tower at the west gate. His troopers stabled their horses in the cathedral, showing their Puritan zeal in destroying monuments and stained glass and decapitating stone saints. Charles II. loved to abide at Winchester and caused Sir Christopher Wren to build a palace for him on the site of the old castle. He died before it was finished, and it is now used as military barracks. While here he lived in the deanery, to which he added two rooms to accommodate Nell Gwynn: while the Duchess of Portsmouth had a house in St. Peter Street.

Winchester Cathedral has been too often described and pictured to need a new attempt, so it is well to omit its description. As one approaches it from any quarter its huge fabric strikes the eye with a solemn air of grandeur. All the surroundings are ancient, the gray ivy-covered walls and houses, the sacred quietude of the close—the tombs and headstones on the green turf, the lofty trees, strike awe to the soul already overwhelmed with historic memories.

The massive old font reminds one of the Druid Cromlechs. It is a heavy, square, mass of dark marble, supported on five huge pillars. Here Arthur, the oldest son of Henry VII., was christened, and doubtless many other royal babes. As one stands by it the mind conjures up the splendid processions of kings and queens, mired bishops, friars, monks, lords, and ladies, who have trodden these aisles.

There is room here for mention of but a few of the wonderful monuments. Several are by Flaxman—notably that of Warton, headmaster of Wykeham College. He is shown teaching a group of school-boys—real boys, to the wrinkles in their trousers! William of Wykeham has a tomb of great beauty, in a chapel or chantry of his own, constructed of open stonework, most delicate and beautiful. The full-length figure is of alabaster. At his feet are seated three quaint little figures of praying monks. Other chantries hold the tombs of Fox, Edington, Waynflete, Cardinal Beaufort, and Gardiner, all at various times Bishops of Winchester. Gardiner's effigy is headless. In the eastern part is the marble coffin of Richard, second son of William the Conqueror, and the Lady Chapel where Mary of England wedded Philip of Spain. In the northeast aisle is the tomb of Hardicanute, with a ship in full sail carved upon it, as becomes a Viking. The northern transept was built by Bishop Walkelin, the cousin of the Conqueror. The first tower, built by him in 1079, fell with a crash in 1100, soon after William Rufus was buried here. The English attributed this catastrophe to the cankerous wickedness of the Red King's bones. A new tower, massive and enduring, was erected with money left by Walkelin to the cathedral.

The choir is most beautiful. The rich, dark woodwork of the stalls, the splendid vaulted roof, the gorgeous colors of the windows combine in a most wonderful picture. On the floor of the sanctuary is the tomb of William Rufus, and on the top of the stone partitions, dividing the sanctuary from the aisles, are six stone mortuary chests containing the bones of the Saxon princes. These were formerly in lead coffins in the crypt, but were placed here by Bishop Fox. When Cromwell took the city, a mob rushed into the cathedral, broke open some of these chests, and threw the bones at the painted windows. These bones were carefully collected, and afterwards put in a chest, which bears the inscription that they were scattered in "the sacrilegious barbarism of the year 1642." In the south transept a stone in the floor bears an inscription to Isaac Walton, the Gentle Angler. Miss Austen, the novelist, is also buried here.

William of Wykeham is said to have been a poor boy, educated by the lord of the manor at a grammar school on the spot where the college now stands.

It was incorporated and endowed in 1339 for the education and maintenance of seventy poor pupils, with proper officers, teachers, and chaplains. Such it continues to this day, admitting, however, other pupils besides those on the foundation. The college is built around two courts, with massive towers over the gates. On the first is a niche containing a figure of the Virgin, on the second three niches devoted to the Virgin, the Angel Gabriel and William of Wykeham. The chapel is very fine, with rich stained-glass windows.

The dining-hall is most antique. The "trenchers," now used for bread and cheese, were formerly used as plates, bread and vegetables forming a wall around meat and gravy. Turning them over, the pudding was eaten from the reverse side.

The motto of the school, chosen by the founder, is "Manners maketh Manne." At one end of the dining-hall is an octagon chest in which are placed daily the broken meats for the benefit of twenty-four poor women, eight each day in rotation.

The school-room is comparatively modern, having been erected in 1687, and is most primitive in its furnishings. On one end of the room, which is lofty and ninety feet long by thirty-six wide, appear the following words: Aut Disce (either learn) Aut Discede (or depart). Namet sors Terza Cadi (the third choice is to be flogged.) Opposite the Latin phrases are appropriated symbols—a mitre, as reward of learning; a sword, to enforce expulsion, and a scourge, to do the flogging. At the other end of the room are rules in Latin for the conduct of the scholars. From these halls of learning, "the parent of Eton, the model of Westminster," have gone forth archbishops, bishops, judges, generals, statesmen, and a host of scholars and gentlemen. In the quadrangle is a beautiful little Gothic chapel, now used as a library, where originally a friar chanted a daily mass for the repose of the souls of the founder and those of the collegians who had died. One of its many curiosities is the pedigree of William of Wykeham traced back to Adam!—neatly written on a long roll of vellum.

Following the clear, running waters of the Itchen, you will pass through the green meadows to St. Cross. This is a Norman building, and has stood almost intact since the days of Stephen. Originally, it was for the support of thirteen old men, and provided the daily dinner for one hundred others. On Founder's Day three hundred were to be fed. Bishop de Blois, William of Wykeham, and Cardinal Beaufort were the benefactors of St. Cross. Wykeham restored its funds which had been diverted to some other uses. In his time seventy persons were maintained in the house, besides the daily dinner in "Hundred-Meases-Hall." In Henry VIII's time, like other charitable institutions, it was robbed with a heavy hand, and now, though its income is large, it only supports thirteen single men (or if married their wives are not admitted.) The habit is a black gown with a silver cross as a badge. There are five anniversaries called "gaudy days," which are celebrated with a feast of roast beef, plum-pudding, and plum porridge. At the porter's lodge is a bell, and every wayfarer is served with a "horn of beer and a bunch of bread," according to the founder's will, made seven hundred and fifty years ago.

The Church of St. Cross is said to be the oldest Norman architecture remaining in England. The front of the west end is supposed to have been built by Trykeham and Beaufort. All the rest is the work of Henry de Blois. It is built in a sort of composite Saxon and Norman style. The heavy Saxon pillars support Norman arches, and Saxon and Norman ornaments both are used. The pavement is of tiles, probably imitated from the Romans, but bearing quaint and curious figures of lions and other beasts and birds. On some of them, here and there, are the old English words, "Have Mynde," meaning, no doubt, "Remember where you are, and pray for the souls of the departed buried here."

Since the days of Charles II., no historical events of importance have taken place at Winchester. No irreverent hand has touched her holy places since the ruin wrought in the days of the Commonwealth, when one of Cromwell's officers, himself an old Wykehamist, stood guard with his drawn sword before the tomb of William of Wykeham in the cathedral to save it from desecration. Peace and quiet brood over the beautiful ancient city, tranquil in its valley beside its clear murmuring stream and shadowed by its noble trees, one of the most historic and interesting places in the kingdom of Great Britain.

A Remarkable Horse.

The sewer department has a horse with a remarkable tendency for running away and doing things that would kill the ordinary equine. Another peculiar thing about the animal is that no one can tell when he is going on a rampage. To all appearances docile as a purring cat, he will start off and proceed to smash things, and for no apparent reason whatever.

Some time ago during the noon hour while the horse was munching his oats with evident relish and the sewer men were eating from the full dinner pail, the animal started on the dead run dragging the heavy wagon after him. Away he sped across a field on Highland avenue the wagon swaying to the right and left, jumped down an embankment three feet in height, then across the avenue into an apple orchard, the wagon swinging in and out among the trees until finally a pear tree five inches in thickness was struck by the forward axle. This separated the front wheels from the wagon and shortly after the horse was captured and but for a few bruises none the worse for the escapade. The tree suffered the most damage.

Since that time there have been minor cases of the animal becoming its own master for a short time, but there was nothing remarkable in the performances up to Wednesday morning last when his driver was tying him to the iron hitching post in front of the Town Hall building. Before the man could secure him to the post, he jerked the hitching chain away and running across the street vaulted up the three or four foot stone wall in front of the residence of Mr. D. N. Skillings. The horse landed on the lawn all right, but the front wheels refused to go up, with the result that he was thrown down. The driver quickly had him in hand. The only damage done was to the seat of the wagon, and the horse is now in trim for another adventure unless the Sewer Board should decide to get rid of him, which would be a good thing and relieve the town from all liability for damages which are certain to come if the animal is retained in the employ of this department.

THE PARADE ON THE FOURTH.

Winchester fairly out did herself on the morning of the Fourth. The Chief Marshal and promoter of this entertainment had the pleasure of seeing before him as fine an array of "Ye Antique and Horribles" as could be desired.

Promptly at six o'clock the order was given for the start, and the circuit of the town was made.

The Marshall had on his staff two Mohawk Indians of the most aesthetic type. They were finely gotten up and excited a great deal of comment.

Miss Lydia E. Pinkham was represented by Reuben Davis, Esq. The old lady looked quite youthful and handsome.

The hanging of Guiteau was well represented as well as the devil leading Guiteau to his dominions. Guiteau was labeled on his back, "Farewell ye men of earth." A mounted colored brother in grey uniform and "Ye Honorable Judge" were well carried out. A sausage mill in full operation was well done. Also a barber shop—the razor was immense. A load of young misses and gents bound for the races was well gotten up and took a prize. Our sedate and honorable Water Board got a full benefit in the procession and excited the utmost admiration. The team was all "boards" and was drawn by Dotten's sorrel nag. The horse was bandaged as though just recovering from a severe sickness and labelled, "This dam won't leak." The team was covered

A Remarkable Trip to Europe.

Jay B. Benton, of 2 Summit avenue, City Editor of the Boston Evening Transcript, returned to Winchester a few days ago after a trip to Europe which was quite remarkable for the amount of territory covered and number of places visited, taking into consideration the length of time that he was away from home. He was on land only one week, making the trip to Liverpool and back on board the Canarder Campania, but in that time he went to London, crossed by the Hook of Holland, went up the Rhine and visited Basle, Lucerne, Interlaken, Berne, Geneva and Paris. While in Switzerland he went over the Brunig Pass and ascended the Schynige Platte. Upon his return journey he desired a little more time in London and so was able to make special arrangements to travel with the late mail and catch the Campania at Queenstown. This gave him the unusual experience of being the only passenger upon the boat from Holyhead to Dublin as well as upon the fast express. It was exactly seven days to the minute from the time that he left the Euston station in London that he arrived at the South station in Boston, the long journey having been made without any interruption whatever.

On Tuesday "Jim" Newman and "Ted" Sheraton paddled to Cohasset and back.

There will be water sports at the Club this Saturday afternoon.

Wakefield Has no Day Policeman.

Wakefield is pretty far behind the times or else that town must be more law-abiding place than the average, when it does not require the services of a day police officer. For many years Winchester has seen the necessity of a day policeman, or ever since the advent of electric cars when scores of people are disembarked here and transferred to other roads. The Wakefield Item says in regard to this:

"The need of a permanent day officer on the police force was strikingly shown yesterday when with repeated calls for an officer to preserve order at a boisterous outing at the head of the lake several hours went by before a special could be found to go on duty. Chief Cate frequently urged the need of an officer to be at the station to attend to calls when he was obliged to be away on business and Chief Urquhart has found an urgent necessity for such an addition to the force."

Marple-Folsom.

Miss Martha Thayer Folsom, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Samuel H. Folsom, was married Tuesday afternoon, at the family residence 144 Highland avenue to Mr. Lucius Elliot Marple of Wollaston. Rev. Charles E. St. John, Secretary of the American Unitarian Association, performed the marriage ceremony.

Geo. R. Brine Convalescent.

The many friends of Mr. George R. Brine will be pleased to hear that he has returned to his home on Washington street where he is now convalescent. He has been at the Carney Hospital where he spent several weeks undergoing a severe surgical operation.

VEHICLE WHEEL.

Strong, Durable, and Adaptable to Any Road.

A patent has been granted to Mr. Carl Rondell of Minneapolis, Minn., on a new type of vehicle wheel which provides a cushion tread surface of very great strength. The wheel rim, as shown in the accompanying illustration, which is taken from the Scientific American, is formed with a central outwardly offset section. In other words, it has the form of a trough with side flanges along each edge. The spokes are secured at one end to these flanges and at their opposite ends to the hub.

The rim is preferably made of aluminum, although any suitable material may be used, and the tire is a cushion tire, being preferably made of solid rubber, although an inflated tire may be employed. The tire is endless and is perfectly fitted to the outer convex surface of the central member of the rim. Although the tire will remain on this offset member without being secured thereto, it is preferably attached to the rim by a cement or other well known means, so as to prevent it from creeping.

A wheel constructed in this manner is adapted for use in connection with any form of wheeled vehicle and is exceedingly strong and durable and well adapted for use on roads of any description.

NUTS AND BEANS AS FOOD.

Their Value Proved by the Department of Agriculture.

The department of agriculture reports most interesting experiments made by Professor Poffa of the University of California upon men engaged in hard manual labor most of the time and students working to support themselves while pursuing their studies. The professor says, "Nuts are the cheapest source of energy, peanuts ranging far ahead." The price, 3.3 cents per thousand calories of energy, is at less cost than any animal food or potatoes at 90 cents a bushel.

Peanuts deserve special mention because the cheapest domestic nut containing the highest percentage of protein, with maximum fuel value and minimum refuse. Ten cents, for instance, will purchase more protein and energy when spent for flour or meal, but these are raw materials, requiring considerable preparation before they are eaten. This is not necessary with fruits and nuts. Ten cents' worth of peanuts will contain about four ounces of protein and 2,767 calories of energy.

Although peanuts supply protein and energy for a smaller sum than bread, they are outranked by dried beans, which at 5 cents a pound will supply for 10 cents over 200 grams of protein and 3,040 calories of energy. If more peanuts and dried beans were used by the fruitarians the diet would be enriched and the cost decreased. Fifteen cents a day was the average cost with fruit, nuts, beans and a limited quantity of cottage cheese and eggs.

A New Local Anesthetic.

A new local anesthetic of the cocaine order has been discovered. It is called "eucaine," and the advantage of the drug will enable the carrying out of those operations otherwise impossible with chloroform, owing to heart weakness of the patient. It will also enable the surgeon to take more time over his work. Although scarcely adaptable for amputations, it will be useful for treatment of the thyroid glands. The eucaine is injected by means of a hypodermic needle under the skin at the place where the incision is to be made. After a few moments the skin may be cut without the patient feeling anything. As different and independent parts are exposed, the drug is dropped at intervals of a few minutes. A highly successful operation with this anesthetic was recently carried out in a London hospital, the operation lasting one and one-half hours.

Milking Cows by Electricity.

In Germany a new milking apparatus is said to employ electricity to operate the suction mechanism by which the fluid is drawn from the udder of the cow. A set of rubber hoods are attached to the teats, each hood leading to a central rubber tube, from which the air is exhausted at regular intervals by means of the electrical device. It is claimed that the suction thus secured resembles very closely the sucking of a calf and that for this reason the cow "lets down" her milk more freely than when milked by hand.

MONEY SLANG.

Terms Applied to Coins and Bank Notes in England.

"We may think there is a great deal of slang in English as we commonly use it in this country," Mr. J. E. Soraghan observes, "but in at least one respect the colloquial tongue of England surpasses the wealth of terms we possess in this regard, and that is the slang relating to money. The American uses astonishingly few slang words in speaking of pieces of money, perhaps because he has a greater respect for it. A five cent piece is usually referred to as a nickel, but this is practically the only slang term applied to any of our money in general use. A dime is officially a dime, and so is a quarter."

"But turn to the English appellations for their money and hardly a bit of it is referred to under its authorized and official designation. A shilling is seldom called such in London. They call it a 'bob,' and a 'quid,' which means a piece of tobacco in this country, is what they term a pound. Sixpence they call a 'tanner,' fourpence a 'joey' and a penny more often than not is unknown to the street gamins save as a 'mag.' A cabman will not tell you a ride will cost 5 shillings, but that it will require a 'bull' to pay for it, and a half crown is 'half a bull.' These are prevailing expressions for the pieces of money widely handled, but proper terms for higher amounts are kicked aside and colloquial terms substituted for them."

"At a race track if a better says he has ventured a 'pony' on the probable outcome of a race he does not mean that as it would appear to us, but simply that he has wagered £25 on the result. Where money is handled in large amounts it is not an infrequent thing to hear one say of another that he has a 'monkey' of money, meaning that the individual referred to is the proud possessor of £500. So you see in comparison with this plethora of riches our lone nickel is a poor crop of monetary slang indeed."—St. Louis Globe-Democrat.

AFGHAN FEUDS.

Towers of Refuge From Which the Warfare is Conducted.

In Afghanistan the people are good haters. The blood feud exists in all Afghan tribes. When a murder occurs the avenger does not limit his reprisal to the murderer, but kills any relative that comes handy. This, in turn, calls for a counter attack, and in time matters become so complicated that whole families are wiped out. When the tribe is called upon to meet a common enemy the heads of the families who have had a quarrel bury two stones side by side in the presence of the mullah as symbolic of the feud being put out of sight during the public danger. When affairs revert to their normal state the stones are solemnly disinterred and the two parties are free to go on shooting at each other again.

Every Afghan villager of moderate means owns a tower of refuge standing at the corner of his courtyard. These towers, made of stone and mud, are perfectly solid for the lower twenty feet or so, the top being surrounded by a loophole wall and covered over to make it habitable. The base is protected by a gallery, and the only means of ascent is by a rope and a hole just large enough for one man to crawl through. Whenever a man has made things too hot for himself he takes refuge in his tower, and by the unwritten law of the country he can never be starved out so long as food and water are brought to him by a woman.

A traveler in Afghanistan tells of seeing one tower of refuge whose occupant had not stirred outside for ten years. His only amusement was taking shots at the occupant of another tower, which were duly returned. In the meantime their wives visited each other and gossiped and were on terms of perfect amity.

Macedonian Peasants.

In a magazine article on Macedonian refugees the author describes them as a peasantry of the lowest type—dull witted and of poor physique, corrupt, degraded and semisavage.

"The gratitude of Macedonian women can occasionally be more alarming than their indignation," says the author. "The embrace me in a hug of dirty rags, and they kiss me on both cheeks. One poor old lady told me, after this ceremony, that she had been mourning the death of her son for eight years to such an extent that during all of that period she had never washed her head! 'No soap,' she cried, 'will ever touch me again. I mourn always!'"

The Cause of the Trouble.

"What is the matter with that baby?" growled an irascible husband as the little one persisted in howling and kicking to the extent of his little might. "The matter is, sir," calmly replied the wife as she strode up and down the room, "the matter is that this baby inherits your temper."

And the husband returned to his paper with a gloomier look than before.

The Proud Papa.

"Baby carriages? Yes, sir," said the dealer. "What sort of one did you want?" "Well," said Nupop proudly, "you'd better give me a six months' size. He's only six weeks old, but large for his age."—Philadelphia Press.

A Deduction.

"He declares his wife made him all that he is."

"Quite likely. And I should judge that she didn't waste more than half an hour on the job."—Harper's Bazar.

It is not you who possess riches, but your riches which possess you.—Blon.

Athletics and Work.

Athletics are nothing but a spurious substitute for the manual and bodily labor which our athletic amateurs are forbidden to perform by the laziness, greed, snobbery and rapacity of their class. I could keep myself in perfectly good condition and temper if I might do a couple of hours' work every day as a navvy without "doing a poor man out of his job." As it is, I have to weary myself and waste my energy in bicycling and walking to places where I have no business, over roads which I have tramped until I am tired of them. I have to drudge through "exercises" to keep myself from becoming a human pig. I have even pulled at india rubber ropes until I could not bear the revolting absurdity of it, even without an audience to laugh at me. The whole business is too sneaking for public discussion. Half the population lives miserably and breaks down prematurely from excess of bodily toil. The other half does the same because there is no bodily work left for it to do. That is what is called civilization.—George Bernard Shaw in London News.

Mary, Queen of Scots.

Beautiful she may not have been, though M. de Brantome would never allow it; but fine, fine she was all over—sharply, exquisitely cut and modeled; her sweet smooth chin, her amorous lips, bright red where all else was pale as a tinged rose; her sensitive nose, her broad, high brows, her neck which two hands could hold, her small shoulders and bosom of a child. And then her hands, her waist no bigger than a stalk, her little feet! She had sometimes an intent, considering, wise look the look of the Queen of Desire, who knew not where to set the bounds of her need, but revealed to no one what that was. And belying that look askance of hers—sly or wise or sleepy, as you choose—her voice was bold and very clear, her manners were those of a lively, graceful boy, her gestures quick, her spirit impatient and entirely without fear. At this hour she was nineteen years old and not two months a widow.—From "The Queen's Quaire."

A Story of Webster.

On one occasion Daniel Webster was on his way to Washington and was compelled to proceed at night by stage from Baltimore. He had no traveling companion, and the driver had a sort of felon look, which produced no inconsiderable alarm in the senator. "I endeavored to tranquilize myself," said Mr. Webster, "and had partly succeeded when we reached the dark woods between Bladensburg and Washington, a proper scene for murder or outrage, and here, I confess, my courage again deserted me. Just then the driver turned to me and with a gruff voice inquired my name. I gave it to him. 'Where are you going?' said he. The reply was: 'To Washington. I am a senator.' Upon this the driver seized me fervently by the hand and exclaimed: 'How glad I am! I took you for a highwayman!'"

Facts About Oranges.

The riper an orange gets the more yellow it becomes. A dealer's test for a perfect orange is to press it as you would a hard rubber ball. If you can make a slight indentation by pressing hard, but the pulp remains firm enough to rebound, the orange is all right.

Russet oranges are rich, but liable to spoil. When buying oranges by the box (and this is the best plan where you use a good many) get a repacked box instead of an original one. Thin skinned, bright colored oranges are the best. While the California, Florida and Arizona fruit are altogether the best for eating out of hand or on the table, the foreign oranges, Messina or Sicily, are considered best for marmalade.—Philadelphia Inquirer.

Rome and Beards.

The usage at Rome in the matter of beards has changed several times over. In the ninth century the custom of the Greek church was passed on that of Rome because the priests there refused to shave. The exact contrary is now the general rule in both churches. When Pope Julius II. ascended the papal throne in 1503 he intimated that he would allow his beard to grow "in order to inspire greater respect among the faithful."—St. James' Gazette.

Genuine Imitation.

"Well, I made the sale, all right," said the new salesman. "But you lied to her," protested the proprietor. "You told her they were genuine Irish leeches!" "No, I didn't. She simply said she didn't want any 'bogus imitations,' and I assured her ours were genuine."—Philadelphia Press.

Life and Death Struggles

are continually taking place in the sick room between the forces of health and disease. The great destroyer and eradicator of all that propagates and furthers the spread of sickness and disease is Cabot's Sulpho Naphthol. It is the best germicidal agent for cleansing all vessels, utensils, clothing, etc., the best deodorant for purifying the air, an important factor in the care of the sick, and, from its germicidal and anaesthetic properties, one of the best antiseptics for sores, wounds, inflammation, irritation, etc.

WAIT FOR AN APPETITE.

You Should Never Eat Simply For the Sake of Eating.

A prolific cause of chronic indigestion is eating from habit and simply because it is mealtime and others are eating. To eat when not hungry is to eat without relish, and food taken without relish is worse than wasted. Without relish the salivary glands do not act, the gastric fluids are not freely secreted, and the best of foods will not be digested. Many perfectly harmless dishes are severely condemned for no other reason than they were eaten perfunctorily and without relish and due insatiation.

Hunger makes the plainest foods enjoyable. It causes vigorous secretion and outpouring of all the digestive fluids, the sources of pyralin, pepsin, trypsin, etc., without a plentiful supply of which no foods can be perfectly digested.

Wait for an appetite, if it takes a week. Fasting is one of the saving graces. It has a spiritual significance only through its great physical and physiologic importance. If breakfast is a bore or lunch a matter of indifference, cut one or both of them out. Wait for distance and unmistakable hunger and then eat slowly. If you do this you need ask few questions as to the propriety and digestibility of what you eat, and it need not be pre-digested.—Exchange.

Violent Attack of Diarrhoea Cured by Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy and Perhaps a Life Saved.

"A short time ago I was taken with a violent attack of diarrhoea and believe I would have died if I had not gotten relief," says John J. Patton, a leading citizen of Patton, Ala. I consider it the best remedy in the world for bowel complaints." For sale by O'Connor's Pharmacy.

When an Iceberg Turns Turtle.

Think of sections bigger than Rhode Island being torn from a glacier and swept off into the ocean, to be ferried 3,000 miles on the bosom of the Labrador current until the heated waters of the gulf stream cause them to vanish from human ken. Then can one form some idea of the immensity of the ice area discharged from the Greenland seas each year. Thousands of miles of valley are constantly emptying their contents into the bays and bords of the north waters, whence the tides hurry the detachments southward to cumber the wide Atlantic.

The disposition of icebergs to turn turtle is one of their most dangerous propensities. It arises from several causes. When they start out from Greenland their bottoms are heavy with the detritus gathered in their glacial period, and this drops off at intervals as they move south, causing their center of gravity to change and the berg to assume new positions. The scientific theory of the formation of the vast submarine plateaus which extend from Labrador to Fundy, and are commonly known as the Grand banks of Newfoundland, is that they are the products of bergs during countless ages.—Leslie's Magazine.

Cannibalistic Scorpions.

During many years of scorpion hunting I never remembered to have seen two individuals living together in amity, and even their more tender relations are tainted at times with the unnamable habit of cannibalism. The males are decidedly smaller than their mates, whom they approach accordingly with the utmost caution. If the fair innamorata doesn't like the looks of her advancing suitor she settles the question of hand by making a murderous spring at him, catching him in her claws, stinging him to death and making a hearty meal of him. This is scarcely loverlike. On the other hand, if a dubious wife, the female scorpion is a devoted mother. She hatches her eggs in her own oviduct, brings forth her young alive—unlike her relations, the spiders—and carries them about on her back, to the number of fifty, during their innocent childhood, till they are of an age to shift for themselves in the struggle for existence.—Cornhill Magazine.

A Recall To Honor

By

Copyright, 1903, by Edwin L. Sabin

THE fair grounds were a kaleidoscope, concentrating at the race course in a tossing sea of color for the Kirby fall racing meet was in full blast, and this was the great day upon its week's programme. Town and country mingled—a restless, babbling, good natured throng, occupying rank on rank, tier on tier, every inch of vantage space, or streaming over the surrounding turf.

Sitting in the middle of the amphitheater Harold Durr eagerly gazed across the track, looking for Alice. He know that opposite to him somewhere amid the curvatures ranged inside the rail, was her snowy parol with its floating ruffles of chiffon. It seemed to him that this parol—her parol—ought to stand out before him blazoned with the word "Alice." But fifty, a hundred, parols, all snowy, all massed in chiffon, met his straining eyes.

When some months previous to this date Mr. Redding had awakened to the fact that the acquaintance, ostensibly casual, between his daughter and young Durr was assuming a more serious aspect he very promptly set his parental foot squarely upon the whole affair.

For the present an engagement was quite out of the question. Harold was only a clerk, who, although he possessed abundant plans and ambitions, had not realized upon them.

It was better that for awhile intercourse cease. If in time Harold proved worthy, socially and in a business way, possibly he might again try his chances.

Thus, midst tears and vows from the daughter and indignant protestations and resolves by the lover, Mr. Redding carried his point. Harold entered upon an indefinite term of probation.

The odds were in favor of Mr. Redding finally yielding. He saw that his daughter was utterly miserable, and, after all, Harold's character was above reproach. Poverty was the lad's only drawback, one which the father was strongly considering remedying.

Still today, as for many foregoing days, Harold was on one side of the track, Alice on the other.

It was now 3 o'clock. Several races had been dispatched, and the next upon the programme was of intense local interest. It was a contest in which were entered two horses which had long been keen rivals, whose owners had agreed to make this match a decisive test.

The fever of speculation was waxing more and more turbulent in the crowd. Harold himself had no idea of wagering. He had been brought up to believe that betting was wrong. Besides, he could not afford to bet, and it was his theory that usually the winners are those persons who do not vitally care.

However, everybody around him was betting. Everybody was talking horse. Everybody was telling of prospective gains. Bentenisms, gay assertions, playful threats, flew thick and fast. Men were coming and going, bearing reports of doings in the betting ring, for, despite the pretended efforts on the part of the meet officials, underneath the amphitheater pools were selling at a lively rate.

Harold felt himself alone inert. He was pervaded by vague discontent. Everybody was winning; nobody was losing, except the pool sellers, and they were legitimate spoil.

To quiet his unrest he arose and strolled toward the stairs. Impelled onward, he descended and in an instant was seized by the mob gyrating about the bookmakers' stands.

A hand clapped him on the shoulder, and he heard a voice in his ear: "Hello, old man! Want a good thing?" He twisted his neck and looked behind him and saw that the speaker was Dicky Saddler—red faced little Dicky, a race track habitué.

"I'm not betting," replied Harold. "Oh, pshaw," scoffed Dicky. "Put your wad on Seven Up—it's a cinch. Fact. Tip straight from the stable and I know what I'm saying. See?" And he was torn away.

Harold pushed through the throng and on the outskirts sought a corner where he might stop and think. His brain was buzzing. The contagion had been too unbridled to be resisted. Half unconsciously his fingers were crumpling and creasing a ten dollar bill in his pocket—all the money he owned.

Should he let the opportunity pass by? Dicky Saddler's tip it had come like a command. Dicky ought to know. He was inveterate at the races, and he always won—that is, nearly always.

Mastered by an impulse to venture as far as he dared he elbowed a path to a spot whence he could read the figures chalked on the board beside a bookmaker's box. Seven Up was selling at odds of 5 to 2.

What a chance! With his $10 he could gain $25. He would use the money to start a savings bank account for himself and Alice. He had tried his best to save, but had been unable. Surely in such a cause betting was not wicked.

Thus he reasoned. If only he had more money available. But the $10 was the extent. Of course there in his hip pocket reposed the $100 that he had received just as he had been closing the office for the half holiday. It was part payment on a piece of real estate. Mr. Benten, his employer, had gone, and the safe was locked, so Harold had placed the five twenty dollar bills securely in his pocket until the next day.

Now, not for an instant did he consider intrenching upon this sum. No, he was sane even if he was excited. And he was honest.

Suddenly he cast hesitation to the winds. He stepped forward and handed his bill to the bookmaker.

"On Seven Up," he said.

In exchange he received a bit of gray card, like a ticket, with hieroglyphics on it which signified that he had wagered with bookmaker No. 8 $10 to $25 that Seven Up would pass the wire first.

As he was pocketing the ticket and taking refuge in the thought that if he lost "it would all be the same in a hundred years" his eyes encountered the eyes of Mr. Benten, who was but a few yards distant in the crowd. Mr. Benten smiled and shook his head. He must have witnessed the transaction. Harold, with a guilty sensation, he knew not why, smiled in return and sought a place in the amphitheater above.

Hardly had he seated himself ere the race was called. The horses gathered at the post. In the amphitheater somebody stood the better to see. Then the movement spread like a wave, and the whole amphitheater was on its feet. Somebody brazenly climbed upon a chair. Immediately the brazen throng climbed upon its chairs also.

The horses flattered. A wait, a shifting of positions, a warning from the starter—down they came; a cheer—they were off! And a very pretty start it was.

"Imp! Imp! Go it, Imp!" "Seven Up! Seven Up!" "Mascot!"

Voices shouted and shrieked in exultation, entreaty and encouragement. Husbands reined, engulphed alike the frenzied and the self possessed. Just behind Harold a woman leaned forward and, snapping her fingers, screamed incessantly:

HE SPRANG TO HIS FEET.

"Come on, Seven Up! Come on, Seven Up! Come on, Seven Up!"

Harold, outwardly unaffected, said nothing, but with fervent curiosity followed the struggling bunch of horses.

"Seven Up! Come on, Seven Up!" "Imp will win," calmly announced a man beside Harold, closing his field-glass with a satisfied snap.

Around the last turn, into the home stretch, down the home stretch, sped the horses, all but the two leaders enveloped in eddying dust.

"Imp! Imp! Imp!" "Come on, Seven Up! Come on, Seven Up! Come on, Seven Up!"

A waving of hats and parasols, a volley of cries, and the race was won, but not by Seven Up.

"I lost a dollar!" Harold heard the woman behind him bemoaning. He abstracted from his pocket his ticket and stoically scattered it in pieces. No more betting for him. He had learned his lesson and had received what he deserved.

Mechanically he put his hand back to his hip pocket to ascertain that the hundred was safe. During the interest attached to the race he had forgotten about this trust.

"What! Empty?" With an abrupt, cold tightening of his heartstrings his fingers rapidly explored. Scarcely could he believe them. Empty, empty, empty! He had been robbed, probably by some deft thief in the betting ring.

He sprang to his feet, urged by an inspiration to seek out Mr. Benten at once, inform him, explain to him, obtain his advice, tell the police, do something, something, some—ah, but would Mr. Benten credit his story? Ordinarily, yes. On this occasion, no. He had seen the bet laid—in truth, a ten dollar bet, but what was there as proof of the amount? The ticket? It had been torn to shreds. His word? If he had wagered $10, why might not he have wagered $100, comparatively little money to be placed on a favorite?

Harold could see Mr. Benten listening to the tale, could see him gazing penetratingly with those troubled, accusing eyes; could see him at the close sorrowfully walking away, speaking not a syllable in condemnation, but with a manner—oh, a manner!

No, he could not face Mr. Benten. The result would be the same in any case. He was disgraced. One hundred dollars was not much, but it was more than he could restore. To some it would mean nothing; to him it meant ruin. What a fool he had been!

And so his hopes of Alice were now as worthless as those bits of gray paste-board underfoot, where disappointed holders had contemptuously thrown them. No doubt it was just as well. Alice must be learning to forget him—very likely, among her gay companions, already had forgotten him.

He pulled himself together with a jerk and hurriedly made for an exit.

When he arrived at his room he had his course planned. Forsooth, his choice of courses was limited. It was an explanation with his employer face to face or a note that would explain when the writer was far away. The latter—he would accept the latter. It was the easier solution.

They would not pursue him, to apprehend him, defaulters though he might be styled. He would quietly drop from view, and obliquely, denunciation and sermon would not reach him. Alice would be rid of him, probably gladly after her father had in gloe borne to her the news upon hearing it.

An envelope lying upon the table attracted his glance, a blue envelope, addressed to him in her handwriting, a handwriting every dot and curve dear to him, treasured on many a scrap locked within his trunk. With devouring eyes he scanned the contents.

Dearest Harold—Papa has relented. Come quick, quick, quick! All is arranged. It's perfectly lovely. Come quick, right after dinner tonight. I can hardly wait. Lovingly, ALICE

P. S.—Isn't it grand?

Brave little sweetheart! He had done her wrong. She had not forgotten him; she had not wavered. Reaching bribe and decision, she had stood steadfastly to him, week after week, and now she had conquered.

Too late! Should he say, "Too late?" Should he be the deserter? Should he fail her? No, and again no! Her words had restored his courage. She loved him; she had rallied to his side just in this hour of need, and no longer was he a craven. He would not flee his responsibilities, by his action acknowledge his guilt and abandon her to the graceless task of defending the name of a recreant. He would remain and defend his own name. Alice would believe in him and would not cast him off.

He drew a long breath and squared his shoulders. He would go to Mr. Benten's house and await him and tell him all. Mr. Benten might be charitable; if not charitable, merciful. He ought to have told Mr. Benten in the grand stand. It was to be a hard confession, but confess he would and meet the issues.

And after Mr. Benten he would tell Alice. He reread the note, kissed it and tenderly placed it in the inside pocket of his coat; then, strangely buoyant, he went out of the door bent upon his mission.

Hugo and Garibaldi.

The French poet Victor Hugo, whom Tennyson addressed as "victor in drama, victor in romance," sent an impassioned but little known poem on the disaster of Mentana in 1867 to Garibaldi. The Italian hero, also invoking the aid of the muse, replied in verse, of which the then exile in Guernsey expressed appreciation in the following felicitous words:

Dear Garibaldi—There was a lyre in the tent of Achilles, a harp in that of Judas Maccabaeus; Orlando sent a copy of verses to Charlemagne; Frederick the Second addressed odes to Voltaire. Heroes are poets. You, too, prove it. I read with deep emotion the noble lyrical epistle which you addressed to me, and in which you speak to the soul of Italy in the language of France. The same breath of justice and liberty which inspires you with great deeds inspires you with great thoughts. Farewell, illustrious friend.

A Clever Word Speech.

Julius Caesar holds the record for brevity of convincing speech.

The story is told that while Caesar was in the midst of his struggle for the mastery of the Roman empire the soldiers of his favorite Tenth legion mutilated. He appeared before them, and, uttering the one word "Quirites," paused.

That word means, of course, "citizens," but to the veterans to whom it was addressed it meant a great deal more. It was the special term used in addressing Roman voters assembled in a purely civic capacity, not as soldiers, but as civilians.

To the mutinous soldiers it meant that the great commander, whom they had followed for ten long years from the Alps to the Thames and from the Rhine to the Pyrenees and across the Rubicon, disowned them as soldiers and dismissed them from his victorious service.

Realizing its meaning, the story goes, the mutineers were appalled. Battle scarred veterans burst into tears, implored their leader to pardon them and inflicted summary punishment upon the instigators of the mutiny as a proof of their repentance.

A Poor Show.

An American was describing to an English sportsman the west of the past.

"Our old time western miner," he said, "had an ingenious and simple mind. There was a miner in Montana who rode into Anaconda one day to see an entertainment that had been announced. This entertainment was a play, but the miner had never seen a play—a panorama was the only sort of entertainment with which he had ever been regaled.

"Long before the hour to begin he bought his seat and entered the hall. He sat there in solitude for about twenty minutes. He gazed at the curtain intently. It was a poor curtain, nothing but a gray, pyramidal mountain painted on a dark blue background. When the miner had looked his fill at it he rose and departed for his distant home.

"A pretty rotten panorama," he was heard to mutter as he mounted his horse."

A Queer Marriage Ceremony.

Among the Kharias of India the marriage ceremony is very funny. Taking a small portion of the hair of the bride and groom in turn from the center of the forehead, the priest draws it down on to the bridge of the nose. Then, pouring oil on the head, he watches it carefully as it trickles down the portion of hair. If the oil runs straight on to the tip of the nose their future will be fortunate, but if it spreads over the forehead or trickles off on either side of the nose, bad luck is sure to follow. Their fortunes told, generally to their own satisfaction, the essential and irrevocable part of the ceremony takes place. Standing up side by side, but with faces strictly averted, the bride and groom mark each other's forehead with "sindur" (vermillion).

Concerning Scotch Pawkiness.

A "positively true tale" of Scotch pawkiness is sent us by a naval correspondent. He traveled up to Inverness-shire with a Scotsman, on whose tactfulness he relied, after many efforts, to impinge. The Scotsman still stared dully, fixedly from the train. At last intelligence began to show in his face and grew to ecstasy, and he shouted in his excitement, "Look here, look here, that's what it was." His companion rushed to the window. "In yon wee town," continued the Scotsman, "I was charged expense for yin cup of coffee."—London Globe.

Why He Retracted.

Kilmore—After all, Stedman isn't so bad a fellow. He came to me, man fashion, and took back all the things he had said against my people. Burman—Did it voluntarily? Kilmore—Practically that. It is true I threatened to shoot him on sight if he didn't retract, but that was only a matter of detail.—Boston Transcript.

Remarkable Case.

"How much your little boy resembles your husband!" said the cunning politician. "I've always heard," she replied, "that people grow to look like those they are much with, but this is quite a remarkable case. We only adopted the little fellow last week."—Chicago Record-Herald.

The Two Sided Circle.

The late Dr. Ritchie of Edinburgh was examining a student who claimed to be a mathematician. Ritchie doubted his claim and to test him said: "How many sides has a circle?" "Two," was the reply. "What are they?" asked the doctor. "The inside and the outside," was the answer.

Flannagan's Way.

Cassidy—Flannagan's thinking of goin' into the haulin' business. He bought a feline new cart today. Casey—But shure he has no horse. Flannagan—No, but he's goin' to buy wan. Casey—Well, that's lcke Flannagan. He always did git the cart before the horse.—Philadelphia Ledger.

Hardly.

"The old, old story," exclaimed the husband with a long drawn sigh, as he laid down his paper. "Another man committed suicide because his home was unhappy." "And did that make his home any happier," asked his wife, "or doesn't the paper say?"

Russell Brook Nuisance.

As our correspondent says in another column the brooks and ponds in the centre of the town are fast getting into a deplorable condition through neglect. The attention of readers of the STAR was called to the river and ponds last week and the state they have fallen into, and now this correspondent lays bare the condition of Russell's brook. It is intimated that if the State Water and Sewer Board does not remedy matters that an appeal will be made to the State Board of Health.

Sewer Assessments.

The City Council of Woburn is discussing the question of assessments for sewer construction. This matter is one that has been pretty well threshed over by cities and towns in this section. Winchester has always levied assessments for construction and while this method does not meet with general approval, yet it is the opinion of experts that it is the most satisfactory solution of a vexed question. Many citizens have always claimed that the payments should be similar to those for water.

Old Winchester.

We print on first page a letter from Winchester, England, a city rich in interesting ancient history. This old city is frequently referred to in connection with our modern town of Winchester and some people suppose that it was really named after the English city. This is not so, however, as our town was named after Col. Wm. P. Winchester, a rich citizen of Boston, long since dead, and who would, no doubt, have done considerable for the town but for his untimely death.

Inspection of High School Building.

On Labor Day the new High school building will be open for inspection by the public. At the dedication in the spring, the rooms were not furnished and, indeed, the interior of the building did not then look as it will in September when everything will be ready and in place for the reception of the teachers and scholars. Scores of gifts of handsome statuary, paintings, engravings and photographs will then be in position in rooms appropriate to the subjects, and no risk is taken when it is predicted that Winchester will have one of the most artistically furnished High school building in the State.

Winchester Boy Visits Home.

Mr. Fred A. Brine, son of George R. Brine, who went to Atlanta, Georgia, three years ago to accept a position with the Georgia Electric R. R. Co., of which his brother is Vice President and General Manager, is spending his vacation in the north renewing his old acquaintance. He likes the south very much and says Atlanta is growing faster than any city South. They are building 16 and 17 story blocks, a million dollar Post Office, and Grand Central R. R. Station, etc., and he expects to make it his permanent home.

That Water Question Again.—Russell's Brook.

EDITOR OF THE STAR:

I was pleased to read the STAR's editorial on the future of our Winchester ponds. It was to the point but did not quite cover the whole ground as you missed saying anything about Russell's brook which empties into Wedge pond through Horn pond brook. This brook is nothing but a vile smelling, filthy open sewer. It smells horribly and how a town like Winchester which prides itself on its sewers, plumbing laws, surface drainage, etc., can stomach such an open drainage canal in a thickly populated part of the town passes comprehension. When Boston used the Winchester water, it took great pains to keep this brook as clean as possible and watched the Woburn manufacturers very closely to see that they did not drain into it. Expensive sewers were built to take the place of the brook for drainage purposes and everything possible was done to keep the water pure. At present, the great State of Massachusetts, through its Water and Sewer Board, and by act of legislature, succeeded to the city of Boston in its ownership of the Mystic Water Works and now allows the present contamination to go on without let or hindrance. The Winchester Board of Health should act in the matter against the state as it did in the trifling and somewhat imaginary unhealthy conditions at the Highland school against the town School Committee. Winchester owes it to herself to make a move of some kind at once. I only wish Russell's brook would take a turn and run through the west side a few months. What a howl would go up from expert sanitary and sewer experts about microbes, germs, etc., poisoning the air and how soon an appropriation would be made in town meeting to cure the evil as was made when a few puddles of surface water on west side streets called for a $10,000 appropriation! If the north part of the town only had some one to speak for it in town meeting, it might have a decent sanitary school house in place of the Chapin school and other things to match. In the matter of Russell's brook we shall have to wait until the small gets powerful enough to contaminate the classic shades of Glengarry and the Calumet Club grounds, then we shall have help enough to abate the nuisance. Only a short time ago, the Winchester Board of Health were called upon to interfere with a manufacturer who drained into Horn Pond brook and for a time made Wedge pond unfit to swim in. We can wait, Mr. Editor, until Russell's brook smells stronger and skunk-like penetrates deeper and deeper into other parts of the town, but we hope you will stir up the town authorities to do something for us before that time arrives. We honestly feel that if the good people of Winchester who run the town only knew of the present conditions of things relating to Russell's brook, they would speak up as you have spoken in the STAR and something would be done at once to cure the evil. We should like to smell sweeter up here if we are poor and own small places.

NORTH END CITIZEN.

Woburn Authorities To Cleanse Russell Brook.

The Board of health is determined to have the alleged unsanitary condition of Russell's brook, near Cross street, at the Woburn line, remedied and they have conferred with the Woburn authorities. The brook, according to the Winchester board, has been a menace many years, and complaints have been frequent and emphatic. It is charged the pollution comes from the leather factories along the line of the railroad in Woburn, and the Woburn board already has referred the matter to the manager of the American Hide and Leather Company in Woburn, it being charged that the Skinner factory, near Green street, is one of the chief offenders.

Until within recent years this brook was guarded by inspectors of the Boston water board in order to prevent the contamination of Mystic lake, a then supply basin. With the advent of the trunk sewer the inspectors were withdrawn and the brook has received little attention and infrequent cleaning. If necessary the case will be taken to the courts. The Woburn board has promised to do its utmost to prevent future pollution of the stream.

The American Spirit.

The world is coming to understand that the beginning of the great republic marked the dawn of a new epoch in human history. The Fourth of July, 1776, was not only the birthday of a nation, but of a new order. Independence was declared not only from Great Britain, but from monarchy, from aristocracy, from the union of church and state, from political despotism of whatsoever kind or name. Another civilization with a distinctive genius and mission had come to the earth. A new banner was in the air, a new torch was alight, a new hope was in the hearts of men. Even yet we are too near the American Revolution to realize its monumental importance. When the real history of that epoch is written it will be seen to have been the greatest since that which inaugurated the Christian era.

The embattled farmers that fought their way from Lexington to Yorktown not only struck the shackles from their own land, but in the course of the centuries it will be seen that they struck the shackles from all lands. Certain tyrannies and abuses as old as the world then received wounds from which they can never recover.

The new and distinctive idea that came into being with the birth of the American republic is the political equality of man. However we may seem to lose sight of that, it is the most potent force now at work in the world. In time it is destined to transform every nation beneath the sun. It includes the two other ideas of brotherhood and liberty. It is the essence of democracy, the distinctive genius of republicanism. It is the divinity that is overcoming the devil of personal selfishness.

This truth, which has formed the chief glory of our country, will, so long as we remain true to it, still continue to bless us. Already has it filled one hemisphere with republics and broken the powers of kings all round the world. It will go on until peace will come to earth in a universal republic, and the brotherhood of man will be more than a preacher's phrase.

Outwitting the "Shawffer."

The reckless drivers of automobiles that smash speed limits and incidentally bones and skulls are to be held in check by the fertile brain of the American inventor. It seems that at one town in Indiana is an asphalt pavement two miles in length, and this fine stretch is for the "shawffers." At railroad speed they dash through its length, and woe to the dogs, cows, children or constables that happen in the way. The automobilists care nothing for village ordinances, it seems, for, as in the case of the equally elusive hare, the first thing necessary in cooking a "shawffer" is to catch the "shawffer."

Soon these drivers of horseless carriages will come to grief, however. A Mishawaka man has designed a steel blade which will be laid in the asphalt. The one edge is keen as a razor, and the contrivance will work by lever. One will be located west of the office of the chief of police and the other east. From headquarters by means of a cable the double blades of each "tire killer" will be drawn together. Being built like wedges, this will bring the razor edge about two inches above the surface of the asphalt, and they are to be perfectly rigid in a steel frame placed upon concrete. No machine will be able to cross the knife without wrecking both tires.

A means for gauging speed has been arranged, and whenever an auto is exceeding the rate fixed by city ordinance the steel blades in the asphalt will be raised in time to work havoc with the tires of the reckless automobilist.

This is a hopeful sign. Whenever the Yankee inventor gets into action even the haughty and begoggled automobilist must become aware of the fact that there is something doing.

The upper layer of society seeks to crystallize and hold things as they are until the aspiration to rise in the souls of those underneath becomes an explosive that shatters the crust, and this is revolution.

Those Pittsburg millionaires who lost $500,000 playing poker should continue to patronize the green table. That sort of gambling is not nearly so injurious to the general public as the stock ticker variety.

The reason many really good people have so little influence in the world is because they have no sympathy and love for others. They fail to reach people's hearts.

Judging by reports of the size of the Japanese army, there seem to be about 300,000 reasons why Kuropatkin will not dictate terms of peace in Tokyo.

Mrs. Dorothy H. Farrow.

Mrs. Dorothy H. Farrow passed away at her home on Main street, Wednesday morning of paralysis after an illness dating back to last January. She was the wife of Mr. Joshua Farrow and was 74 years old.

Mrs. Farrow was born in 1830 in Islesboro, Maine, she being the daughter of Joshua and Elizabeth Dodge. She married Mr. Farrow in 1848, at Islesboro. Mr. and Mrs. Farrow have made Winchester their home for 35 years and although Mrs. Farrow had lived in this town for many years she had no great number of intimate friends, preferring to spend her time and devotion to the benefit of her own home. She was an attendant for many years at the Unitarian Church, Woburn.

She leaves six sons and one daughter, besides her husband. Her sons are: Millard F., of Lynn; George L., of Stoneham; Charles, of Roxbury; Franklin, of West Brookfield, Me.; and Fred and Eugene of this town. One daughter, Mrs. C. W. Hunt of Melrose, is living, and one daughter, who was the wife of Dr. E. S. Hanna of East Orange, N. J., having passed away.

Funeral services, which will be private, will be held from her late residence, 289 Main street, this Friday afternoon at 2 o'clock. Rev. Mr. Potter of Revere officiating. The interment will be in Woodland Cemetery.

Alder Pole Does the Business.

Among the recent arrivals at the Upper Dam House, Rangely Lakes are Dr. D. C. Dennett and his son Mahlon W. Dennett. Thus far Mahlon has beaten his father fishing. With an alder pole which he cut in the bushes, he caught a good sized salmon in the famous pool below the Upper Dam, the first day. The doctor fished all day with a steel rod and silk line under the direction of a guide, and didn't get a fish. Rev. Wm. I. Lawrence has taken three good fishes from this pool. Rev. Mr. Lawrence, Mrs. Lawrence and Miss Mary are at Deer Park Lodge, Middle Dam. There are many people in the Rangely lake region. The number of fish taken thus far has not been up to the average, although some fishermen have had good luck.

He is out doors every day around his house, and is taking a keen interest in school affairs and the opening of the schools in September.

A Welsh Legend.

In Wales there is a legend of Irish smugglers who arrived at Llanddona many years ago in a boat without rudder or oars. They were looked upon according to the Irish custom of sending malefactors to a sea doom in this plight, as outlaws. However, they had been allowed to land, and a spring of water bursting forth in the sand at the place was taken as a sign of their right to a refuge. But they ill repaid the Welsh. The men lived by smuggling, the women by witchcraft. It was not possible to overcome the smugglers in a fray, for each carried about with him a black fly tied in a knot of his kerchief, and the moment the knot was undone the fly flew at the eyes of the opponents and blinded them. If the Llanddona witches attended a market and bid for anything no one ventured to bid against them.

Sick Headache.

"For several years my wife was troubled with what physicians called sick headache of a very severe character. She doctored with several eminent physicians and at a great expense, only to grow worse until she was unable to do any kind of work. About a year ago she began taking Chamberlain's Stomach and Liver Tablets and today weighs more than she ever did before and is real well," says Mr. Geo. E. Wright of New London, New York. BURDETT COLLEGE. LYNN BRANCH.

This beautiful building is being rapidly pushed to completion for September 6th opening. It is located on Mt. Vernon Street, opposite B. & M. Station. This model school building has many novel features, and is planned for 500 students in its Business, Shorthand, and English Departments. There is a hall with stage, dressing rooms and balcony, for school lectures and entertainments for students. The Shorthand Department opens into an Italian Garden with fountain, flower beds, etc. The courses and methods will be the same as at Burdett College, Boston. This is the only school of its kind in New England, owning the building it occupies.

Will Not Exterminate.

Many persons, whose intentions are probably good, have attempted to get rid of gypsy moth eggs by knocking them to the ground from trees, or wherever else they may have been attached. This not only does not exterminate the eggs, but prevents them from being destroyed by others who use a surer method. To the police have come many acknowledgments that these little eggs have been swept by thousands from trees. And do they hatch just the same? Yes, they hatch just the same, for unless you kill them where they are, instead of brushing them out of sight, they will propagate and bring forth even unto the 33d generation. Propagate is a big word? Yes, but you'll know next time what it means, when you see papa and mama scratching, and when you yourself have that itchy feeling.—[Medford Mercury.]

Modern Improvements Cost.

Tax rates in the suburbs of Boston are generally higher than they were last year. This is due in part to the fact that in some of them there has been an increase in state and county taxes. But local expenditures are responsible for much of the advance. The cities and towns which constitute Greater Boston are in sharp competition with each other, each striving to give its citizens more than its neighbors give. What were formerly considered luxuries are looked upon as the indispensables of suburban life, and they are very expensive. If they are furnished they must be paid for, and that means higher taxes.—[Cambridge Chronicle.]

A Costly Delay.

A detailed car of the Woburn Division of the B. & N. at the crossing during rush hours Tuesday morning caused considerable trouble to the running of cars of that line. Hundreds of people were anxious to reach Boston in time to witness the parade, and therefore the tie up of both lines caused considerable annoyance and discomfort. The cars of the Woburn line were later run up on either side to the derailed car and then transferred, but passengers on the Arlington line were not so fortunate, as travel was at a complete standstill till the car was put back onto the rails which was not until after ten o'clock. The loss to this line in fares must have been quite heavy.

It does seem as if there might be some way devised to prevent cars leaving the tracks at the crossing, which happens altogether too frequently. Considerable labor is required to replace the heavy cars, because of lack of experience on the part of the car men and the need of proper tools.

Y. M. C. A. Notes.

Word comes from Delhi, N. Y., that Physical Director C. B. Sanford will be married on the 29th inst. Mr. Sanford will resume his duties here Sept. first.

The rooms are being used considerably of late. The boys come in for games every afternoon, while at evening the young men practice basketball, bathe and enjoy the magazines.

A new and attractive prospectus telling what the Y. M. C. A. will do this coming season is being compiled. It will be published early in September.

Every day the boys go to Wedge pond for a swim. Some of them are born acrobats executing all sorts of astonishing feats in the water. An exciting chase after a large turtle occurred the other day.

An aggressive association work is contemplated for the coming season. To that end the strongest committees possible are being appointed to care for the physical, social, religious and other departments of the work.

The transferring of the reading room to the room adjoining the parlor is being highly approved of by the members.

Two Attempted Breaks And a Hold-up

A hold-up and two attempted breaks Tuesday night and early Wednesday morning kept Winchester patrolmen on the jump. The first call for the police occurred at 10:30 o'clock, when Mrs. Thomas Montgomery of 5 Water street found her house surrounded by five men, who tried the front and side doors and windows.

Shortly before 2 o'clock Mr. Plummer of Highland avenue, near Lawson road, notified the police that two men tried his doors and windows. Mr. Plummer threw open the front door and one of the men dashed into the avenue. The police were unable to find the strangers.

The third incident was the attempted hold-up of a marketman near the poor farm in Medford. This report came from a farmer who notified the authorities in Medford of the occurrence, and the police of that city at once called up the Winchester officers, that they detain suspicious persons. The marketman said he was accosted by a man who persisted in climbing into his wagon, but the vigorous application of a whip beat him off. The team was then driven on the run into Medford square.

Cross Street Baptist Church.

Last Sunday the services were conducted by Rev. Johnson. The service will now begin at 7:30 p. m. and will end at 8:30. Every one is invited to attend.

On the first and second of September, there will be a lawn tent concert at Cross street for the benefit of the church, and arrangements are now being made.

The missionary meeting was led last Sunday evening at 6:45 by Mrs. Branch Powell.

Mrs. and Miss Whithouse of Norfolk, Va., a sister of Mr. Johnson, visited him part of this week. They returned home Thursday.

Mr. Simon Barksdale of Dalton visited his parents this week.

Rev. Mr. Watson has moved to East Woburn.

Daniel Webster's First Speech.

As the boy grew in years and stature his life was powerfully affected by the fact that he was the youngest son and ninth child in a family of 10; that his health was far from good; that he showed tastes and mental traits that stood out in marked contrast with those of his brothers and sisters; and that he was from infancy, the pet of the family. Such daily work as a farmer's lad was then made to do was not for him. Yet he was expected to do something, and might have been seen barefooted, in frock and trousers, astride of the horse that dragged the plow between the rows of corn, or raking hay, or binding the wheat the reapers cut, or following the cows to pasture in the morning and home again at night, or tending logs in his father's saw mill.

When such work was done it was his custom to take a book along, set the log, hoist the gates, and while the saw passed slowly through the tree-trunk, an operation which, in those days; consumed some 20 minutes, he would settle himself comfortably and read.

As time passed, this wide reading stood him in good stead, and for a year he paid his board by aiding in editing a weekly newspaper for which he made selections from books and contemporary publications, now and then writing a few paragraphs himself. Nor were his physical characteristics less striking. College mates never forgot his deep-set eyes, the solemn tone of his voice, the dignity of his carriage, and above all, his eloquence. The old shyness that tormented him so at the academy was gone. At last the greatest of his natural gifts was developing rapidly, and was used freely. At first his audience was the society of the United Fraternity; but his fame spread, and when the people of Hanover were casting about for an orator to speak to them on the Fourth of July, 1800, they turned with one accord to young Webster.

Judged by the side of his late efforts the oration delivered on that day was indeed a weak and schoolboy production. Yet it is not beneath the vast mass of patriotic speeches to which our forefathers gladly listened on fast days and Thanksgiving days on the 22nd of every February, and the 4th of every July, and it richly deserved the honor of publication. On that day, for the first time in his life, Webster spoke to a popular audience, and to the political doctrine then announced he ever remained faithful. Love of country, devotion to the Union, the grandeur of the constitution, and the blessing of a free government administered by the people, made his theme.—John Bach McMaster, in the Century.

His Taste Was Going.

Archbishop Farley of New York, who has recently been visiting the Vatican, finds that Pope Pius has a keen sense of humor and reports that he enjoyed the following story: Con Creehan's father, being sick, was making his will, and, in order that he might have strength to do so, was given a drink of liquor by Con and a group of neighbors.

Toward the close the dying man said to his son: "Ah, Con, Con! Just touch my lips once more with the jug. Wishit, my son, you watered the drink." "No, indeed, father, dear," while a low murmur chorused through the cabin "but it's the taste that's lavin' ye."—New York Times.

The Newton Graphic trembles because the tax rate of that town has increased, and it suggests as a remedy that permanent improvements be not included in the tax levy, and that an agitation should be started towards limiting the powers of the Metropolitan boards, and if possible to devise some direct system of government for them. Where cities shall stop including improvements in their tax levy is a question for each city to decide itself, but so far as limiting the powers of the Metropolitan boards that is worthy of consideration. At present they can put any kind of a burden on a town or city. Let Newton start the movement.—[Watertown Enterprise.]

Taken With Cramps.

Wm. Kirmse, a member of the bridge gang working near Littleport was taken suddenly ill Thursday night with cramps and a kind of cholera. His case was so severe that he had to have the members of the crew wait upon him and Mr. Gifford was called and consulted. He told them he had a medicine in the form of Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy that he thought would help him out and accordingly several doses were administered with the result that the fellow was able to be around next day. The incident speaks quite highly of Mr. Gifford's medicines.—Elkader, Iowa, Argus.

This remedy never fails. Keep it in your home, it may save life. For sale by O'Connor's Pharmacy.

Bishop Potter of New York has brought down anathemas upon his head because he "dedicated" the Subway Tavern in New York City recently. It is not strange that he has been thus criticised for his act does seem peculiar. It is argued for the Subway Tavern that it is to sell pure liquors at low prices, and that in fact it is to be made the "poor man's club." It is also argued that men will drink, and so long as this is so they should be provided with decent places. This latter argument nauseates one. We might as well say that so long as men will be immoral, places should be provided for the gratification of their passions and appetites, or so long as men will steal licenses should be issued to do so. The church makes a mistake when it draws the liquor saloon under its wing on any pretence.—[Watertown Enterprise.]

Provisions From Trees.

There is a tree which grows in Sumatra, Algeria and China which is known as the vegetable tallow tree. From its fruit large quantities of oil and tallow are extracted, and the fruit is gathered in November or December, when all the leaves have fallen. Excellent candles are made from the berries of a tree which grows in some parts of South Africa and the Azores.

At Sierra Leone is found the cream fruit tree, the fruit of which is very agreeable in taste. In Ceylon there is the breadfruit tree, from which a food is made in the same way that we make bread. It is said to be equally good and nutritious. In South America we find the milk tree.

HUGH DARLINGTON.

Silkworm Fishing Lines.

A tourist friend who has recently returned from a trip through the south of Europe was telling the other day of the large proportions assumed by the production of silkworm gut for fishing lines in Spain since the decline of silk culture there. The grub is fed on mulberry leaves as usual in silk culture, but before it begins to spin, that is, in May and June, it is killed by immersion in vinegar. The substance which would have formed the cocoon is then drawn out from its body in the form of a thick silken thread, which is treated with chemicals and afterward dried. These threads are made up in bundles of a hundred each, and the Spanish peasants travel with them along the shores of the Mediterranean as far as France. The best quality of the gut, as every fisherman knows or ought for his own protection when shopping to know, is round. The flat shaped article is always inferior and is due, not, as often supposed, to carelessness drawing of it, but to unhealthiness in the worm which furnished it. Forest and Stream.

South Pole Seals.

Seals, according to the crew of the antarctic exploring ship Discovery, are abundant near the south pole. They are very tame and can be clubbed by any one without showing more flight than opening their jaws and making a harsh noise. They are possessed of extraordinary vitality and are not easy to kill. Antarctic seals are not provided with marketable fur. The skins of the majority of seals in the antarctic regions show an extraordinary number of cleavages, some old and some recent, which for some time have been a puzzle to zoologists. It is a question whether they are the result of warfare among the bull seals or are caused by attacks of some monster not yet known to science. Some light has been shed on this subject by the discovery of remains of an ordinary seal in the stomach of a sea leopard, which is provided with a very fierce set of teeth, quite in keeping with the possible habit of feeding on other seals.

Scolding.

Scolding is mostly a habit. It is often the result of nervousness and an irritable condition of both mind and body. A person is tried or annoyed at some trivial cause and forthwith commences finding fault with everything and everybody within reach. Scolding is a habit very easily formed. It is astonishing how soon one becomes addicted to it and confirmed in it. It is an unreasoning and unreasonable habit. Persons who once get into the way of scolding always find something to scold about. If there is nothing else, they begin scolding at the mere absence of anything to scold at. It is an extremely disagreeable habit. It is contagious. Once introduced into a family, it is pretty certain in a short time to affect all the members. Exchange.

Japanese Buddhists.

Japanese Buddhists have a word, "mazoraru," which is translated by the dictionaries as "to imitate," but it has the esoteric meaning of "to substitute in imagination one object or action for another, so as to bring about some magical or marvellous result." An example of this is laying a pebble before the image of Buddha to show that you would like to build a temple in his honor if you were rich enough, and making a bookcase revolve which contains the 6,771 volumes of the Buddhist canon and earnestly wishing that you had time to read them, by which you acquire the same merit in the eyes of heaven as if you did read them. The bookcase is fitted with a kind of capstan for the purpose.

Peg Tankards.

The pegging or marking of drinking cups was introduced by St. Dunstan to check the intemperate habits of the times by preventing one man from taking a larger draft than his companions. But the device proved the means of increasing the evil it was intended to remedy, for, relying upon St. Dunstan's plan, the most abstemious were required to drink precisely to a peg or pin, whether they could soberly take such a quantity of liquor or not.

THE PENGUIN.

It Is Awkward on Land and a Gymnast in the Water.

A kind of penguin, the adelle, is a laugh provoking bird. Adelles are most inquisitive and at times are in such a hurry to follow up a clue that they will scramble along the ice on the belly, pushing with their legs and using their flippers alternately like the paddle of a canoe. They get over the ground at an astonishing rate, and it is hard work to overtake a penguin when it takes to this means of locomotion, especially when it doubles. In the water the penguin is perfectly at home, diving and stooping-chasing in grand style. It can jump clean out of the water and pop down on the ice exactly like some one coming up through a trapdoor on the stage and dropping on his feet. The penguins collect in enormous numbers and are sometimes seen marching about like a regiment of soldiers in Indian file, all acting in unison.

A much larger penguin, the emperor, weighs sixty or seventy pounds and stands well over three feet high. It possesses the most extraordinary muscular powers in its flippers. When presented with the end of the skee stick the emperor gives it such a smack that one's hands tingle. At the same time it utters an angry guttural exclamation.

First Person Cremated in America.

The first white person lawfully cremated within the present limits of the United States, according to wishes and desires expressed by himself, was Colonel Henry Laurens, one of the Revolutionary patriots. He was born in Charleston, S. C., in the year 1724, and died on his plantation near that place on Dec. 8, 1792. His will, which he had requested them to open and read the next day after his death, was supplemented with the following: "I solemnly enjoin it upon my son, as an indispensable duty, that, as soon as he conveniently can after my decease, he cause my body to be wrapped in twelve yards of towcloth and burned until it be entirely consumed." The request was carried out to the letter and was the beginning of cremation in America.

English Characteristics.

The Englishman is less social than men of any other nationality; I mean he is less conscious of the ties which bind humanity together, his moral formation owes little to his relations with other men, he scarcely troubles himself about what they think, and if he ever considers the matter at all it makes no difference in his sentiments and actions. In short, the Englishman is to a certain extent a recluse; he is more aloof from the world in which he lives and the neighbors whom he elbows than the men of any other nationality. —Bouting's "The English People."

Gondolas of Venice.

A tourist writes: "Like most characteristic objects appertaining to Venice, the gondola is suitable to the place. Even as the hansom cab suits London or the rickshaw suits Japan or the jaunting car suits Ireland, so the gondola is the vessel for Venice. You cannot separate the lagoon from the gondola. One completes the other." The gondolier is a man given to many onths and impressions, of which the most terrible is, "Thy salut is a rascal who does not know how to make a decent intrado." The gondoliers are not as much given as they used to be to the singing of the sonorous verses of Tasso by moonlight in their musical patois. Occasionally an outburst of melody is secured by a traveler's coins, and there are always singing, playing and dancing at the inevitable festa.

Hanging Bells to Swarm Bees.

It is a foolish notion to suppose that the ringing of bells or "tangling" of tin pans will cause a swarm of bees to settle, says Country Life in America. The real origin of this custom dates back to the reign of Alfred the Great, who, in order to prevent disputes regarding the ownership of a swarm, ordered that the owner should always ring a bell when his bees swarmed, and ever since then the good farmer's wife has been rushing out with ringing bells whenever the bees swarmed, and the fact that they settled verified, in her own mind, the belief that the bell did it.

Force of Habit.

Speaking of force of habit, some years ago there was an iron railing around the capitol grounds at Washington. The appropriation bill provided for a watchman to close and lock the gates every night at a certain hour and open them at a certain hour every morning. In the course of time the railing or fence was removed, but the gates swung between their Egyptian pillars for a long time, and all that time the watchman came and went regularly, closing and opening the gates according to law and drawing his salary.

Monkey Puzzle Tree.

One of the most remarkable trees in the world grows in California and in place of leaves has spiky scales. The trunk and all of the branches are entirely covered with these scales, which are so sharp that even a monkey would find it out of the question to climb such a tree. Hence its name, "monkey puzzle tree," which is admirably descriptive.

THE KITCHEN DRESSER.

It Was Originally a Bench on Which Meat Was Dressed.

Dr. Johnson tells us that the kitchen dresser was a bench in the kitchen on which meat was dressed, or prepared, for table and gives the following lines in support of his view:

"Tis burnt, and so is all the meat.
What dogs are these? Where is the rascal cook?
How durst you, villains, bring it from the dresser.
And serve thus to me that love it not?"
—Shakespeare.

A maple dresser in her hall she had,
On which full many a slender meal she made.

—Dryden.

Wright, in his "Domestic Manners of the Middle Ages," says: "One of the great objects of ostentation in a rich man's house was his plate, which at dinner time he brought forth and spread on the table in sight of his guests. Afterward, to exhibit the plate to more advantage, the table was made with shelves or steps, on which the different articles could be arranged in rows, one above another. It was called in French, or Anglo-Norman, a dressoir, because on it the different articles were dressed, or arranged."

It is this to which the modern poet refers:

The pewter plates on the dresser Caught and reflected the flame, as shields of armies the sunshine.

LIVING SILVER.

The Process by Which Mercury Is Extracted From Cinnabar.

The chief source of mercury is its native sulphide, cinnabar. The most important mines of this mineral in Europe are those of Almaden, in Spain, and Idria, in America, those of New Almaden, in California.

The silvery metal is obtained by roasting the ores in specially constructed open furnaces, where, by the action of atmospheric air alone, the sulphur is converted into sulphurous acid and passes on with the volatilized mercury into condensers. These are usually masonry chambers, with water cooled pipes, from which the fumes pass on through earthenware pipes and finally through others of wood and glass.

Most of the yield is liquid mercury, combined with soot, which is removed by agitating the mixture in receptacles of perforated iron, when the mercury falls through. The quicksilver is finally purified by straining through dense linen and is then sent out into commerce in leather bags or wrought iron bottles fitted with screw plugs, each holding about seventy-five pounds avoirdupois.

THE WORD BOGUS.

There Are Several Plausible Theories as to Its Origin.

The word "bogue" is said by Dr. Ogilvie to be derived from Boghesse, the name of a notorious American swindler who about the year 1835 flooded the western and southwestern states with counterfeit bills, sham mortgages and such like. Others connect the word with "bogle," a scarecrow or goblin, and so applied to anything fictitious or chimerical.

Lowell in the "Biglow Papers" says, "I more than suspect the word to be a corruption of the French bagasse." This bagasse was the sugar cane as delivered in its dry, crushed state from the mill, called also cane trash, and fit only for burning, being thus synonymous with useless rubbish.

Again, according to Brewer, there is in French argot, or thieves' slang, a word, bogue, which signifies the rind of a green chestnut or the case of a watch, and this also brings us to the idea of an outward seeming without any solid and reputable foundation.—Pearson's Weekly.

An East Prussia Custom.

Midsummer day, or St. John the Baptist's day, is a festival of much importance among the Masur peasant girls in east Prussia. On this day they each make a wreath, and each in turn tries to throw her wreath so as to lodge it on a fruit tree. A girl must keep on throwing until her wreath stays in the branches, and the number of attempts is supposed to indicate the number of years she will have to wait to get married. When the girls are thus engaged the young men of the village stand around chaffing them when they miss. The girl who lands her wreath at the first attempt is vehemently applauded. The Masurs are Poles who live in that part of Prussia which was once part of Poland.

Donkeys in Egypt.

In Egypt the women still follow the ancient custom of riding on donkeys. The animals are small and well trained and carry their burdens about without remonstrance. The riding under these conditions demands no especial skill of horsemanship. The women make a great convenience of these little steeds, riding them to market or to their shopping as well as on considerable journeys.

Natural Cause.

"I have been told," remarked the visitor in Salt Lake City, "that your lake is drying up. What seems to be the cause?"

"I guess, mister," said the native, "if you had as much salt in you as that there lake's got you'd be gittin' purty dry too."—Chicago Tribune.

The Difference.

The Impecunious—It is just as easy to love a girl with money as to love one without it. The Heiress—But it isn't so easy to get her.—London Tit-Bits.

Look on the bright side. If there is a baby in the house, there are also enough safety pins for the grown folks to help themselves.—Atchison Globe.

VEGETARIANISM.

A Theory That Has Been Maintained From the Earliest Days.

From the earliest days vegetarians have maintained that fruit and vegetables are the proper food for mankind, and in ancient times such leaders of thought as Plato, Pythagoras, Empedocles and Plutarch can be counted among the advocates of this doctrine.

It is in this connection that we find Virgil singing the praises of a natural diet apart from the use of flesh:

Soft chestnuts we possess
And apples ripe, with store of curdled cream.

Still more to the point are his words in the Second Georgic at the close of a vivid description of the joys of a golden age:

Before the reign
Of the Dietetic king, before the days
When on slain bullocks fed an impious race.

This further rendering from Latin poetry proclaims the same primeval teaching:

Forbear, O mortal, to taint your bodies
With forbidden food.
Earth is lavish of her riches and teems
With kindly stores.

Providing without slaughter or bloodshed
all delicacies.

DUCKS AND THUNDER.

The Possible Origin of an Ancient English Expression.

The phrase, "like a dying duck in a thunderstorm," probably originated in the peculiar susceptibility exhibited by these birds to electrical disturbances. They hang their heads at such times and turn up their eyes in the most comically pathetic fashion, giving a faint die away quack now and again, as though they had quite made up their minds that their last hour had come, but were resigned. They are thus precisely typical of people whose submission, more or less forced, is made mainly with an eye to effect.

This susceptibility seems to be inherent in ducks, for their eggs in course of hatching are spoiled by a thunderstorm when hens' eggs escape.

It is worth noting in this connection that Shakespeare in "Timon of Athens" says, "We, poor mates, stand on this dying deck." It is just possible that this may be the real origin of the phrase, as it refers to the sinking of a ship during a thunderstorm, and deck may have been carelessly recast as duck.—London Answers.

MARINE TURBINES.

They Date Back to the Time of Hero of Alexandria.

In turbine steamers there is a marked absence of vibration, while the position low in the hull of the machinery gives great stability and in men-of-war makes better protection possible and affords facilities in maneuvering.

The practical advantages of turbines are many. They reduce the oil bill considerably and while they occupy less floor and cubic space are simple in construction and operation.

In a turbine there is nothing to wear out. The only parts subjected to friction are the bearings at the extremities of the spindle, but these run in oil and after years of constant service show no wear. Parsons' turbine plants of 400 horsepower and 1,800 horsepower, which have been driving electric generators for years, have not yet cost a penny for repairs.

The steam turbine dates back to 120 B. C., when Hero of Alexandria described it in his book on pneumatics.—Pearson's Weekly.

The Print of the Springs.

A politician upon his arrival at a certain small town where he was to make a speech the following day found that the two so-called hotels were crowded to the doors. Not having telegraphed for accommodations, the politician discovered that he would have to make shift as best he could. He was compelled for that night to sleep on a wire cot which had only some blankets and a sheet on it. As the statesman is a fat man, he found his improvised bed anything but comfortable.

"Well," asked a friend, when the politician appeared in the dining room in the morning, "how did you sleep?"
"Oh, fairly well," replied the statesman nonchalantly, "but I looked like a waffle when I got up."—Youth's Companion.

A Bottomless Lake in Sweden.

In Thomas Nashe's "Terrors of the Night," published in 1594, he says that Lake Wetter, Sweden, is bottomless. He also tells other peculiar things respecting it. "Over it no fowle flies but is frozen to death nor anle mann pass but is mummied like a statue of marble. Awle ye inhabitants around about it are deafened with ye hideous roar of hits waters when out of its midst as out of Mont Gibel a sulphurous stinking smok issues that well nil poysons ye whole countrie about."

Act in the Present.

Be not anxious about tomorrow. Do today's only. Fight today's temptation, and do not weaken and distract yourself by looking forward to things you cannot see and could not understand if you saw them. Enough for you that God is just and merciful and will reward every man according to his work.—Charles Kingsley.

Human Nature.

It is constantly said that human nature is heartless. Do not believe it. Human nature is kind and generous, but it is narrow and blind and can only with difficulty conceive anything but what it immediately sees and feels.

When trouble goes hunting him a man may dodge it, but when a man goes hunting trouble it hasn't one chance in a thousand of escaping him.—Cincinnati Times-Star.

Mr. J. Harper Blaisdell returned to Winchester this week from a visit to his uncle, Dr. George W. Blaisdell, at Manchester-by-the-sea.

A complete automobile repair shop and garage may now be found at the Dinsmore Stables. An unoccupied house on Oxford street was entered last week and six brass faucets carried off. This was probably the work of boys, and has no connection with the recent breaks in a number of houses. There are not many new developments in the search for this gang. Chief McIntosh has found a pair of shoes on the edge of the woods off Highland avenue near Fells road. These were identified as the shoes stolen from the residence of Forbes D. Smith on Clematis street. A diligent search of the surrounding territory has failed to disclose any more of the missing property. Chief McIntosh will continue his hunt for the thieves whose discovery will be a difficult problem, considering there are no clues to work on, the robbers taking only money invariably.

Few people outside of the big advertisers have any idea what it costs to advertise in the magazines of large circulation. We heard of a man the other day who thought he would make a little investment in printer's ink. He sent an inch advertisement to a widely-known journal published in Philadelphia and inclosed $5 with directions to run the ad. as many times as that amount would pay for. He received a reply that if he would send $79 more the ad. would be published one time. The rates in the journal referred to are $6 a line, $84 an inch, $1000 a column and $400 for the last cover page for one insertion. But that "advertising pays" even at those rates is shown by the enormous patronage which the publication referred to receives.

There was a tremendous falling in the consumption of meat in Boston when the effect of the strike of the Beef Trust employees was first felt here a fortnight ago in the form of excessive prices. When the retail price dropped a peg or two on the announcement of an adjustment of the trouble, trade did not pick up, and since the strike broke out afresh there has been a return to the late condition of abstinence. Our people are not buying or eating nearly as much meat as they were a month ago. They have cut down their diet as a matter of economy, or perhaps in protest against the extortion in which the packing-houses of the trust, the striking butchers and the local dealers seem to be combined. Is the health or the general well-being of the public affected unfavorably in consequence? In other words, do we eat too much meat as a habit, and is the packing-house strike a blessing in disguise?—[Boston Courier.

Is Enjoying the Fruits of a Well Spent Life

Hon. A. B. Coffin is enjoying the fruits of a well spent life at his beautiful home "Fellsedge," on Forest street. Surrounded by his books in his cosy den, he passes many pleasant hours in reading his favorite authors or in receiving a few former clients and in keeping up his correspondence. At the time of his long and severe illness he gave up his law office in Boston intending to retire from active life altogether, but some of his old clients would not listen to this, so occasionally they come out here to his home to ask his advice and consult with him. One of these, a gentleman of 93 years, residing in Brookline, sends for Mr. Coffin at intervals to get his advice as he has for many, many years past. He has just enough practice to keep him from getting rusty, and this with his books, correspondence and the great pleasure from his flowers, fruit trees and vegetable garden, his life is an unending round of peace and satisfaction. Mr. Coffin is enjoying as good health as could be expected after his severe and critical illness.

We had the pleasure of peeping into his den, or workshop, Tuesday afternoon and afterwards inspecting his garden, where many varieties of vegetables are grown for his table. Of fruit trees there are an abundance. A plum tree was a sight, and how so much fruit could find room on so small a tree was a mystery. It was nothing but plums, so deliciously beautiful to look upon, which but for the careful propping up of the limbs would have broken the tree by their weight. Not far from three bushels of fruit will be picked from this one tree, and the sight is so remarkable that Mr. Coffin has had it photographed. There are six trees altogether filled with plums and the name, "Japanese Abundance," is well merited. On pleasant days in summer Mr. Coffin can be seen enjoying himself in his garden or orchard unmindful of the busy scenes in which for so many years he was one of the principal actors. He is always pleased to meet his friends at his home and extend to them a hearty welcome.

A Mystery Solved.

Last week Woburn thought it had a mystery on its hands when an old grave stone was found in a disused cesspool. Antiquarians were taken by the ear and all sort of stories began to float around as to when the old stone was in memory of and how it got into the cesspool. No one could remember any such family among the early settlers. The mystery was finally unravelled by the Woburn Times as follows:

The grave stone found in a cesspool at Central Square has been accounted for. A former resident of the locality did teaming some years ago for a granite company in Vermont, and while in Swamp scott, when a monument was to be erected over an old grave, the stone that had stood there for a long time was removed and given to the teamster who brought it home.

It laid around the home premises for some years and when it became an obstruction it was tossed into the cesspool.

That accounts for the find.

Diagnosis of a Popular Disease.

"Morbus Sabbaticus" is a disease that afflicts many people these days but strange to say only on Sundays. It is a peculiar disease in this respect and the remedy yet remains to be discovered.

The attack comes suddenly on every Sunday. No symptoms are felt Saturday night; the patient sleeps well and wakes feeling well, eats a hearty breakfast; but about church time the attack comes on and continues until the services are over for the morning. Then the patient feels easy and eats a hearty dinner. In the afternoon he feels much better and is able to take a walk, talk about politics, and read the Sunday papers. He eats a hearty supper, but about church time he has another attack, and stays at home, retires early, sleeps well, and wakes Monday morning refreshed and able to go to work, and does not have any symptoms of the disease until the following Sunday.

A Revolutionary Soldier Honored

It will be remembered by some that about a year ago a beautiful monument was erected and dedicated to the memory of Capt. Solomon Pierce who served in the war of the revolution. He was wounded at Lexington, and died in 1821 and was buried in the Pleasant Street Cemetery, Arlington, Mass., where the memorial stone was placed. His descendants have formed an association and arrangements have been made for a reunion to be held at the Pierce Farm, Arlington Heights, Thursday, Sept. 1, 1904. About four hundred invitations have been sent to all the known descendants, but should there be any one in Winchester who has not received a card, will they consider themselves most earnestly invited and attend the gathering and renew old acquaintances and form new ones. If stormy the reunion will be postponed to the first fair day.

Echoes.

EDITOR OF THE STAR:

If the STAR would tell us what will happen twenty years hence it would be more interesting.

Try the Metropolitan water at the Medford Square ice fountain and then try that at Winchester centre fountain.

When will the suburbs of Boston realize that what they need for development is an up to date railroad service? The present one is a quarter of a century behind the times.

Tom Lawson's articles in Everybody's are the most startling that have ever appeared in this country and are bound to have a tremendous effect. That was the time the Standard Oil crowd stopped.

There is one building opposite the Parkway on Walnut street that instead of ordering the signs off it it would have been improved in appearance by putting more on. Perhaps it is this sign that is needed.

Whitfield is terribly afraid he will not get all the credit for running the cars through to Sullivan Square. Well he did not start first or stay last, and petitioned for a waiting room at Medford Square as a matter of fact. But he should have credit for pushing.

Two things that seem to have dropped out of sight: The Philippines and the President. The great mistake Theodore has made is in following the politicians instead of appealing directly to the people. The Republicans have got to have a man stronger than the party to win this year.

Can any good come out of Woburn? Or is Russell's brook a fair sample? And where is our brilliant Board of Health all this time? Hasn't it sufficiently recuperated from its Highland school-house campaign to tackle this lethean tributary? Where is the Metropolitan Water Board that holds all our ponds as a source of water supply into which this babbling brook runs? Where is the aesthetic Metropolitan Park Board which has charge of all these ponds as agents for the Metropolitan Water Board and is supposed to look after their condition?

Opening of Schools.

The fall term of the schools will begin Wednesday, September 7. The list of teachers has already been printed in the STAR, and there have been no recent resignations or elections. The notable changes will be the occupancy of the new High school building; and an additional sixth grade room at the Prince, making four in all, instead of three as last year.

Work on the Highland building is progressing satisfactorily, and it is expected now that this school will open at the same time as the others. The usual summer repairs have been attended to in all the buildings, and considerable improvements have been made in the case of some.

Two Houses Entered on West Side.

Tuesday the town was again visited by housebreakers. Previous to this affair the houses had been entered in the night time but on Tuesday the thieves were bold enough to do their work in broad day light between four and five o'clock in the afternoon. The scene of their operations this time was on Church street where the houses of Miles Regan and Benjamin Allmond were entered and $35 taken from the former. Nothing was taken from the Allmond residence. Mrs. McGinnis left her house at about four o'clock and everything was all right up to that time. At the other house the occupants were away from home, and it is supposed the thieves were prowling about this place when they observed Mrs. McGinnis locking up her house and knowing that the field was clear entered.

Both houses were completely ransacked from top to bottom, but the only money found was in the Regan house. Drawers were pulled out and the contents dumped upon the floor, and clothing taken from closets the pockets searched and then thrown down. Like the other cases in this town nothing was taken but money, the thieves not caring to run the risk of detection by taking silver or other valuables. This shrewdness on the part of the housebreakers is what is making it particularly difficult for the police to apprehend them as the mere fact that strange and suspicious looking men seen about town and having money about their persons is not sufficient to cause their arrest. Nevertheless all such are closely questioned. The police thoroughly scoured the town all day Tuesday but were not rewarded with the slightest clue.

Another singular thing in connection with all the breaks is that only houses of persons of moderate means are entered. This is explainable only from the fact that money is not as a general rule found in the homes of the more well-to-do class of people, they transacting business mainly by checks on banks, while in the other houses as a rule nearly all the money the occupants possess is kept in the home and this undoubtedly accounts for the class of houses that are entered.

Selectmen's Meeting.

August 22nd, 1904.

Board met at 7:30 p. m. Present Messrs. Carter, Ferguson, Ellis, Symmes.

Records of last meeting read and approved. Received communication from Mary L. Sanborn in regard to sidewalk on Norwood street.

From A. E. Whitney in regard to repairs on Mystic avenue.

Warrants drawn, No. 72 for $886.68 and No. 73 for $419.73. Adjourned at 10 p. m. G. H. LOCHMAN, Clerk.

Mrs. Maria M. Nelson.

Mrs. Maria M. Nelson, wife of Patrick Nelson, died at her home, 14 Sandhill street, Tuesday, after an illness of five weeks. The cause of her death was a complication of disease. She was 48 years of age and had lived in this town since her birth, being the daughter of John and Celia Fitzgerald.

Besides her husband, Mrs. Nelson leaves three brothers—David E. Fitzgerald of Wyoming, John W. Fitzgerald of New York and Maurice S. Fitzgerald of Denver, Col. Mrs. Nelson was a prominent member of St. Mary's Church being actively connected with the church work. She was a member of the Winchester Benevolent Association and had served for nine years as chaplain of the local order of Pilgrim Fathers.

Funeral services were held Thursday at 9 a. m. at St. Mary's Church. Requiem High Mass was celebrated by Father Henry J. Madden and there was selected singing by Mr. John Lynch.

The pall bearers were, M. C. Nelson of Boston, John Doherty of Boston, Thos. McCarthy of Rochester, N. Y., Thos. H. Hoban of Lowell, John Lynch of Winchester, Geo. H. Nelson of Woburn.

The interment was in Calvary Cemetery, Montvale.

Dr. French in an Accident.

Dr. French of Winchester drove into the town Tuesday having Deputy Collector McSweeney on the seat with him. Reaching Montvale avenue, he drew up to stop when a horse attached to a carry-all bounded from the rear upon the light vehicle the doctor had, breaking the rear high bicycle wheel and taking the paint off a portion of the wagon body. The rear horse lost some hair, but no injury was noted. Mr. Eustace Cummings, who owned and drove the latter, directed repairs to be made at his expense.—[Woburn Times.]

What Happened in Winchester 20 Years Ago, or Thereabouts.

The Winchester Ten Pin Club have made several "incursions" on the seashore recently, with great advantage, and another series of visits is contemplated.

Notice in the Post Office: "Lost—In the center of Wedge Pond, a child's gold pin which the owner requests the finder to return, and be rewarded."

A stranger, entering the Selectmen's rooms, might mistake them for a licensed saloon. Those jars and cases and barrels are the result of a liquor raid, and have been placed there for safe keeping. So far no invitations have been issued to outsiders.

The executive committee of the Village Improvement Association held a meeting and were earnest and enthusiastic about the work to be done, and marked unanimity prevailed. Sub-committees were appointed as follows: On streets, sidewalks and tree-planting—S. W. Twombly, J. H. Tyler and G. H. Eustis. On public grounds—C. F. Lunt, H. C. Miller and Geo. D. Rand. On depots, railroad facilities and buildings—D. N. Skillings, Edwin Glen and F. H. Nourse. A public meeting of the Association will soon be called.

A PRACTICAL JOKE.

About eleven o'clock on Monday night residents in the vicinity of the common were startled by the sound of a very loud explosion, and those who could get a glimpse of the Congregational Church were surprised to see it apparently on fire. No alarm was sounded, but a number of firemen were at the scene in a few minutes to find that a practical joke of unusual proportions had been attempted. An investigation revealed the fact that a well known piece of ordinance had been discharged on the Common, to attract attention, and then a red light had been fired near the church to give the impression to beholders that the church was on fire.

The ordinance referred to is a piece of 3-inch iron water pipe, 18 inches long, welded together at one end, and a "nipple" driven into a hole on the side. With the pipe well filled with powder, towels, paper etc., the improvised cannon made quite a noise, when the hammer fell on a cap on the nipple.

The whole contrivance was ingenious, but the results might have been dangerous. The cannon, hammer, etc., are at the Selectmen's rooms awaiting identification, or words to that effect.

The old tomb located near the Myopia Club House, whose owner is Mr. Buckman of Arlington, is attracting considerable attention in the newspapers. It is off High street, and although the contents are exposed, it is impossible for the passerby to see them unless he goes out of the way. The tomb is on the Andrews estate and the owner has been notified time and again, by the Winchester authorities, to take proper steps in the matter, but nothing has ever been done. Prompt measures are now being taken by our authorities, and the cause of complaint will be remedied.

The Myopias held a grand fox hunt on Sunday. The owner of a large celery patch "near" Winchester would like to kill off several of the members, and can't see where the fun came in.

The silver mine in the Fells must be panning out well, but no reliable information on this head can be obtained from the very reticent and mysterious managers. The main shaft is now 110 feet deep and the excavations are still being made. There is a lead from the shaft of 135 feet and a new shaft has been commenced, reaching at the present time a depth of 18 feet.

A new Winchester institution of great value, is the "hot soda" sold by Mr. Geo. P. Brown. It is exhilarating and more wholesome than intoxicating beverages. Three flavors—coffee, chocolate and ginger.

THE STONEHAM BRANCH

Of the Boston & Lowell R. R. was built in 1861 by the late Dr. W. F. Stevens, and Messrs. Thaddeus Richardson, James A. Green and T. B. Hadley. The lamented Colonel J. P. Gould surveyed the road and Mr. Hadley was the construction director. It took about one year to complete the road, which, when finished, was leased to the B. & L. R. R. Co. for $600 per year. Subsequently the company bought the road, paying for it $50,000.

"No. 1." wanted to know why the steamer was not allowed to go to the fire on Cross street? The reason is because the Board of Fire Engineers do not deem it advisable to allow the steamer to turn out, unless they know positively that the fire is in town.

C. A. Ramsdell's "Canary Bird" runs away from every street that goes over the road. An exciting race occurred this week, and the "C. B." won a decisive victory.

GOOD-WILL CLUB ENTERTAINMENT.

The entertainment given by members of this club was a splendid success, and is decidedly worthy of a repetition, with excellent prospects of another crowded house.

The play represented was "The Cricket on the Hearth," three acts. Great discernment was shown in the cast of characters, each artist doing justice to the part assigned. The following was the cast:

John Perrybingle	Mr. Hoynton
Mr. Tackleton	Mr. Kimball
Caleb Plummer	Mr. Webb
Old Gentleman	Mr. Dwinell
Dot	Miss Dow
Bertha	Miss Carter
Mrs. Fielding	Miss Sewall
May Fielding	Miss Metcalf
Tilly Slowboy	Miss Nourse
Spirit of the Cricket	Tottie Safford

The overture, Midsummer-Night's Dream, by Miss Danton and Mr. Smith was exquisite. The musical selections between the acts were of the highest order.

Why are the freight trains allowed to interfere with private interests by blocking our streets and preventing our passage? The other day a train stopped on the crossing forty-five minutes, and a lady whose patience was exhausted crawled under the cars to the other side. Another train on the same day occupied the crossing for twenty-five minutes.

At the regular meeting of the West Side Hose Co. the following officers were elected for the ensuing year: Foreman—Chas. H. Purrington. Asst. Foreman—Edward Russell. Clerk and Treas.—Wm. E. Locke. Steward—Walter Purrington. Standing Committee—Joseph Purrington, Edward Russell and Thomas Little.

The "Wedge Pond Rifle Club" was organized with the following members: P. Spicer, R. C. Whitten, G. H. Shattuck, H. H. Wheeler, E. B. Riley, E. Fletcher.

A prompt attendance at the meetings for practice is requested—every Saturday at 3 p. m.

List of officers elected at the annual meeting of the Black Horse Hose Co.: Foreman—F. M. Symmes. Asst. Foreman—N. A. Knapp. Treasurer—W. F. Symmes. Clerk—W. H. Herrick. Steward—W. F. Symmes.

New ticket for fire engineers: John W. Price, E. A. Ayer, P. Waldmyer.

The four cannon donated to this town by Congress are now on their way. It is hoped that they will be mounted in the soldier's lot before Memorial Day.

I Was in Error.

EDITOR OF THE STAR:

It afforded me much gratification to read in a recent issue of the STAR that the tax rate for the present year was the same as last year, viz.: $16.80 on $1000, and that the valuation of the town had increased by $600,000. My tax bill arrived this week and instead of finding the amount on my bill the same as last year I was much surprised to see a substantial increase, in other words my property had been "marked up," to a figure in my opinion beyond what its true value will warrant. The truth of the rate being the same as last year is an empty fallacy, for if there had not been a general marking up, the rate would have been considerably in excess of that of a year ago. This is one way of "whipping the devil around the stump," but is it the correct way. Better have a fair valuation even at the expense of a high rate than to have an overvaluation in order to make the rate appear small. Of course any one who believes his payment is excessive can have recourse to the County Commissioners, I believe, yet few of the patient tax payers will care to take that step.

CITIZEN.

On a Visit to His Old Home.

EDITOR OF THE STAR:

Thomas Little, one of the most successful and industrious farmers living on Cambridge street, Winchester, has gone across the ocean to visit his relatives and early home. He has been very prosperous, has a fine farm, good buildings and large crops, which in his absence, his sons are managing with care and skill. A few years ago Mr. Little came to this country and worked for small wages by the month, which by frugality and care, has so increased, as to make him well fixed in property. If you wish to see good farming, go over to the west side, and look over the Purrington, Russell and Lock farms, and their abundant yield. Farming is a good and great industry, when conducted with judgment and science as in modern times.

GOING TO THE FAIR?

The Wakefield-Reading Fair, of Course—Its Going to Be Held Sept. 13th-16th—The Great Twenty-five Cent Fair of Massachusetts.

September 13-16th. Those dates will find all the approaches to the great Wakefield-Reading Fair crowded with friends, and neighbors, and people, in their glad clothes.

Go with the family every day; that won't break you, and, by cracky, it will help the Fair.

Lurvey's crack-a-jack Cadet Band of Lynn will furnish music each day.

Trotting events to beat the band. All the departments will have interesting exhibits and more of them than ever before.

Special attractions! The directors have landed some things that will be the talk of the town.

An exquisite display of needlework, quaint quilts and innumerable artistic dainties: dainty products of the culinary art, cakes, pies, bread, preserves, jellies and canned goods. (The women's dept. challenges the world.)

The Bird Question.

EDITOR OF THE STAR:

I see that it is useless to discuss further the English sparrow question with "Bird Protector" inasmuch as he clings to his views with such persistence, which indeed is not strange, but very natural.

However, I hope that interested citizens in town will accept the theory that common sense tells them to be most plausible; and it is a fact that "Bird Protector" stands alone, in defense of his claims, in opposition to hundreds. It is quite unusual to find a man who defends the English sparrow.

Let me inform "Bird Protector" that I am not a woman, although I may defend my theory "with all a woman's intensity." I think it very strange that I have never met "Bird Protector" in the fields or woods of Winchester, where I have spent many hours, in the last several years, studying birds. Yet "Bird Protector" may live on the east side of the town, and confine his practical researches to the "Fells" birds. Or better still, he may get his practical knowledge from "reports," published by the authority of the legislature.

I refuse to say more. Let the citizens choose. A BIRD LOVER.

How He Would Rid the Town of Burglars.

EDITOR OF THE STAR:

It seems to me we might get rid of those miserable burglars and let our townspeople sleep nights instead of parading the town with clubs and revolvers Chinese fashion. Let the citizens subscribe a few hundred dollars and engage say four ex-cavalry men who have seen service, provide them with decent horses with rubber shoes. Arm them with a good sharp sabre, a carbine and two revolvers and give them orders to bring the burglars in dead or alive—dead preferred.

With two patrolling each side of the town for a couple of weeks we would stop this nonsense very quickly and the undertaker might have some unknown dead to bury at the town's expense. You, Mr. Editor, being an ex-soldier will I think agree with me. JOHN BROOKS, Ex-Cavalryman.

Boston, Mass.

As Woburn Views the Russell Brook Nuisance.

The following was taken from the Woburn Times:

Winchester looks to Woburn to have Russell brook kept free of offensive matter. The Board of Health of that town claim that the brook has been a menace to the public health for years; that not only have Woburn people been sufferers but Winchester as well and that the people of the latter are thoroughly aroused and expect the authorities to take action to suppress it.

So far as Woburn is concerned it is well to say that the brook has been a matter of concern for many years. Recently a portion, in the thickly settled part of the city was covered, but most if not all below that point is open.

It follows the valley and near Cross street turns southwesterly, under Main street, passes through Sheridan Circle and from thence to the ponds in Winchester.

The Board of Health of this city will take means to improve conditions.

Country Club Notes.

The mixed foursomes arranged for last week at the Winchester Country Club and postponed because of rain, will be played in September at a date to be announced later.

The Labor day tournament will comprise medal play in the morning and mixed foursomes in the afternoon.

There will be a meet of tennis clubs, comprising Belmont, Old Belfry and Winchester, at the latter club Sept. 10. The events will no doubt attract considerable attention, as the occasion will be the first tennis meeting of the season in Winchester.

PHILIPPINES AT WORLD'S FAIR

Complete Exhibition of Island People and Industries Covers Forty-seven Acres and Is Independent of Larger Show.

Not even in the heart of Manila city could there be found forty-seven acres of Philippine territory as interesting as that amount of space covered by the islands' display at the World's Fair. Here is an exposition within an exposition, a little world that revolves independently of the larger one encompassing it.

Scores of buildings are filled with exhibits, native life is depicted by as many different villages as there are tribes on the islands, military drills are given by Philippine troops, and concerts are rendered by native bands. For its amusement features the Philippine exposition has the humorous fartoes, who dance on dog meat, and visitors are entertained by Visayan actors and actresses. Nothing is lacking to make the show complete.

The Administration building is a replica of the government offices in Manila, while the Art and Education building reproduces in miniature the cathedral within the walled city, even the mellowed tints of age being faithfully rendered. A section of the ancient but still serviceable town wall has been reconstructed to serve the double purpose of a gateway to the show and a museum of arms and war relics. The other main edifices are types of Philippine homes, being built of undressed timber, bamboo and rattan, with thatched roofs and broad verandas.

Then there are the tribal villages, nestled under the trees, some of the houses perched high up among the boughs, others on piles above the waters of the Arrowhead lake, all of them actual dwellings fashioned of native materials by native workmanship and illustrating the manners, customs and pursuits of their occupants. Here are women weaving a coarse cloth on a rustic hand loom, others making baskets, others tending irrigated fields of rice. One group of men are in village council, trying an offender according to their tribal laws; others are slowly moving in a circular dance to the thump of tom-toms and the clang of brass gongs; others, again, are snuffing iron by the aid of a primitive but most ingenious bellows, the constituent parts of which are a bamboo tube and an airtight map of feathers working therein like the piston of a syringe. And these are but a few of an almost endless variety of life pictures.

The ethnological problem is a somewhat complicated one, but, although there are no fewer than sixteen races represented among the village dwellers, the scouts and the constabulary, each race speaking its own dialect and following its own customs, all may be roughly classified into four groups—the true philippines or non-Malays, the pagan Malays, the Christian Malays and the Mohammedan Malays.

The first are the dwarf Negritos, with dark skins and woolly heads, wearers of scanty raiment, proficient in the use of the bow and poisoned arrow, a race of nomads and forest dwellers, pagans pure and simple. They live in their own stockaded villages.

Next to them are the Igorotes, whose origin is traced back to the first wave of Malay invasion. Here, again, we have scanty clothing, amounting almost to nudity, but copper colored skins, long wavy tresses, pleasant featured faces and fine physiques, even though the stature be small. Among these pagan Malays are the head hunters and the dog eaters. They are savages, yet have their code of laws and a knowledge of several primitive industries.

The Christian Malays, produced by the second wave of invasion, are represented by the Visayans, a tall and handsome race, dressing well, living in pretty homes, skilled in weaving, dyeing, basket making, but making, wood carving and other handicrafts, musicians of no mean merit, the one group of natives who came early and thoroughly under the influence of the early Spanish settlers.

Very different are the Moros, who swept into the islands from the Malay peninsula last of all, bringing with them their Mohammedan religion, also a knowledge of gunpowder acquired with the Koran from the Arabs—fanatics like their teachers, pirates, blood-thirsty, treacherous and vindictive fellows, ever at war among themselves and with the whole outside world. Despite their ferocity they are a clever race, dress handsomely, have their saltans and their slaves and are expert seamen, while long continued pillage on the high seas has surrounded them with many of the luxuries and conveniences of western civilization.

The buildings of Agriculture, Forestry and Fisheries show all the varied natural products, also the extremely primitive processes as yet in vogue, while in the Women's building we are introduced to a number of native manufactures, including the beautiful fabrics from the jute, banana and pineapple fibers. This information is collated in the Building of Commerce, where a unique and most effective method of exhibiting is followed. In one hall are samples of all the articles produced for export, among which Manila fiber, of course, holds the chief place of prominence, while in a second hall are all the manufactures from every country that are imported and find a ready market among the populace. Thus the business man gets a dual lesson. He sees what he can profitably take from the islands, and also what he may profitably send to them. When it is added that a large number of representative Filipinos have been brought over to visit the Exposition and study American business methods and manufactures, it will be recognized that great benefit both to the islands and to the world at large must result from this work of mutual enlightenment.

CONCERTS BY MASSES BANDS

Prizes Aggregating $30,000 to Be Distributed at the World's Fair.

Never were musical events in America planned upon such an elaborate scale as those of the World's Fair. A series of concerts will be given by competing bands in contest for prizes offered by the World's Fair. These contests will take place in Festival Hall, Sept. 12 to 17.

Nine cash prizes, aggregating $30,000, are offered for the successful bands. The prizes are divided so as to give to the organization scoring the highest number of points $3,250; $2,500 will be given to the band scoring the second highest number of points and $1,500 to the one getting the third highest number.

The above division is made for bands in Class A, which consist of twenty members. In the B class $10,000 will be given in prizes—first, $4,500; second, $3,500; third, $2,000.

Class C, which includes bands of thirty-five members, will enjoy the division of $12,750. For the organization scoring the highest number of points a prize of $10,000 has been named. The second prize is $4,000 and the third $2,750.

Bands employed by the Exposition are not permitted to contest. All players must be bona fide members, and each musician must have been enrolled at least three months prior to the date of the contest. Each band must send to the bureau the name of its members and a nominal entrance fee.

Festival Hall concerts by massed bands will be given at 7:30 each day during the contest, in which all contesting bands will take part under the direction of a distinguished conductor. All bands entering must agree to play one concert in addition to the competing concert and massed concerts.

A separate programme has been prepared by the Bureau of Music for each class, and each band will play through the full programme of its class. The numbers in all three programmes are by eminent composers and are chosen with the view of bringing out the qualities of the bands performing them. The list of composers includes Wagner, Gounod, Offenbach, Verdi, Saint-Saens, Bizet, Strauss and Leoncavallo.

WEATHER AT WORLD'S FAIR.

Cool Nights and Delightful Indian Summer to Be Expected at St. Louis.

Usually the warmest month of the year, July proved to be one of the most pleasant of the World's Fair season, the average temperature being 67 degrees, a record lower than that made by either Boston, New York, Philadelphia, Cincinnati or Chicago. The weather bureau records show that the temperatures in St. Louis during July were just between the extremes recorded at New Orleans and St. Paul, cities located at great distances.

August in St. Louis is a month of cool nights, and September and October are the most delightful months of the year. It is that period known as Indian summer, when the foliage and birds linger to challenge the coming winter. Nowhere on the American continent is there a spot more delightful than the World's Fair city, a garden of blooming flowers and spraying fountains.

St. Louis, like all cities, experienced several hot days during July, but her highest temperature recorded was 93 degrees against 94 degrees registered by the thermometer at Chicago. On the same day the mercury rose to 93 degrees in Philadelphia, and scores of heat prostrations were reported from New York and Boston.

The relative humidity shows St. Louis to be about normal. Assuming absolutely no moisture in the atmosphere to be zero and absolute wetness to be 100, the relative humidities for July, taken from the records of more than twenty years, Boston shows 70.6, New York 72.2, Philadelphia 68.6, Cincinnati 64.6, Chicago 66.9 and St. Louis 66.3. The same degree of heat in two places, with different degrees of humidity, would cause it to seem the hotter at the point of greater density.

St. Louis may therefore rightly claim to be a summer resort this summer, positively one of the most comfortable and delightful places on the map.

Prison Productions.

John Bunyan wrote "Pilgrim's Progress" during one of his terms in prison, which altogether lasted twelve years. The brilliant Frenchman, Mircabeau, during his three years' imprisonment at Vincennes wrote many pamphlets, and his "Lettres de Cachet et Prison d'Etat." Luther while in the solitary castle of Wartburg wrote that noble hymn, "Eine Feste Burg ist unser Gott." During his thirteen years' confinement in the Tower of London Sir Walter Raleigh wrote a history of the world from the creation to 1500 B. C. Daniel Defoe, who was imprisoned for two years for the publication of an ironical pamphlet entitled "The Shortest Way with Dissenters," produced during his imprisonment several of the 210 works he is said to have written. The poet Lovelace wrote "Lucasta" while a political prisoner, and the Roman philosopher Boethius wrote in prison a work singularly appropriate to his situation, "On the Consolation of Philosophy."

How to Reach a Decision.

If indecision runs in the blood you inherit a curse yourself and strange this insidious foe to your achievement, before it saps your energy and ruins your life chances. Do not wait until tomorrow, but begin today. Compel yourself to develop the opposite quality by the constant practice of firm decision. No matter how simple the thing you are called upon to decide, be it the choice of a hat or the color or style of a garment, do not vacillate. Throw all the light possible on what ever you have in hand for decision, weigh and consider it from every point of view, call your common sense and best judgment to your aid before reaching a conclusion, and then, when you have once made your decision, let it be final. Let there be no going back, no reconsidering and no opening the matter up for further discussion. Be firm and positive. Declare the point closed.

The Elephant's Toilet.

In an interesting little paper upon the grooming of wild animals it is said that from every point of view the toilet of the elephant is by far the most interesting performance of the menagerie. It requires at least four weeks to complete the toilet of a single elephant. The operation is very expensive. The assistance of the elephant's valet de chambre must be engaged by the day or week, while an experienced valet—he is known by another name—must be engaged to superintend the work, usually at a large salary. Then, again, the soap used in the process must be purchased by the hundredweight, the sandpaper by the cross, and the oil, an important ingredient, is used by the barrel. The toilet of a single elephant will not infrequently cost as much as $400.

Joking With Royalty.

When Marshal Bismarck was despatched to Louis XIII, his embassy to Spain and how he had entered Madrid in state seated on a mule, Louis exclaimed: "An ass seated on a mule!" "Yes, sire," quietly retorted the old soldier, "and what made the joke the better was that I represented you."

Lord Byron was a man of very uncertain moods and would allow his jester to take liberties with him one hour while regarding any familiarity the next. One day he turned round on Jones, his favorite fool, and thundered: "Follow, be about it, never stoop to talk to a fool!" "Never mind that," answered Jones. "I do. So please listen to me in your turn."

A "Lucky Thirteen" Stroke.

"The Ben," the bell in the clock tower over the House of Parliament in London, is alleged to have struck fourteen on a recent midnight. The legend recalls the well-authenticated case of the Westminster "Great Tom" going astray in like fashion.

During the reign of William III, a sentinel on duty was sentenced to death on the charge of being asleep at his post. This the man denied, and he declared that he heard the clock strike thirteen instead of twelve at midnight. The fact was proved to be several persons at the trial, and the life of the soldier named Hatfield was saved. He died in 1770 in Andersgate, aged 102 years.

Easy to Be Arrested.

In Berlin you are always forced to take the first cab in the row. If you are a family of eight and it is a one horse drosky for two, you take it. Then you hire others for your over-glow. Then if you are a lone lorn bachelor bearing a single grip, and the head of the row is an eight seat family four wheeler, you have got to take it. Not to take it is "verboten." If you don't take it you get arrested. In Germany you're liable to get arrested for almost anything, anywhere, at any time. Argonaut.

Brown-tail Poisoning.

Nothing gives such entire satisfaction for relieving the terrible itching and irritation of brown-tail moth poisoning and for reducing the inflammation, as Cabot's Sulpho-Naphthol. Physicians and nurses have been most generous in their praise of this meritorious article as it is unequalled for effecting rapid cures. Sulpho-Naphthol is also of great value for all insect and reptile poisoning, as well as for the many similar afflictions so common during the summer months.

Salt in the Spectrum.

The extreme delicacy of the spectrum test is illustrated by the fact stated by Lommel, that the three-millionth part of a milligram of a salt of sodium, an imperceptible particle of dust to the naked eye, is yet capable of coloring the flame of a candle yellow and of giving the yellow lines of sodium in the spectroscopic. Indeed sodium in the form of a common salt (sodium chloride) is so universally present as an impalpable dust floating in the air that it is next to impossible to get a spectrum which does not show the sodium lines.

Entertaining Customers.

A New York business house near White street and Broadway reckons its yearly entertainment fund at about $100,000. It does an annual business of over $2,000,000. Its salesmen are bright fellows who control trade. One who works altogether on a commission basis makes $25,000 a year, but of that spends $15,000 in entertaining his customers.

How Indians Interpret Dreams.

According to one authority this is the interpretation Indians give to certain dreams:

If you are a young man or woman and dream of flying low it is a sure sign you are short lived, and it is time you were preparing your little business to do your flying at some other place. If you dream of flying among the house tops or just above, you will reach the fifty or sixty notch.

If you dream that you are away among the tree tops, then you are good to live up into the nineties, and if you dream that you are leaping the stars with your gourdhead, then you will reach the century notch. To dream that you are solid with a black eye, beauty is a sign that you will kill a fine buck deer before you sleep again. To dream of blood means also meat in the pot. To dream of your would-be moth-eaten law breaking a bow over your head is a sure sign that you will not be far from beloved sovereignty. If you dream of eating softly with a deceased friend, make your will before another sun goes down. Kansas City Journal.

A Road Made in a Day.

Lothian road, a prominent street in Edinburgh, was made in a single day. Sir James Clerk of Pentlands met with a friend that he won a bet between sunrise and sunset prepare the line of road, extending nearly a mile in length by twenty paces in breadth. It happened to be in the winter season, when many men were unemployed. He had no difficulty in collecting several hundreds of these on the ground at the appointed time, when he gave them all a plentiful breakfast of porridge, whisky and bread and cheese, after which, just as the sun rose, he ordered them to set to work, some to tear down inclosures, others to unroof and demolish cottages and a considerable portion to bring earth to fill up a great hollow to the required height. The inhabitants, dismayed at so vast a force and so summary a mode of procedure, made no resistance. So active were the workmen that before sunset the road was sufficiently formed to allow Sir James to drive his carriage over it.

New High School Building.

The new High school building, as already announced, will be open for public inspection Labor Day, September 5, from 9 to 12 and from 2 to 5. The furniture will then be in place, and most of the decorations that have been given will also be in position. It is hardly necessary to add that every one is most cordially invited to visit the building on that day.

Concrete Sidewalks.

The concrete sidewalks in many parts of the town, especially in the centre, are in bad condition.
When funds will permit, granolithic walks should be built in the centre. They cost more but they will last for a great many years when they are not disturbed. The town should not only have a plant for concrete work but for doing granolithic work as well.

Highland School Building.

The improvements on the High land school building are practically completed and the old structure shows a gain of a hundred per cent. in general appearance. Connections with the sewer have been made and the outbuilding, the principal bone of contention, which stood out on its rocky eminence like a lighthouse, is no more. In all probability the rejuvenated building will be used for school purposes for many years.

A Vigorous Campaign by Democrats.

The Democratic Town Committee, through its Chairman, John H. Carter, proposes to make a vigorous campaign this fall and if possible get out a full vote of that party. For about twelve years the work has been allowed to drift along with a resultant lack of interest and a small vote. Now that the party appears to be in complete harmony, the leaders are looking for a larger vote than has been customary for the past dozen years, and generous contributions from prominent members in order that a vigorous campaign may be conducted.

Fake Stories Injure the Town.

The sensational stories that have appeared in some of the Boston papers regarding the burglaries in this town only tend to discredit those journals in the eyes of the people of Winchester. The fact that a series of housebreaks have taken place here is bad enough, but when a Boston morning paper prints a fake story about a pistol duel near the Medford line on Tuesday night between the police and five of these thieves in which fifty shots were exchanged, then it becomes a serious matter and one that no reputable paper would be guilty of printing. Chief McIntosh did not hesitate to tell the editor of that paper so, either. As no contradiction will ever appear many people outside of Winchester will believe the story as true, to the injury of the reputation of the town.

No Session School Signal.

This last year the no-session signal applied only to grades below grade seven; the rule has been modified so that hereafter the signal will apply only to grades below grade six, that is to grades below five inclusive and to the kindergartens. The reasons for the change are chiefly as follows: The High school, and the sixth, seventh, eighth and ninth grammar grades, are one-session schools. A morning signal for these schools would mean the loss of the whole day, and yet in all of these schools enough of the children are sufficiently large or live sufficiently near the school to make it possible for considerable numbers to be present irrespective of the weather. The experience of the last year or two has demonstrated the wisdom of running the High school and upper grammar grades regardless of weather, and the change of the coming year is merely adding one grade—the sixth—to those that have heretofore not been affected by the no-session signal. Hereafter, accordingly, the High, Wadleigh and Prince schools will keep every school day, and the no session signal will apply solely to the other schools.

In this connection a word of explanation is advisable. It will sometimes, perhaps often, happen that children live a long distance from school, or they may not be sufficiently provided for against stormy weather, or they may not be in such health as to warrant running the risks of rain or snow.
In all such and similar cases the parents should understand that there is absolutely no penalty attached to a child's staying at home.
Parents should exercise their own discretion and judgment about sending their children to school in stormy weather, assured that all reasonable excuses for absence will be readily accepted by the teachers and school authorities. It is the absolutely unnecessary absences and the frivolous excuses that ought to be discouraged and not the absences for good cause.

The school system is expensive, and the school year is all too brief to accomplish everything that modern education demands. It costs almost as much to run the schools closed as open; salaries go on, and about the only saving is in keeping low fires the entire day instead of two-thirds of the twenty-four hours. Out of regard both for the interests of the children and for the large and generous expenditure of the town, parents ought to encourage good school attendance.

Moths a National Problem.

The Washington expert, who has been looking over the moth infested territory of eastern New England, is inclined to favor the use of parasite insects as the most feasible remedy at this stage of the struggle.
The government, he thinks, should attend to this item, but, with some apparent inconsistency, he urges that the general work of fighting the moth should be the task of the State, the town and the private owner.

This is the same miserable idea which has been mainly responsible for the long drawn losing fight thus far waged. Suppose the recent cattle epidemic had been managed in the way suggested; that is, largely at the cost of towns and owners.
The enforcement would most likely have raised a small rebellion, and the alternative would have been the continued spread of the disease.

National assistance at the right time would probably have secured total destruction of the moths. Now that the insects have spread to other States, the attention of Congress may be attracted, and money spent freely with little hope of more than partial success. It was like allowing a little flame enough headway to call out the fire department. —

Catarrh Cannot be Cured

with LOCAL APPLICATIONS, as they cannot reach the seat of the disease. Catarrh is a blood or constitutional disease, and in order to cure it you must take internal remedies. Hall's Catarrh Cure is taken internally and acts directly on the blood and mucous surfaces.
Hall's Catarrh Cure is not a quick medicine. It has been prescribed by one of the best physicians in this country for years, and is a regular prescription. It is composed of the best tonic ingredients, combined with the best blood purifiers, acting directly on the mucous surfaces. The perfect combination of the two ingredients is what produces such wonderful results in curing catarrh. Send for testimonials, free.

Swatting the Mosquito.

Any one who has had holes bored in him by day or chunks broken out of his sleep by night, all owing to the buzzing, biting pest known as the mosquito, can sympathize with those who are compelled to meet that monster in his native lair. It is easy to grow immune about a mosquito when he is not next to you. When he is, you somehow fail to see the point of the joke.

If profanity consigns men to the fiery lake, more souls have been lost because of the mosquito than through any other thing. Thus the insect makes it hot for us both here and hereafter.
It disseminates yellow fever, ague, blotches on the cuticle and a general disregard for one or more of the commandments. It gayly meanders through nettings and screens and has even been known to penetrate stone walls to get at its victim. For these and millions of other reasons everybody, including even members of the peace society, will applaud the war that is being carried on against this fell destroyer of human happiness and feminine complexions.
In New Jersey, where the mosquito takes his rise, the fight is most fiercely waged. Every one who has ever lived in Jersey knows that it would be a modern Eden were it not for the serpents known as the otopus and the anophele. The mosquito has several other names besides anophele, such as eulex, but the names most frequently applied to him in the heat of action are not such as can be reproduced in a respectable journal like this.

The subjoined accounts of the things that are being done to the mosquito fill the soul with a fierce but holy joy.

In the city of Elizabeth, N. J., a campaign was started, and in 1903 the first work was done on the salt marshes.
The result was that in a territory where millions of mosquitoes developed in 1902 practically none developed in 1903.
The work was done by a machine at the rate of 1 cent per running foot that made ditches six inches wide by thirty inches deep. Within forty-eight hours the area covered by a ditch was dry, and no surface water remained later in the season for more than twenty-four hours. In the spring of 1904 the ditched area showed not a larva and could be crossed in slippers. On the other side of the road rubber boots were needed, and wrigglers were in countless numbers. The object lesson was startling, and for 1904 the city decided to have its entire marsh area ditched.

From New York some accounts of successful experiments with what is known as the bordeaux mixture as an agent for killing the disease propagating anopheles as well as the less dangerous but more annoying eulex members of the mosquito tribe. The formula is given as one pound each of lime and sulphate of copper to ten gallons of water. It is claimed that a small amount of this mixture placed in ponds, pools or streams is certain death to mosquitoes of every species and will not harm animals that may chance to drink the water.

A Danish inventor says that he has discovered an electric wave by which he can make a typewriter work in an adjoining room. He does not say whether he means the machine or the operator.
If he can make a machine work in another room, it is wonderful, but if he can make some operators work it is nothing short of a miracle.

ereal nature of their pocketbooks.

Does Advertising Pay?

Somebody has gathered some careful statistics to show that $1,000,- 000,000 was spent in advertising in the United States during the past year.

Insurance figures came to less than this. Corn figures were $952,- 000,000; wheat, $443,000,000; cotton, $600,000,000; coal, 210,000,- 000; hay 556,000,000; pig iron, 91,000,000.

In New York city and Brooklyn
the very largest department stores expended $2,000,000 among themselves in advertising, ranging from John Wanamaker with $500,000, Siegel Cooper company and Simpson-Crawford company 400,000, and R. H. Macy $300,000 to Arnold-Constable company, $35, 000.

This expenditure is twice that paid for rent by the big stores and is exceeded by only one other item of expense—that of salaries and wages. Ten years ago the advertising expenditure was less than one half that of today. Twenty years ago it was less than one-tenth.
Without doubt the current year will show a more astounding increase.

And the larger and more extravagant grow the figures the more simple grows the answer to the old time question:

"Does advertising pay?" [Retailer and Advertiser.

Man and His Money.

Don't ask for money; make him you do not, you should. Something that prompts it. Men are generous enough, but they like large portions of glory. —[Exchange.

ors to be used in preparing the ballots for the coming election, and their dictum is that the Democratic ballots shall be salmon in color instead of fawn as a year ago. The Republicans will vote with ballots colored pearl, which is the same as last year, while the Socialists will deposit slips of paper of a canary color instead of cherry. The Election Commissioners evidently were not endeavoring to produce anything artistic when they settled upon this combination.

This school now has the most elegant, complete and extensive private school building in America. In the planning and furnishing of its expense has not been considered even in the minutest detail. New fittings of special design will be found to have taken the place of the or-outfit of the school in its old building has been sacrificed that the school in the new home

might have only the newest and best obtainable.

EXPERIENCED TEACHERS.
The faculty is composed of the able and experienced corps of teachers who have given this school its wide-spread reputation.
The tuition fees are the same as during the previous ten years, and pupils who contemplate attending may congratulate themselves that this year was the chosen time for their commercial course and the finishing of their school work.

COURSE OF STUDY.
The course of study prepares pupils thoroughly for all the duties of the counting-room. Book-

Commercial Correspondence; Commercial Law; Commercial Geography; Commercial Handwriting; Typewriting; Civil Service (preparation

THE LOWER ANIMALS.

They are keen of perception, but are incapable of thought.

Animals have keen perceptions—keen in many respects than our own—but they form no conceptions, have no powers of comparing one thing with another. They live entirely in and through their senses. To all that inner world of reflection, imagination, comparison, reason, they are strangers. They never return upon themselves in thought. They have sense memory, sense intelligence, and they profit in many ways by experience, but they have not soul memory or rational intelligence. All the fundamental emotions and appetites men and the lower animals share in common, such as fear, anger, love, hunger, jealousy, cunning, pride, curiosity, play, but the world of thought and thought experiences and the emotions that go with it belong to man alone.

It is as if the psychic world were divided into two planes, one above the other—the plane of sense and the plane of spirit. In the plane of sense live the lower animals, only now and then just breaking for a moment into the higher plane. In the world of sense man is immersed also; this is his start and foundation, but he rises into the plane of spirit, and here lives his proper life. He is emancipated from sense in a way that beasts are not—John Burroughs in Harper's Magazine.

Taken With Cramps.

Wm. Kimse, a member of the bridge gang working near Littleport was taken suddenly ill Thursday night with cramps and a kind of cholera. His case was so severe that he had to have the members of the crew wait upon him and Mr. Gifford was called and consulted. He told them he had a medicine in the form of Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy that he thought would help him out and accordingly several doses were administered with the result that the fellow was able to be around next day. The incident speaks quite highly of Mr. Gifford's medicines.—Elkader, Iowa, Argus.

Bogus Free Masons.

Persons hereabouts and elsewhere, who have been taken in the bogus Masonic lodge under the conviction that they were joining a legitimate lodge of F. & A. M., but have found out their error after they have parted with their money, will be interested in a report of a case of this kind which recently appeared in the Providence Journal. According to the Journal the case was tried in the civil division of the District court in Providence, two plaintiffs, victims of the delusion, bringing suit against the agent or solicitor of the alleged pseudo-Masonic lodge to recover the sums paid for membership. The testimony presented was conclusive and complete that the organization was not affiliated with, nor in any way connected or recognized by the Ancient Order of Free and Accepted Masons, although the plaintiffs declared it had been represented to them that they were joining a genuine lodge of that fraternity. After they found to their amazement and chagrin that they were not duly qualified to visit a legitimate lodge of Masons, they sought redress. A decision was rendered for the plaintiffs for the amounts claimed. In giving his decision, Judge Sweetland said it was evident that the lodge in question was one of the "slandestine" sort and that the whole scheme was obviously devised to obtain money from people who wanted to become Masons but who could not get into the regular Orders, and consequently were the more easily led to believe that by joining such a lodge—as the Eureka so-called, they would become full fledged Masons, when as a matter of fact they were no more members of such an organization than if they had made up a lodge themselves.

A Trick of the Trade.

Residents of a certain block which boasts a long sustained respectability were astonished recently to see the basement of a brownstone house converted into a blacksmith shop. The block beheld with dismay, which grew when it saw the bold signs which the proprietor put upon his walls. Presently a tailor's shop was opened in the block. This was the final stroke. Property began to exchange owners and furniture vans were busy for a time. Then the blacksmith shop and the tailor's store suddenly vanished. What had happened? Nothing more than that some designing real estate dealers had attained their ends. They had bought a few houses and had purposely set about depreciating the value of the adjoining property so that they could get it at bargain rates. The blacksmith and the tailor were allured by the bait of cheap rents in the houses which the dealers had bought, and perhaps there was a secret understanding by which the newcomers in business were to make themselves as obnoxious as possible to the residents.—[New York Post.

Reconciliation That Failed.

James VI. of Scotland—afterward James I. of England—in 1557, being much perturbed by the constant quarrels among his nobles, determined to end all disputes by a summary process of reconciliation. Accordingly, having assembled the nobles on Sunday, May 14, at Holyrood, in the lodging of Sir James Maitland of Thirlstone, he drank to them and caused them all to shake hands. On the following day after banqueting them in Holyrood, he caused the ears of Angus, Montrose, Mar and Glencairn, also the Master of Glamis and many others—all deadly enemies to one another—to march hand in hand two abreast from the abbey to Holyrood along the Cannongate and High street of Edinburgh to the town cross, where the provost and bailies had a table spread with wines and sweetmeats. Here the company once more drank to their eternal amity and separated. But a few weeks later they were lying in wait, as of old, to kill one another.

There are a few men and women in Massachusetts who propose to do all in their power to prevent race suicide, and so they have established the American Birth Insurance company, which will pay from $200 to $500 when a child is born to a member. As Mrs. Mary A. Livermore and other equally well known women are among the incorporators, the scheme must be all right, but it sounds a little queer. The question now is will the attraction of a prize make more women willing to be mothers. Watch the reports of

Cost of Road Building.

The cost of road building varies in the different places according to the topography of the country and the proximity of the stone used. A satisfactory highway can be built 18 feet wide exclusively of stone usually for $3000 to $3500 a mile. These are known as macadam roads. A more costly stone road, running from $4000 to $6000 a mile is the Telford road. Both are named after Scotchmen who first devised the systems.

The macadam road consists of a deep foundation of large stones, laid as smoothly together as possible, the foundation stones being of a uniform size. A layer of smaller stone is placed over the foundation and rolled down, binding the two together. Then layers of crushed stone, each layer being of finer quality than its predecessor, are rolled into and over the foundations. The final layer is of very fine crushed stone.

The whole settles itself into a compact mass, almost as smooth as a flagstone from which water runs off as soon as it falls.

The Telford road is more expensive because its foundation is laid with more care. The foundation stones are of a uniform size and are laid with the ends uppermost, like so many bricks set upon edge.

These are bound together by smaller size of stone, the various dressings of finer stone being laid and rolled in the same way as for the macadam roads. The durability of such a highway is unquestionably longer than any other kind of a road known.

Coiffures That Suit the Face

Consider the countenances of your friends and you will find that the woman who is at her best with her hair done low on the back of her neck is the woman with the sensitive, spiritually refined face. It is the artistic coiffure, and demands an expression signifying something more than flesh and blood beauty. The low coiffure with a rose tucked in it harmonizes only with a face wherein there is a sentimental note. The sentiment type looks pretty with its hair either way: the spirituelle type does better to conform to the artistic low coiffure, while the unsentimental, unspirituelle type makes a mistake when it robs itself of the smartness and dignity of the high coiffure.

An Attractive Kitchen.

If the home maker cares to take the trouble to make it so the kitchen may be as attractive, from the point of view of beauty and comfort as the library, reception or dining room. Simply take care to match the color of the wall and floor covering and the woodwork and select pots and pans of one material and tint. If the prevailing colors of wall paint, linoleum and woodwork are brown and white, select brown and white agateware for saucepans, kettles, jars and holders of various sorts and have the pots and pans of gleaming copper. Equally good effects may be obtained with blue and white agate or earthen ware or gray and white, the main object being to secure uniformity of color and not the hodgepodge collection of utensils that is so often found in the kitchen.

Conductor in Trouble.

Alexander Crockett, a conductor on the Boston & Northern railway was placed under arrest Monday at Wakefield.

The charges against him are in connection with an alleged scheme to defraud the company by the manipulation of transfer checks. The specific charge is the larceny from the Boston & Northern railroad company of tickets and transfer checks to the amount of $50.

The arrest was made by officers of the state police.

The scheme to defraud the company is said to be of extensive proportions and further arrests are expected.

Crockett talked very frankly with the officers in regard to the matter. He has been a conductor only a few weeks. He was repeatedly approached, he says, by another conductor who offered to sell him transfer checks. Being a new man on the road he knew little about transfers and accepted the plausible explanation that was made of the way the checks came into the other man's hands. He only purchased $1 worth, he says, of the checks at a profit of 50 cents.

GIFTS FOR HIGH SCHOOL.

Statuary and Engravings to Adorn the Various Rooms.

A List of the Gifts, the Subjects and Names of Donors.

As was stated last week, the new High school building will be open for inspection next Monday, Labor Day, from 9 to 12 and 2 to 5.

In addition to the gifts made to the new High school building which have been published in our columns, of the furnishings of the Library by Lewis Parkhurst, of a grand piano for the Assembly Hall by Handel Fond, of apparatus for the Gymnasium, by Daniel B. Badger and others, of a marble clock for the Assembly Hall by the Class of 1904, we now give our readers a list of works of art with the name of the donor and of the room in which they are placed. In this list are included several pictures and bust which have been brought from the old High school building.

FIRST FLOOR CORRIDOR.

Cast of Augustus Caesar from Prima Porta. Found in 1863 at Prima Porta, nine miles to the North of Rome, on the site of a villa of Livia. This unusually well-preserved statue represents the Emperor Augustus in the act of delivering an address to his troops. Over his tunic he wears a cuirass, to be understood as of metal, and his mantle (pallium) is loosely wound about him. The exquisitely wrought reliefs on the cuirass refer to conditions and events of Augustus' reign. The attitude of the figure is at once easy and dignified, and the head is a noble specimen of portraiture. The dolphin and Cupid by the right leg are attributes of Venus, and are introduced because Venus was the mythical ancestress of the Julian gens, to which Augustus by adoption belonged. Presented by Edwin Clion.

Cast of Chariot Race found at Herculaneum.

SECOND FLOOR CORRIDOR.

Frieze of the Triumphal Entry of Alexander into Babylon. Thorwaldsen, (copy) presented by H. A. Wilder. This frieze of twenty-two slabs was originally executed in the year 1812, for one of the apartments of the Palace of the Quirinal, Rome. Subsequently the Danish government ordered a copy in marble, which was placed in the Museum in Copenhagen, and of which this is a faithful copy. The palm, the symbol of peace and victory, begins the frieze. It overshadows the market place, near a camel and bales of goods. A caravan is supposed to be passing at a distance, which those in the market-place are watching. By the river-bank is a fisherman, quietly casting his line. The whole is indicative of peace. But a merchant hears of the approach of the victorious army of Alexander and flees across the river with his merchandise, in the endeavor to save it from falling into the hands of the conqueror. The next panel shows the Genius of the river Euphrates, the flowing urn denoting the inexhaustible flow of the water, the oar the navigability of the river, and the ear of wheat the fertility of the region through which it flowed. The inhabitants now endeavor to save their possessions. A shepherd boy drives the flocks from the fields, while the owner and his family stand anxiously by. The people of the city are assembling upon the walls to witness the approaching pageant. At the gate of the city two soldiers are on guard. Through the gate is passing a procession of people, who go to meet the conquering Alexander with the hope of propitiating him. Of this procession, the last to leave the gate is a group of wise men and astrologers, who, with their astronomical instruments go to meet the conqueror and predict for him a prosperous future. These wise men are preceded by wild animals in leashes, and a group of Arabian horses, all of which are designed as gifts to the conqueror. These gifts are in turn preceded by musicians, and the city treasurer, erects an altar of incense, while maidens strew garlands in the way. Mazaeus, the conquered Babylonian general, goes forward to meet his conqueror, with his five children, supplicating for mercy. The procession of Babylonians who have come out of the city is led by the Genius of Peace, bearing the olive branch. They now meet the conqueror Alexander and his cohorts. Alexander himself leads the van in his chariot, driven by the Genius of Victory. He is followed by his armor bearers, and they in turn by an extensive cavalcade. Following this comes an elephant loaded with booty, beside which walks a captive Persian chief, guarded by a Greek warrior. A final horseman concludes the procession, while at the extremity of the frieze is seen Thorwaldsen, the artist, beneath a palm tree, witnessing the procession which he is to depict.

There must be added to the gifts mentioned above, that of a large flag from Henry F. Johnson which will be placed upon the staff on Labor Day; of books for the Library from Albert F. Blaisdell and Dr. Clarence J. Allen.

It seems to us, and we know that the members of the school committee will agree with us, that there is a pressing need of a large addition to the number of reference books in the school library, not books in elegant bindings, but books with clear and large type. The gift of two or three hundred books from as many citizens would be highly appreciated and of the greatest value.

It was expected that there could be published at this time a complete list of gifts, but many who intend to make a present have not yet made a selection so that a supplementary list will be printed in our columns at a later date.

Death of Col. Alfred Norton.

Col. Alfred Norton, one of Arlington's oldest and most respected citizens and perhaps the oldest man in the U. S. customs service, died at the residence of his son, Benjamin A. Norton, on Academy street, Arlington, last Sunday morning. He was 59 years of age and was well known to many people in Winchester. At the time of the death of John Brown the citizens of Winchester invited Col. Norton to deliver an address on the day of the execution. This address at the time was widely published.

The burial was in the family lot in Wildwood cemetery, Winchester.

The Club was formed last Spring, is composed of twenty-four members, who have met weekly at the house of Mrs. H. T. Brown to practice songs, madrigals, etc., under the direction of Mrs. Sabrina H. Dow of Boston, the author of "Artistic Singing."

Among those composing the Club are: Mr. and Mrs. J. H. Dwinell, Mr. and Mrs. J. S. Trowbridge, Mr. J. F. Witherell, Mr. and Mrs. H. T. Brown, the Misses Carter, Miss Winsor, Messrs. Julius Skillings, H. L. Richards, Jr., W. Richards and J. E. Nickerson.

Please accept the enclosed ticket as complimentary to the STAR, to which I have been a subscriber since its first issue.

The club gets its name from Wedge Pond, the house where it meets being located on the shore of that piece of water.

A SUBSCRIBER.

Sunday night, shortly after ten o'clock, an alarm of fire was sounded from the different factories. No one in the center seemed to know in which direction the fire was located, the engineers were helpless and Policeman Todd, by special orders, refrained from ringing the bell. The members of the center companies were on hand, eager and impatient for the fray, but the engineers, with that presence and experience for which they are noted, knew there was a brush fire and forbade the companies going to the scene. It was subsequently discovered that a barn was burning, and that the West Side and Symmes' Corner companies had striven to fight the flames. "Did they do any good?" I heard asked of the firemen. "Of course they did," was the reply: "they saved the foundation."

A match game of base ball was played on the common last Saturday afternoon between the Woburn High School nine and a picked nine from this town, resulting in a victory for the former 43 to 13.

A five and a half pound pickerel was taken from Whitney's mill pond one day this week by Richard Cummings.

A single-scutt boat race will be pulled on the course from the Robinson Crusoe House to the Pleasant street bridge on July 4th. The race will be between Daniel Elliott of the Robinson Crusoe House and Dennis Coffee of the Sea Foam. The stakes are $25 a side.

The ancient and honorable Fog Horn Fishing Club enjoyed their annual excursion recently. Among the members were: Dr. Davis, Dr. Church, G. P. Brown, Wm. Matin, D. B. Winn and James Houston. Thick gloves are being generally worn by the fraternity—an indication that the members worked hard to secure the six hundred weight of fish which they brought home.

A balloon landed in Black Ball Pond on the evening of the Fourth. There was quite an excitement over the report that there was a man in the balloon, but the visitor proved only a toy.

A SINGULAR ACCIDENT.

Mr. Henry Brodeur of Winchester, was on Portland street, Boston, on his way to the Lowell R. R. depot about 6 o'clock Saturday evening accompanied by a friend who had in his hand a small toy balloon; the wind blew the balloon against a lighted cigar in Mr. Brodeur's mouth, causing the balloon to explode in his face, knocking him down, the noxious gas in the balloon burning him badly internally. He was attended by a physician and removed to his home. No permanent injury will be likely to result from it.

His 84th Birthday.

Col. Nathaniel A. Richardson was 84 years old last Monday. The event was observed in an informal manner at his home on Washington street, which has been occupied by the family more than 250 years. His health is fairly robust.

COL. N. A. RICHARDSON.

An Account of the Ordination of the Rev. Frank P. Johnson in New Orleans.

The Times-Democrat of New Orleans of Monday, August 15, 1904, gives an account of the ordination of Rev. Mr. Johnson into the priesthood of the Episcopal Church. As he has preached in the Episcopal Church in Winchester probably fifty times during the last three or four years, we give some extracts from that publication.

The Rev. Frank Poole Johnson was ordained a priest in Christ Church Cathedral yesterday morning at the 11 o'clock service. The Right Rev. Bishop Davis Sessums, D. D., of the diocese of Louisiana officiated at the ceremony and was assisted by the Dean, Rev. Charles Wells, D. D.

The Cathedral was well filled with the friends of the candidate for the priesthood, and the simple but impressive ceremony of the Episcopal Church was never more solemn than on this occasion.

The altar was beautifully decorated with cut flowers. During the service the Bishop, the Dean and Rev. Mr. Johnson sat in the sanctuary. The usual ordination service was carried out in addition to the communion service.

At the appointed hour for the ceremony the rich voices of the vested choir were heard in the vestry room singing the prelude "Cum Sancto" of Mozart, after which the vested choir, followed by the clergy, entered the church singing the processional hymn "The Church's One Foundation."

After the choir had finished the beautiful hymn Bishop Sessums ascended the pulpit and delivered an eloquent sermon. After that came the ordination of the candidate for the priesthood. After satisfactorily answering the questions of the Bishop whether he would faithfully follow the teachings of the Church in his ministry, etc., he was given the right to preach and to administer the sacraments in any parish where he might be lawfully appointed. Appropriate music and special hymns were given throughout the service. The service concluded with singing of a recessional hymn during which the vested choir and the clergy left the church and entered the vestry room. "Stand up, Stand up for Jesus" was the hymn sung by the choir.

Rev. Frank Poole Johnson was born in Woburn, Mass., in 1870. He was a product of the Schools of Woburn, was graduated at Amherst College in 1893. He taught English and elocution in Harvard School, New York City and studied theology at the Union Theological Seminary in New York and also the Episcopal Theological School in Cambridge, Mass., after which he took a trip of a year and a half around the world. He was ordained to Deacon on April 17th last and has been a curate in Christ Church Cathedral since and also assisted in St. Andrew's Mission.

During his stay in New Orleans the Rev. Mr. Johnson has made many friends, and has proven himself eminently fitted for the calling he has chosen, in voice, manner and personal appearance, and on more than one occasion he has delivered eloquent sermons.

Bishop Sessums chose for his text for the occasion from St. Matthew xvi, 23: "For whosoever will save his life shall lose it, and whosoever shall lose his life for my sake shall find it." Over a half a column of the paper is given in the account of the sermon and his address to the candidate.

One circumstance that was not mentioned in the New Orleans paper was the fact that Rev. Mr. Johnson wore a surplice at his ordination given by eight or ten women of the Episcopal Church in Winchester. These women purchased the finest material, cut it out from a surplice he purchased in England and made it with their own hands. One of the women made an elegant silk stole and ornamented it with beautiful ecclesiastical embroidery.

Second Baptists Raise Large Sum of Money.

More than 200 people attended the open-air meeting held last Sunday under the auspices of the Second Baptist Church on the church lot at the corner of Harvard and Winchester streets. Rev. D. H. Mitchell, pastor of the church, presided at the gatherings in the morning and afternoon. Rev. John Harris of Boston was the preacher at the morning services.

The principal meeting was in the afternoon. Addresses were made by Rev. J. L. Marable of Haverhill and Rev. Mr. Brown of Lynn. A letter of regret was read from Judge George S. Littlefield, who was unable to be present on account of illness.

A large sum of money was raised for the benefit of the building fund of the church.

Four alleged disturbers of the open air meeting were summoned to appear in court this week and their cases were continued to next week. The warrants were procured through the instrumentality of the Rev. D. H. Mitchell, pastor of the Second Baptists, and who hold services over the postoffice.

The other society, some members of which, it is charged, tried to squelch the speakers at the outdoor service Sunday, is known as the Cross Street Mission, the church being a disused schoolhouse. It is in charge of the Rev. C. H. Johnson. The Second Baptists, it is said, now have under consideration a scheme to purchase the old school building on Cross street, now used as a place of worship by the Rev. Mr. Johnson. If they succeed in purchasing the building it will be moved to the new church lot.

Parish of the Epiphany.

The church will reopen next Sunday with one service at 10:30 a. m. There will be one service also Sept. 11.

The rector will return Sunday, Sept. 18, and the usual services for the third Sunday of the month will be resumed that day, namely: Holy communion at 8 a. m.; morning prayer and sermon at 10:30 a. m.; evening prayer and address at 5 p. m.

The Sunday School will open Sunday, Sept. 25, at 12 m. It is hoped that every teacher and scholar will be present at the opening.

FARMERS' MONTH AT WORLD'S FAIR

Biggest Department of the Great Exposition Ready for the Inspection of the Army of Men Who Made Its Creation Possible.

Now that crops have been or are being laid by, the farmer prepares for his trip to the World's Fair, a treat that has long been promised him and for which he has patiently waited. No exposition has offered so many inducements for the farmer's presence as this one at St. Louis, nor has any previous exposition given the prominence and space to the subject of agriculture.

August and September are ostensibly the farmer's months at the Exposition, for it is at this season that the agriculture exhibits are the freshest and best. Products of the new crops are pouring into the booths from every state in the Union, and additions are constantly being made to the gorgeous display.

Headquarters for visiting farmers may be found in every state section of the great Agriculture Palace, but for their special convenience there has just been completed a Grange House, situated in the south end of the building. It is equipped with a reception room, ladies' retiring rooms and check rooms, where parcels may be left free of charge. Here will be kept a list of moderate priced rooms to aid visiting farmers and their families in procuring accommodations.

The largest building on the grounds is the Palace of Agriculture, covering twenty acres, while the Palace of Horticulture near by covers about a third as much space. These two immense structures are filled with exhibits of the farm, garden and orchard of the most extensive and elaborate character, every state in the Union and most of the principal countries of the world being represented.

Agriculture is given more prominence than any other department at the Exposition, the paramount importance of this great industry having been fully appreciated from the very beginning of the World's Fair movement.

About seventy acres of ground are covered by the agriculture and horticulture department at the Fair, large outdoor spaces being devoted to this industry. Outside there are growing crops, trees and flowers, an instructive six acre farm maintained by the United States Government Plant Industry, and gardens in all parts of the grounds.

There are more exhibits in the Agriculture building than in any other section of the Exposition. This building is considered by many people the most interesting part of the World's Fair. The exhibits in the palaces of Agriculture and Horticulture constitute a display vast enough and instructive enough to occupy the attention of visitors for many days. Nothing to compare with them was ever attempted before. They are the climax of several decades of educational work which is placing farming on a high plane and is making scientific agriculture a pleasing reality.

The conspicuous role played by agriculture at the World's Fair should bring untold benefits and wealth to the farming community of the world and impress all farmers with the importance and dignity of their calling.

Passing through these colossal buildings, studying the attractive exhibits and fascinated with the bewildering encyclopedia of rural life which is spread out before his eyes, the World's Fair visitor is impressed with the important part the farmer plays in the great world of industry, and every farmer who views these interesting exhibits is given a new pride in his vocation filled with inspiration and impressed with new ideas in harmony with the progressive strides that farming has been making for the past few years. The visit will give an insight into up to date farming on the most approved plan and will bring new hopes and blessings to the farm.

How properly to rotate crops, how to get the best results from fertilizing and irrigation, how to protect crops and fruit from the ravages of insects—all these and many more things of vital interest to farmers and fruit growers are taught at the World's Fair.

TELEPHONE TUBE.

Increases the Radius of Action of the Talking Wire.

While the telephone is one of the most useful of the many inventions which have been introduced to save time for the hurried business man, it still labors under one disadvantage in its fixity of location, sometimes necessitating the holding of the phone open until the person summoned can be called from some other portion of the building. In the larger establishments this has been overcome by installing private branch exchanges, with a sufficient number of instruments to cover all the departments of the business.

A less complicated and consequently less expensive scheme is that illustrated in the accompanying drawing. In conjunction with the main instrument, connected with the central station, there is a series of tubes similar to the speaking tubes ordinarily used in factory buildings, and the end of the tube beside the telephone has an enlarged head and clamping device by which the instrument can be connected with the tube system of the entire building. Thus any person can be called by the one who answers the call and connected by means of the tube to the main circuit.

TO KEEP OUR PETS WELL.

Benefits of Antitoxin Extended to the Animal World.

Domestic pets are now being inoculated with antitoxin in hope of warding off various complaints to which they are peculiarly subject. Some laboratories are now putting up animal antitoxins, and some men are making money inoculating domestic favorites brought to them by their owners.

The method used is to inject the serum beneath the skin of the animal by means of a needle pointed syringe. "Vaccination" in the case of a dog or cat does not "take" as it does with a child. There is no eruption. The serum is injected into the blood, and, according to the advocates of this method of treatment, renders the animal immune to the disease it is intended to fend off.

The greatest demand is for a distemper antitoxin. One dog doctor declares that he caused a number of dogs which he had inoculated with the serum as a safeguard against distemper to be housed with dogs that were not treated. A dog afflicted with distemper was then associated with the animals, and, although five out of six of the noninoculated animals contracted the complaint, the four dogs treated with the serum continued their canine careers in serene indifference to the presence of danger and had not the slightest trace of the disease when returned to their regular homes.

The complaints to which cats are subject are much the same as those that attack dogs, and antitoxin is used for the feline family. Monkeys and rabbits are also inoculated as a safeguard against various diseases peculiar to the species.

More important than the inoculation of the domestic animal for the purpose of warding off diseases of the common variety is the series of experiments now being conducted to determine whether or not there is any means of eliminating rabies from the list of the terrors of dogs.

Sources of Rain.

The chief causes of rain are stated by F. A. Rollo Russell to be only four, and in a paper to the Royal Meteorological society he describes the following: (1) The forced ascent of moist air by the slopes of mountains. (2) A mass of air invading rather suddenly another mass moving from an opposite direction and maintaining its flow below the opposing current which it displaces. (3) The ascent of more or less moist air through heavier and colder air to a height where condensation of vapor takes place, increased radiation of heat toward space, and often electrical developments producing further condensation, increase of temperature and renewed ascent with the same result. (4) The mixture of currents of air from different directions.

May Kill Elm Tree Beetle.

City Forester Gale of Springfield, Mass., has discovered a new bug which appears to have an exceptional fondness for the eggs and larvae of the elm tree beetle, and he has reason to believe that the new discovery may be of considerable importance. The bug appears to be the enemy of the elm tree beetle, and it has already accomplished good results thus far in killing and destroying the eggs and larvae in large numbers. It is a small black bug, and Mr. Gale has never before seen anything like it, nor has any one to whom he has shown it.

A PARISIAN BEAUTY.

MME. TALLIEN, WHO, IT IS ASSERTED, SNUBBED NAPOLEON.

A Woman Whose Entrancing Loveliness Dazzled Even the Women of the French Capital—The Mild and Inoffensive Young Bonaparte.

During the directoire Marie de Medici's palace became the center of government and Barras reigned there under the inspiration of Mme. Tallien. It was she who organized all the fetes and ceremonies which enlivened Paris after the Terror. In 1796 the beautiful Spaniard was twenty-three and had already had an eventful past. The daughter of a financier named Cabarrus, she had married at the age of sixteen the Marquis de Fontenay, been divorced from him in 1793 and had remarried, a few months after, Tallien, the conventionnel.

Arrested May 22, 1794, she was imprisoned in Les Carmes, and it was from here that she wrote the stinging epistles to her husband which induced that wavering spirit to dare all in the attempt to set her free. Armed with a dagger in case of failure and all the courage he could muster, Tallien on the famous 9th Thermidor attacked Robespierre in a debate which brought about the fall of the "sea green monster."

The reign of terror came to an end, the prisons disgorged their victims, and Mme. Tallien received from the people the title of Notre Dame de Thermidor. The world was at her feet, and she dazzled it by her beauty and her charm, her lovers and her luxury. Even women forgot to be jealous and acknowledged what all men proclaimed. The following description is from the pen of one of her own sex, Mme. de Chastelay:

"Mme. Tallien came every day to visit Barras. I do not think it possible to be lovelier than this woman was then. I shall always see her like a fairy queen among the rest, her beautiful black hair coiled simply on her head without any ornament, round her neck a single string of large pearls. She wore a white undershirt and tunic of ink crepe, and, sitting on the ground playing with a child of three, the son of one of Barras' friends, they made a group which no classic sculpture could surpass."

Barras tells us with great naïveté, in his memoirs, that the "Little Corsican" only turned his attention to Josephine Beauharnais after a fruitless attempt to obtain favor with Mme. Tallien and that this lady had treated him with great disdain, telling him "she could do better for herself." This account of the affair coming from any other quarter would be more credible.

A considerable event was now to take place at the Luxembourg—namely, the reception given to General Bonaparte after the campaign of Italy. For this ceremony (Dec. 10, 1797) the courtyard of the palace was transformed into a sort of temple, and an altar to la Patrie erected in the grand entrance hall. The five directors, with Barras at their head, attired themselves as Romans, while Talleyrand, the minister of foreign affairs, was prepared with an elaborate harangue.

The scene was made additionally brilliant by the presence of many ladies, whose splendid jewels and rich dresses did honor to the occasion, while their eager faces and murmured admiration betrayed their interest in the young hero. Among these groups not the least noticeable were Mme. de Stael and Mme. Recamier—"Wit and Beauty," as Napoleon himself named them.

A lone of all the assembly the future emperor had assumed no imposing costume. His uniform, that of a general of the Revolution, suggested a character of republican simplicity, while his pallor, his gravity and quiet demeanor seemed to deprecate the ceremony of which he was the object. The tone of his speech was equally modest, his theme the pride he felt in his country's scientific conquests and her progress in the paths of peace.

Surely no government could suspect a rival in so well disposed a young man. Two years later the coup d'état of Brumaire drove Barras from the Luxembourg, and the first assembly, which in France has borne the title of senate, began its sittings in the palace. —Hon. Mrs. E. Stuart Wortley in National Review.

Each in His Trade.

The violinist had been invited to a "family dinner," but it proved that several relatives of his host were present, and their demands for music were most persistent.

The violinist played three times, and then, when the applause after his third solo had died away, he turned to his host.

"And now, monsieur," he said eagerly, "now it is that you will show us how you sell ze flour in ze wheat pit. Can I help roll ze barrel in, monsieur?"

Food Laws in France.

Parisians who suspect adulteration in the food or drink they buy take it to the municipal laboratory and have it analyzed free of cost. The city undertakes the prosecution, if need be, of the offender, who, if the case is proved, is liable not only to fine and imprisonment, but to the exposure in its shop window of a notice of "condemnation of adulteration."

Pain Balm has no superior as a liniment for the relief of deep seated, muscular and rheumatic pains. For sale by O'Connor's Pharmacy.

Pumice Stone.

Pumice stone is a porous feldspathic scoria from volcanoes. The pores are linear and so fine as often to be barely visible except by means of a magnifying glass. Its specific gravity is 2.2 to 2.4 water being the unit but by reason of its spongy texture pieces are often buoyant enough to float on water. It consists chiefly of silica, with sometimes 17 per cent of lime, 6 per cent of soda and 4 per cent of potash. It is grayish shades of color, passing into brown and black. The chief source from which it is obtained for commercial purposes is Campo Bianco, one of the Lipari islands, where it forms a hill nearly 1,000 feet high. In the arts pumice is largely employed, mostly in a pulverized state, as a polishing material for ivory, wood, glass, marbles, etc. It is also used in lump for grinding and smoothing metallic surfaces, leather, etc., and in the preparation of parchments, etc. Quantities of the pulverized pumice are used in making fancy soaps.

How Earl Hargis Went A-shopping

By Sara Beaumont Kennedy

Copyright, 1904, by Sara Beaumont Kennedy

THE gentlemen's furnishing house on Spring street was making a "run" on fine shirts, and, although Earl Hargis hated shopping as the devil hates holy water, he wended his way thither, having been recently reminded by his landlady that his shirts were getting "low." On the counters were a vast array of garments in all sizes and colors. It seemed a hopeless task to decide among such a bewildering assortment of blues and pinks and lilacs and stripes and dots, and Earl found himself inwardly upbraiding Eve for entraining upon the human race the necessity for anything beyond "nature unadorned." He was just making up his mind to tell the clerk to put him up "any old thing" when a sweet feminine voice from somewhere near his elbow asked another clerk to show her the shirts. Surprised to find a woman in a tailor shop, Earl glanced up from the red and black monotony he was examining and saw a slender and particularly pretty young woman beside him. In fact, there were two women, but he did not glance a second time at the elderly one.

EARL SAW THE HAT SHE HAD CHOSEN.

"Jack had rather go shirtless than shop for himself," the young deity was saying to her companion, "so I beg all his things. It is as much as I can do to dress him in here to be measured for a new suit. Ah, is not this blue shirt a beauty?" She lifted one of the garments Earl had rejected, and instantly it seemed the most desirable one in the lot. Down into the heterogeneous mass she plunged and drew out garment after garment, holding them up for inspection, rejecting or retaining them and talking gaily all the while.

"Do you know, Mollie, I think men are greatly to be pitied. I think having nothing prettier or daintier than these madras things, no laces, no ribbons, no chiffons. I am sure I consider the wearing of organdies and elbow sleeves a higher privilege than stuffing ballots in an old box. Give me that red shirt," she continued to the clerk. "No, not the red and black. That is mourning for his Statute majesty, so the proverb says. And now that blue striped one. That is the very prettiest shirt I ever saw. Jack will look lovely in that, just lovely."

These remarks were divided between the clerk and her companion, but Earl drank it all in. What a lucky dog Jack was to have an angel like that to do his shopping and, incidentally, his house-keeping. He had never before felt his bachelorhood to be a burden. But all day he seemed to hear that clear voice saying, "Jack will look lovely in this shirt, just lovely." How nice it must be to have a pretty woman say that about one! And he put his own name in place of Jack's and tried to imagine how her voice would sound in pronouncing it. That night his dreams were a checkered conglomeration of blue and lilac shirts trimmed in impossible chiffons and short sleeves. In the morning he told himself he was a fool and went soberly to his ledger.

But a week later, prodded by a very shabby reflection in his glass, he once more sought the tailor's shop and, to his surprise, found the same two young women before the counter.

"I simply could not stand Jack in his old suit another day, so I am selecting him a new one, Mollie. This gray is very soft and will make up beautifully. That brown? No. I do not care for a dark man in brown. It kills his coloring. Gray emphasizes his best points. I shall take this."

She laid the sample down and went to look at some hats. Earl, unnoticed, picked up the bit of cloth and fixed the quality and shade in his mind. Was he not a dark man? And if gray suited Jack it would suit him also. While he was talking to the clerk he heard the clear voice that haunted his dreams so often of late saying:

"Not that wide brim, Mollie. A tall fellow like Jack would look childish in that. This straw alpine is the very thing. Jack's square, cut off shoulders will look like those of Hercules topped off with this."

Lifting his eyes to a nearby mirror, Earl saw without turning his head the hat she had chosen. Certainly Jack's shoulders could not be any squarer than his own. He, too, would have an alpine hat. And so once again had she rescued him from doubt. It really seemed a shame, almost a theft, for him to use her taste and judgment thus without her knowledge, but it was so much easier than thinking out things for himself, and it could make no difference to her, for she would never know. So he gave his order and then went outside and stood smoking until the two women emerged from the door, and he saw plainly the face of his unknown and unknowing mentor, and he told himself for the twentieth time that she was beautiful and that Jack was the luckiest dog in the world.

A week later when the gray suit came home he did full homage to her taste. Never had he had anything that suited him so well, and the alpine hat "topped" him off just as she had said. He caught himself ardently wishing that she could see him and set upon him the seal of her approval with one of those flashing smiles he had watched play about her fine lips. And, realizing what he was wishing, he blushed at his vanity and daring, and, having argued that it was neither wise nor proper for him to think so often of her, he set to work to forget the likeness of her movements and the exact tint of gold in her hair.

Before the suit was a fortnight old Mrs. Gorman gave her long remembered boat excursion. "I specially wish you, my dear Earl, to meet Nellie Penton, and I shall expect you to take her off my hands for the evening. She is just the girl to cure you of your bachelor proclivities," so the old lady wrote, and Earl, owing her several social obligations, acquiesced, mentally anathematizing the girl, who would, of course, be dull and homely. Women of Mrs. Gorman's age were likely to put general utility before grace or beauty in another woman.

The evening of the outing was perfect—a gold and violet sunset to be followed by star shine and moonlight such as Cupid dearly loves. A brilliant company had already assembled on the boat when Earl crossed the gangway and mounted to the cabin deck. He glanced at the cloud dyed water rippling away to the river's farther shore and then at the rete-a-rote chairs along the boat's rail and sighed to think that the coming hours, with such wonderful possibilities in the line of loveliness, must be squandered on a plain, "sensible" girl. At the top of the stair there was something of a crush, most of the company having just emerged from paying their respects to the hostess in the cabin. So it happened that Earl, turning his broad shoulders first one way and then another to occupy less space, came at last to the cabin door and entered simultaneously with two other late guests.

At the far end of the saloon hung a huge mirror, and as the three newcomers cleared themselves from the outgoing crowd and stepped forward they involuntarily lifted their eyes to this mirror and then suddenly stopped, for the reflection showed a lithe, graceful girl with blue eyes and wonderful tints in her hair standing between two men who at first glance might have been taken for twins. With a quick motion the girl put her hand to her eyes as if to clear them from some mist, but when she looked again at the mirror the same reflection was there. On either side of her was a tall, dark, broad shouldered man in a light gray suit, lavender striped shirt and alpine hat. Even the white polka dotted ties were the same. She gasped, and her companion stared stupidly, but Earl flushed hotly. It was as if he had been detected in a theft with the stolen goods upon him. In the flash of time they stood thus he felt the girl's eyes travel over him questioning, accusingly. Then, bareheaded, he strode across the floor to where the hostess stood surrounded by her guests.

"HOW DO YOU HAPPEN TO BE DRESSED JUST AS YOU ARE?"

"My dear Earl," she cooed softly, "I am so glad to see you! As soon as I am at leisure I will hunt up Nellie Penton and introduce you."

But Earl as soon as possible slipped away in the crowd. He knew he was a fool, but the thought of spending those moonlit hours with the homely Nellie and this other woman within reach was intolerable. If he could only talk to the latter for a few moments out there in the starlight by the rail, how delightful it would be! But he sternly forbade himself to seek so much as an introduction to her. He knew his duty to the proprietors, and there was no use in running his neck or his heart into a metaphorical noose. So after chattering with some chance acquaintances he found a quiet nook on the pilot deck and sat smoking and watching the stars reflected in the water, dreaming an idle dream of what "might have been."

But presently he was aware that some one stood behind his chair. A hand fell on his shoulder and then a clear voice said softly:

"Having a pleasant time, Jack, dear? You were wise to come up here. It's awfully stuffy dancing in the cabin. I literally ran away from Mrs. Gorman, who wished me to play the agreeable to one of her bachelor proteges."

A dozen emotions fought for dominance in Earl's consciousness. He knew he should declare himself, but a glance at the white hand on his shoulder dissipated his resolution. He simply could not tell her to take that hand away, every nerve in his body was responding to its gentle pressure.

"Was not that a strange meeting as we came in?" continued the girl. "For a moment I thought I had 'em,' as you bad boys say. Then I saw your two faces, yours clean shaven, his with a mustache, and my reason was re-enthroned. I knew I was not 'seeing double.' I wonder who he is. He is certainly very handsome, and his eyes—I should adore a man with eyes like that!"

The blood was racing through Earl's veins, mingling a tumultuous happiness with his embarrassment. Each moment an announcement of his identity seemed more imperative and at the same time more impossible. He could not tell her to take that hand away, every nerve in his body was responding to its gentle pressure. "I should adore a man with eyes like that!"

"I most humbly beg your pardon," he began, but got no further, for Mrs. Gorman came out of the opposite shadow and exclaimed in delight.

"Well, here at last I have you two together. Earl, this is Miss Penton, of whom I told you, and, Nellie, this is Mr. Hargis, the crusty bachelor whose heart is said to be invulnerable and on whom I wish you to try your sharpest arrows. Run along, now, both of you, to the end of this deck. Supper is just being served."

She bustled on into the cabin with her invitation, and the two in the band of light stood staring at each other.

"How do you happen to be dressed just as you are," she demanded, "and how dared you sit up yonder?"

But he interrupted with another question. "You are not Jack's wife?"

"Jack's wife? Of course not. I'm his sister."

"His sister? Thank heaven! Say, let the supper go hang, and come back to the upper deck. I have yards and miles of apologies to make. Come, please!"

He drew her to the stair, and in a few minutes two pairs of eyes saw the broken star shine from the pilot deck.

"It was decidedly impertinent in me to use your taste that way," Earl concluded penitently when he had told her how he had eavesdropped her in the shops. "I can't be sorry, but won't you forgive me anyhow?"

"I might forgive that, but you let me stand here with my hand on your shoulder and say—"

"And say you adore a man with eyes like mine? Yes, thank heaven, you said it, and I heard it."

She stood up. "Will you take me down to supper, Mr. Hargis?"

"No, for you are not hungry. You are going to stay right here and say that you forgive me."

And she stayed. Two hours later when they parted at the end of the gangway he held her hand a moment.

"Miss Penton, there is something I wish very much to hear you say."

"What is it?"

"This: Earl Hargis, you are lovely in those clothes, just lovely, and I rather like you, and you may send me some roses in the morning and call to see me in the evening."

She must have said it, and many calls must have followed that first one, for when the house on Spring street had its clearing sale the following season two women again stood before the counter.

"Yes, Mollie, I have two sets to choose now, for Earl is as bad about shopping as Jack and has not set his foot in a dry goods store since we were married."

ORIGIN OF "KICKERS."

Supposed to Come From an Occupation in Cornish Mines.

"I believe that the origin of the expressive bit of slang 'kickers' may be found in the very lowest form of occupation any member of the human race follows," W. M. Robinson states.

"Between Wormsley's and St. Helen's, in Cornwall, is an underground canal connecting the lower levels of the coal mines at Wormsley's with the surface station at St. Helen's which saves a great deal of money for the mine owners in handling the coal, which is simply loaded on the barges in the mines and transported by the canal under the mountains to the harbor at St. Helen's. When the canal was devised, however, how to provide for locomotion for these barges was a problem.

"Mules couldn't be used, and there were circumstances which made steam impossible, but an inventive genius finally solved the riddle by suggesting that cross pieces of timber be placed along the roof of the canal, which was very low, and men could lie on their backs on top of the loaded barges and 'kick' the vessel along. After the barge was once started this was found to be feasible.

The men could easily keep the load in motion by the means suggested, and it has ever since been in use. There is no question about the low grade of this sort of work, and even the men who follow it are constantly 'kicking' around the villages where they live. They were known at the mines officially as 'kickers' because of their work, and their vocal complaints, continually indulged in, caused every one at Wormsley's or St. Helen's, no matter what their station or employment, who indulged in complaints to be called 'kickers.' I presume that the origin of the word, as we use it, is just what I have suggested."—St. Louis Globe Democrat.

DUTCH SUPERSTITIONS.

If the fire goes out on New Year's eve trouble is foreboded.

If you walk backward, the errand you are bound on at the time will fail.

To prevent cramp wear an elkskin garter about the left leg below the knee.

To cure warts rub a black snail over them, but the snail must afterward be impaled on a rose thorn.

The first person to enter your house on New Year's day will, if he be light haired, bring bad luck to you; if dark haired, good luck.

To test your sweetheart's humor make him stir the fire. If he stirs it to a hearty blaze he is good humored. If he makes it smoke and fade he is hard to live with.

If a lock of your hair burns bright and long you will have a happy life of seventy years or more, but if it burns weakly and soon goes out your life will be both sad and short.

Mistaken Identity.

The worried cat hunter pushed long and persistently at the button labeled "Janitor." The house bore a sign stating that there were apartments to rent. The janitor was evidently absent from his post of duty, as there was no response to her repeated ringing.

Disheartened, the seeker for a home was about to turn away when the door was opened from the inside and a bright faced boy of about seven years was disclosed. He looked wonderingly at the visitor, who asked:

"What kind of an apartment is there for rent here?"

A look of mingled disgust and scorn slowly overspread the youngster's face. He surveyed the questioner from head to foot and finally said with an aggrieved air:

"Say, I ain't the janitor." New York Press.

Why They Smiled.

Brother Jones was noted for his long and laborious prayers, and although the good people of the church respected him they were not at all pleased to hear him pray in meeting. The new minister was not aware of Brother Jones' unpopularity as a "prayer," so he had no idea why a ripple of amusement passed over the congregation when, after a hymn had been sung, he said, "Brother Jones will lead us in prayer," and in a fervent tone added, "and may God help us."

What It Contained.

Analysis of the water of an artesian well bored in a southern state showed that it contained a large proportion of ammonia. Uncle Zek, a colored resident of the town, spoke of the matter in this wise to a drummer whose grip he was "toting" from the station: "We's got er artillery well here, an' las' week dey done scandalized de watah an' foun' it plum full er hydrophobia."

Wouldn't Raise Prices.

"Oh, dat I could git a job in de leg ishar?" exclaimed Brother Dickee. "What would you be willing to work for?" some one asked. "Well, suh," was the reply, "I wouldn't charge a cent mo' dan de further legislatures."—Atlanta Constitution.

How the Smoker Polishes His Pipe.

"One of the facts of the dyl in the wood pipe smoker is to have a dazzling polish on his pipe, and it's curious how he puts the gloss on," said a tobacco dealer.

"Watch a veteran pipe smoker closely, and you see him occasionally rub the bowl of his pipe against his face, usually on each side of his nose. That's how he puts the polish on. The heat of the brier and the oil of the skin against which it is rubbed work up a rich gloss. A smoker's favorite pipe, you will find, has the sheen of rosewood. It takes months of rubbing to work up a looking glass polish, and the longer the practice is indulged in the more shiny the pipe becomes. I don't know who originated the idea, but all old smokers are on to it, and the pride they take in their polished pipes is amazing."—Philadelphia Record.

The Bell With the Wall of a Child.

A queerly shaped gong which occupies a position of honor in the center of the city of Seoul, Korea, is said to be one of the largest in the world and is called "the bell with the wall of a child in its voice." When first cast the bell sounded with a harsh and cracked note, and the superstitious emperor, fearing an ill omen, consulted with his magicians. These gentlemen held a long confab and finally stated that the bell would never sound right until a live child was given to it. The mass was then melted again, and a live baby was thrown into the molten metal. The wall of agony uttered by the little tot as the bronze engulfed it seemed to be repeated every time the bell was tolled, and today the Koreans still claim that the wall of a child can be heard in the voice of the metal.

Gifts to High School.

A conservative estimate of the value of the gifts to the new High School building has been placed at $3000. This shows the interest the citizens have taken in this new building and the cause of education.

Assignment of Rooms in New High School Building.

The pupils of the High School will be assigned to the following rooms in the new building on the opening of school on Wednesday next. Senior class, room 24; junior class, room 23; second year scholars, classical course, room 14; scientific and commercial courses, room 22; entering class, classical course, room 11; other courses room 12. Rooms from 10-20 are upon the first floor, from 20-30 upon the second floor.

Lunch will be served at recess.

An Avoidable Annoyance.

The STAR has been asked to use its efforts to bring about a change in the conditions that prevail in regard to the connections of the electric cars of the Woburn and Stoneham divisions at the centre of the town. Some conductors will wait for the car on the connecting line, while others take special delight, apparently, in avoiding an approaching car, so a correspondent says, to the great annoyance of passengers who are thereby compelled to wait a half hour as is commonly the case when a Stoneham car is missed. This complaint would easily be remedied if those conductors would only realize the inconvenience patrons are subjected to and that the public have rights that they should respect.

The conductors have orders to wait a reasonable length of time for a car, and if they fail to do so, the attention of the superintendents of the roads should be called to the fact.

German Carp as a Food Fish.

Much is said about the inferior quality of the carp as a food fish. The carp, however, is one of the staple fishes of Germany, where it is carefully cultivated. The "Karpenteich," the carp pool, on many a farm is as important as the poultry yard. The secret lies with good artificial feeding. In the West they are getting good results, it is said, from feeding carp on corn meal. The carp is a vegetarian. The great trouble lies with the muddy taste of its flesh. Fish Commissioner Brackett, our veteran piscatorialist, declares the carp to be excellent eating. He says it should be kept alive over night, or longer, in a tub of clear water. Then the muddy taste will be lost and the flesh becomes white, firm and hard. In German markets the carp is invariably sold alive from large tanks. The customer is then sure of that most excellent thing in fish—perfect freshness and corresponding flavor. The carp is famed for longevity. In Japan it is one of the symbols of old age. In some of the European carp ponds there are carp several centuries old. One in Austria bears initials and a date inscribed some time back toward the middle ages. The carp grows to enormous size and is very tame, coming when called to meals as eagerly as barnyard fowl.—(Boston Herald.)

The ponds in Winchester contain large numbers of the German carp.

In Praise of Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy.

"Allow me to give you a few words in praise of Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy," says Mr. John Hamlett, of Eagle Pass, Texas. "I suffered one week with bowel trouble and took all kinds of medicine without getting any relief, when my friend, Mr. C. Johnson, a merchant here, advised me to take this remedy. After taking one dose I felt greatly relieved and when I had taken the third dose was entirely cured. I thank you from the bottom of my heart for putting this great remedy in the hands of mankind." A Magnificent Residence.

The new residence of Hon. S. W. McCall, situated on Myopia Hill, overlooking Mystic Lake is gradually nearing completion. To the average uninterested person, the erection of this magnificent residence has seemed somewhat slow; but if he should take enough interest to inspect the building he would readily perceive that the seeming tardiness in the erection is simply owing to the detailed and thoroughness of the construction.

Architect Robert Coit has certainly designed a magnificent residence, and one that will, when finished, be undoubtedly the finest, all points considered, in this section. The view commanded from his windows is probably one of the finest north of Boston and cannot be described by mere words. Every chamber in the house, which, by the way, are complete on the third as well as the second story, has an outlook unsurpassed.

The lower story of the house is of stone masonry and the rooms are all large and airy. A most pleasing feature of the interior are the open fireplaces, which are in almost every room, even in the third story, there being some ten in all. On the third floor is a handsome billiard room with a handsome arched ceiling and immense fireplace. A distinctive feature in this room is a window directly over the table. Another feature is that the servants' rooms above the second floor are entirely separate from the main chambers, it being necessary for them to go down to the second floor to reach them by another staircase. The stairs are all of the low, broad tread.

The house outside is plaster finished with a red slate roof, giving it a very handsome appearance. The lighting is both gas and electricity, wall lights being used exclusively. The house is equipped with four complete bath rooms, two on each upper floor, while a lavatory is located under the stairs on the ground floor. The interior work is being done with the most complete thoroughness, and Architect Coit has provided for every detail for the comfort in a modern home.

The house is now ready for the inside plastering and Mr. McCall looks for its completion at about Thanksgiving.

Rev. Edwin B. Palmer Dead.

Rev. Edwin Beaman Palmer, an old and respected citizen of this town, passed away at his home on Dix street this (Friday) morning shortly before eight o'clock. He was in his 71st year.

Edwin B. Palmer was born in Belfast, Me., Sept. 25, 1833. He was a graduate of Bowdoin College and in 1856-57 was principal of the Brunswick, Me., High School. In 1859 he graduated from the Bangor Theological Seminary and the same year undertook his duties as minister of the gospel at Newcastle, where he remained until 1862.

From 1862 until 1863 he served as chaplain of the 10th Maine Infantry. From 1863 until 1885 he preached in various cities and towns, including Lewiston, Me., and Ipswich, Mass.

REV. EDWIN B. PALMER.

In 1885 he entered the service of the Massachusetts Home Missionary Society, which office he held until last May, when he was obliged to resign owing to failing health. He was also a member of the board of overseers of Bowdoin College since 1878. He received the degree of D. D. from Bowdoin in 1903. Winchester had been Mr. Palmer's home for 19 years.

Mr. Palmer leaves, besides his wife, Thirza M., two daughters, Eva M., and Frances K., and one son, Edwin F. He is also survived by two brothers, three sisters and one granddaughter, Carrie F. He was prominently identified with church work in this town and for 12 years had served as clerk of the Congregational Church.

His death was not unexpected and was due to a general wearing away of his vitality.

At this time the hour of the funeral services has not been determined.

Young Plants

Every farmer knows that some plants grow better than others. Soil may be the same and seed may seem the same but some plants are weak and others strong.

And that's the way with children. They are like young plants. Same food, same home, same care but some grow big and strong while others stay small and weak.

Scott's Emulsion offers an easy way out of the difficulty. Child weakness often means starvation, not because of lack of food, but because the food does not feed.

Scott's Emulsion really feeds and gives the child growing strength.

Whatever the cause of weakness and failure to grow—Scott's Emulsion seems to find it and set the matter right.

This school now has the most elegant, complete and extensive private school building in America. In the planning and furnishing of its NEW BUILDING expense has not been considered even in the minutest detail. New fittings of special design will be found to have taken the place of the ordinary furniture used in school buildings. The entire outfit of the school in its old building has been sacrificed that the school in the new home might have only the newest and best obtainable.

EXPERIENCED TEACHERS.

The only feature recognizable will be the able and experienced corps of teachers who have given this school its wide-spread reputation.

The tuition fees are the same as during the previous ten years, and pupils who contemplate attending may congratulate themselves that this year was the chosen time for their commercial course and the finishing of their school work.

COURSE OF STUDY.

The course of study prepares pupils thoroughly for all the duties of the counting-room. Ten New Locomotives.

The Boston & Maine railroad has recently added to its passenger service 10 large locomotives. These engines are models of their kind, being the largest ever used on any railroad and it is estimated that they can haul a train of 15 vestibule cars, numbering eight Pullmans and seven coaches, at an average speed of 43 miles an hour. The total weight of one of these monsters is 852 tons, weight on drivers 65 tons. The size of the outside tire of the drivers is 72 inches, while the cylinder measures 20x26. The boiler diameter at the smallest portion is 66 inches, the tank capacity is 5,000 gallons, and the coal capacity is about 10 tons. The tractive force of one of these engines is 24,500 lbs., and the heating surface of the fire box measures 165 square feet, the fire box tubes 27 square feet, and the tubes 2,641 square feet, making a total of 2,833 square feet. The grate area measures 4,627 square feet, and the boiler pressure is 200 pounds. These locomotives are for use only on passenger trains, and have been assigned to the Eastern and Western divisions. — [Boston & Maine Messenger.]

GOING TO THE FAIR?

The Wakefield-Reading Fair, of course—its going to be held Sept. 13th-18th—The Great Twenty-five Cent Fair of Massachusetts.

Think what 25c. expended at the gate of the Wakefield-Reading Fair, Sept. 13-16, will do! It will admit at seven a. m. and give three hours to view the following exhibits:—agricultural, horticultural, manufacturing, business, women's department, cattle, sheep, horses; then a couple hours to listen to a concert by the Lynn Cadet Band, and wander along the Pike; two hours more to enjoy the trotting, interspersed with an afternoon's entertainment by the Nashville Troubadours, and various other amusement features; then the closing, great unparallelled balloon ascension and parachute jump, where one performer makes the drop with a parachute that collapses, and he seizes another in mid-air and reaches the earth in safety. Twenty-five cents for all this!

The Nashville Troubadours comprise eighteen musicians. They have never appeared in the East, having been too constantly booked to come out of their own territory.

Double parachute jump from a balloon—an unparalleled feat by the most daring aeronaut in the world—at the Wakefield-Reading Fair, Sept. 13-16.

WOMAN'S DEPARTMENT.

There will be special premiums for Hardanger lace at the Wakefield-Reading Fair also a second premium for collection of Amateur China painting. There are three prizes for the three best dolls. The committee will be at the hall Monday, September 12, to receive exhibits and urge the ladies to exhibit in all departments.

Wakefield Wants a Library Building.

Let's all work together for a public library building for Wakefield! The announcement that our neighboring town of Lynnfield has just received another library suggests that there are ample opportunities for Wakefield citizens and former residents to benefit Wakefield. The Wakefield library has quite a snug sum of money in trust funds, but a building fund is now needed. Wakefield's library quarters are crowded and the town needs a new library building. The only way the town can help is to agitate the idea, and we trust that citizens interested will express their ideas or suggestions through our columns. But it is hoped that when a new library is erected here it will look better than the average Carnegie library building, on the exterior, at least. The Carnegie libraries as a rule, have a ready-made appearance bordering on the shopworn order. Most of them look as if they came off the bargain counter. No adverse criticism is intended against Andrew, however, for it is doubtful if he has ever seen a dozen of his hundreds of libraries, and towns having no available local funds or generous friends are probably glad to take what they can get and say nothing. — [Wakefield Item.]

Her Life was Devoted to the Cause of Temperance.

Mrs. Sarah A. Leonard, for many years grand secretary of the Massachusetts Grand Lodge, Independent Order of Good Templars, passed away at her home at Medford last week. The death was very sudden and the news was a great shock to her many friends throughout the state.

Mrs. Leonard was the wife of George Leonard and has been very prominent in temperance work for many years. She has held the office of Grand Secretary of the I. O. G. T. for twenty years and was in every instance elected by a unanimous vote with no opponent for the office. She has been a member of Greenwood lodge for the past three years to which organization she came from Royal Arch lodge of Cambridge. Highly respected, always genial and pleasant, Mrs. Leonard had a host of friends both in the order and elsewhere who will deeply mourn her loss.

She has been a prominent speaker on several occasions in Winchester and always held the close attention of a highly interested audience.

As an efficient and faithful officer in the Good Templars and an earnest worker in the great temperance cause, she will be greatly missed.

Cross Street Baptist Church.

Last Sunday morning the services were conducted by Rev. Mr. Johnson at 10:15 and in the evening by Mr. Sellers of Woburn. Next Sunday is Communion day. There will be special music by the choir.

Last week Thursday evening was a lawn party given by Miss Moor and Mr. S. Middleton on the estate of Mr. Starratt on Cambridge street. There were many amusements, the most important one being a debate between Miss Elnora Lewis and Mr. Winfred Russell. Subject, resolved that "Money is more useful to man than Education." Affirmative, Miss Lewis, negative, Mr. W. Russell. The judges were Mr. William Russell, Mr. Starratt, Mr. Jules Richardson, chairman, John Russell. The debate was won by Winfred Russell.

Miss Etta Skanks is now a member of the Junior Choir.
Miss Bessie Billips is now acting secretary of the Sunday school.

A Juvenile Troupe.

As was advertised in your issue of last week the Juvenile Troupe of the east side gave their entertainment on Saturday, the twenty-seventh, at 3:30 p. m.

The day was like "a day in June" and a goodly sized audience gathered in Good Time Hall until there was standing room only, to witness the efforts of the little artists of from three years to twelve of age.

The hall and stage were tastefully decorated with flags and draperies which gave quite an histrionic effect to the atmosphere, and the spacious and shady lawn in front, dotted with tents for the Fortune teller and the Snake charmer; with tables for ice cream, cake and confectionery, the settings altogether gave the appearance of a first class variety entertainment.

On the stage the opening event on the program was a recitation by Deborah Hicks as the impatient passenger waiting for the belated arrival of that "slow coach."

ix. "The Little Kitty," by Mildred Carrico

x. "A Boy's opinion of Babies," by Guy Messenger.

xi. "The Little Girl with a Curl" by Ruth Hammond.

xii. A dramatization of the Winchester Burglaries, with the following cast of characters:

Deborah Hicks, the sleeping house-keeper.

Lawrence Clark, Roy Hudson, masked burglars.

Guy Messenger, Chief of Police, summoned by the house-keeper by telephone.

xiii. Mr. Mouse's Trap by Constance McIntosh.

xiv. My little wife by Clifford Alden.

xv. Andrew Jackson White—a darkey duet—sung by Guy Messenger and Louise Bell.

xvi. The Cake walk, by the entire troupe, including the Gold Dust Twins.

The entire list of events gave the audience a degree of satisfaction reflected in their profuse applause.

At the fall of the curtain the audience and troupe gave their attention to the attractions on the lawn, and the final report of the Treasurer footed up a net proceeds of seventeen dollars cash besides the future prospect in sale of pictures of the group of "artists" in full costume. All of which is duly reported to the treasurer of that noble charity, the Boston Floating Hospital.

John W. Sweeney.

After a short illness Mr. John W. Sweeney, the well known harness maker, passed away at his home on Thompson street last Saturday. On Friday he was taken sick with acute indigestion and this resulted in apoplexy, he continuing to grow worse after sustaining a shock on that day, until the time of his death.

Mr. Sweeney was born in Barre, Mass., 54 years ago. He learned the harness makers' trade and early in life established himself in business in Boston, where for many years he was engaged in the manufacture of horse boots on Sudbury street.

He was an expert in his line and many of the most famous trotting horses of the country were furnished with appliances by him. About 15 years ago he came to Winchester and established a business here. He was the originator of many patents relating to harnesses from which he realized but little, the fruits of his inventive genius going to others.

Mr. Sweeney was a remarkable well educated and informed man and it was a pleasure to converse with him.

In early life he was active in Boston politics and in Winchester up to recent years acted with the democratic party.

Mr. Sweeney was the first Governor of Wedgemere Colony U. O. P. E., and a prominent member. He also suggested the scheme to abolish the grade crossing by moving the tracks west of their present location, entering Rangeley near Wedgemere station, and along the shores of Wedge Pond, crossing Main street by a deep cut and again joining the tracks above Higgins & Cobb's tannery.

He is survived by a wife, three daughters and one son.

Funeral services were held on Wednesday morning at 8 o'clock, from Mr. Sweeney's late residence, No. 12 Thompson street, Rev. Fr. Rogers of this town officiated. During the service the stores in town were closed.

The pall bearers were: Charles and John LaVerdy, of Cambridge; Patrick Dancy of Woburn; P. E. Fitzgerald, Michael O'Flaherty and William Vayo of Winchester.

The display of floral tributes was most magnificent. Some of those sent by members of the family, societies and friends were as follows:

Pillow of asters, roses, pinks and ferns, from his wife, Pillows, John, Papa and Brother and Standing Cross from the family.

Pillow of asters, pinks and ferns, from the children.

Pillow of asters, lilies and fern, from his sister.

Large star and crescent of roses, lilies, pinks and ferns, Fire Department.

Large Pillow of gaily leaves and roses, U. O. P. E.

Large lyre, J. P. Kelley.

Large wreaths, Mrs. P. Dowd and family, Mr. and Mrs. McNelly and family.

Large spray bouquets, Mr. and Mrs. Vayo, Miss Carrie Salmon, Wm. Hurlbert, Mrs. W. Hurlbert, Mr. and Mrs. Divenport, Mr. and Mrs. Noonan and family, Dr. and Mrs. J. L. French, H. E. Cutting, Mr. and Mrs. P. A. Fitzgerald, Mrs. DeCota and Mrs. H. V. Purman, Mr. and Mrs. John Kelley, I. A. Mobbs and W. H. Thorne, Mr. and Mrs. Wm. K. Blodgett.

Large bouquets, Mrs. Danahy, Mr. and Mrs. Steves.

Large mound, Mr. and Mrs. George LeDuc and family.

The burial was in Holy Cross Cemetery, Malden.

Failed to Keep Agreements.

Recently residents of Winchester have complained of Russell brook as not only giving out an obnoxious smell but being a menace to the public health. A member of the Board of Public Works of this city says that the Board has been ready for a long time to meet the Board of Winchester for the purpose of remedying the matter but has been unable to bring it about although dates have been made.

He said this Board was anxious to settle it and would do so when the other interest was ready.

Russell brook has three or four heads at springs and also an extensive water shed. It rises rapidly during a storm, and a light rain will make a formidable stream at Cross street, where it enters the town of Winchester. The trouble is claimed to be at Cross street, where the grade is so high as to hold back a large quantity of the flowage of the valley fairly clear water, which after remaining stagnant for days and perhaps weeks, does become offensive; and the first rain-fall sends it along down to Winchester. This is what is complained of.

It is said that the remedy lies in lowering the Cross street culvert about two feet. A few years ago it was contemplated opening a ditch near the Crane factory and running it straight and parallel with the railroad, and consent at the time was secured from that corporation. The enterprise was not pushed, however. A pipe of large dimension would have been used and it was believed would remedy the whole matter now complained of. — [Woburn Times.]

Pardon a little business paragraph, but it is of interest to note that John Wamamaker, probably the most successful advertiser of the age, in an interview says: "If there is one enterprise on earth that a quitter should leave severely alone, it is advertising. To make a success of advertising one must be prepared to stick to it like a barnacle to a boat's bottom. He should know before he begins it that he must spend money. Somebody must tell him, also, that he cannot hope to reap results commensurate with his expenditure early in the game. Advertising doesn't jerk; it pulls. It begins very gently at first, but the pull is steady. It increases day by day and year by year until it exerts an irresistible power."

THE STAR

Mr. Miggs' Mitigator

By CAROLYN WELLS

Copyright, 1904, by Carolyn Wells

ESRA MIGGS, as any one might surmise from his name, was an inventor, and if his name is unknown to scientific fame it is only because his inventions were of that indefinite sort which are interesting in the extreme, but which never seem to be of any practical use.

His experiments, which were often conducted before large and intelligent audiences, were always successful and as phenomenal and marvellous as those of liquid air, but absolutely useless.

But at last Ezra Miggs invented something which he felt sure must be a boon to all mankind from India to the pole, and in the exuberance of his joy and satisfaction over his new achievement he ran at once to the home of his fiancée, Miss Mabel Hooper, to describe the new invention to her and to enjoy her loving and enthusiastic corroboration, for as Miss Hooper was a sympathetic young woman and had never been engaged before she took a deep and absorbing, if somewhat ignorant, interest in all Mr. Miggs' inventions and looked upon her betrothed as something better than a Franklin and a little wiser than a Lavoisier.

And so it happened that when Mr. Miggs burst enthusiastically into her presence exclaiming, "My dear Mabel, I've invented a mitigator!" she beamed gladly and responded:

"Oh, Ezra, I so hoped you would!" "You see, Mabel," he went on, "the usefulness of an invention depends entirely on the number of people it affects. Now, is there any one in the whole world who is not affected by excessive heat or cold?"

"No one," said Miss Mabel in a tone that would have carried conviction to the most biased contrarianist.

"Then," said Mr. Miggs triumphantly, "if I mitigate the fierceness of winter's cold and of summer heat, which by my new invention I have proved myself capable of doing, am I or am I not benefitting mankind to a vast, an incalculable extent?"

"You are!" said Miss Hooper as fervently as before. "And she gazed admiringly at her lover as though she would look through his eyes into the master mind behind them."

"And the machine," went on Mr. Miggs, appreciating her adoration, but unable during the stress of his present intellectual excitement to respond to it "is so small, so convenient and so accurate in its perfect mechanism that I may already look upon it as a practical and therefore financial success."

"And when may I see it tested?" asked Miss Hooper, who had learned by experience that this question was now due.

"Whenever you like," replied Mr. Miggs radiantly. "Shall we say to-morrow?"

"Tomorrow is just the day! I am giving an afternoon tea, and as the weather is so bitterly cold I feared the attendance would be small. But if you could—well, that is—how does the invention work?"

"Oh, it is applicable to all areas or localities. Suppose I hang it on your front veranda tomorrow afternoon. It will automatically mitigate the cold in the atmosphere and the air will become warmer as the thermometer rises as if a new sun had diffused a gentle radiance all about."

"Oh, that will be fine! And then all my friends will come, especially Miss Boynton, who never ventures out in cold weather, and I want her particularly because she will bring her brother, and men are always scarce at a tea."

About 3 o'clock the next day Mr. Ezra Miggs hung a small box not unlike a pocket camera on the outside wall of Miss Hooper's house.

That young woman watched the performance with interest and gazed in silent awe as Mr. Miggs adjusted dials and set registers among the complicated machinery.

At last the inventor declared the mitigator was in working order, and he and Miss Hooper went back into the house to await results.

It was an unusually cold day, with a fierce northeast wind which blew like liquid ice and left the atmosphere rare and penetrating.

After waiting half an hour Mr. Miggs promptly escorted Miss Hooper out of doors again, fully confident of the success of his invention. Nor was he disappointed. The air, though still cold, was soft and pleasant; the wind had calmed down to a brisk breeze, and it was simply a fresh, bracing winter day.

"Is it warm enough?" asked Mr. Miggs anxiously. "We don't want to overdo it and get July weather, you know."

"It is fine!" cried Miss Hooper, clapping her pretty hands. "And it is just as I like it. But Miss Boynton is so delicate and so afraid of a chill! Suppose we let it get a trifle warmer."

"Very well," assented Mr. Miggs. And they returned to the house, and then the guests began to arrive for the tea.

"How warm it's growing!" and "How the weather has moderated!" exclaimed every one as they entered. And Miss Hooper smiled with inward satisfaction as she greeted Miss Boynton and her handsome brother.

But as the Hooper furnace had been urged to its utmost during the frigid morning hours it had now reached a point where it was impossible to check it. The rooms were growing unbearably warm, and Miss Hooper called Ezra Miggs to her and begged him to stop mitigating the cold weather or they would all be baked alive.

"Why, Mabel, dear," he replied, "my machine mitigates heat as well as cold. I will bring it inside, reverse the indicators, and soon it will mitigate the heat of these rooms to a pleasant temperature. Have no fear. I will watch it carefully and not allow the house to grow too cold."

The mitigator worked like a charm. Hung unobtrusively on the drawing room wall, it soon reduced the temperature of the house to the most desirable degree, and all were comfortable once more all that is, save Ezra Miggs.

Although his invention was proving itself a marvel of practical usefulness, he was plunged into depths of deepest woe, and this because Mr. Boynton, whom Miss Hooper had expressed such anxiety to have present, was monopolizing the attention of that charming lady to a marked degree. He hung over her chair and plied her with merry banter, to which she responded with coy and bewitching demure.

As Mr. Miggs watched them he felt his angry passions rise, and in defiance of Dr. Watts' dictum his hands felt evilly motioned toward Mr. Boynton's deep and expressive eyes.

But Ezra Miggs was not an inventive genius for nothing. He knew that he must not give way to his temper and make an exhibition of himself in a lady's drawing room, and yet the fires of jealousy and anger surged up in his breast were well nigh uncontrollable. So like a flash he conceived the clever idea of mitigating his own fury with his own mitigator.

The rooms, now at a proper temperature, no longer needed the assistance of the machine, and Ezra, without attracting attention, took it from the kitchen.

He placed it in his inside breast pocket.

And placed it, with the cooling adjustment still going, in his inside breast pocket.

The effect, though gradual, began at once, and after a few moments Mr. Miggs could look calmly on while his betrothed flirted desperately with another and a handsomer man. This was well, and, able now to rejoice fully in the success of his great invention, Ezra Miggs gave himself up to the gaiety of the occasion and chatted entertainingly.

After the tea was over and the last guest had shaken hands and gone out into the pleasant, balmy dusk Mr. Miggs, by virtue of his presumptive connection with the family, stayed behind to dinner.

He was enthusiastic over the virtues of his mitigator, and Miss Mabel was even more flattering than usual, for she knew that she had neglected Ezra during the afternoon and felt a trifle guilty.

But for a wonder Mr. Miggs paid little attention to her kindly speeches and seemed more interested in conversing with her father and mother.

Miss Mabel was a little annoyed at this; but, still remembering Philip Boynton, she redoubled her efforts to be fascinatingly attractive. To no avail, however, for, though Ezra answered her with utmost politeness, he seemed to have no especial regard for her.

Later in the evening the young couple found themselves alone in the dimly lighted music room.

"I can't hear it, Ezra," said Miss Hooper, almost sobbing, as she flung her fluffy pompadour against his gardenia. "What has changed you so? Don't you love me any more?"

Ezra Miggs started as a man who has suddenly awakened to a fact.

"Why, Mabel," he said, "I don't believe I do. I can't explain it, but somehow I don't feel the slightest affection for you. I admire you, of course; I recognize your beauty and grace, but I must confess I don't love you."

"Oh," wailed Miss Hooper, "it's all because of that horrid Philip Boynton! I wish he hadn't come! I wish—I wish I were dead!"

"No, Mabel, no," said Mr. Miggs, soothing her hair gently; "no, it isn't because of Mr. Boynton. I know it isn't, and I'll tell you how I know."

Mabel listened to the account of how Mr. Miggs' jealous rage was lessened by fascinatingly attractive. To no avail, however, for, though Ezra answered her with utmost politeness, he seemed to have no especial regard for her.

TYING KNOTS IN JAPAN.

It is a Serious Art, as a Mistake May Mean an Insult.

Like the arranging of flowers, the tying of knots has been carried to the point of a complex art by the Japanese. There is one way one right way, that is—to knot the cord that confines a birthday or New Year's present. There is one way to tie the broad end of the tea jar when the latter is empty and another when it is full. Not only general ignorance of social customs but deadly insults may be communicated by the way a knot is tied, foreigners often making dreadful mistakes either through not knowing or from ignoring the niceties of knot etiquette.

Hooks and eyes, buttons and buckles are unknown so far as Japanese dress is concerned. They do not have much to fasten, but what they do have they fasten with cord. That is why they have carried the tying of cord so far. The Japanese have hundreds of ornamental knots, some of them so old that they antedate written history.

Japanese children are taught to make knots just as they are taught to write and draw. All sorts of flower and animal forms are copied. There is the chrysanthemum knot, the iris knot, plum blossom, pine tree and cherry blossom knots. There is a stork knot, a turtle knot, a knot named for the sacred mountain Fujiyama. An easy knot is called the "old man's knot." There is also an "old woman's knot."

THE PARISIAN LUNCH.

A Substantial Meal Served in the Middle of the Day.

Noon or 12:30 is the universal hour for the strictly Parisian lunch, which commences with "hors d'œuvres," appetizers eaten with butter the only time butter is ever served on a French table.

The endless variety of "hors d'œuvres" would fill a volume sardines, shrimps, oysters, radishes. Tiny salads of every description are included among them.

An egg or fish course follows, and the various ways in which both are cooked would also fill a volume. Next the meat is served—beef, mutton, lamb or veal—accompanied by one vegetable or a salad. If a vegetable, the salad follows as a separate course with fowl, game or cold meat of some kind. If a salad is the necessary for the meat then some vegetable comes after it as a single course preceding the cheese—never omitted and which with fruit of some kind forms the dessert.

Between the salad and cheese course a sweet dish, an "entremets," consisting of a custard, cream, tart or the like, is often served, but cheese and fruit are usually allowed the honors of the ordinary average luncheon dessert topped off with a good cup of coffee and a tiny glass of some liqueur. What to Eat.

How Sea Birds Get a Drink.

"When I was a cabin boy," said an elderly sailor, "I often used to wonder, seeing birds thousands of miles out to sea, what they done for fresh water when they got thirsty."

"One day a small answerer that question for me. It was a hot and glittering day in the tropics, and in the clear sky overhead a black rain cloud appeared of a sudden. Then out of the empty space over a hundred sea birds came darting from every direction. They got under the rain cloud and they waited there for about ten minutes, circling round and round, and when the rain began to fall they drank their fill."

Cromwell and the Specter.

The stories of the "White Lady" that periodically visits the German royal family and of the "Little Red Man" that frequently paid his respects to the great Napoleon are tolerably well known, especially that of the former. But few, perhaps, are familiar with the story of Cromwell's "Giant Specter."

It appeared to him one night when he was wide awake and quietly resting on his couch. In appearance the apparition was a woman of gigantic proportions. Approaching him she announced in tones like thunder, "Within the year you, my son, will be recognized as the greatest man in Britain."

Creation of a Knight.

The ceremonies at the creation of a knight have been various; the principal were a box on the ear and a stroke with a sword on the shoulder. John of Salisbury tells us the blow with the naked fist was in use among the ancient Normans; by this it was that William the Conqueror conferred the honor of knighthood on his son Henry. It was afterward changed into a blow with the flat of the sword on the shoulder of the knight.

Window Dressing as a Fine Art.

In one important department, un-molested by public criticism, the advertisers have even now established tastefulness as the underlying essential principle of their competition. This is in window dressing, a vital part of advertising. The beautiful, not the bizarre; the attractive rather than the startling; the alluring and interesting are now sought in the window effects of every shop, from the great department store to the little candy kitchen; from the basement lights of a modest florist to the long plate glass front of a shoe emporium. Salaries of several thousand dollars a year are paid in cities to the "artists" most skilled in window dressing, and their requisitions for plants or ribbons—totally irrelevant as these may be to the stock on sale and designed merely to add to the beauty of the window picture—are honored ungrudgingly. In effect the merchant says, "Give me a beautiful window that people will stop and look at, and that yet shall indicate generally the sort of goods I handle, and I do not care what it costs."—Charles M. Robinson in Atlantic.

Ice in India.

Dr. Wells, a London physician, in 1818, in his published essay on dew, was the first to draw attention to the curious artificial production of ice in India. Shallow pits are dug, which are partially filled with perfectly dry straw. On the straw broad, flat pans containing water are exposed to the clear sky. The water, being a powerful radiant, sends off its heat abundantly into space.

The heat thus lost cannot be replaced from the earth, for this source is excluded by the straw. Before sunrise a cake of ice is formed in each vessel. To produce this ice in quantities clear nights are advantageous, and particularly those on which periodically no dew falls. Still the straw gets wet it becomes more matted and compact and consequently a better conductor of heat, for the vapor then acts as a screen over the pans, checks the cold and retards freezing.

Birds Are Mathematicians.

The English naturalist, Mr. G. G. Gibbs, devoted years of study to bird nests, their formation and their contents, and asserts that birds lay their eggs in accordance with geometrical lines, so that every inch of space is used to the great possible advantage. Birds which lay many eggs arrange them in circles, the pointed ends turned to the inside. Others, whose eggs are elliptically shaped, place them in longitudinal rows. If an egg is moved out of its original position by an intruder, it will be found on the following morning that the bird has returned it to its first position. Among the numerous and often difficult cases which Gibbs made a matter of study, not one was found which would not do credit to a mathematician.

ADDRESS:

26 GROVE ST., WINCHESTER.

H. C. COBURN,

THE IDAHO DESERT.

Irrigation Will Soon Make It Blossom as the Rose.

One of the most forbidding portions of the American continent has been the desert of Idaho in the Snake river region. Little besides sage grass would grow there, and the lands, suitable neither for agricultural nor grazing purposes, had been abandoned to coyotes and noxious reptiles.

But of late an almost miraculous change has taken place in this region. The government engineers thought they saw a promise of fertility there, and the tract was chosen as one of the earliest to be irrigated artificially under the new scheme for which congress has appropriated several million dollars. At an expenditure of $2,000,000, which has been set aside for the construction of great impounding dams and diversion canals above the Minidoka rapids, fully $12,000,000 of taxable property will be created in this basin. Taking as a basis the last census agricultural figures for Idaho, the 120,000 acres to be reclaimed under this project will, when settled under irrigation, represent the latter value, while the annual earnings of the land will amount to about $2,000,000. With this area cut up into 1,400 farms, as is proposed by the government, a rural population will be created of 7,000, which will bring with it an urban population of probably another 7,000, or 14,000 people.

The Snake desert basin when irrigated will afford an ideal example of western stock raising under the humane and profitable method of winter feeding. On many of the great western ranges the cattle are left to shift for themselves the year around, entailing during the cold seasons great loss of stock and always untold human suffering. Around the Minidoka basin extend vast stretches of unclaimed land, which must always remain useful solely for grazing purposes. The irrigation of this tract of over 120,000 acres will provide, through luxuriant crops of alfalfa, winter feeding for tens of thousands of head of stock. Where now one steer requires thirty or even forty acres for his support, under irrigation the forage from one acre will more than support and finish him off for market. Idaho has already attained distinction as a fruit producer, although the altitude of Minidoka is a little too great for the best growth of trees.

In other irrigated sections of the state, notably the Payette valley, apples, plums, apricots, grapes and melons reach a high state of perfection and command fancy prices. Men have become wealthy from the careful cultivation of twenty and forty acre tracts, and enough can be raised from five acres of this irrigated land, exhaustless in its deep fertility, to support a family in comfort. The irrigated communities of Idaho have become among the most prosperous in the world. The desert lands of Minidoka, producing only sagebrush, are now only awaiting water to supply the farmer with a great variety of produce.

EVERY ONE HIS OWN TAILOR

Simple Machine For Pressing Trousers at Home.

Any man who desires to be particularly neat about his appearance will not neglect to keep his trousers pressed free from wrinkles. There is probably no other seemingly trivial thing which will so detract from the personal appearance of a man as wearing a pair of wrinkled trousers. Some men are so particular about this point that they pay more for pressing than the trousers cost originally.

THE TROUSERS PRESSER.

With the aid of the invention shown herewith it should not be a difficult matter for a man to keep his trousers in shape himself without the necessity of visiting the tailor at such frequent intervals as to make his pocketbook suffer. This device consists of a pair of flat boards shaped like the trousers legs, with a set of clamping levers around the edges which make it possible to draw the two presser boards tightly together. These clamps consist of pivoted levers, having cam faces of such shape as to decrease the space as they are revolved. To use this trousers stretcher and presser the bottoms of the legs are first clamped in position. Then the waistband is pulled up until the legs are tight and smooth, after which the remaining clamps are tightened and the garment allowed to remain as long as necessary.

Now the Motor Sprinkler.

Paris seems to have got ahead of us in the matter of motor watering carts too. This municipal automobile carries 1,100 gallons. The maximum speed is nine and a half miles an hour. Each can be filled in six minutes and covers a space twenty-five feet wide with its spray. The motor is worked by steam at thirty-five horsepower, and a connection between the wheels and the water jets regulates automatically the output of the latter, according to the pace of the cart, and closes them altogether at a stoppage of the vehicle. Obviously the motor watering cart is the coming street sprinkler.

A SPY'S CLOSE CALL.

Rescued From Impending Death by a Clever Newspaper Ruse.

On the battlefield of Antietam Mr. McClure met General William J. Palmer, then a captain, and strongly urged him not to continue his movements as a spy after Lee had crossed into Virginia, but the gallant young soldier gave no promise as to what he would be likely to do, and the very first night after Lee crossed the Potomac he was again in Lee's camp and brought back important information to General McClellan.

Again he returned and entered the Confederate lines, and when he did not report after a week it was assumed that he had been captured and would probably be executed as a spy. He had been captured, was tried and condemned as a spy and sentenced to be executed, but he was saved by a clever newspaper device determined upon after a conference in Philadelphia between President J. Edgar Thomson of the Pennsylvania railroad, Colonel Scott and Mr. McClure. Thomson took special interest in Palmer, as he had been his secretary, and was much attached to him.

It was decided that Washington dispatches should be prepared for all of the Philadelphia morning papers announcing the arrival at the capital of Captain William J. Palmer, stating in what particular lines of the enemy he had operated, and adding that he had brought much important information that could not be given to the public at that time. These dispatches appeared next morning in all the Philadelphia papers, prominently displayed, and of course reached the southern lines within forty-eight hours.

The result was that Captain Palmer's identity was never established in Richmond, and his execution was thus suspended. In a little while, when some prisoners had been exchanged, there was a vacancy made in the list of the exchanged men by death. Palmer's friends had him take the place and name of the dead soldier, and he thus escaped and returned to the service.

ODD FACTS ABOUT COLOR.

One of Them Is That There Is No Food That Is Blue.

Did you ever notice that there is no blue food? We eat things green, red, yellow and violet; flesh, fish or plants in all the colors of the rainbow except blue.

Many deadly poisons are blue in color, such as bluestone or the deadly nightshade flower. The color stands in our slang for everything miserable and depressing.

But this is only one of a thousand queer facts about colors.

Heat a bar of iron and the particles of the metal are set in motion, shaking violently one against another.

Presently the surrounding ether is set in motion in large, slow waves through the air, like the waves of the sea, until they break upon our skin and give us the sensation of heat. As the iron gets hotter other waves are set in motion in immense numbers, traveling more than lightning speed, and these break upon the eye, giving us the sensation of red light.

The red-hot iron, getting still more heated, throws out other sets of waves, still smaller and more rapid, orange, yellow, green, blue, indigo, violet, all the colors of the rainbow. The eye cannot tell one from another; the whole bundle of rays mixed up gives us an impression of white. That is the glow from white-hot iron, and such is the light from the still greater brightness of the sun. Sunlight is a bundle of rays of light red, orange, yellow, green, blue, indigo and violet all mixed together. The mixture of all colors is white light. The absence of all color is utter darkness. — New York Journal.

An Odd Court Incident.

Sensational incidents are not uncommon in the closing stages of famous criminal trials. One of the most remarkable occurred in Melbourne on the last day of the trial of Ned Kelly, known as the "Ironclad bushranger of Australia." A knife dropped from a gallery overhead and fell at the feet of the desperado in the dock. He had every temptation to grasp it and put an end to his existence, for there was not the slightest chance of his escaping the gallows. But it was promptly picked up by a bailiff, and its owner was arrested and brought before the judge. He pleaded that the occurrence was purely accidental, and the explanation was accepted by the court.

Concentration.

The weakest living creature, by concentrating his powers on a single object, can accomplish something. The strongest, by disposing of his over-may, may fail to accomplish anything. The drop, by continually falling, bores its passage through the hardest rock. The hasty torrent rushes over it with hideous uproar and leaves no trace behind. — Carlyle.

Worse Than the Upper Ten.

"Only the upper ten go to your church, don't they?" inquired the plain person.

"Yes," replied the organist of the swell church, "but they're not a circumstance to the upish tenor in our choir." — Philadelphia Press.

Her Strikes.

Mr. Benedict—Do you know, my dear, I think we have a pretty good cook? How does she strike you? Mrs. Benedict—For more wages about once a week. — Illustrated Bits.

Her Query.

Gardener—This here is a tobacco plant in full flower, lady—How very interesting! And how long will it be before the cigars are ripe? — New Yorker.

WINNING HOME.

"Practical Christianity."

WHAT THE WINNING HOME IS DOING.

Tuesday marked the closing day of the season of "Children's Outing" connected with the Winning Home, and it was our good fortune to visit the farm on Monday and see some of the good work that is being done for these children, and the sight of the happy, joyful faces of these poor children of the "slums," after a week's vacation at Winning Home, did us more good than anything we have seen anywhere else this vacation season.

The Winning Home is one of our own institutions, it being situated at the very corner of Winchester, Woburn and Lexington. The farm of 160 acres and the buildings were left in trust, by the will of William Henry Winning, "for the benefit of poor children," and John W. Johnson of Woburn, D. W. Pratt of Winchester and H. M. Munroe of Lexington were appointed trustees to carry out the provisions of the will. Later the Winning Home was incorporated and the number of trustees increased to nine, three being from Winchester, three from Woburn and three from Lexington; the three Winchester members being Lewis Parkhurst, John L. Ayer and D. W. Pratt. Mr. Pratt also being treasurer.

The Rev. George L. Perin, pastor of the "Every Day Church," has provided for the sending of the children, 24 each week for the eleven weeks of the summer vacation season. This season 271 children have enjoyed a week's outing at this ideal country home.

Since 1900 this splendid work has been in progress, and each summer children have been enjoying the beneficence of Nature, breathing in God's pure air and by means of the unlimited supply of good pure milk and vegetables, storing up health to guard against the slums, to which they must again return, but with the sweet memory of the country week at the farm.

At the close of this, the fifth season, 1200 children's names are upon the register of the Home.

Besides the provision made for the children by the corporation, the Every Day Church raises about $700 each year from general subscriptions to pay for transportation, salaries of the caretakers and for the living expenses of the children while there.

The interesting phase of the work is that it is strictly un denominational in character. This is shown by the season's report: Out of 271 children 91 were Catholic, 22 Jewish, and the 158 others divided among all the Protestant denominations. Nearly every nationality has been represented, and while the groups are usually of mixed children, one whole week was devoted to colored children.

Those who have interested themselves in this philanthropy spare no pains and labor to make this "Home" farm a most delightful memory in the hearts of the children who might otherwise know no such blessing.

The selection of Mrs. E. F. McGeary as matron and Rev. Charles F. Barter as caretaker and nature teacher were most fortunate, and to their efforts the success of the work is in no small measure due.

After the day's play is over the children gather in the living room and sing the songs they love so well, and those of us who have been thus entertained will long remember the pleasant hour thus spent, and the Winning Farm Song is still ringing in our ears. I heard one gentleman visitor say, "that is what I call Practical Christianity."

I would that many more could have visited the farm and become interested in the good work, and, I doubt not, that their own vacation would have been a little better for having helped these less fortunate children to get a glimpse of Nature.

"WINNING FARM" SONG.
Words and music by Mr. Charles F. Barter.
Dedicated to the children who are Winning Farm.

Far from the city's heat and noise
There stands a lovely home,
Where many happy girls and boys
In the summer months may roam.
A breeze from heaven bathes the brows
Of the children gathered there,
And fills their hearts with praise and love
For the country home so fair.

CHORUS:

O Winning Farm, thy praise I sing!
I hold thy memory dear,
I love thy flowers and waving trees,
Thy woodlands far and near.
Thy hills and valleys fertile green
Will never lose their charm;
My heart shall sing its love for thee—
Three cheers for Winning Farm!

The days go by in happy play,
The childish heart is free,
Sweet memories form for later years,
Wherever they may be.
The birds make merry in the trees,
The flowers bloom for all,
With song they greet the morning sun,
With prayer the twilight fall.

Funeral of Rev. Dr. Edwin B. Palmer.

Funeral services for Rev. Dr. Edwin B. Palmer, who died at his home on Dix street last Friday, were held Sunday afternoon in the vestry of the First Congregational Church. There was a large attendance of members of the church, of which Mr. Palmer was for many years clerk, and of representatives of the Massachusetts home missionary society, of which he was treasurer. The Congregational churches of Ipswich, Chicopee and Southbridge in each of which places Mr. Palmer held pastorates were also represented.

The casket was borne into the church by the pall bearers, Charles E. Sweet, Alfred C. Vinton, Harrison Parker, Robert Coady, Eben Caldwell, Henry C. Ordway and Rev. S. Winchester Adair. The casket was covered with a mass of floral tributes.

Rev. D. Augustine Newton, pastor of the church, officiated at the services, which were of the simplest character, and a quartet, composed of Miss Leslie Taylor, soprano, Miss Edith Richardson, alto, Frank L. White, tenor, and Edwin N. Lovering, bass, sang "Still, still with Thee" and "Jesus, lover of my soul." After reading of the Scripture by Rev. Mr. Newton from the testament used by Mr. Palmer during his last illness, and from the Epistle of Paul to the Corinthians, the last selection read by the deceased, eulogies were delivered by Judge Josias T. Lane of Waltham, a classmate of Rev. Mr. Palmer at Bowdoin college, and Rev. Dr. Joshua Colt.

Rev. Mr. Newton spoke of Mr. Palmer's life in this town and offered the closing prayer and benediction. At the close of the services the body was taken to Wildwood cemetery for burial.

Real Estate Sales.

Agreements have been signed through the office of George Adams Woods for the new 14-room house and 13,500 feet of land numbered 13 Sheffield road. The name of the purchaser is withheld until the papers are passed.

The same broker has sold to E. C. Gilman, two houses, stable and 21 acres of land on Arlington street for the Folsom estate.

Through the same office C. W. Tarbell has sold a building lot on Prospect street, containing about 11,000 feet to E. C. Horne, who is to build thereon a handsome residence for his own occupancy in the spring.

Mrs. Amanda T. Kimball.

Mrs. Amanda T. Kimball, who died at the residence of her son, Charles, at 29 Myrtle street, on the 3rd inst., at the age of 77, was a resident for many years of Arlington, Mass., where she was married to Stephen Kimball, who died about 38 years ago. She was the daughter of Ami and Lucy (Tafts) Cutter, and was born May 24, 1827. Her father died in her childhood, and her mother, like herself, was a widow for many years. When a young woman, Mrs. Kimball was an early pupil of the first normal school in this country, then established at Lexington. She was brought up a Congregational Unitarian, and was an earnest adherent of that faith as long as she lived. She was remarkable for her kindness of heart. Left in middle life with a family of young children to support, she accepted her responsibility cheerfully, and met the obligation thus placed upon her successfully.

She is survived by four sons: Charles T., of Winchester; Frederick G., of Brookline; Edwin E., of Dorchester; and George W., of Lynn. Her funeral occurred on Tuesday afternoon at 2:30 o'clock from her son's home, on Myrtle street. Rev. Mr. Parker of Woburn officiated and Mrs. F. W. Cole sang two selections. The floral offerings were profuse and numerous. Interment at Arlington.

Paddled to Nantasket in Canoes.

A few years ago the statement that a Winchester man paddled to Nantasket from Mystic Lake in a canoe was hardly believed by the majority of people, but during the past two seasons the fact that it has, and can be done has been proven by a number of sturdy members of the Winchester Boat Club.

These men have made the trip several times and have never yet met with an accident. On Saturday night four canoes carried eight members of the club to the beach. Those who took the trip were: Jack Newman, Chester Melendy, Roy Pratt, Jim Newman, Waldo Manson, Laurence Geddis, Ted Wills and Everett Gilbert.

Mr. Geo. A. Woods had generously offered the party the use of his naphtha launch Martha, but the engine went wrong and after working over it until eleven o'clock Saturday night they were obliged to leave in canoes as first planned. Owing to the lateness of the start the party had to wade most of the way down the river from the lower pond to Medford dragging their canoes through the shallow water, as the tide which was high at five o'clock, was pretty well out.

The paddle down the river was easily accomplished and the party camped on Long Wharf until daylight. During this stop a rain storm somewhat dampened the clothes and provisions of the party, but not its spirits. The trip to the beach was resumed Sunday morning.

The party camped at Nantasket until Monday noon, when they started on the return trip, reaching home at 10 p. m.

The first person to make this trip from Winchester was Mr. Apollonio who paddled from Winchester to Hull some years ago in a cedar canoe.

Sad Burning Accident.

On Tuesday while Mildred, the little four year old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. W. J. Stevenson of Winchester Park, was playing near a bonfire with other children, her dress caught fire and she was frightfully burned. The little girl was at once taken to the Mass. Gen. Hospital but she died shortly after her arrival there.

Funeral services were held at the parents home Thursday afternoon. The burial was in Wildwood Cemetery.

Opening of the Schools.

The schools opened Wednesday with an attendance fully equal to that of past years. There have been a number of important changes in the personnel of the teachers since the schools closed. At the High school C. F. Willard, a graduate of Bowdoin and Harvard, will fill the vacancy caused by the resignation of H. W. Dutch, who has gone to Muskegon, Mich. Miss M. F. Harriman, after an absence of a year, will resume her work in science.

Miss Brown, who has taught the ninth grade of the Wadleigh, has been transferred to the High school as an additional teacher. The duties of Mr. Briggs, who is in a hospital, will be temporarily in charge of Miss Starrett of Cambridge.

At the Wadleigh Miss Stewart of the High school will succeed Miss Brown, and Miss Sworer of Natick succeeds Miss Berry. The position of Miss Stott, absent on sick leave, will be temporarily filled by Mrs. Millett of Medford.

A new sixth grade has been organized at the Prince school, Miss Damon of Stoneham being in charge.

At the Rumford Miss Bessie Hurlbutt of Reading succeeds Miss Coyle who has gone to Newton.

Miss Emma Giff of Reading will succeed Miss Kerwin at the Chapin. Miss Kerwin will teach in Medford.

At the Highland, Miss Clarke of Danversville, Ct., takes the position of Miss Larkin, who goes to Watertown.

Formerly Resided in Winchester.

An acquaintance formed nearly a half century ago resulted Saturday evening in a wedding in Woburn.

In the parlor of the dwelling, 17 Franklin street, before a few old friends as witnesses, Rev. Norman E. Richardson united in marriage Miss Mary Winn Carlton, an almost life-long resident of Woburn and Mr. Henry A. Field of Grennell, Iowa.

When in their teens this couple were students in the High school, Winchester, having seats near each other. Finally, their school days were over in that town. Young Field returned to his former home in the West while Miss Carlton remained.

Field was born in New England, but taken when an infant to Iowa, then filling up with Easterners and families from Europe. A few years elapsed when, his parents having died, the boy sent to Massachusetts for his education. Winchester was selected on account of some former family association.—[Woburn Times]

Bisacre-Snow.

On Thursday evening, Sept. 1, the wedding of two Winchester young people occurred at 216 Main street, the house being beautifully decorated with flowers for the occasion. The happy couple were Mr. Frederick E. Bisacre and Miss Jessie E. Snow. The best man was Mr. Ralph Arnold of Winchester, and the bridesmaid was Miss Stella Snow of East Boston. Messrs. Snow and Smith of Woburn and Ambrose of Winchester performed the duties of ushers, and little Misses Ruth May Ambrose of Winchester and Edna Snow of E. Boston were the charming flower girls. To the music of the wedding march the bridal party entered the parlor, the bride-elect leaning on the arm of her uncle. Mr. Snow, who gave her away. The officiating minister was Rev. S. Winchester Adair. After the ceremony and the subsequent reception, an elegant feast was served, Crawford, the well known caterer of Woburn, caring for the guests. Each guest was presented with a slice of wedding cake in a fancy box.

First Break in McKay Plant.

The first step in the removal of the McKay branch of the United Shoe Machinery Company to the new factory in Beverly will occur in October when the draughting department will be transferred to that place. This will be followed later by the experimental, tool and inventor's departments, the four giving employment to about 150 men. In the spring other branches will go to Beverly as fast as work on the building will permit, although it is not expected the entire plant will be out of Winchester for nearly a year yet.

Many of the men who are shortly to leave Winchester are active church workers and prominent in the social life of the town and they and their families will be greatly missed.

Base Ball.

Last Saturday afternoon the Crescent Club base ball team defeated the best colored team in the State on Manchester Field. The game was clean from start to finish. In the first inning the Washington A. C. made five runs which could have been prevented without a doubt, but after the first inning they did not score in the whole game. Much credit was awarded to Dodge for his clever playing in right field. There were 18 strike outs on Cambridge during the game. The score being six to five in the Crescent's favor.

On Labor Day the team played another team which is considered one of the best hereabouts. By poor fielding the game was given away. The home team was excited at the five hundred spectators. This does not always occur in having such a large crowd at their games. The final score was 20 to nothing in favor of the Riversides of Malden.

Butler Ladd.

A very pretty wedding took place on Tuesday evening at the home of Edward Atherton Ladd, 18 Glen road.

The rooms were decorated with wild flowers and field berries and there were two large bowers of hydrangeas and gold-rod.

The bride Miss Emily Soldan Ladd and the groom, Rev. George Manley Butler, stood in front of a bower of hydrangeas. The best man was Wm. J. Ladd and the maid of honor was Miss Louise Freeman of Everett. Miss Ladd was a graduate of Boston University class of 1901.

The officiating clergyman was Rev. E. W. Virgin of Dedham, who married the father and mother of the bride, when they resided in their former home, Everett.

Rev. Mr. Butler's last pastorate was in New Bedford and he has been engaged as pastor of the Mystic Congregational Church in Medford and will soon enter on his duties there.

Patrick W. Reardon.

Mr. Patrick W. Reardon died at his home on Westley street Wednesday forenoon from apoplexy. He was taken sick Monday and remained in a semi-conscious condition until the time of his death, one half of the body being paralyzed. Mr. Reardon had been in poor health for some time, but no serious results were feared or anticipated. He was 51 years of age and unmarried.

Mr. Reardon is best remembered as postmaster of this town during President Cleveland's administration, he succeeding Postmaster Fitch, and in turn being succeeded by the present incumbent, Postmaster Richardson. In this office Mr. Reardon was noted for his uniform courtesy and accommodating manner to the many patrons of this office and it was with feelings of regret on the part of the public that he was called upon to vacate the position upon the return of a Republican President. For many years he had been a leader and an active worker in the Democratic party in this town, and had long held the office of Registrar of Voters, being a member at the time of his death. He had been a resident of Winchester for many years, and was a member of the Woburn Council, Knights of Columbus. He leaves a mother two sisters and a brother.

Funeral services were held from his late residence this forenoon at eight o'clock, later followed by high mass at St. Mary's Church. The interment was in Calvary Cemetery, Montvale.

About Highways.

The following is from the Reading Chronicle: The splendid (no other word is so good) development of the town of Winchester is the result of its admirable policy in highway building. Many other towns by emulating Winchester's example could derive permanent benefit. Reading is one of them—but it would be unwise to imitate so extensive improvements as our neighbor early entered upon. There is a happy medium. Supt. Cutter of Wakefield states the way for that town to have good streets is to expend $15,000 yearly for five years, and a small appropriation thereafter would be necessary to keep them in repair. So large a yearly appropriation here would not be necessary, as we have but forty miles of highway to Wakefield's sixty, and Main street is macadamized the full length. The Chronicle believes the special committee on highways in conjunction with the selectmen can bring in a comprehensive, practical scheme to the next annual town meeting that will be of great value to the town.

A Case for Surprise.

EDITOR OF THE STAR: I was surprised to see that the Selectmen had granted permission to an agent for a fire extinguisher company to exhibit his wares on the south lawn of the Town Hall lot. The exhibition consisted of a large square box made of rough lumber and the display of the workings of the fire extinguisher. The result was the disfiguring of the lawn by burning chemicals that will take weeks and perhaps months to erase. CITIZEN.

REPRESENTATIVE MEN ON THE WORLD'S FAIR

What Distinguished Statesmen and Others Say of the Educational and Inspiring Exposition at St. Louis.

The public utterances of distinguished men who have visited the world's fair have but one note, and that of emphatic praise. Here are some of their comments:

Hon. John Hay, secretary of state: "I have never seen nor heard of anything so fine."

Hon. Leslie M. Shaw, secretary of the treasury: "Any father of a bright boy can afford to send him to the Fair simply to study any one of at least a thousand exhibits."

Hon. Charles H. Grosvenor of Ohio: "A visit of ten days by a man of ordinary aptness and appreciative capacity to the Fair is almost equal to a postgraduate course in a university."

Hon. Benjamin B. Odell, governor of New York: "St. Louis has been badly misrepresented by accounts which say that her weather is unbearable. The Fair is wonderful."

Hon. George C. Pardee, governor of California: "The governor of the Golden State, who has spent all his life within her borders, finds that he knew only a little about his state until he came to the Fair and saw all her varied products assembled together."

Hon. Albert B. Cummins, governor of Iowa: "The Louisiana Purchase Exposition is on the grandest scale of any exposition the world has ever seen."

Hon. Richard Yates, governor of Illinois: "The more I see of the Exposition the more I enjoy it."

Hon. Fenimore Chatterton, governor of Wyoming: "I wish the Fair the greatest success. It certainly deserves it."

Hon. Franklin Murphy, governor of New Jersey: "It is well worth coming from New Jersey to see even a small part of this Fair."

Hon. A. B. White, governor of West Virginia: "I cannot speak too strongly of the greatness of this Fair."

Hon. William J. Bryan: "The Exposition is an unparalleled wonder."

Hon. John Sharp Williams, member of congress from Mississippi: "The most wonderful thing of its kind."

Hon. Hoke Smith of Georgia, formerly secretary of interior and President Cleveland: "I am highly pleased with the Exposition and believe it to be one of the triumphs of modern civilization."

Hon. Perry Belmont of New York: "In magnitude and beauty the Fair is wonderful. It is worth coming a long distance to see."

Hon. Daniel J. Campau, chairman of the Michigan delegation to the Democratic national convention at St. Louis: "It is positively sinful for parents to fail to bring their children to see the Fair."

Mr. Paul Dupuy, editor of Le Petit Parisien of Paris, France: "I admire the Exposition for its immensity, its spirit of the sublime, its general beauty and its completeness."

Prince George of Bavaria: "I have never seen anything prettier than the St. Louis World's Fair buildings when outlined at night with their millions of electric lights."

Hon. Louis E. McComas of Maryland: "The greatest Fair in the world."

Hon. John F. Dryden of New Jersey: "The people have no idea of the greatness of the Exposition. Every American should see it."

T. P. Shantz, president of the Clover Leaf route of Chicago: "The Fair is a big success and will continue to become a greater success as it progresses."

WAGE EARNERS AT THE FAIR

Prominent Men Planning to Help Workers See the Great Exposition.

Wage earners of America are to see the World's Fair by tens of thousands under the auspices of the National Civic Federation. A new bureau of the Federation has just been established at St. Louis upon the World's Fair grounds. Back of the movement are Grover Cleveland, David R. Francis, Andrew Carnegie, Cornelius N. Bliss and others. Plans are making to have a vast number of the wage earners of the United States see the World's Fair, the most glorious spectacle of the age and the most influential factor in the education of the American citizen.

The bureau is in charge of Miss Gertrude Becks, secretary of the Federation's welfare department, of which Mr. H. H. Vreeland, head of the street railway system of New York city, is chairman. The bureau headquarters is in the east end of the Palace of Transportation, on the ground floor. The Exposition management is in hearty accord with this movement on the part of the Federation to induce the large manufacturers and other employers of labor to provide ways and means for the wage earners of America to visit the Exposition. President Francis is displaying personal interest in the undertaking by affording the Federation every facility for the consummation of its efforts, and in this connection he has directed Theodore Hardee, assistant to the secretary, to cooperate with Miss Becks and Ralph M. Easley, chairman of the Federation's executive council, in every possible way.

The Exposition management has also equipped this bureau with clerical assistance and a full supply of World's Fair literature. The bureau will be used as headquarters for all wage earners coming to the Exposition under its auspices. The aim of the Federation is to make it feasible for the largest possible proportion of wage earners to visit St. Louis and see the World's Fair. It will see that they are met at the depot by responsible persons and conducted to suitable lodgings, where they will be treated fairly.

There will also be furnished, free of charge, appropriate itineraries indicating the points of interest to be seen within a limit of one week, which is about the average time each party will spend here. It will also indicate the objects of special interest to various craftsmen in their particular lines, so that they may devote as much time as possible to the objects of peculiar interest to them. These and many other efforts will be made to help all wage earners to enjoy the benefits of this great Exposition comfortably and at an expense within their means.

THE ARISAKA RIFLE.

Deadly Weapon of the Japanese Army of Native Manufacture.

The rifle with which the Japanese armies in Manchuria have been doing such execution upon their Russian enemies is made in the arsenals of Japan and was invented by a native, Colonel Arisaka, after whom it is named.

It is a combination of the best features of the Mauser and the Italian Mannlicher, adding thereto certain original ideas of Colonel Arisaka.

The rifle has a caliber of 6.5 millimeters, weighs nine and a half pounds and carries a cartridge weighing twenty-two grams. Its initial velocity is

THE JAPANESE RIFLE.

2,350 feet per second, 300 feet greater than that of the rifle used by the Russian armies. The "danger zone," the distance to which the rifle can throw a projectile with an elevation no greater than the height of a man, is 2,200 feet for the Japanese rifle compared with 1,700 for the Russian piece.

The Arisaka rifle has a central magazine of the Mauser type. It is simple in its mechanism and is easily manipulated. The movable breech includes a cylinder working with a lever, a movable head and a firing pin, with cock and rebounding spring. The loading of the piece is rapidly executed. Opening the breech, the central magazine is charged with a metal loader, a kind of small box or clip holding five cartridges. These cartridges depress a spring in the magazine, by which they are automatically raised into firing position. The empty shell is of course automatically ejected by drawing back the cylinder, the same operation serving to set the firing pin.

Both the Russian and Japanese cartridges are charged with smokeless powder, the Japanese containing slightly more of the explosive than the Russian. The Japs manufacture their own powder, the Arisaka brand.

One of the best features of the Arisaka rifle is the velocity of the projectile. In the old smooth-bore a bullet aimed at an object 100 feet distant would describe a parabola, the highest point of which would be 120 feet above a horizontal line drawn from the mouth of the rifle to the target. With the new Springfield, shooting at a range of 1,000 yards, the bullet rises at its greatest height only twenty-one feet, while the Krag bullet, under the same conditions, rises twenty-six feet, the turning point in the trajectory being midway between the marksman and the target. The Arisaka has a slightly flatter trajectory than the Springfield, and in close fighting the bullet practically travels in a straight line. This quality adds considerably to the weapon's accuracy.

The bayonet used on the Arisaka rifle is of the "sword" type and can easily be detached and used as a hand weapon in close fighting.

SCOUTING BY TELEPHONE.

Another Step in the Development of Modern Warfare.

Scouting with the aid of the telephone has become one of the features of modern warfare and is now being made use of by the Japanese, says the Western Electrician. Two scouts proceed from the lines toward the enemy; one, the observer, is a skilled army officer, who makes the observations, which are transmitted back to headquarters through a telephone line paid out from a reel carried by an electrician of the signal corps.

A ground return is used, the ground being made by thrusting a bayonet or hatchet into the earth and attaching one end of the line to it. The electrician carries a battery on his back. He also makes the connections and does the talking. A special conductor is used, which will stand rough usage. In this manner a scout may be able to stay out a long time and give valuable information without being obliged to make a number of hazardous trips to the front.

The Microbe of Malaria.

The true microbe of malaria has been discovered by two doctors of Medellin, Colombia, according to a report to the state department from Consul Plumacher at Maracibo, Venezuela. These doctors say the microbe can be cultivated in mediums prepared with flowers of Erythrina ducara.

Only Did His Duty as He Saw it.

"I deem it my duty to add a word of praise for Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy," says J. Wiley Park, the well known merchant and postmaster at Wiley, Ky. "I have been selling it for three or four years, and it gives complete satisfaction. Several of my customers tell me they would not be without it for anything. Very often, to my knowledge, one single dose has cured a severe attack of diarrhoea, and I positively know that it will cure flux (dysentery). You are at liberty to use this testimonial as you please." Sold by O'Connor's Pharmacy.

Better Than a Plaster.

A piece of flannel dampened with Chamberlain's Pain Balm and bound on the affected parts, is better than a plaster for a lame back and for pains in the side or chest. Pain Balm has no superior as a moment for the relief of deep seated, muscular and rheumatic pains. For sale by O'Connor's Pharmacy.

Coined Names.

Carrasullo, the name of a New Jersey lake, has a Spanish sound, but it comes from a combination of the names of the three daughters of the man who named the lake—Carrie, Sally and Josephine. Bucoia, Wash., was named from three settlers—Buckley, Colston and Davis; Kenova, W. Va., from Kentucky, Ohio and Virginia, near the intersection of which the town is; Delmar, Del., from Delaware and Maryland; Texarkana, Ark., from Texas and Arkansas; and Cynthia, a county seat of Harrison county, Ky., is named for the two daughters, Cynthia and Anna, of Colonel Harrison, for whom the county was named. Nebraska has a town called Odhova, the derivation of which is easily seen.

The Modern Plow.

Thomas Jefferson invented the modern plow. There were plows, of course, thousands of years before the time of the Sage of Monticello, but he first laid down the mathematical principles that underlie the construction of the plow and so enabled any blacksmith to make one. A plow consists of two wedges, a cutting and a lifting wedge, and Jefferson discovered and enunciated the proportions of each and the relations each bore to the other. Before his day no two smiths made plows alike. Now they are all made in accordance with a mathematical formula.

The Resolute Hermits

By SEWELL FORD

Copyright, 1903, by Sewell Ford

It came from being three and twenty and serious before their time, this renouncing of womankind. Their theory was that speech with womankind led to illness and invited distraction. So they withdrew from conventional society, set up their considerable belongings in two studio rooms far up from the sidewalk and organized the Society of Resolute Hermits.

There, with new lighted ambitions and a gas range, they began their assault on fame's frowning walls, one with verse, one with pictures, and the third with fiction of all lengths. No written bond did they sign, but the word of honor was passed that for a year and a day each should hold no converse with the disturbing sex. And they meant to do just the thing upon which they had agreed.

Luncheon in the retreat of the Resolute Hermits was hardly an event. It was a mere incident. It meant that pipes, newspapers, sheets of manuscript and tobacco jars were pushed from one-half of the utility table which stood somewhat unsteadily in the middle of the studio floor; that the smell of crisping bacon, frying eggs and boiling coffee was coming from the closet kitchen in the corner, and that Sir Arthur, content and red of face, was standing over the gas stove.

"Eggs and bacon, bacon and eggs," complained Mac as he looked irregular chunks from an eight-cent loaf. "Art, why in thunder don't you learn to cook eggs some other way?"

"Want another Spanish omelet?" "Don't. I'm no ostrich. But I'm glad we are to have something besides fried eggs after today. Kid, that uncle of yours is a life saver."

"I used to think he was an old crank," said the Kid, "but I know better now."

And, indeed, from the viewpoint of the Resolute Hermits, it was a noble thing which the Kid's uncle had done. Learning the cause and purpose of their retreat, how for a year and a day they had agreed to forego all friendship and idle speech with womankind, he had been moved to enthusiasm.

"Most noble thing I ever knew any of you young rattleheads to do," he declared. "If you'll keep it up for another month I'll give you a check for—no, I'll write it now and date it ahead. If you haven't spoken to a fool girl or fooler woman when that becomes payable you may cash it. But if one of you breaks faith tear it up."

And there, pinned to the wall as an inspiration, was the check—a check for $50. Tomorrow it would come down and then—Christian food! Twenty-five dinners le cabaret! The Resolute Hermits had figured it all out. There would be twenty-five days when they would eat at least one meal that did not depend upon the chance fate of Sir Arthur's skill in cooking things.

"Bring on your eggs," said Mac. "Kid, put down that sketch board and draw some water."

It was at this psychological moment that sleeve chuckling destiny in the person of Janitor P. Brady announced a visitor. "She's in a hurry to see you, sir," said he to Mac in apologetic tone. "For the life of me I couldn't kape her out, though I told her 'twas a hermit you were and saw no ladies at all. She says as how she's yer sister."

"Belle!" exclaimed Mac.

"Mary, I'll bet a dollar," said Mac. Then in explanation: "She's the married one that lives in Buffalo. Boys, I'm afraid you'll have to clear out until she's gone. Of course sisters don't count for me, but I suppose—"

"Oh, of course!" broke in Sir Arthur, returning the platter of bacon and eggs to the top of the gas stove.

"Where did you leave her, Brady?" demanded Mac.

"Sure, sir, she's just outside at the top of the stairs."

"Oh, the deuce!" groaned Mac. "You'll have to hide, then."

The Kid promptly made a dive through the blue denim curtains of an improvised wardrobe in the corner. It was the only place of concealment which the studio offered.

"I'll tell you," suggested Sir Arthur in a stage whisper. "I'll play deaf and dumb. Let her in. I'll pretend not to know she's here."

Time for argument there was none, so Sir Arthur grabbed a book and sat down by the window with his back to the door. But she who was ushered into the hermitage by the grinning Brady was a person other than the expected Mary from Buffalo.

"Belle!" exclaimed Mac. "You? Where did you come from?"

"Now, that is what I call a real brotherly greeting!" Belle is one of those young women whose lips part from habit, and just then they were particularly aggressive. "Where do you suppose I came from, Mac? I didn't drop from the clouds. I climbed about a mile of stairs to be kept waiting outside your door until you were pleased to let me in. And now you act as though I were some kind of a curiosity instead of your own dear little sister that you haven't seen for months. Aren't you going to kiss me? Oh, I didn't notice!"

"Never mind him," said Mac hastily. "That's only Sir Arthur, as we call him. Haven't I written you about him—deaf and dumb—talented poet—sad case?"

Now, as a matter of fact, Mac had written and forgotten, not about a deaf and dumb Sir Arthur, of course, but of one "who can sing 'On the Road to Mandalay' so that it makes you homesick for India, even if you hardly know where it is on the map."

"Oh, indeed? Deaf and dumb, did you say? And since when, please?" There was a curious inclination to Belle's queries, which should have warned Mac, but did not.

"He's been the way he is now ever since I've known him," said Mac indignantly. "But hold on, Belle. I'll get my coat on, and we'll go for a walk. It's so stuffy in here."

"Of all the inhospitable creatures, Mac! I've come to take luncheon with you. I want to see how you live, and I'm half starved." Whereupon Belle calmly proceeded to pull off her gloves.

"But, Belle," began Mac, with a significant glance at Sir Arthur.

"Oh, I shall not mind Sir Arthur in the least. You can write us an introduction, or do you talk to him on your fingers? I should love to see you do it. A deaf and dumb poet! What a relief! I shouldn't have to say things I don't mean, and if he can't talk I shall not know how silly he is. What early hair! Does he do it up on kids over-night?"

Sir Arthur might have been seen to squirm.

"Belle, Belle! I say, now, you mustn't—"

"But where's the harm, Mac? You say he's deaf and dumb." "Ye-es, but I don't know just how deaf he really is, and if he should hear, you know."

"He would only hear the truth. It might do him good. I'm sure he's contented, even if he is a dummy. Why, whatever are you doing?"

Just what Mac was doing was this: He was trying to wave a warning to the incautious Kid, who in the fulness of his joy and prompted by an unfeeling desire to catch a glimpse of Sir Arthur's face had parted the wardrobe curtains.

"No nothing—nothing at all."

Belle eyed him shrewdly for an uncomfortable moment. Then, after reflection, she asked: "And where's your other chum, the one you call the Kid? Is he deaf and dumb or blind?"

"It's too bad," said Mac, with an effort at sincerity, "but you'll not meet the Kid this time. He goes about seeing the art editors a good deal, you know."

"Does he? Well, I did hope to see him. He is the one, you wrote, who raved over my picture. Isn't that a photograph of him stuck up there on the wall?"

There was no denying this, for it had been plainly labeled "The Kid."

"He's a little fellow with brown eyes, isn't he? And didn't you say he was bashful?" asked Belle, studying the picture. "Did he draw all these sketches? How clever! Especially that one of a row of pecking boxes."

"Pecking boxes, Belle! That is an impressionistic study of lower Broadway at sunset."

"Really? Well, I never should have guessed. But that smoking lamp resting on a blue table cover is effective."

"Smoking noddies! Belle, you know nothing at all about art. Any one can see that's a night scene in the harbor. I'll not have you poking fun at my friends behind their backs."

"Why, Mac, I wouldn't do that for the world! But look! What is the matter with Sir Arthur? He's shaking all over. Perhaps he's having a chill or a fit."

The heaving shoulders of Sir Arthur were suddenly stilled. "There! He's over it," continued Belle. "How curious! Why doesn't he turn his head? I should like to see what he looks like. I'm going to peek."

"I say, Belle, behave, can't you?" pleaded Mac.

But Belle had her own ideas about behavior, and, as usual, she followed them. These ideas led her to tiptoe into the corner. There, standing before the blue denim draperies, she peered curiously at the young man in the chair.

"If I could see his eyes"—she began.

Then Sir Arthur rebelled. Dropping his heels from the window sill he turned quickly about and faced his tormentor.

"Oh, oh! You!" Into these three words Belle managed to put much astonishment. Then came an impulse to escape. With a quick movement she reached around, flung the blue denim curtains before her and jumped back into the very arms of the unsuspecting Kid. Then she said "Oh!" again and squealed hysterically. Next she rushed for her brother and got behind him.

"How many more are there, Mac?" she panted.

"These," said Mac, with a comprehensive wave of his hand, "constitute our entire collection. The fact is, Belle, you took us by surprise."

"And do you always tell such whoppers when you're startled? One might think I was a boy man!"

"Well, not quite that, but, you see, we—we are playing hermit just now, and—and—" Mac was floundering desperately in the deep waters of dilemma.

"And you didn't mean to give me any luncheon. But I'm going to stay just the same. You might as well present your friends."

Mac made an eloquent two-handed gesture and turned to his sister with:

"Ah, I see!" said he grimly.

"Well, then, if you insist, Belle, this young man, whom you disturbed in his favorite retreat, is the celebrated creator of the smoking lamp scene. Kid, this is the young lady whose photograph is tucked up over your cot. I hope you are both satisfied. Come on, Art—your turn."

"I think Miss Belle and I have met before," said he, looking calmly down into Belle's gray eyes. "We sat out three dances, didn't we? But of course you have forgotten me."

"Ye-es, I must have," faltered Belle and then stopped abruptly. Under Sir Arthur's steady gaze her eyelids drooped until she found herself looking very sheepishly at the floor. But she recovered in an instant. "No, I haven't forgotten. How could I when you said as many foolish things?"

"Did I? Possibly I did. But you didn't say so then. You didn't even call me a dummy."

"You didn't get the part then?" "Your tremendous brother wasn't there to suggest it," growled Mac. "Belle, do you know what this nonsense of yours will cost us?"

"Oh, never mind that," said Sir Arthur hastily.

But Mac insisted. He exhibited the check, explained its full significance and dwelt minutely on the lost dinners, the number of them and their exceeding excellence.

"I'm not a bit sorry," declared Belle when he had finished. "It was a stupid agreement. The moment I saw you, Mac, why, you wouldn't be missed if you had away for two years!"

"But it had been only two months, Belle," protested Mac, "and here you come and—"

"I don't care! This with a most fetching poet, ending in an uncertain trembling of the chin. 'I'm glad I did come and—and I wish I hadn't, so there! I'll come every chance I get and—and I'll never speak to one of you again,' with which amazing statement she started for the door. Sir Arthur, however, was there before she could reach it. Dinners or no dinners, here were gray eyes with tears in them."

"We humbly beg your pardon. Don't we, boy?" he demanded of Mac and the Kid. "I'm sorry, but I'm sorry, but I'm sorry," said the Kid. "I suppose we do," admitted Mac.

"And we most respectfully urge you to pay and back luncheon with us. Don't we, boys?" said Sir Arthur.

"We do," came the response, this time in chorus.

At this demonstration Belle's lips seemed undecided between a pout and a smile—a most effective manner."

"Surely," said she, "this looks like true penitence. Even if it isn't, I'm awfully hungry."

They were making a most jolly luncheon of it. There was the Kid, who swallowed some very hot coffee without in the least minding and all because some one smiled at him across the table. There was Mac, forgetful of lost dinners and occupied with the discovery that Belle was developing into an unusually attractive girl, even if she was his youngest sister; there was Sir Arthur, who fully agreed with Mac; also there was Belle herself, eating bacon and eggs and talking to all three of her hosts at once—when the door opened and in walked the check making encourager of the Resolute Hermits.

"Ah, I see!" said he grimly, after one sweeping glance at the festivities. "Might have known." And before any hermit could find voice he had stalked out through the door. Two of them caught him half way down the first flight and, after some argument, led him back.

Perhaps it was because Belle was conscience stricken at the thought of the price the hermits must pay for her visit—at any rate, under the magic of her pouting lips and gray eyes, there was worked a marvel. "I'll be around at 8 o'clock to take you all out to dinner," whispered the bachelor uncle in the Kid's ear before leaving. "Then we'll all go to the theater. If the young lady likes."

"Good for you, uncle!" said the Kid, and added dolefully, "but we'll tear up that check, I suppose."

"If you do, you young scamp," said the uncle, with a backward glance at certain gray eyes. "I'll never give you another. No, sir, never!"

A TRUTHFUL INDIAN.

He Didn't Get Tired Like the Rest, For a Very Good Reason.

Clement Scott, the English dramatic critic, took a profound interest in the American Indian. He had at his tongue's tip a hundred incidents whereby to illustrate odd phases of the Indian's character.

"There was a farmer in the west who was hard put to it for help upon his farm. Indians were plentiful in the neighborhood, but they were poor workmen. Always tired, they would put down the hoe or rake as soon as the master's back was turned, and, selecting a cool spot, they would lie down on the grass and sleep the day away."

"But one morning a very tall, robust Indian asked the farmer to give him work."

"No," said the white man, "you will get tired. You Indians are always getting tired."

"Oh, no," said the other. "This Indian never got tired. This Indian not like the rest."

"Well, I'll try you," said the farmer and he engaged the man. He put him to work in a wheatfield; then he went away for an hour or two. When he returned he found the Indian asleep under a tree.

"Here, wake up here," he cried. "You told me you never got tired."

"Tah," said the other, yawning, "this Indian don't. But if he not lie down often he would get tired just the same as the rest."

A THRILLING SHOT.

An Incident in a German Performance of "William Tell."

When a performance of the drama "William Tell" was given at a certain German theater it was announced that the stage effects in the play were extremely fine and that the scene where Tell's splendid marksmanship was made apparent would astonish every one. The audience waited as patiently as they could until that scene and were certainly astonished.

The scene arrived where Tell was to shoot the apple from his devoted son's head, and the apple and Tell's crossbow were connected by an invisible wire, along which the arrow was to speed to the target.

At the proper cue the arrow did speed halfway toward the apple, and there stuck to all appearance in mid-air. In vain did the doughty Tell shake his bow to carry the arrow to its mark. The son of Tell looked very frightened and didn't know what was happening.

The apple, firmly fixed on his youthful cranium, was bobbing about, the audience was laughing, and the laugh burst into a roar when one of Gessler's guards took in the situation and, coming forward from his position at the side of young Tell, calmly gave the arrow a smart rap with his spear, when it sped on its way and buried itself in the apple on the boy's head.

Wisdom of the Cat.

We may like cats or we may not like cats, but we must all confess that the cat is our superior. He uses us, in his eyes we exist for his delectation, we provide warmth and milk, we are a hearty rug to be jumped on and set on a curry comb to titillate him. In this respect the cat is vastly superior to the dog, which is faithful to those who maltreat him, while a cat's fidelity takes the form of gracious adherence to those who serve him. He has proof of his philosophy. We know an old lady, living in the suburbs, who spreads her bread on the lawn every morning for the sparrows. Every morning, as the sparrows are, the kind old lady's cat, ready behind the box bush, took his toll. How could he doubt that his mistress, his servant, was at the normal task of doing him service? A Hint From the Baron.

Upon a client complaining to Baron Rothschild that he had lent 10,000 francs to a person who had gone off to Constantinople without leaving any acknowledgment of the debt the baron said:

"Well, write to him and tell him to send you the 50,000 francs he owes you."

"But he only owes me 10,000," objected the other.

"Precisely," rejoined the baron, "and he will write and tell you so, and thus you will get his acknowledgment of it."

Picture Books For Foreigners.

Picture books for the benefit of travelers are kept in the Paris police stations. It frequently occurs that foreigners lose things which they are unable to describe, because of unfamiliarity with the French language. The picture books contain representations of various articles, and the inquirer has only to turn the leaves and point out the illustration which most resembles the property he has lost.

Cheese.

The digestibility of cheese is an ever vexed and disputed question. A clever scientist asserts that it requires twice as long to digest as ordinary food. It consists largely of casein, which is both nourishing and digestible, but this point is enveloped, as it were, in fat, which is not soluble by gastric juice; hence, if the gastric juice does not digest the fat, neither can it readily digest the casein. Cheese should be eaten in small quantities, with a large quantity of bread or similar food, and must be thoroughly masticated.

Deserving of Credit.

The hundreds of visitors present at the opening of the High School building Monday were hearty and unanimous in their expressions of pleasure and approval of the various rooms. It is very gratifying in this connection to call attention to the fact that most of the credit for the truly artistic display is due to Mr. Lovering, the principal of the school. He has been unsparing in time and effort in interesting friends of the school in making gifts, in suggesting and selecting subjects, and in arranging the pictures, casts and other decorations after being received. He must feel highly encouraged by the large number of presents thus far made as well as by the promises of many future gifts for the further decoration of the building.

Pierce Family Reunion.

The first annual reunion of the Pierce Family Association was held Thursday, Sept. 1st, at the Pierce Farm, Arlington Heights. Barges were in readiness at the station to convey the large company of over three hundred to Circle Hill, where a large tent was spread, with tables, chairs and settees, furnishing ample accommodations for all. Dinner was served at one o'clock, mainly furnished from well filled baskets of the guests, Caterer N. J. Hardy supplying crockery, coffee and some adjuncts of the feast.

After dinner Prof. Arthur W. Pierce, president of the association, called the company together and exhibited a group of interesting relics—the gun carried by Solomon Pierce at Lexington and Bunker Hill, trays, tinder box, pewter platter, etc. Joseph L. Pierce gave some interesting facts concerning land transfers. Mrs. Marion Williams, M.D., a descendant of Solomon Pierce, gave data regarding earlier members of the family back in 1648, which she promises to arrange for an appendix to the historical paper presented by Prof. Pierce last year and on Thursday was distributed in printed form to the members of the association. Mrs. M. P. Bailey, secretary, reported that 420 addresses of descendants had been received, representing 287 families. Letters from connections of the family unable to attend were read. Three grandchildren are still living, one being present. Several small children of the seventh generation were present. A good many of the descendants living in Winchester were there and enjoyed the interesting occasion.

Dr. Herbert Pierce spoke for the younger generation in place of Hon. James A. Bailey, Jr., unavoidably absent, his thought being the present responsibility resting on the young. Rev. Carleton Staples took an active part in the exercises of the dedication of the monument erected to the memory of Solomon Pierce last year and it was voted to send a letter of sympathy to his family in their recent bereavement. It was also voted to send a letter of regret at the serious illness of Senator G. F. Hoar, who is a descendant of the Pierce family.

After having a picture taken of the large group, the company disbanded and scattered over the old homestead place, many going to the old house a mile away where Solomon lived in 1775.

The monument placed in the old cemetery, Pleasant street, Arlington, was draped with the American flag and many visited the spot during the day.

Death of an early Citizen of Winchester. Colonel Alfred Norton.

Col. Alfred Norton, who died last week in Arlington and was laid at rest in beautiful Wildwood was a prominent citizen of Winchester in her early days. He held many positions of trust and honor and was much respected in the community. He was one of quite a large number of sterling original characters which gave Winchester a high intellectual standing previous to the civil war. In oratory and debate few could equal him. His manner was kind and gentlemanly and his private character was of the best. Mr. Norton enlisted from Winchester but on his return from the war he removed to Arlington, though he was never forgotten by his old Winchester friends. He owned and lived in Winchester on the old Thompson farm which then took in the territory between Prospect street and the present Hurd estate including all the Herrick property. In 1849 this territory was a part of Medford but was set off to Winchester in 1850. Mr. Norton built and first occupied the late Judge Tyler house though most of the time he lived in the quaint old farm house which occupied the present site of the Seeley homestead on Main street. The following tribute to Mr. Norton's life and character is from the pen of Frank B. Sanborn of Concord, a life long friend:—

There was much inquiry for Colonel Alfred Norton, who had been a constant attendant at Greenacre until this summer; and now it seems it was his last illness that kept him away; and his funeral was held yesterday in his son's house at Arlington. Colonel Norton was one of the old guard of liberty and literature. Born in Newburyport nearly ninety years ago, a younger townsman of Garrison, he seems to have been a Democrat originally, as Bancroft and Hawthorne were, and he entered the Boston Custom House in the collectorship of Bancroft, two years before Hawthorne did. But while Hawthorne soon tired of the drudgery of his inspectorship (he was technically a "weigher and measure") and resigned before the Whigs under Harrison could remove him—as perhaps they would not have done—Norton remained, and served in the Boston Custom House at intervals for a half century perhaps. He joined the anti-slavery party early and in the first months of 1849, when Emerson, Alcott and others formed the "Town and Country Club," with rooms at 12 West street, Boston, Alfred Norton was one of its members. I have before me the sheet of autograph signatures, headed by Alcott, Emerson and James Freeman Clarke, and containing seventy-two names—all of men no longer living, I think, with the single exception of Rev. Dr. Hale. Among them were Garrison, Dr. Howe, Theodore Parker, Charles Sumner, John A. Andrew, R. H. Dana, J. R. Lowell, Starr King, Elliot Cabot, Hawthorne, Ephraim Peabody (but not Elizabeth, excluded by the fiat of Emerson), William Henry Channing, John S. Dwight, Dr. G. B. Loring, John Cheney, the artist, Franklin Haven, Ellis Gray Loring, E. P. Whipple, Dr. Bartol, Dr. Thomas Hill, Dr. Bowditch, Francis Jackson, Samuel May (of Leicester afterward), Dr. Henry Bowditch, J. T. Sargent and Samuel E. Sewall. Near the end of the list is the bold bibliography of Alfred Norton. A few of these men were afterward the founders of the Saturday Club and the Atlantic Monthly. Mr. Norton became a colonel in the Civil War, and was one of those who heard Lincoln's great speech at Gettysburg. Before the war he had championed John Brown at Winchester, where he then lived, and where he is buried. In 1849 he lived at Medford, and later at Arlington. He was one of the faithful in all matters political and social; attended Alcott's conversations, and the Music Hall services, religious or political; and recognized the sincerity of the Greenacre apostles, without subscribing to all their thirty-nine articles. He will be missed in the circles where his cheerful face has been seen for sixty years.

Consumption

The only kind of consumption to fear is "neglected consumption."

People are learning that consumption is a curable disease. It is neglected consumption that is so often incurable.

At the faintest suspicion of consumption get a bottle of Scott's Emulsion and begin regular doses.

The use of Scott's Emulsion at once, has, in thousands of cases, turned the balance in favor of health.

Neglected consumption does not exist where Scott's Emulsion is.

Prompt use of Scott's Emulsion checks the disease while it can be checked.

ENTHUSIASTIC MEETING OF Y. M. C. A. LEADERS.

More Social Life—Splendid Gymnasium Facilities—Lively Bible Classes.

On Tuesday evening the various departmental chairmen of the Y. M. C. A. met to report their plans and get acquainted. So much enthusiasm and deep interest was displayed that it was decided to continue meeting together once a month.

Mr. J. A. Lawrence, the new general secretary presided and briefly emphasized the need of committee leaders being in close touch with each other. The Social Department was dependent upon the Membership, the Membership upon the Physical, and so on.

Mr. E. M. Dunning chairman of the physical work being called upon referred to the improvements that had been made in the gymnasium. Everything smelled of fresh paint—the physical director had been provided with a first class business office. The committee felt that the new gymnasium schedule of classes was a good one—they would do all in their power to improve and elevate the tone of the physical work. Physical Director Sanford thought that more attention ought to be paid to visitors to the gymnasium. He would do his best to show strangers about and hoped that a good reception committee would be on hand each evening when classes kept him on the floor.

Mr. A. G. Richburg said that his department "The Social" was all ready at work. Talent was being secured for a large "Opening Reception to Young Men" Oct. 6th—his committee had in mind a series of Saturday evening At Homes. Once a month an entertainment by local talent would be given. The matter of providing some large and attractive games was being thought over but as yet nothing definite could be reported. Mr. George D. Wilkinson who has recently accepted the Chairmanship of the membership Department spoke briefly concerning that work. Mr. Wilkinson had visited a large number of Associations in order to get the best and newest ideas.

Membership contests were being done away with "the bringing in of" a man at a time" was by far the best plan. Large numbers joining at once were unsecured and soon dropped out. By securing "a man at a time" it was easier to interest and make him a part of the organization. Attraction would be added for young business men and it was not too much to expect 100 new members before Christmas.

Mr. Geo. W. Blanchard chairman of the finance committee spoke very encouragingly. He found that subscribers appreciated definite information and thought it was useful to be well posted. The people of Winchester had stood by the association financially in the past and would no doubt do even more in the future.

Mr. L. O. Waters, boys department chairman told that more work for the boys would pay. To that end boys work committees would be formed at once, boys meetings carefully planned and two Bible classes conducted.

The General Secretary had not time to report for the religious work committee but a strong religious work is on hand. The training class for young men will offer a grand opportunity to those who desire to train for Christian work. A general Bible class for men who want to know more about the Bible will be conducted.

The whole Association work seems animated with a lively and increasing interest.

Many new workers are joining the committee. The Women's Auxiliary is enlarging its membership. With such splendid co-operation the Association cannot fail to be a mighty force for good in its work for the boys and men of Winchester.

(opposite the Arlington Street Church).

WILL RE-OPEN IN ITS NEW BUILDING, SEPT. 6, 1904.

This school now has the most elegant, complete and extensive private school building in America. In the planning and furnishing of its NEW BUILDING expense has not been considered even in the minutest detail. New fittings of special design will be found to have taken the place of the ordinary furniture used in school buildings. The entire outfit of the school in its old building has been sacrificed that the school in the new home might have only the newest and best obtainable.

EXPERIENCED TEACHERS.
The only feature recognizable will be the able and experienced corps of teachers who have given this school its wide spread reputation. The tuition fees are the same as during the previous ten years, and pupils who contemplate attending may congratulate themselves that this year was the chosen time for their commercial course and the finishing of their school work.

COURSE OF STUDY.
The course of study prepares pupils thoroughly for all the duties of the counting-room. Book-keeping (by any system); Stenography (Graham and Pitman systems); English Composition; Commercial Correspondence; Commercial Law; Commercial Geography; Commercial Handwriting; Typewriting; Civil Service (preparation for examinations); Normal School Course (preparation for teaching).
Pupils will find the location of the school most accessible from all points, over 400 cars daily, with a stopping place directly in front of the school building.
No agents, solicitors or canvassers are employed by the institution.

T. W. Lawson and "Frenzied Finance"

Whether one agrees or disagrees with Mr. Lawson's opinions or conclusions on Frenzied Finance one cannot fail to read with interest this unique presentation, and to admire the vigorous literary style of his articles. The September number of Everybody's Magazine, for example, discusses technical phases of finance, a subject which would ordinarily drive nine persons out of ten into voluntary somnolence, but does it in such a way that the reader not only finishes it wide awake but increases his interest in the narrative as it proceeds, and, with unsatisfied hunger, like little Oliver Twist, asks for "more."

Some persons have asked: "Does he write it himself?" I happen to know that he does, or rather, that he dictates it direct to a typist as he walks back and forth in his suite of rooms in Young's Hotel. Of course he submits it to a subsequent polishing process—changing a word here and there, interpolating a second thought and sometimes rewriting a paragraph in order to express a thought more forcibly. But it's all Lawson—every word of it. Anybody who knows the man intimately knows that. His style is peculiarly his own, and a powerfully effective style it is, too.

It is not surprising that the quoted question should be asked, however. These articles constitute a striking specimen of literary composition, such as the average stock broker would be incapable of producing, and I illustrate the versatility of this remarkable man. He is, indeed, a many-sided genius. Some, it is true, regard him as a financial accident, a bold plunger, or a poser, but such an estimate would not stand the test of 35 years on State street, as one must necessarily conclude, if he gives the matter a second thought. A certain great painter was once asked by a student what he mixed his colors with, in order to produce such beautiful shadings. "With brains, sir," was the terse reply. In a word this explains the secret of Lawson's success. He is a bold plunger, but he never fails to carefully consider the relations between cause and effect, and every project is carefully mixed with brains.

It isn't generally known but Lawson is a mechanical genius of the first order. The duplicate sales slip which your wife receives with her purchase in a dry goods store was his device, invented and put on the market by him, years ago. He made a fortune from the sale of this, alone. He also planned and built a toy bank that brought him a large sum of money, and he has perfected various machines. He is an expert in all matters relating to printing and is a lover of rare books, especially those with fine bindings. He is a connoisseur on art matters and has spent a large fortune on paintings and bronzes. He has one of the finest collections of precious stones in this country, and as for yachts, fine horses, dogs and poultry, everybody who reads the daily papers knows of his interest in such matters. One of his hobbies, and one, I venture to say you never heard of before, is the study of phrenology. Perhaps this explains, in part, his tremendous knowledge of human nature.

Study the man in the light of these manifestations of many-sidedness, and you will perhaps understand how it is that he could produce such a striking literary composition. And if you will remember that, though a multi-millionaire, he was born of the people and is still of and with them in thought and sympathy, you will understand why it is that thousands in all sections of this country swear by him. Later on, if my readers manifest sufficient interest, I will give other close-range studies of this remarkable personality. —[Woburn News]

Collecting Taxes

Some of the Boston papers had considerable to say last week about Collector Bell's method of collecting the poll taxes, and that much fault was being found with the reading of the summons forming part of the notice sent to this class of taxpayers.

The statute in regard to this reads as follows: "Section 15. The Collector may before making a demand for the payment of a tax which is due from any person, serve a summons on him, stating therein the amount due and that unless the same with twenty-five cents more for the summons is paid within ten days, he will proceed to collect it according to law."

The Tax Collector of Boston says that the interpretation given by the Solicitor of that city is that the Collector must serve this summons. This summons is sent out early in order to reach those persons known or designated as the "floating population," and who are more than likely to leave the town in the early fall and also for the benefit of those who are inclined to evade paying this tax of $2. No discrimination is made as all bills are printed the same, so that those citizens who believe in supporting the town to the extent of $2 each year are served the same as those who are not inclined to pay. Again placing this summons on the card saves some $30 to the town, for if this was not done another notice would have to be sent out by the Collector.

It has been the custom for many years past to date these notices August 1st, notwithstanding they are not sent out for a week or two later. In no case is anyone called on to pay the cost of the summons unless he has not paid his tax by the fall. There is no other thing connected with the collector's work that calls for so much labor as the collection of the poll taxes, and no doubt Mr. Bell would hail with delight the day when the custom of collecting these taxes is abolished. But as long as the law stands as it does today he is found by his oath of office to do all in his power to secure payment of the poll and other taxes. Rarely, if ever, is the summons fee collected until the variants are made out for delinquents. There is no doubt that all prompt paying citizens will uphold Collector Bell in his efforts to collect the town's revenue. By his nearly fifteen years of service he has proved himself to be one of the best collectors the town has ever had, and had he been lax in his duties he would not have received the unanimous nomination to office which has been accorded him year after year.

It is unjust to criticize him for using the powers vested in him for making collections, and furthermore it does seem as if all citizens who are called upon for a tax of $2 should respond cheerfully toward their share of supporting the town.

The talk of taking action against the Collector at town meeting can be considered in no other light than as merely talk. The citizens will not be found inclined to place obstacles in the way of Mr. Bell or any other man whom they elect as Collector. Whoever the Collector is, he has a disagreeable duty to perform, and if he does it well, and as the law requires he should, as Mr. Bell has done, then he should be upheld by the citizens.

Ezra Kendall's Triumph.

Boston's theatrical season has started out with a most emphatic comedy triumph and at the Park Theatre, Ezra Kendall is testing the capacity nightly with his latest and best success entitled "Weatherbeaten Benson." To say that this is funnier and more delightful in every respect than "The Vinegar Buyer" is warm praise, but that seems to be the verdict of every theatregoer who has witnessed the production since it was first seen here on Labor Day. Mr. Kendall is just as funny as ever he was in the days of "The Vinegar Buyer." He plays the character of an inventor of potato cake and bean bread who is with the other "land boomers" in a wild rush for locations in a new region of the Indian Territory, just opened up for settlement, and as the result there is a picturesque incident and characterization very rarely seen upon the American stage. The luckless inventor has all sorts of trials, ruin stares him in the face, a cloudburst soaks him good and wet with real water, but he keeps his sweetness of disposition and good nature throughout it all. He has a splendid supporting company including William A. Hackett, Thurlow Bergen, Joseph Slayton, Harry Hanlon, Lotta Luthien, Ethel Brandon, Edith Talaferro, Laura Almossino, Zelle Davenport and Lucile Le Verne. Liebler & Co. have staged "Weatherbeaten Benson" with great liberality.

TEAS THAT ARE WORTH FORTUNES

Twelve Hundred Kinds Are In China's Show at the World's Fair—The Most Populous Nation of the World For the First Time Makes an Exhibit Worthy of Her Greatness.

Many expositions of stupendous character make up the World's Fair of 1904. Each part is a vast and distinct show. Each building shelters many acres of wonderful things—wonderful because they are the choicest of their kind. Every nation on the globe is represented. Every state and territory is here with its best and making the most of its greatest opportunity.

The fact that China has not been a large exhibitor at world's fairs gives to her great exhibit here a prominence quite exceptional. It is a wonderland of ingenious productions. We know China best by reason of her extensive exports of teas, which have found a vast market in the United States for generations. Her commercial interests therefore prompted her to make a display of teas that we should not forget.

In sealed glass jars China displays in the Liberal Arts Palace some 1,200 kinds of tea. Young Hyson and Old Hyson have a string of tea relations longer than the genealogical chain of a Plymouth Rock. They are neatly selected "chops," in the language of the tea farmer, and these classes do not embrace medicinal teas, which are quite another lot in the rather modest number of 400.

The teas exhibited vary in price from a few cents a pound to some rare and exclusive kinds that are worth their weight in gold. The tea in the latter cases being placed on one side of the scales and pure gold on the other—that is to say, the tea of this expensive kind is worth about $20 gold an ounce. Only a very small quantity of this exclusive leaf is exhibited, and it is grown in carefully guarded tea plantations or gardens right under the shadows of the great wall of China. Its cultivation is prohibited for any use save for the imperial family of China and a few of the favored high officials.

Mention has been made of the word "chop" in connection with tea, and it may be interesting to the everyday reader to know what the word actually signifies. The tea leaf is grown in various districts of the Chinese empire on large areas of ground which are often mistaken for single plantations. This is hardly ever the case, as the large tracts are very often owned by hundreds of different men, whose individual plots of ground bearing the tea plants are carefully mapped out, so that each individual owner may cultivate and pick his own crop of tea. Each owner likewise markets his own tea and puts his own special mark, or "chop," on the packages. Hence the term "chop" signifies an individual growth or picking of tea by one owner. In an area of tea land of, say, a thousand acres, all apparently under one ownership, there may be some forty, fifty or more owners of the plantation and consequently a like number of "chops" of tea.

It must not be imagined that all these different owners of the tea get the same price for their commodity—far from it, as each of these individual tea growers has his own secrets for improving the quality and flavor of tea. Take, for instance, the Amoy and Fuchau districts, whence most of the tea for the United States comes. The owners of "chops" of tea varying from 10 to 200 chests of 50 pounds each bring samples of their goods to the various foreign merchants for sale. These latter turn the Chinese tea growers over to the good offices of the foreign or American professional tea taster, who passes on the goods as to price. The tea taster has the samples infused, not boiled, in his presence and passes upon the quality, flavor, twang and manner of curling, fixing a price accordingly, from which there is never any variation and the tea grower must accept or go elsewhere to dispose of his wares. In a single tract of tea land like the one cited above the price has ranged from 14 cents, the lowest, to 48½ cents, the highest, per pound among sixty-one different tea producers. A matter of great moment that also figures in the price of tea is that very often tea from the same district will have the various "chops" blended together in order to produce special flavors.

ELECTRIC AUTOMOBILE.

In New French Car Motors Are Attached Directly to Wheels.

Thornwall Haynes, Filled States Consul at Rouen, France, reports to the state department as follows: The trials made at Lenzamps with a new electric carriage constructed by the Electromotion company give every promise of creating a revolution in the automobile world.

Like all the firms which are interested in the construction of electric carriages, the Societe Electromotion has up to the present employed for the transmission of power to the wheels motors of high speed, with 800 to 1,000 revolutions a minute, these acting with the intermediary of chains and pinions or pinions and gears. This method has been adapted up till now in order to avoid the weight of the electric motors. The drawbacks to this system are as follows: The pinions, chains and gears absorb a small amount of force, this loss beginning at 25 per cent and increasing with wear. The battery also progressively weakens. Then the gearing, pinions or chains have to be changed periodically, causing expense and the laying up of the carriage for repairs.

The Electromotion company's new method of transmission has been tried over and over again, but this is the first time that the inventor's dreams have been realized, and so satisfied is the company with the perfected invention that it has obtained patent rights for all countries. The system is simple. The motors and the wheels are one and the same thing, working together, running at the same speed and without any kind of intermediary. The "live axles" can be placed in front or behind. They receive their motive power direct from the accumulators, and the chains, pinions and gears are things of the past. A carriage with live axles can travel 20 to 30 per cent farther than the ordinary carriage, for the reason that it is relieved from lost energy and has no impediments. In a word, weight is reduced, power increased, heating diminished and absolute silence obtained, while wear and tear is brought to a minimum.

This invention can be applied to any kind of vehicle, although at present the private carriage is receiving all attention. In the trials the new system, although primitively mounted, worked admirably at five speeds, varying between four and a half and nineteen miles an hour and with perfect silence. There was no far in starting or in changing speed. The general appearance of the carriage is improved, as the motor being removed from under the vehicle the body can be built low. It may be said that the wheels on which the motors are placed look clumsy compared with those on the present day carriages. This is simply a matter of first sight.

CAMERA IN CANE.

Makes Pictures Without the Consent of the Subject.

It used to be next to an impossibility to secure a photograph of any notable person without having first obtained his consent to pose for the picture, and consequently if a dislike was expressed to such a proceeding the artist was obliged to give up his plans. But with the introduction of the little folding cameras and more sensitive plates and films it is an easy matter to obtain a picture, either with or without the consent of the objective.

This has resulted in a feeling of dislike for the "camera fiend," as he is sometimes called, and has perhaps led to the designing of a rather unique scheme to secure pictures on the quiet. No one would suspect an innocent looking walking stick of concealing a photographic lens, shutter and roll of sensitized film, and yet that is just what this cane is designed to do. The artist has shown a portion of the head cut away to expose the interior mechanism, illustrating the manner in which the film is wound over the rollers to bring it in position for use at the rear of the lens. It is intended to make provision for loading and unloading the camera by daylight, and quite a respectable looking picture can be obtained with it in the hands of a practiced operator.

This cane camera is the invention of Emilie Kronke, Dresden, Germany.

Walking For Appendicitis.

German medical journals are recommending a new and peculiar remedy for appendicitis, the employment of which, it is declared, will obviate the necessity for the use of the knife in the great majority of cases. This remedy consists in walking on all fours twenty minutes four times a day. A contemporary states that this method is not only original, but almost aboriginal. However this may be, the method is certainly worthy of consideration. This method of treatment operates by strengthening the abdominal muscles. It is claimed that a well known German diplomat has been recently cured of chronic appendicitis by this method.

A Trick of the Trade.

Residents of a certain block which boasts a long sustained respectability were astonished recently to see the basement of a brownstone house converted into a blacksmith shop. The proprietor put upon his walls, when it saw the bold signs which the proprietor put upon his walls. Presently a tailor's shop was opened on the block. This was the final stroke. Property began to exchange owners, and furniture vans were busy for a time. Then the blacksmith shop and the tailor's store suddenly vanished. What had happened? Nothing more than that some designing real estate dealers had attained their ends. They had bought a few houses and had purposely set about depreciating the value of the adjoining property so that they could get it at bargain rates. The blacksmith and the tailor were allured by the bait of cheap rents in the houses when the dealers had bought, and perhaps there was a secret understanding by which the new owners in business were to make themselves as obnoxious as possible to the residents. New York Post.

Reconciliation That Failed.

James VI. of Scotland afterward James I. of England in 1587, being much perturbed by the constant quarrels among his nobles, determined to end all disputes by a summary process of reconciliation. Accordingly, having assembled the nobles on Sunday, May 14, at Holyrood, in the lodging of Sir James Maitland of Thirlestane, he drank to them and caused them all to shake hands. On the following day, after banqueting them in Holyrood, he caused the earls of Angus, Montrose, Mar and Glencairn, also the master of Glamis and many others, all deadly enemies to one another, to march hand in hand two abreast from the abbey to Holyrood along the Canonicate and High street of Edinburgh to the town cross, where the provost and bailies had a table spread with wines and sweetmeats. Here the company once more drank to their eternal unity and separated. But a few weeks later they were lying in wait, as of old, to kill one another.

All Snakes Do Not Hiss.

The popular idea that all snakes hiss is incorrect when anemones are in question, if we may believe a close observer of the serpent family. The sound they make is more like a growl than a hiss and has been well described by a traveler as a "low, roaring noise." Their powers of degeneration, prodigious testimony to the fact that one has been known to swallow a horse, while bullfrogs are not infrequently attacked also. Few non-scientific readers, by the way, are aware that not only do the jaw hinges of the boa tribe become dislocated in the act of swallowing a large animal, subsequently resulting in their proper position by means of the elastic connecting tendons, but that the shell bones separate centrally, so the whole constitutes a sort of quadrangular orifice with apparently indefinite powers of expansion.

Newsy Paragraphs.

Morning services and the Sunday school will be resumed at the Unitarian Church, next Sunday. Mr. Lawrence expects to preach on the Sundays in September, his subjects being: Sept. 12, "This Day's World"; Sept. 18, "France and the Vatican"; Sept. 25, "The Church and the Average Man." Mr. Lawrence plans, also, a series of readings from the Old Testament, the purpose being to emphasize the more important passages of the Hebrew Scriptures. This course, which will be made a prominent feature of the morning services, is to be in the nature of a literary introduction to the Bible, in line with the study of "The Bible as Literature," now so widely replacing the older methods of study. The passages to be read will be announced in advance, to enable those who wish to follow the readings more closely to do so. The lessons for September will be taken from the Hebrew story of Creation, as told in the earlier chapters of Genesis.

Rev. D. A. Newton arrived home from his trip to Europe last Friday and occupied his pulpit Sunday.

Mr. Philip Blank has bought the John Polley house on Highland avenue near Forest street.

The Chairman of the Woburn Board says that efforts had been made to secure cooperation of the Winchester officials to remedy it, but without avail. This is an indication that the nuisance will soon be abated.

The Barta Press, Boston, has been incorporated. Among the officers are: Howard D. Nash, president and director; Harry A. Wheeler, treasurer and director; Louis Barta, general manager and director; Thos. S. Spurr, director. These gentlemen are all residents of Winchester.

The town of Brookline is borrowing money in anticipation of taxes at the rate of two per cent. per annum. This is believed to be the lowest rate ever made to a town for a temporary loan.

Chairman Wilson of the Nahant Selectmen is finding fault with the high tax rate of that tax-dodger's paradise—$8 per $1000. He says: "This town is burdened with the metropolitan park tax, and taxes would be considerably lower without this outlay. We should not pay such a large assessment and there is no justice in it."

Work upon the repairs and alterations to the Congregational Church edifice is rapidly progressing. It is confidently expected that the tower will be completed in season to occupy the main auditorium upon Sept. 18th, the third Sunday in the month.

Our readers are reminded that there are 176 presidential electors and to gain presidency a nominee must secure 239, or more than half. Mr. Rufus Kendrick, the veteran tree warden of Wakefield, says that there are a million brown-tail caterpillars now where there was only one at this time last year, and that there isn't enough money in the state to destroy them at this season of the year. And it might be added at any other time of the year. When "Uncle Rufus" gives up in despair waging war on the brown-tail moth it may be put down as certain that the pest has got beyond control. The town of Arlington too has given up the fight against the moths after expending $1200 with little effect.

PRICE, FIVE CENTS

BROWN TAILS AND GYPSIES AGAIN.

Winchester Infested from Uncared for Neighboring Territory.

When and How to Combat These Troublesome Pests.

During the past week the tree warden has been frequently asked by citizens to tell what makes our trees so brown just now. It is all due to our old friend the brown tail moth who is with us in unusual numbers this autumn. The warden was away at the time the little white moths were flying, but he is informed that at the height of their season, just when they were flying about by night looking for likely places in which to lay their eggs, there came a heavy wind from the north which blew hard all one night. Next morning this town was loaded with moths which had blown in from the uncared for territories to windward. Brookline, like Winchester, was well cleared up last winter, but her trees are now in just the same shape as ours, the moths having blown in one night from the north so the Brookline tree warden says. This doubtless was the same wind that blew Winchester no good.

The warden has also been asked if there is anything which one can do at this time to combat the little caterpillars. In his opinion it is not worth while at this time to do anything. When the hard frosts come these caterpillars will curl up in bags of web and old leaves, hung on the tips of the branches, and in this way will pass the winter not to emerge again before April.

When the trees are bare these nests will show up plainly. This is the time to get after them. Buy a pole tree pruner. Better buy one which is 15 feet long (they can be had of the local hardware stores) and which will cost about one dollar. With this tool cut off the nests. Cut as little of the branches as possible and thus avoid mutilating the trees. Pick up every nest as it falls and put it in a basket. When the basket is full carry it to the furnace or kitchen stove and burn the nests at once. If men are employed to clean the trees insist on their picking up the nests, and see to it that they burn them. The town will be full of men soliciting this work this winter and care should be taken to employ only competent men. The Town Tree Department will be unable to furnish men this year as in the past owing to the extra work assigned to the town men at the annual meeting.

The trees all over town are also very generally infested with gypsy moths. This insect winters in the egg form, and the yellow spots, the size of a quarter dollar, now seen on the tree trunks, under sides of branches, on walks, fences, piazzas, etc., are egg clusters. Each cluster contains on an average of 200 eggs, and next May each egg in the cluster will hatch out a caterpillar.

Do not try to cut them off, or scrape them, or smash them, or burn them. None of these things will be effective. Buy some creosote oil (this also can be bought here in town) and a small varnish brush. Soak each nest of eggs with a brushful of creosote. Then let it alone. The creosote will penetrate and kill every egg.

Letter from Mr. Salem Wilder.

The following letter from Mr. Salem Wilder will be read with much interest by the numerous friends of this gentleman.

WINSTON-SALEM, N. C., Sept. 12, 1904.

Mr. T. P. Wilson,

Dear Sir,—Winchester fruit loving youngsters would have been pleased to reside here the past seven weeks. Fruit has been abundant and of good quality. Nice peaches 25 cents a peck. Apples for cooking 25 cents a bushel. Water melons have been brought in by the cord, and they have been the largest I have ever seen. A 15 lb. melon can be had for ten cents, and if one wishes to be aristocratic, he can get one weighing forty to fifty lbs. for 25 cents. Ex Mayor Vance had a melon sent as a present, weighing sixty-nine and a half lbs. Cantaloupes, green corn, peas and grapes in abundance, and ripe figs in the plot in the rear of our boarding place.

The temperature during the past summer has been quite even. The lowest since spring was 50 degrees on the morning of June 13, and the highest was 91.

Would like again to see dear old Winchester, but whether that is to be permitted God only knows.

Respectfully yours,

SALEM WILDER.

Y. M. C. A. Notes.

The first fall meeting of the Directors was held on Monday evening. President A. W. Hale in the chair. Everything was now ready for the October opening. The General Convention is to begin its sessions in Boston, Wednesday, October 5.

Henry L. Richards.

Henry Livingstone Richards, a well known resident and for many years prominent in the literary and newspaper circles of Boston and vicinity, died last Friday afternoon after a long illness. The cause of his health breaking down was attributed to persistent attacks of the grip which left him after each attack in a more weakened condition. He was of a most genial disposition and took a deep interest in ameliorating the condition of the poor and unfortunate and in this connection he did most valuable work.

Mr. Richards was born in Columbus, O., in 1846, and was the oldest son of the late Henry Livingstone and Cynthia Cowles Richards. In 1855 his parents moved to Jersey City, N. J., where he received his early education, and afterward he went to Seaton Hall college, South Orange, N. J., from which institution he was graduated in 1866. He took his degree of A. M. from the same college in the next year.

Soon after leaving college Mr. Richards engaged in literary work in New York. With his family, he came to Boston in 1869, and soon joined the staff of the Boston Courier, of which paper he was for many years city editor. In 1872 he became associated with the Sacred Heart Review, and continued with that paper until ill health compelled his retirement some years ago.

Mr. Richards had lived in Winchester since 1878. He was unmarried, and is survived by two brothers and two sisters.

Solemn high mass for Mr. Richards took place Monday morning in St. Mary's Church. The Rev. J. H. Richards, S. J., a brother, was celebrant. Rev. William J. Ennis, S. J., deacon and the Rev. T. P. McManmon, curate of St. Mary's, sub-deacon. There were seated within the chancel a number of priests from Boston and elsewhere. Several selections were rendered by a quartet. The singers were F. J. O'Hara, M. E. O'Leary, Francis Hastings, Samuel J. Kinson, Fergus S. Turner, Dr. Henry E. R. Watts. The ushers were: A. William Rooney, J. H. Roach, J. F. O'Connor. Interment was in Montvale cemetery.

Farewell Services.

Farewell services for Mr. Patrick W. Reardon were held last Friday morning at his home, 33 Westley street, followed by a requiem mass at St. Mary's church. At the latter service Rev. Henry J. Madden, pastor of the church, officiated, and there were also present Revs. Thomas F. McManmon and W. F. Rogers of this town, Henry J. Lyons of Brookhead and John J. Sheehan of Brookline. The organist was Edward J. Whelan, East Boston. Miss Nellie O'Brien was soloist. The offertory was "The Lord's Prayer" and after the mass Miss O'Brien rendered "Nearer My God to Thee." There were a number of beautiful gifts from friends and officers of the town, among which were a standing cross from the democratic town committee, a spray of asters from the board of registrars of voters, a spray of roses from Mrs. James W. Russell Jr., a spray of gladioli from David N. Skillings, a spray of asters from Miss Helen T. Daly and a spray of asters from Thomas E. Feeney. The pallbearers were Thomas E. Feeney, John F. Flynn, John E. Holland, James H. Roach, Edward C. Sullivan, and Wil E. Haley. The burial was at Calvary cemetery, Montvale.

Complimentary to Treasurer Spurr.

The following complimentary notice of our Town Treasurer, Mr. Thomas S. Spurr, in regard to his discharging the puerilities of the Treasurer of the Watertown Savings Bank is taken from the Watertown Enterprise: "Mr. Spurr, by the way, is the same man who investigated the books of the tax collector and he is accounted a wonderful man in his line of work. One who has been associated with him said in speaking of him: 'He takes no man's word. He has to see for himself.' Perhaps he is of Missouriian origin, and has to be shown. It is a pretty side thing in his business."

W. H. S. Notes

A meeting of the class of 1905 was held last Monday in the High School building. Twenty-five members were present. Before the election of officers for the following year took place, Marjorie Rolfe and Marion Carter were voted members of the class. The following officers were elected: President, Robert M. Stone; Vice-President, Helen Munroe; Secretary, Marguerite Power; Treasurer, Douglas Armstrong. The executive committee will consist of the above officers, besides Mabel Wingate, Helen Palmer and Richard Hunt.

An A. A. meeting was held in the gymnasium on Wednesday, to elect officers for the ensuing year. The officers elected were as follows: David Witmer, president; Richard Hunt, vice-president; Frank Sullivan, secretary and treasurer. From the number that attended the meeting, it looks as if the association will have a prosperous year.

Float Night at Winchester Boat Club.

The Winchester Boat Club held its annual float night and parade of decorated canoes, which marks the close of the season's festivities on Mystic Lake on last Saturday evening. The club house and road-way on the shore of the lake were thronged with visitors and spectators, and although the number of entries in the parade was smaller this year than on former similar occasions, the event was remarkably pretty.

The club house was handsomely decorated with many hued Japanese lanterns and a large transparent flag in colors with the butterfly emblem of the club, stood out prominently above the rest. The parade of decorated canoes started at about 8.30, led by the Marshall, James Newman, Fleet Captain of the club. The first prize was awarded to Messrs. Robert Bean and Robert Barr. The young men had a handsome little steamboat, all outlined in colored lights, with "walking bean and smoke stack," from which smoke issued. This was the handsomest exhibit beyond doubt. Mr. George Tyler received the second prize, his feature being an Indian Camp scene. Messrs. Waldo Manson and Chester Melendy also had very prettily decorated boats. The judges were Messrs. George B. Smith, L. R. Waite and John Blank, Jr.

The Woburn Brass Band furnished music, and after the parade dancing was enjoyed until a late hour.

The committee in charge consisted of Messrs. William J. Ladd, John Blank, Jr., and Wadsworth Hight.

Peck - Underhill.

Miss Florence Winn Underhill, younger daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Charles William Underhill of Everett, formerly of Winchester, was married on Saturday afternoon, September tenth, to Mr. Frank Merton Peck of Boston, at their future home in Brookline, by the Rev. Henry Hockley of Cambridge.

A very unusual circumstance attending this ceremony was the fact that the same clergyman officiated, forty years ago, at the marriage of the parents of Miss Underhill in Winchester.

The wedding which was very informal, was attended by four generations, the aged grandfather of the bride, Mr. James A. Woodbury of Winchester, being present and also his two great grand-children.

Among the relatives of Mr. Peck was his uncle, Alderman J. C. E. Slayton of Melrose, with Mrs. Slayton and Miss Slayton.

John Henry McNeill.

John H. McNeill, well known to many citizens of this town, where he has lived since his birth, died very suddenly while seated at the supper table Sunday evening last. Mr. McNeill, who is a gardener by occupation, was stricken at his boarding place No. 13 Elm street. His death was caused by the bursting of a blood vessel.

He was 46 years of age, his parents being Roger and Elizabeth McNeill, and his death occurred in the same house in which he was born. He leaves one sister, Mrs. Andrew Libby, and a brother, Mr. Frank McNeill.

Farewell services were held Wednesday morning from his brother's house, No. 9 Bridge street, being conducted by Court Pidge, F. of A., of which the deceased was a member. The bearers were: Geo. Nelson, Nelson Wells, Daniel Leydon, Coleman Flaherty, John T. Daly and John Rogers. The floral tributes were very handsome and numerous, including many sprays, pillows and set pieces.

The interment was in Calvary cemetery, Montvale.

James H. Roach for Registrar of Voters.

The Board of Selectmen will meet next Monday evening to fill the vacancy on the Board of Registrars of Voters caused by the death last week of Mr. Patrick W. Reardon. Mr. James H. Roach will probably be elected to the office as he is considered to be a well informed man for the duties of the position.

In this connection it is well to say that the late Mr. Reardon was a most valuable man on the Board because of his extensive acquaintance with about all the men in town, gained while he was postmaster and continued through his long term on the Board of Registrars of Voters and his knowledge of registration laws. Mr. Roach in this regard is also well informed.

First Baptist Church Notes.

The regular missionary meeting of the Woman's Circle will be omitted for this month, in order that the ladies may attend the farewell meeting of the Woman's Foreign Missionary Society to be held in Dudley Street Church, Monday, Sept. 14, at 2.30 p. m.

The Foreign Mission Basket meeting of the Women's Societies of the East Association will be held in the First Baptist Church, Everett, Friday, Sept. 23rd. There will be a farewell service for Miss Weld, who starts soon for China.

Berry - Blank.

On Thursday evening of this week occurred the wedding of Mr. Edward Whitman Berry of Medford and Miss Flora Waldmyer Blank of this town. The ceremony occurred at 7.30 o'clock, at the home of the bride's parents, Mr. and Mrs. John S. Blank, No. 4 Myrtle street. The large rooms were tastefully decorated with flowers and ferns, the ceremony being performed in a large corner of the living room, which was banked with hydrangeas. Rev. Henry E. Hodge, pastor of the First Baptist Church, was the officiating clergyman.

The bride was gowned in white liberty satin, trimmed with applique silk and tulle. She carried a shower bouquet of lilies of the valley and bride roses, and was given in marriage by her father. Two rings were used in the ceremony.

The wedding procession was preceded by the little maid of honor Miss Bertha Holman of Waltham, followed by the bridesmaids, Miss Ella H. Berry of Medford and Miss Julia Thompson of Portland. These attendants of the bride were gowned in pink landsdowne trimmed with liberty satin, their gowns being of two shades and harmonizing with the general effect. They carried bouquets of white roses. Mr. Thomas L. Berry of Somerville was the best man.

Following the ceremony a reception was held. Mr. and Mrs. Berry will reside upon the return from their wedding journey at No. 27 Grand View avenue, Medford, and will be at home to their friends after Nov. 1st.

The ushers were Mr. John Blank, Jr., Mr. Jere A. Downs, Mr. Frank Berry of Medford and Mr. George Thompson of Boston.

Many friends and relatives of the young couple were present from this and surrounding towns, and Mr. and Mrs. Berry left at the close of the reception amid showers of rice and good wishes. The bride and groom were the recipients of many handsome gifts of silver, cut glass, pictures and bric-a-brac.

Tennis at the Country Club.

The Mystic Valley tennis games drew a large crowd last Saturday and several were present from Belmont and Lexington to encourage their respective players. In the singles one half the list was played through to the finals with James Nowell of Winchester the winner.

One other half reached the semi-finals and ended with C. C. Butters of Lexington and R. Hoffman of Belmont the winners. The latter two played off Tuesday with Mr. Butters a winner. The finals will be played between Nowell and Butters on Saturday, Sept. 17, at three o'clock. This will be a most interesting contest as both players are in "top" condition and they are excelled by but few players around Boston.

Gipsy and Brown Tail Moths.

EDITOR OF THE STAR:

From now until the leaves appear next spring the people of our town must get together and work. These pests are on us and the damage which will result from neglect and indifference cannot be over-estimated. Winchester trees will be in a sorry plight next year if action is not taken at once, not to mention the well merited criticism to which our town will be exposed if it encourages the spread of these destroyers through inaction.

It is true that the Park on our eastern border affords an excellent breeding place for the moths and public opinion should compel the Park Commissioners to do their utmost to clean the Fells before next April, but within our town there is abundant work for all of us. Let us consider the gypsy moth.

The gipsy completed its work of depositing eggs about a month ago and the yellowish-brown patches can easily be seen on the trunks and lower limbs of the trees. When we think that each cluster contains a hundred or more eggs, each of which means a caterpillar of an average length of two and a half inches, we can form some idea of the benefit derived from suppressing even a single deposit.

From my observation I should say that 80 or 90 per cent. of these egg patches can be easily reached. The moth at laying time is heavy with eggs and prefers to deposit them on the trunks of trees near the ground. More vigorous moths will settle higher and only the strongest, apparently, going higher among the branches.

The remedy is cheap and easily applied, a small bottle of creosote and a half inch brush will settle all within reach of the hand, a small sponge on a ten foot rod will reach the remainder all but a few which may be above a limb out of sight, and those on the upper branches.

I would suggest that the town be divided in sections and that parties of school children be formed under a leader who would have the care of the creosote and apply it when the eggs are found by the children. The town of Arlington has already enlisted the children in this work, so the idea is not new. Some incentive might be provided for the best work in the way of prizes.

The field for this work would include every tree in the town whether on public or private land. No one would refuse entrance on his land to a missionary band of this nature. While the primary object would be materially assisted by their work, the educational effect on the children would be excellent. They would learn what it means to work for the public good and by observing the habits of this enemy they would be led to a better understanding of nature's ways in other forms.

When this work is done the town men can see by the spotted trees where to complete the work higher up and the private owner will be warned and guided to his supplementary work should any be needed.

Of course it is well known that the moth does not confine itself to trees when laying its eggs, they may be found on stone walls, fences, houses, window screens or behind shutters, etc. Where the creosote would deface a house or fence the clusters may be scraped off into a tin pail and burned.

The brown tail moth is now showing itself everywhere by bunches of sealed leaves sprinkled through the otherwise green trees. The children are powerless to aid in its destruction except to a very slight extent as most of the nests, which will appear later, are out of reach.

The worms have been hatched but recently and soon will retire into a single colony established on the terminal leaf of the branch on which they are now living. Here they remain dormant until the warmth of spring renews their activity when they attack the young leaves and as they attain their growth shed the hairs which produce the unpleasant effect so familiar to us already.

When the leaves fall these nests are easily seen and it is only a question of cutting them off and burning them. This is difficult and venturesome work for the colonies are in the most inaccessible places, among the terminal leaves of the outer and higher branches but this should furnish needed occupation for many in town who are deprived in winter of their usual employment, and the expense of destroying these colonies should be willingly paid by the town. The taxpayers would hardly feel the wages of the men employed in this work who in the five months available should be able to care for the brown-tail and the remaining gipsy moth eggs after the children had been over the ground. Let the call for a meeting come soon. F. J. WILLS.

John Hoyt's Problem

By ADELAIDE L. ROUSE

Copyright, 1903, by Adelaide L. Rouse

JOHN HOYT was tired of sitting in the gloomy office on the second floor of Vane & Co's warehouse, where he filled the positions of bookkeeper by day and watchman by night. He put aside the law book over which he had been dozing and took his mackintosh down from its nail. He was not on duty for some time yet, and he ran lightly downstairs. He walked toward the house of his employer, where he was a frequent visitor, for Rosamond, Mr. Vane's hand some daughter, was by no means averse to the attentions of John Hoyt. Young men of intelligence were scarce in Millville, and John was college bred and handsome withal.

John did not know why he walked in that direction, for he was not dressed for calling. He did not ring the bell, but he stood on the steps and for a moment looked into the drawing room. The curtains had not been drawn, for the gas was not yet lighted, but the firelight showed the interior of the room and its one occupant. Rosamond Vane sat before the piano, singing an air from an opera. John had heard it. It had been one of the few extravagances he had allowed himself during his college days.

Miss Vane wore an evening gown of some thin black material which set off her pale golden hair. John could not see the face, but he knew it well—the exquisitely cut features, the deep blue eyes and the fair complexion. He guessed that she was expecting him, and he went up the steps and put out his hand to touch the bell when he remembered his dress. The water was dripping from his mackintosh, and his rubber boots were splattered with mud. He went slowly down the steps. "Non ti scordai di me," sang Rosamond. John pushed his hat over his eyes and walked rapidly away.

"It is well that I am not dressed for calling," he said under his breath, "for there is no telling what I might say. When I am so tired of this job that existence as I am tonight isn't safe to me."

He did not finish the sentence. He walked on with rapid strides toward the other end of the town, which was built on a hill. He stopped two or three times as if holding a parley with himself; then went on again. "I shall fight the battle out tonight and have done with it," he said at last.

The houses at this end of the town were cheap affairs, and John stopped at one of the poorest. He opened the gate and went up the brick walk. The house was all in darkness save for a light which burned in the little wing which Kath called her study. Kath never closed the blinds. She said she left them open so the light could welcome him. John stepped softly to the window. The picture he saw was much like the other one, for here, too, a girl sat alone, singing. Unlike Rosamond Vane, Kath was small and plain, her eyes were light gray, and her hair was sandy. She was singing to the accompaniment of the reedy little cabinet organ, and her thin, shrill voice rasped on John's ears. There was something in the words, too, that disturbed him:

In the world's broad field of battle,
In the bivouac of life,
Be not like dumb, driven cattle;
Be a hero in the strife.

It was just like Kath, John thought, with some impatience. She was always striving after something impossible. He softly hummed a bar of the song Miss Vane had sung. That suited him better. There was nothing heroic in his mood just then.

He stood taking in the details of the poor little room. Poor as it was, it bore some marks of taste and refinement. All of Kath's treasures were gathered here to be safe from her vandal brothers. There was a plaster cast of Beethoven above the organ. Over the cheap little bookcase hung an engraving of "The Huguenot Lovers," and "Beatrice di Cenci" hung over the desk. John thought with pity of the many hours Kath had spent toiling at that desk, for she would try to write,

Presently Kath stopped playing and sat down on a low chair before the fire, bowing her head on her hands. John had never before seen her appear so dejected, and his heart ached for her. No doubt she was expecting him, as she had a perfect right to do. He remembered that he had not seen her since Tuesday, five days ago, and he had called on Miss Vane twice in that time. He might have gone in with his muddy boots, and Kath would have welcomed him to her fireside, but he could not go just then. Perhaps he would never go again. Kath would prefer to have the whole affair come to an end if she knew the truth. He was sure of that. He had ceased to love her, and he could not keep up the pretense any longer.

They had been engaged for six years, since Kath was twenty-two and John twenty-one, for she was a year his senior. There had been but little love-making, but John had always intended to marry Kath when their fortunes would permit. She was aging fast in the district school, where she taught year after year, and John had been obliged to give up his ambition for law and become Mr. Vane's bookkeeper. His salary was small, but he and Kath could manage to live on it. Many couples in Millville lived on less. No doubt she wondered why he did not take her out of the schoolroom.

John always thought more of himself when with Rosamond than when with Kath. Kath was constantly urging him on. True, she urged herself on. She was continually striving after what she called culture. She never allowed herself an idle moment, and she sometimes told John that he did not improve his time. Poor John! He loved ease and luxury, and after the work of the day was done he preferred to doze over his pipe and a novel to "keeping up" his Greek and Latin or reading "something improving," as Kath wished. He was tired of struggle, and he longed for a full, free life. As he stood at Kath's window he saw a bare and gray future stretching out before them—Kath and himself overworked and early old, with a family growing up to succeed to the same humdrum life. No, it would be better for both if the engagement were broken. But how could he tell Kath the truth? How could he face her eyes? With a pang he remembered how true she had been all those years. He felt himself weakening. He could not go in and tell her tonight, and he walked away.

John climbed the stairs to his office and sat down to smoke and think. He knew that he had to say but one word and he could marry his employer's daughter. Rosamond's eyes had told him so more than once, and her father had taken pains to give his opinion that brains and good looks were a match for money. This life was full of promise, but there was Kath—poor little Kath! His thoughts became confused, and he was soon asleep in his chair.

Kath did not sleep. The hours passed, but she did not think of going to rest. Once she rose and scanned her own face in the glass. "What have I to give him?" she asked herself. "Nothing. And she has everything. I shall not let him sacrifice himself. But, oh, why could not I have something, something—beauty or money or talent? I don't blame him. I can't expect to hold him."

Some lines of Robert Browning came into her mind:
Who art thou with stunted soul
And stunted body thus to cry
I love? Shall that be life's straight deal,
I must live beloved or die?

The words kept saying themselves over and over to her, and she put her hands up to her ears as if to shut out a sound. How often John had laughed at her for reading Browning. She wished she had never seen those lines.

The rain fell in torrents as the night wore on. Kath vaguely remembered hearing some talk at the supper table about the danger from the great dam just above the village. But she forgot it in thinking of nearer troubles. One of her brothers had blurted out something about John Hoyt being "solid with Miss Vane," and her mother had looked at her with pity in her eyes. She knew that John called at the great white house, while he seldom came now to her study. She tried to face the life that lay before her, life without John Hoyt. She would give him up. She loved him too well to stand in his light. He must marry Miss Vane and enjoy the life of luxury which he craved.

She opened her desk and wrote a note. Then she took from her finger the plain gold band that John had given her. It was to have served the double purpose of a wedding and an engagement ring. By and by, John had said, as he put it on her finger—when he could afford it—he would give her a solitaire. How long ago that seemed! She put the ring in an envelope with the note and sealed it.

At that moment she heard a sound which made her drop the letter and rush to the door. There was a tumult in the street, and her father and brothers came rushing down the stairs, calling to one another that the great dam had burst. Men who rushed past the house called out that the lower end of the town was under water already and there would be rescue work to do.

Kath's first thought was for John down at the warehouse. Her father and brothers ran down to the river, and Kath knew that they had gone to get their boat. A sudden resolve forced itself in her mind. She caught up her skirts and bareheaded rushed down the hill to the river. The painter of her own little boat was fastened to a tall tree. Already the water had risen three feet on the trunk of the tree. Kath waded into the icy water and groped for the rope. She stepped into the boat, and a moment later she was rowing with all her might.

John was still sleeping, and he was partially aroused by Kath's voice calling "John, John!" He wove the words into his dream. Kath called still louder, beating against the window with her hands. John pulled himself together at last, and as he rose from his chair he realized that he was stepping in water. He stooped to see what it meant and saw that water was pouring in under the door.

"Open the window, John. Hurry! The water is rising very fast," Kath called.

John burst the shutters open. "Kath, what are you doing here? Are you alone?"

"The dam has burst. Get into the boat. There is no time to lose."

"Give me the oars," said John, now thoroughly aroused. "Merciful heaven, how did you manage to dodge the

"COME, KATH," HE SAID.

wreck?" he asked, for by this time the stream was full of trees and timbers. "You risked your life to save mine."

"There was not much danger. Row fast, John. We must save her."

"Save who, Kath?"

"Miss Vane. Her house lies so low that she may be in great danger. Be careful! There is a log in the way."

"I shall take you home before I go to Mr. Vane's."

"I must steer, John. Besides, I shall not let you go alone."

Neither spoke again till they reached the Vane house. The water was above the second story windows, but there were lights in the third story. As they stopped the boat they heard a woman screaming. John called, and Mr. Vane appeared at the window.

"What does you, John, my boy," he said as he stepped into the boat. John lifted Rosamond in, and the two terrified maids followed. The coachman and butler had taken refuge on the roof, and John promised to send help to them, for Kath's little boat was already taxed to the utmost.

"I shall leave you at Mr. Grove's, Mr. Vane," said John as he hoisted a tall house a half mile from Mr. Vane's. "It is the safest place in town. I think the water has reached its height."

"Leave us at Mr. Grove's, John. That is right. Bless you, you shall hear from this night's work."

As Rosamond stepped from the boat to the piazza roof she clung to John, imploring him not to leave her. He went a few steps to encourage her, and when he turned to come back Kath was starting back across the water.

"Kath," John called, "come back!"

He could scarcely make out her answer above the roar of the flood. "Go back, John, where you are safe."

"Kath, come back!" he commanded in a tone she had never heard him use before.

She brought the boat up, and he stepped in. He took off his coat and wrapped it around her, paying no heed to her demure. "Give me the oars," he said. And she obeyed.

John slowly threaded his way back to Kath's home. Day was breaking and they could see the extent of the damage done.

"The worst is over," said John, "and I think the water is going down a little. Your house is standing, Kath, but the study is nearly under water. See, the water reaches the tops of the windows. Your manuscripts will be wet," he added mischievously. "We shall be obliged to hand on the roof."

The study was only one story in height, and John stepped to the roof and held out his arms. "Come, Kath," he said. He did not release her when she stood beside him on the roof. He held her close while he made his confession.

"Kath, I've been a fool and I came near being a rascal. But although I treated you so badly you care enough about me to risk your life for my sake. I know now what I feel for you. Forgive me and take me back. Can you ever love me again?"

"Hush, John! Don't blame yourself. It was natural that you should love her. I do not blame you. I wrote a note last night releasing you, and I inclosed your ring. I was not angry. I did it freely. Don't let any feeling of gratitude—"

"Kath, will you understand me? I love you. What can I care for Rosamond Vane after what has happened tonight? I shall never give you up unless you can truthfully say that you don't care for me. Tell me the truth or I shall keep you on your own study roof forever."

Kath did not make any audible reply, but she put her arms around John's neck and rested her head on his dripping shoulder in perfect content.

TO STEADY STEAMSHIPS.

Ingenuous Scheme to Save Travelers From Seasickness.

To lessen the rolling of steamships in a sea an interesting device described in Harper's Weekly has been designed by Herr Otto Schlick, a German naval architect, and consists of installing a rapidly rotating fly wheel in the hold of the vessel. This involves making use of the principle of the gyroscope familiar in the toy sometimes known as the Archimedeon top, where a fly wheel whose weight is concentrated near its circumference is mounted in gimballs so that it is free to rotate in any plane.

Herr Schlick proposes to mount a fly wheel carried on a vertical axis in a frame which is suspended on a horizontal axis transverse to the length of the vessel, the whole mechanism being placed at the bottom of the hold. To rotate the fly wheel with the necessary high speed electric motors or steam turbines would be employed. There would be hydraulic brakes and hand brakes to restrain and regulate the motion of the fly wheel when necessary.

The effect of the rapidly rotating fly wheel is to develop forces that would oppose the oscillation of the vessel, making it slower and reducing its extent materially. An elaborate calculation was made of the size and weights of such a fly wheel, and Herr Schlick has ascertained that for a steamer of 6000 metric tons (5,395.5 English tons) a fly wheel four meters (15.12 feet) in diameter, weighing ten metric tons (8,842 English tons) and moving with a peripheral velocity of 200 meters (656 feet) per second would have a most marked effect.

STEEL FURNITURE.

Of Sent Appearance and More Durable Than Wood.

Fireproof office equipment grows apace. Concrete floors, plastered terra cotta walls and skeleton steel frame-work reduce the combustibles to the furniture and sash and door trimmings. The latter may be built of fire-proofed wood. The desks and all the fittings for the office may now be obtained in metal, so that theoretically all that is left to burn are the papers. If fireproof papers are introduced the evolution from the highly inflammable office of yore to the hygienic fireproof structure of today will have reached practical perfection.

The manufacturers claim for them that they are primarily fireproof and that consequently they of necessity constitute individual vaults for the storage of books and papers. A bookkeeper doesn't have to return his store books to the vault every time he closes up his office. Security from molestation is a secondary advantage incident to the type of construction. Compactness, cleanliness and durability are other features. The makers insist that a steel desk is always in good condition, and that it will last for a hundred years.

When it is remembered that most troubles arise from insufficient strength and warping or swelling there appears to be ample ground for the assertion that metal furniture will never become obsolete. Practically all the conventional styles of desk, the bookkeeper's, the stenographer's, the record case, the file, the roll top, etc., may be obtained in the steel construction.

The lines are as simple as those of the best type of mission or arts and crafts furniture and the design such as to afford exceptional rigidity. Of course chairs made along the same lines are manufactured. As yet the movement is new, but a number of large offices have ordered complete outfits, desks, tables, counters, partitions, etc. An office so equipped gives one a pleasant surprise, as no one realizes how cumbersome wooden furniture is until the light, airy fireproof office equipment is seen.

Color Photography.

Dr. R. W. Wood, professor of physics at Johns Hopkins university, has been granted a patent covering all rights to the fundamental invention of the process of color photography by means of Rowland's spectroscopic diffraction grating. The photographs are made on glass slides of a special viewing apparatus. By employing the diffraction grating colored screens and pigments, which are necessary in other processes, can be eliminated and duplicates can be made as blue prints.

Iceland Wants the News.

Iceland has been more or less cut off from communication, except by slow mail, from the rest of the world. The Icelandic parliament at its last session voted a yearly subsidy of $9,380 for twenty years for the purpose of establishing wireless telegraphic connection with the mainland of the United Kingdom or the Shetland Islands, as might seem best. Similar means of communication are to be established between Reikiavik and the principal towns of Iceland.

Copperhead and Rattler.

The copperhead isn't a bad looking snake, as snakes go, but it has a mighty bad reputation. In fact, it is generally regarded as a mean sort of snake and is apparently without a friend or even an apologist. Although it won't chase you nor go out of its way to get a crack at you, it probably does more business per snake than does the rattler, the moccasin or any other of the venomous kind. It is said that where there is one there are always two copperheads, so when you smell green cucumbers look out, for that seems to be the only warning you will get of the presence of this reptile.

The rattler is a little more polite, also more vicious, for after giving you timely warning it will stand its ground and fight like a good fellow, while the copperhead will run and hide.

Queens' Names on Oaks.

Many English queens have chosen oak trees in Windsor forest wherein their respective names, with the dates of their choice, have been commemorated by means of brass plates. In different parts of the forest, with seats round them, are oaks bearing the names of Queen Elizabeth, Queen Victoria, Queen Charlotte and Queen Caroline. "Herne's Oak," mentioned in the "Merry Wives of Windsor" as being in Windsor park, was destroyed by a gale on Aug. 31, 1863.

Kindergarten Transportation from Wadleigh and Gifford Sections

When the Wadleigh Kindergarten was abolished at the end of the last school year, it was with the understanding that transportation to the other kindergartens would be provided, in case the number of children warranted it. As there has been a considerable demand, a barge will be put on next Monday, the 19th, leaving the Wadleigh building a few minutes before nine o'clock, it is expected, and proceeding to the Wyman school by way of Washington, Main and Bacon streets; the barge will take kindergarten children who may collect near the Wadleigh and Gifford buildings, at the head of Mystic avenue, and at Symmes corner. This arrangement is experimental, and the barge will be continued only on condition that the number of children using it justifies the expense.

Will be Prosecuted if Caught
Fishing in Long Pond

Boys or men have been for some time fishing for German Carp in Long Pond contrary to the laws of the State. This pond is in the State reservation and anyone caught fishing there is liable to a heavy fine. To put an immediate stop to fishing in this pond, Mr. F. A. Brackett, secretary of the department of Fisheries and Game of this State, has offered a suitable reward to any one furnishing evidence leading to conviction. The fish in this pond are used for breeding purposes, and in all probability those persons taking the fish from the pond are unaware of the trouble they are likely to bring upon themselves. A word to the wise is sufficient.

September a Delightful Month In The Mountains: Low Rates via Boston & Maine R.R.

The fall is the ideal time of the year for a visit to the White Mountains. The forests are rich in their beautiful autumnal mantle; and the sharp, brisk, invigorating quality of the mountain atmosphere infuses one with life. The usual apathy of summer is lost, and one feels more inclined to ramble and stroll to the numerous haunts and walks in this great natural park.

The wonders of the mountains are many and the scenic vistas are rare and handsome. At intervals is the beautiful verdant valley leading to the domed summits of Big Thorn, Little Thorn and Baby Thorn mountains; while away in the distance are the towering peaks of Mt. Washington, Jefferson and Madison.
Mt. Washington, the grand observatory of the mountains region with its novel incline railroad, invites the traveler to make an ascension; while the natural wonders of the Profile, Franconia and Crawford Notches are beyond description.

From September 15th to October 8th, the Boston & Maine Railroad will have tickets on sale at greatly reduced rates to all White Mountain points. Side trips will be on sale in the mountains at low rates; and the hotel proprietors will make special low rates for the fall tourists. For rates, etc., see Boston & Maine posters or send to the General Passenger Department, Boston & Maine Railroad, Boston.

Mr. Wilfred R. Friebe and Miss Hazel
A. Richards, both of this town, were united in marriage at St. John's Episcopal church, Boston, on Thursday forenoon.
After a short honeymoon they will reside mount street, with whom the young couple will make their future home.

Wednesday night and Thursday morning witnessed one of the severest and most continuous rain storms in many years. The rain came down in sheets and the high wind made travel without getting wet almost impossible. Electric car travel on the Arlington-Stoneham line was interrupted and the passengers who were fortunate enough to ride did so in open cars, greatly to their discomfort.
There was no morning session of the schools below grade six. Thursday forenoon the storm broke and the sun came out. The damage to the streets from washouts must have been considerable.

Miss Alice C. Brown's private school for primary and advanced classes opens on Wednesday, September twenty-eighth, in the Waterfield Building, Church

Much inconvenience was suffered by the people of the town last Sunday morning by the blocking of the railroad crossing for over three-quarters of an hour. The first holdup was caused by a freight train which pulled on to the crossing and was stuck there for 15 minutes.
A short time afterward the Montreal express pulled into the station, and in starting a drawbar on an express car was pulled out. The end of the train extended over the crossing, and 30 minutes was consumed by the train crew in making necessary repairs. During this time the train was allowed to remain across the streets which center here. The delay and annoyance was great.

Mrs. Louis Clavin of Clematis street suffered the loss of her sister, Mrs.
Stella Lawson at Sharon this week. Mrs.
Lawson had many friends in Winches-stration, is now able to be out.

On Saturday evening of last week the fire department was called out for a fire in the house on Main street occupied by Dr. D. C. Dennett. The blaze was in an upstairs room and caused by Dr.
Dennett's small son accidentally overturning a lamp. When the department arrived a brisk fire was in progress, but with chemicals and water it was soon under control. The damage was confined to one room and amounted to about $100.

Considering the violence of the storm of Wednesday night, Winchester suffered slight damage. Some of the streets were washed out, however, and many cellars flooded.

Thursday afternoon about half past five an alarm pulled in from Box 53 called the department to the house of Mr. Miles Reagan on Church street. The fire had gained such headway before the prompt arrival of the department that great damage was done to the interior before the fire was finally gotten under control. The blaze started in the attic from a defective chimney, and was blazing fiercely when discovered by Benj. Allmond. This same chimney caused a fire in the house three years ago. The piano and some of the furniture was saved by hard work. This family has been particularly unfortunate, as a few weeks ago the house was broken into and a considerable sum of money stolen. The loss by fire was covered by insurance.

Hamlett, of Eagle Pass, Texas. "I suffered one week with bowel trouble and took all kinds of medicine without getting any relief, when my friend, Mr. C.
Johnson, a merchant here, advised me to take this remedy. After taking one dose
I felt greatly relieved and when I had the advent of the first cold snap prices are almost certain to go up. This firm

SOFT CORE

Like the running brook, the red blood that flows through he veins has to come from somewhere.

The springs of red blood are found in the soft core of the bones called the marrow and come say red blood also comes from the spleen. Healthy bone marrow and healthy spleen are full of fat.

Scott's Emulsion makes new blood by feeding the bone marrow and the spleen with the richest of all fats, the pure cod liver oil.

For pale school girls and invalids and for all whose blood is thin and pale, Scott's Emulsion is a pleasant and rich blood food. It not only feeds the blood-making organs but gives them strength to do their proper work.

Have Taken Action.

The persistent efforts of the Winchester board of health to have the Woburn authorities prevent the pollution of Russel brook has stirred the Woburn board into further action. The following communication was last week read in the city council and referred to the committee on finance:

"The board of health feels it is necessary again to call to your attention the condition of things existing at the Eastern avenue factory, and once more petitions for the extension of the sewer through Jefferson avenue. The waste liquids from the shop pass into the brook which flows down by Jefferson avenue and thence south through a thickly settled portion of the city, giving rise to evil and unwholesome odors which have caused to be sent to this board many and just petitions for relief. That a nuisance exists is unquestioned, and we are of the opinion that but one of these methods can be adopted for its abatement. Either close the shop or extend the sewer from Prospect street to Eastern avenue. The first alternative is not to be thought of, and we ask your honorable body to again give the matter of the construction of the sewer careful consideration."

The shop referred to is the Robertson leather factory, where inspectors of the Winchester board recently discovered sewage entering the brook. It is thought the proposed sewer will wholly relieve the situation so far as the Robertson plant is concerned, but it is said to be an open question whether the metropolitan sewer board will permit the waste matter to enter the system, unless it shall be filtered.

A member of the Winchester selectmen has advised petitioners to pool issues and secure services of a lawyer with a view to seeking an injunction that will restrain the factories from emptying waste matter into the waterway. Already a number of families living near Cross street, where the brook enters Winchester territory, threaten it is said, to give up their homes unless there shall be a speedy solution of the problem.

MIDDLESEX CANAL.

Labor was not easily procured, probably from the scarcity of laborers, as the wages paid, averaging $10 a month and board, which was $2 a week, were presumably as much as could be earned in manual labor elsewhere. "An order was sent to England for a leveling instrument made by S. & W. Jones, of London, and this was the only instrument used for engineering purposes after the first survey by Weston." Two routes were considered: the rejected route was forty years later selected for the Lowell railroad. The canal, 30 feet wide, 4 feet deep, with twenty locks, seven aqueducts, and crossed by fifty bridges, was in 1802 sufficiently completed for the admission of water, and the following year was opened to public navigation from the Merrimack to the Charles. The cost up to this was but little more than the estimate, amounting to about $500,000, of which one third was land damages.

Of the nine petitioners for a charter, seven, including the chairman and clerk of the preliminary meetings, were citizens of Medford. In the first board of directors—John Brooks, Ebenezer Hall, Jonathan Porter—were Medford men. Of the eight hundred shares, into which the capital stock was divided, more than one-fifth of the entire issue was taken in Medford; and, though the stockholders never received an adequate return for their investment, the town was enriched by the development of a great shipbuilding industry along the banks of the Mystic.

Beginning at Charlestown millpond, with which it communicated by a tide lock, the canal passed under Main street across the Neck. Dipping under the Medford turnpike, it followed the edge of the marsh, along Mt. Benedict, to the base of Winter Hill, which it closely skirted on the northerly side, through the present Mystic Trotting Park, by the Royal house, to Main street, at which point it sent off a branch canal connecting by two locks with the Mystic. Passing under Main street, it ran along the line of Summer street, under South street, a little further on, in its later days, under a railroad bridge (the lateral walls of which are still visible in the embankment) to the Mystic, which is spanned by a wooden aqueduct of 100 feet, resting on stone piers which now support Boston avenue bridge. Following nearly the line of Boston avenue, it kept along the Mystic ponds, passing through Winchester west of Wedge pond to Horn pond, in Woburn. Traversing Woburn and Wilmington, it crossed the Shawshien by an aqueduct of 137 feet, and struck the Concord, from which it received its water at Billerica mills. Entering the Concord by a stone guard lock, it crossed, with a floating tow-path, and passed out on the northern side through another stone guard-lock, thence it descended 27 feet in a course of 5 1/4 miles, through Chelmsford to the Merrimack, making its entire length 27 1/4 miles.

The proprietors made Charlestown bridge the eastern terminus for their boats, but ultimate communication was opened with the wharves and markets upon the harbor through Mill creek, over a section of which Blackstone street now extends.

To be continued.

Sour Stomach.

When the quantity of food taken is too large or the quality too rich, sour stomach is likely to follow, and especially so if the digestion has been weakened by constipation. Eat slowly and not too freely of easily digested food. Masticate the food thoroughly. Let five hours elapse between meals, and when you feel a fullness and weight in the region of the stomach after eating, take Chamberlain's Stomach and Liver Tablets and the sour stomach may be avoided. It is a noticeable fact that within the past few months, many of our prominent townspeople have been wearing broad smiles, and citizens of the surrounding towns have caught the thread of this smile producer.

It seems that one of our local tradesmen has invented what is known as a "Broken Arch Boot" which he has added to his regular line of stock, and this circumstance has caused all the merriment.

Having suffered intense pain from broken down arches, they decided to have Bridges make their shoes.

Immediate relief was obtained; doctors' irons were discarded, and perfect comfort was assured in a smart looking boot of honest workmanship, superb finish and sterling worth.

Perfect fitting shoes are a prevention for cold feet, and no feet are so troublesome, but that Bridges can fit them perfectly.

THE STAR

A Tragedy Of Chance

By HOWARD FIELDING

Copyright, 1903, by Charles W. Hooke

As I passed along the upper hall the door of Ormond's room opened, and I thought that he was coming out, but it was the wind that had swung the door ajar. Looking in, I saw my cousin's tall and meager form huddled in a corner of the window seat. There was no light burning in the room, but outside was an electric street lamp elevated nearly to the height of the window, and so the man appeared to me sharply silhouetted.

While I watched him through the crack of the door he began to speak aloud. I had often known him to do this when he thought himself alone.

IN A CHAIR SAT THE MAN WHOM WE CALLED UNCLE.

"Should I tell this?" he cried. "Should I see it for the crime that it is if I did not love her?"

I knew well enough what he was thinking about. A perfect echo of that agonized question rang in my own mind. I saw the crime, as he saw it, and I loved her deeper than he did, for he had not my strength.

Picture a girl of eighteen who is the sum of all holy and beautiful promises, like some pure flower in the morning. Picture a man past fifty, a world, smiling, self contented, successful human animal, a man so entirely common that he has not even a pet vice to make himself distinctive, a man who has won many distinctions in the world and will take this girl in the same way as his due for the effort expended in the matter. Fancy that she will give herself for gratitude because the man has been kind to her because he has fed and clothed her since she was a child, having been the friend of her father, who died poor and without kin.

Ormond began to walk up and down before the window, and thinking that he would see me, I passed on to the head of the stairs and so to the drawing room, where Gladys was playing on the piano.

In a large easy chair sat the man whom we all called uncle, though he bore that relationship to none of us. There was a trace of the between Mr. Greer and myself, but I am not sufficiently versed in such matters to give it a name. Ormond would have found the task even more difficult in his own case, and as to Gladys, there was not even a legal relationship.

Mr. Greer's eyes were half shut, so that he could see nothing clearly except Gladys' face and her hair, which had a red glow in the light of the piano lamp. He heard me, but did not turn his head or speak. He waved his left hand gently toward me as a warning to be quiet, while his right, with the fat-finger pointing toward the girl, continued to beat time somewhat laboriously.

He never cared what Gladys played, enjoying all kinds of music equally, so long as her hands evoked it from the instrument. I have seen him sit and smile and smile like a great comic wax doll and beat time contentedly to a nocturne of Chopin's fit to make the soul weep in one's body. And when it would be over he would slap down his fat palm hard upon the arm of the chair and say in a good tone, a pretty tone, and nobody else but Gladys could play it as it ought to be played. Then she would laugh at him and tease him with chords and dissonances which he couldn't tell apart, but he would be pleased to think that she was teasing him, and tears of joy would come into his eyes.

On this particular occasion the girl was wrapped up in music and the man in that crude, half childish happiness which her presence always yielded him. I sunk into a chair and viewed this homely and familiar spectacle with horror, as I had not failed to do since the day when, with an absurd frankness which he himself was far from intending, Mr. Greer had revealed his hopes to all of us. I neither heard nor saw Ormond enter the room, but I felt him there. He had his back against the frame of the doorway, and so he stood and scowled at Mr. Greer.

In this singular household there had grown up through the years a strong habit of cheerfulness. Even Ormond loved and loathed at home, though I think he never did so elsewhere. Mr. Greer loved laughter, and he possessed a quiet wit that could provoke it, a wit without subtlety and without coarseness, amusingly dull, like Dundreary's, and irresistible in the perfect sincerity of its good nature. There had never been a quarrel in that house, never a meal without the benediction of merriment, never an evening when we sat together in gloom, and I mention it as a curiosity of human nature, that this habit survived by many months the mutual affection that had given it birth.

When Gladys had finished playing and had received the usual praise Mr. Greer insisted that we should sing for him, and Ormond and I took our places by the piano, just as we had done so many times before. In vocal music our uncle had preferences, and we sang what pleased him, old fashioned tunes such as we had long since outgrown, though they were the same to him as they had always been to me. He was a perfect automaton, to whom the music meant as little as it meant to the piano. Suddenly, at the close of one of the songs, he turned away and dropped heavily into a chair.

"It's time to go to bed," said Mr. Greer, shutting the case of his big watch with a loud snap. "Ring the bell, Ormond, like a good fellow. You can reach it."

Ormond seemed to awake with a start, as from a bad dream. He touched the bell, and then resumed his seat. Through out the absurd, familiar scene that followed he watched Mr. Greer with eyes like two burning coals.

A servant entered with a small tray upon which were very beautiful gold goblets and a silver pitcher containing pure water. When these things had been set before him Mr. Greer took from his pocket a gold box. The lid flew back as he pressed the spring.

"Will you join me tonight, Ormond?" said Mr. Greer. "No, you, Jack? Gladys, my dear, allow me to persuade you? Really, your children don't know what's good. I have plenty," he continued, with a laugh. "I filled the box today. Tonight's nightcap and a few more are in it. It has no more medicinal quality than Adam's ale, as anybody can see by reading our elegiacs, and yet I don't believe that I could sleep without it."

He filled one of the goblets with water and dropped into it a bronze lined tablet about the size of a five cent piece. Gladys took from the box. It dissolved with amazing suddenness, filling the water with bubbles and imparting to it the color of pale amber. In fact, a keen eye would have been needed to distinguish this fraudulent liquor from champagne, and in assured that there are palates which detect a close similarity.

"I have given to the world a true temperance drink," said Mr. Greer. "Assess the stomach, doesn't harm the brain. This is my luck. It is contained in the golden goblet, in which the myrtle berries rise with a faint tinging, and the look of every man who drinks it and gets stronger, braver alone. It has made one man rich, it will make no man poor. Gladys, my dear, your health!"

He drained the glass, not at a draft but with prolonged enjoyment, and set it down. The servant removed the tray with one moist goblet and three dry, as always, for it was an unvarying joke to offer Greer's pocket to us.

These ridiculous tablets were the foundation of uncounted wealth. He was a poor man when he invented them. They have had an enormous sale in many lands, and several factories are always busy with the making of them. Mr. Greer who could afford all his collars with the product of the same, limits his drinking to this chemical imposture. I am convinced that he really likes it, though he never overindulges. One glass before retiring is his very moderate allowance, and the taking of it has long been attended with such neck solemnity as I have just described.

The gold box for the tablets was a family affair. It was given to him as a Christmas present. He had used a cheap silver plated box of his own purchasing before that time, but he would never carry it afterward. It was put away with the twenty tablets which it happened to contain at the time, and my uncle's valet was sent across town to the factory on a Christmas day for a fresh supply in honor of the little golden casket.

Mr. Greer always held it as a precious. The largest pocket of his ample waistcoat is its dwelling place. Upon this evening I thought he put it away with an especially interesting gesture. Then he kissed Gladys upon the red gold curls above her forehead, like an open book, and his own best in since she was a child, "God bless her!" She is only a child now. Shall she not have her youth and the roses of romance whatever thorns they hide?

When Mr. Greer had withdrawn to his room, I found myself alone with Gladys. Ormond had left the room, I knew not how, but there was something in the silence and the mystery of it that inspired me with a foolish alarm. My nerves were on edge. I would have started at a shadow.

"Gladys," said I, checking her at the door, "do you know which way we are drinking?"

"No two of us the same way. I fancy," she replied. "But let's not speak of it."

"There is no engagement, no promise," "Between whom?" she asked, smiling. And then with a far different manner, "I will not pretend that I do not know what you mean. I am going to tell you a secret which is between ourselves absolutely. Uncle Henry wants me to marry him, and I shall do it if I can. I love him, and he would help me. He is a very noble, generous, honorable man."

"This is no secret," said I. "The very servants know it."

"Let us pretend that it is a secret," she replied. "And for its greater security we will not mention it even to each other. Good night."

I remained alone in the room. Presently a servant entered and put out the lights, not perceiving me, for I had walked to a window and was shrouded by the long and heavy curtains. When the man had gone I threw myself into a great chair and lost all track of time in the depth of my meditation.

The opening of the outer door startled me. I heard a stealthy step in the hall, and turning, I saw Loren, my uncle's valet. He had taken some late evening without leave and was stealing in secret. There was no harm in this fellow, and I shot my eyes to his little mystery. Ten minutes later I followed him up the stairs.

To my surprise, Loren was loitering near the door of my room. As I was about to speak to him he made a gesture of caution and then passed into the apartment ahead of me.

"I don't quite know what to make of it, sir," said he. "I was in the hall a few minutes ago, and I saw Mr. Ormond coming out of Mr. Greer's room. He didn't see me, sir, for I stepped out of his way, but he passed quite close, and I saw that he had that gold box in his hand."

"Go on," said I, seeing that he had more to tell.

"I looked into his room, through the keyhole," continued Loren. "He had taken the little tablets out of the box and seemed to be painting one of them, sir, with a brush no bigger than a match that he dipped into a bit of a glass saucer like a watch crystal. Then he put them all back the one that he had painted with the others. What do you make of it, sir?"

"I make this of it," said I. "That you must not repeat one word of this story to any one. You have done right to tell me, but you must tell nobody else."

I had some slight head upon the man and his liking besides, as he had let me know, and so I got a promise from him which could be relied upon. After that I sent him to bed and kept watch in the wall until I saw Ormond, pale, tremulous, unsteady, creep to my uncle's room bearing the little gold box.

An hour afterward I, too, crept softly in, having made a plan meanwhile. Mr. Greer slept heavily, and after the first few minutes moved about his room without conscious. The gold box was in its place, and I found also the old silver one in a drawer of his desk. I took one tablet from the silver box and destroyed it, so that there remained nineteen in each. Then I changed the contents of the box and replaced the gold box with its own harmless tablets in my uncle's pocket. The silver box, in which there must now be one tablet poisoned by Ormond, I restored to the desk, first breaking the spring of the lid so that it could not be opened.

By this stratagem I had preserved Mr. Greer from any further danger during nineteen days, and I had prepared a long punishment for the assassin. Every evening he must watch what he would think to be the game of chance, with death and his own soul at the stake. He could not know whether the poisoned tablet would be used the first evening or the nineteenth. He would have to wait for it in horror.

I wonder how many years were crowded into those nineteen days for Ormond. He grew haggard, and his flaming eyes sank further into his head. Mr. Greer often spoke of his altered looks, suggesting a rest from business, a sea voyage or a few weeks in the woods with dogs and gun. But Ormond had forged his own chain.

As for me, I found a mad fascination in watching him every evening, seeing him more pallid, more shaken, more bitterly determined to preserve that self control which was slowly slipping away from him. I passed the last, when there remained but few of the tablets, so that to him, no doubt, it seemed an incredible and personally vindictive chance which ruled the matter. I often thought that he would spring to his feet and shriek aloud as my uncle raised the goblet to his lips.

And on the evening when there remained but two? How shall I describe the tension of that scene? It seemed to me that the blindness of my uncle and Gladys was beyond belief, yet the world is full of such blindness.

"Only two more tonight," said my uncle, opening the box. "Shall we finish them? Gladys, my child, join me tonight. Come, I insist."

He filled two glasses, and I saw Ormond grip the chair. He had already drunk enough to detect an unusual earnestness in Mr. Greer's tone. She looked at him quickly and then laughed.

"I fear nothing the fatal appetite," she said, "and yet this once I will accept the risk."

Mr. Greer dropped a tablet into each of the goblets, and he raised his own. Ormond's head was reeling upon his spine. I could see the beads of the sweat of agony upon his forehead. He seemed to be striving to rise from his chair to speed to the fire alarm in his coat of waiting, but he held him by the throat.

"Pardon, excuse!" I cried, springing to my feet. "This is unbearable. Would you risk her life?"

My uncle paused with the goblet at his lips. In fact, he had already drunk though Gladys had not. They both stared at me, but neither found words.

Ormond sprang forward to the table by which they were standing. He leaned heavily upon it and his eyes were burning a queer, life giving blue.

"I know the whole truth!" said I. "Will you deny it? Then I defy you to drink from that glass!"

I pointed to the one which Gladys had set down. A terrible shudder passed over Ormond's frame, and the swivel of his face wholly changed so that he looked more like the Ormond of old days.

"It's the best way," he said quite calmly. "God forgive me!"

He raised the glass to his lips and drained it at a draft.

Mr. Greer was looking at him with a strange expression, and his voice was choked as with grief when he spoke.

"It won't hurt you, Ormond," he said. "I took 'em all out. I was awake the night when you came into my room and stole the box. I was awake when you brought it back. I know what you had done that year you'd poisoned one or more of the tablets because, well, because of Gladys. I know it, and what should I do about it?"

"What was the question?"

"Well, it was too much for a plain man like me," he added. "I see that now. I should have taken advice. But it seemed so easy then."

Alexander's Horse. Bucephalus, the horse of Alexander the Great, was in all probability the most celebrated horse of which we have any knowledge. He was bought for the sum of 10 talents from Philonides out of his breeding pastures of Phrygia, and it is known that he was sketched, or, in other words, white, clouded with large deep bay spots, this peculiar breed being valued by the Persians above all others, but being disliked by the Romans because so easily seen in the dark.

Bucephalus was ridden by Alexander at the battle of the Hydaspes and there received his death wound. Disobedient for once to the command of his master, he galloped from the heat of the battle, brought Alexander to a place of safety, knelt, as was his custom, for him to alight, and having thus performed his duty, trembled, dropped down and died.

A Good Rule of Life.

A man cannot afford to have an enemy, even a humble enemy. The shady fellow who storms your office today may be a power in the community next year. Therefore speak to him gently, send him away with a smile. Never affect a contemptuous manner. That is the way of the fool. In the day of small things plan patiently for the day of great things. A polite word costs nothing. It may turn out to be a good investment. As a spark of fire may turn a city into ashes, so an impatient gesture or irritable word may kindle a hatred great enough to destroy a career.

The Giant Petrel.

The giant petrel of the arctic regions will feed on oil until it is so absolutely gorged as to be unable to rise off the ice in flight. Then it runs along the ice if chased, spreading its wings out as sails. Before being captured, however, the petrel will suddenly stop and discharge a quantity of semidigested food and then go off on a run again. If overtaken a second time it will repeat the performance and when once it has got rid of its dinner flies away.

He Began to Talk Business.

"I shall make you love me yet," declared Mr. Stinny determinedly. "I shall leave no stone unturned."

"Ah, that sounds something like," exclaimed the fair girl. "If the stone weighs not less than a carat and is pure white you may interest me." Exchange.

THE ENGINEER'S STORY.

Why He Had a Crying Fit When No One Was Even Hurt.

"Yes, indeed, we have some queer little incidents happen to us," said the fat engineer. "Queer things happened to me about a year ago. You'd think it queer for a rough man like me to cry for ten minutes, and nobody hurt either, wouldn't you? Well, I did, and I can cry almost every time I think of it."

"I was running along one afternoon pretty lively when I approached a little village where the track cuts through the streets. I slacked up a little, but was still making good speed, when suddenly, about twenty rods ahead of me, a little girl not more than three years old toddled on to the track. You can't even imagine my feelings. There was no way to save her. It was impossible to stop or even slack much at that distance, as the train was heavy and the grade descending. In ten seconds it would have been all over, and after reversing and applying the brake I shut my eyes. I didn't want to see any more."

"As we slowed down my fireman stuck his head out of the cab window to see what I'd stopped for, and he laughed and shouted at me, 'Jim, look here!' I looked, and there was a big Newfoundland dog holding the little girl in his mouth, leisurely walking toward the house where she evidently belonged. She was kicking and crying, so that I knew she wasn't hurt, and the dog had saved her. My fireman thought it funny and kept laughing, but I cried like a woman. I just couldn't help it. I had a little girl of my own at home."—Galveston Tribune.

COOKING A CAT.

Northern Italy Would Rather Have Puss Roasted Than Boiled.

In northern Italy the cat is a favorite and growing article of food. In Anzio, in Venice, in Verona, butchers sell cats and call them rabbits. For the state forbids the eating of cats, but the poor people who have become the chief buyers of the interior kinds of cats are not deceived by their cheap rabbits.

The proper way to cook a cat is to toast it in an oven until brown, with onions, garlic, parsley, bay leaf, red wine and some herbs peculiar to Italy. When boiled, it is not so satisfactory. Just before Christmas it is common for a group of young men in northern Italy to kill some cats, skin them and soak them in water for two or three days. They are then cooked with great care on Christmas day and served up hot about 1:30 p. m. after mass.

Tally cativates the cat for home consumption, as English people raise rabbits. It is to be done on the quiet, however, for in spite of the profit in the business and the demand for the delicacy the law has to be looked out for, and the Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Cats is vigilant. Offenses against the law are visited with imprisonment. Cats are raised for the market none the less. Fattened on the finest of milk, a choice specimen will attain the weight of fifteen pounds. —Boston Transcript.

Alexander's Horse.

Bucephalus, the horse of Alexander the Great, was in all probability the most celebrated horse of which we have any knowledge. He was bought for the sum of 10 talents from Philonides out of his breeding pastures of Phrygia, and it is known that he was sketched, or, in other words, white, clouded with large deep bay spots, this peculiar breed being valued by the Persians above all others, but being disliked by the Romans because so easily seen in the dark.

Bucephalus was ridden by Alexander at the battle of the Hydaspes and there received his death wound. Disobedient for once to the command of his master, he galloped from the heat of the battle, brought Alexander to a place of safety, knelt, as was his custom, for him to alight, and having thus performed his duty, trembled, dropped down and died.

A Good Rule of Life.

A man cannot afford to have an enemy, even a humble enemy. The shady fellow who storms your office today may be a power in the community next year. Therefore speak to him gently, send him away with a smile. Never affect a contemptuous manner. That is the way of the fool. In the day of small things plan patiently for the day of great things. A polite word costs nothing. It may turn out to be a good investment. As a spark of fire may turn a city into ashes, so an impatient gesture or irritable word may kindle a hatred great enough to destroy a career.

The Giant Petrel.

The giant petrel of the arctic regions will feed on oil until it is so absolutely gorged as to be unable to rise off the ice in flight. Then it runs along the ice if chased, spreading its wings out as sails. Before being captured, however, the petrel will suddenly stop and discharge a quantity of semidigested food and then go off on a run again. If overtaken a second time it will repeat the performance and when once it has got rid of its dinner flies away.

He Began to Talk Business.

"I shall make you love me yet," declared Mr. Stinny determinedly. "I shall leave no stone unturned."

"Ah, that sounds something like," exclaimed the fair girl. "If the stone weighs not less than a carat and is pure white you may interest me." Exchange.

The Voice of the Turtle Dove.

One of the most complete misapprehensions with regard to the voices of birds occurs when we listen to the monosyllabic coo of the restless turtle dove. By no means a musical sound in itself, yet it is so bound up in our minds with the sleepy glamour of summer afternoons that we imagine the sitting dove as crooning to her. If from sheer contentment with her lot. Very different is the reality. That drowsy monosyllabic is the voice of the male dove, not of the hen upon the nest, and while he utters it his antlers are ludicrous to observe. Usually he is giving peremptory orders to his wife to get off the nest, in order that he may take her place, and if she hesitates to obey he enforces his commands with sharp pecks upon the head. At other times he seems merely to order her off the nest for the pleasure of witnessing her devotion to his person, after which he will suddenly become abstracted in manner and presently go off to the feeding place. —London Graphic.

The Tyrant Prima Donna.

It is the rarest thing to find that any famous prima donna ever "created" a new role of any artistic importance or associated herself with the interpretation of the music of any young composer, no matter how gifted. Her choice of songs in the concert room alternates between luckless favorites and absolutely worthless novelties. Alone among the great exponents, the prima donna has been conspicuous for her abstinence from any efforts to achieve distinction as a composer.

Handed a short way with the prima donna, and threatened to throw her out of the window if she would not sing what he had written for her. Wagner went further, and refused to write for the prima donna at all. And Verdi, in "Falstaff," did throw her out of the window and gave the leading part to a baritone. To the music lover the prima donna is a nuisance, and a very expensive one. —Divisions of a Music Lover.

Millepedes.

The little creature, which possesses the distinction of having more legs than any other animal so that which belongs to the family of insects known as millepedes, or thousand footed. There are several different species of these, but they all possess the same characteristic of having so many feet, each segment of which is provided with its own pair of feet. These are set so closely along the body as to resemble hairs, and when they move one after another with perfect regularity the effect is precisely the same on a small scale as that of a field of oats undulating under the influence of the wind. Some species of millepedes have as many as 350 separate and distinct legs. They are all perfectly harmless, unlike the centipeds, which frequently have the power of inflicting poisonous wounds.

The Name of Sally Lunn.

Every one knows what a Sally Lunn is, but few people have any idea how this particularly nice kind of tea cake got its name. Sally Lunn was a Bath celebrity, who kept a cake shop, which was a favorite resort of both youth and age in the old west country town. Sally originally carried out her cakes, morning and evening, in a basket with a white cover. Later on her small shop in Lilliput alley became a favorite haunt, and Dalmer, a baker and musician, seeing that it was a very good thing, bought the business, composed a song and set it to music. This song became a popular street ditty, barrows were used to distribute the cakes, and Dalmer finally retired on the profits of the business.

Disraeli's Devoted Wife.

On the way down to Hatfield Mrs. Disraeli had a fall on the premises of a dealer in marble and cut her face most severely. When she reached her destination she took her hostess aside and said: "My husband is preparing a great speech. If he finds out that I have had this accident he will be quite upset. I want you take me straight up to my room and say I've a headache. He has lost his eyeglass, and if you put me a long way from him at dinner he will never see what condition I am in." The plan answered admirably, and Disraeli did not find out what had happened for two days. Diary of Sir Mount Stuart Grant Duff.

Impertinent.

"And when we're married," he said, "we'll have to take a nice little flat up town somewhere."

"Oh, no, Henry," she replied, "we'll simply have to live somewhere in the country, because I'm sure one of our wedding presents will be a lawn mower. Mrs. Subbubs as much as told me she was going to give us one."—Philadelphia Press.

Cut Rates.

Patient (regarding his lacerated face in the mirror)—You surely are not going to charge me full price for that shave? Barber—Ain't I? Why not? Patient—I think you ought to give me cut rates!

Unsatisfactory Business.

Doctor—What are you by profession? Patient—Oh, I'm—er—er—a gentleman. Doctor—I should try something else then. It doesn't agree with you.—New Yorker.

Russell, Carrie Birch and Celia Richardson, colored, are charged with disturbing an open air religious service of the Second Baptist church came up for trial last Friday, Rev. W. H. Mitchell pastor of the church was the first witness and his testimony occupied all the forenoon. An unusual feature was when Mayor Feeney, counsel for the defendants, asked the pastor to repeat his sermon. The request was granted and for an hour his honor and the court were forced to listen to a strenuous exposition of the text. The speaker seemed to think himself in his accustomed pulpit, and went through his discourse with characteristic fervor. The case was continued to Saturday. It is rumored that the trouble is being settled.

Soundings taken show that the mill pond in one place, near the boulevard, has filled eight feet within five years. In other sections the bottom is from two to five feet higher than several years ago. Colonel N. A. Richardson is a veteran in years as well as in some other respects. He was 84 years old on Aug. 20, 1904, but to look at him one would hardly think it for he is still spry and robust. When Colonel Richardson dies, if he ever does, a whole lot of unpublished history will expire with him. He has, in years past, told a great deal about Woburn and Winchester people of yore old times, and told it in a most entertaining way, but I suspect that what he knows and hasn't told would fill a large volume. By good rights he ought to devote a share of his spare time to writing sketches of men and things that he has known about in his long lifetime and leave them for posthumous publication. If too much of a task to give them to the public before he puts on angel wings. The Colonel is a genial and courteous old gentleman, and has a heap of friends in Winchester. (Woburn Journal.)

They object to having it pass into the custody of the United States or the Grand Army of the Republic for perpetual keeping. They want it to be placed in some personal charge, or in some institution in Rhode Island. They have engaged counsel, and every attempt will be made to have the drum taken back to a place designated by the one who claims he is its owner.

Y. M. C. A. BASKET BALL TEAM.

As winter approaches interest in basket ball is beginning to become manifest among the young men of the local Young Men's Christian Association. The team of last year was among the best in this section of the State and the number of games won was phenomenal. It is hoped to put as good a team in the field this winter and thus maintain the Association's superiority in this healthy indoor game.

Attitude of the Bowler.

The bowling season will open Oct. 5. Of course every one has a hobby. The greatest excitement in this game is shown when a match is on. The veteran bowler glances his eyes on the head pin in the pyramid, which, to the ordinary mortal, seems quite near, but to the player apparently it seems over a mile away. Under the ordinary rules of warfare he should carry a range finder, but lacking this he swings the huge wooden ball backward and forward, side-stepping like a pugilist, anticipating a blow from his adversary, all the time keeping his eye down the alley. When the sphere finally leaves his hand one would think that the player had been possessed of some evil spirit; that he hailed from Salem and some of the blood of the witches was in him, or again like a man whose wife had just told him that his mother-in-law was going to stay a week. He falls on all fours and his eyes seemingly fall from their sockets as they try to follow the ball. His face is gnarled and knotted like a century-old oak. His legs take on a grapevine twist and everybody has sympathy for him. 'Tis a great game, no doubt, but the exercise one gets in throwing the ball does not compensate the gallery for the nervous prostration which they are afflicted with watching the man who throws the ball. However, let 'em up again.—[Herald.]

The Medford Candidate.

If Medford folks succeed in securing a man who fills the bill, according to the advertisement in the local paper, for a representative in the general courts, they will do well to nominate him, at once as the Medford candidate for the presidency of the United States and not hamper him by sending him to the legislature, or any such lowly place as a preliminary. Here is what they should have, according to the local paper:

A man with a mind broadened by reading; with a wide observation of things at home and abroad (presumably including the Russian Japanese war); a man of intelligence; a prudent man (not to mean penurious in election bills); a man who will not meddle with side issues; a man without fads or hobbies; a positive man; a man who, knowing the truth, dares maintain it; a man loyal to the city; a man free from fetters, promises and trades.

His compensation, if elected, it might be remarked, will still continue at $750 a year, with or without virtues.—[Practical Politics.]

An Early Bird.

Eddie Mellen, the popular conductor who runs the early car for Arlington scheduled to leave Reading at 5:15 in the morning, did a queer stunt Thursday. He reached the car barn as usual (so he thought) despite the terrific rain storm, but there was no sign of "Charlie," his motorman. Eddie did some tall hustling and managed to hunt up another motorman and pulled out. Just where he was at when he discovered that it was only 4:15, we don't know, but true it is that he was just an hour ahead of time. Wonder what Charlie thought when he found the car gone? Eddie says that he was so anxious to see if the tracks had been obstructed by the storm that he thought it wise to get an early start, and he was right, for he was fairly forced to dig his way from Wincheser to Arlington, so much sand and mud covered the tracks.—[Stoneham Independent.]

First Baptist Church Notes.

It was a great inspiration to us to have with us last Sunday evening one of the outgoing missionaries, the Rev. F. Merriam of Grand Rapids, Mich., designated to Sendai, Japan.

A large number of our people attended the farewell missionary services in Boston, Monday evening. Fifteen sailed Wednesday from Boston, others are sailing from New York, and a larger party will sail from San Francisco in October.

The Mission Band will meet on Monday at 4 p. m.

In Memoriam.

Died at Bath, Maine, Mrs. Hannah Wiggins, 97 years of age. Mrs. Wiggins, the aunt of S. C. Small, Mrs. E. A. Smith and Mrs. C. H. Cowdery of this town, was the last of a family of eight, all of whom lived to advanced ages. Mrs. Wiggins' mother, Mrs. Sarah Jacques Small, lived to be 104 years. Rufus Small, the oldest son, lived to be 96 and never used glasses. Read his Universalist paper, the Gospel Banner, for 30 years.

Fruit Thieves.

Fruit thieves are common in many parts of the town. What makes it particularly difficult to obtain conviction after an arrest is the refusal of the victims to appear in court to testify against the thieves. So long as this disinclination to appear in court prevails, the thieves are pretty certain to have their way and become more bold.

After the Mirror.

On Sunday morning a resident at Hillcrest discovered a man in one of the unoccupied houses near the water tower, off Highland avenue. The man was seen through a window in the dining room of the house working at something behind the wooden mantle, which had been pulled out from the wall. When he discovered that he was being watched he went rapidly into another room, while the resident, thinking the man was the owner of the house, continued around to the front. Here the front door was open and a scotch terrier dog seated on the steps. Supposing the owner had opened the door, the resident continued to the street, when the man he had seen in the house appeared coming up the street whistling. The resident stopped and allowed the man to pass, which he did and without a glance toward the house continued down the road, merely saying "hello" as he passed. When called to whistler for his dog he pretended not to understand what was meant and continued on. Suspecting something wrong the resident entered the house and found that the hardwood mantle over the fireplace in the dining room had been pulled down and rested on a couple of props while the boards at the back of the mirror were almost ripped off.

The resident immediately telephoned to the police and officers were at once sent to the house, the dog meanwhile refusing to leave and laying down under the mantle where his master had been at work.

Investigation showed that entrance had been gained either through the cellar or by a window, the thief unlocking the doors, which had spring locks, after he entered, so that he could easily escape if discovered. He was evidently after the large plate glass mirror, as nothing else had been disturbed. It is thought that after running away from the house he missed his dog and ventured to walk by whistling in hope of recovering it. When he did so, however, the dog had gone inside to find him.

The dog refused to leave the house and finally was taken away by the officers. The man is described as thick set with grey or dark clothes and no collar. He wore a straw hat with a wide curved brim and was probably a foreigner.

Horse and Carriage Stolen.

Last Saturday afternoon a well dressed man appeared at Kelley & Hawes stable and asked for a turnout to go to Elm Farm in No. Reading. The man said he was temporarily residing in Winchester and wanted the horse and carriage for about three hours. Mr. Kelley in talking with the stranger became suspicious and informed him that there was no such farm in No. Reading and refused to let him have a turnout. The man then went to the Dinsmore stable and in the absence of Mr. Keith, the proprietor, hired an outfit from the foreman. The man and team not returning, Mr. Keith on Sunday notified the police in all the surrounding cities and towns, but up to the present time no trace of either has been secured.

The horse was a valuable one, and the buggy was practically new, both being valued at about $450. The work is supposed to have been done by a professional horse thief, and his capture is problematical as he will no doubt dispose of the outfit outside of the state.

Defamed Minister.

EDITOR OF THE STAR:

The Rev. Mr. C. H. Johnson feels that he has been grossly slandered by the long and widespread false rumors that have been circulated against him. He said at the outset that the charges were absolutely false and that he would prove it before the matter was settled. He has a great many friends in his congregation who gave him all the financial aid he needed to prove that the slanderous rumor was false. The grand jury carefully examined the evidence given against him and formed the conclusion that he was innocent.

The facts in the assertion can be easily obtained from reliable sources. During the continued case Mr. Johnson and his witnesses never had a hearing, and when the case was submitted to the grand jury they pronounced him not guilty and the case was nol prossed without any trial. It is said that there are several others who took part in the conspiracy. The detective has a clue on one who he will bring forward when the time comes for him to do so. Since Dec., 1903, Mr. Johnson has been pastor of the Colored Baptist Church of Winchester, and has made himself deservedly popular among the leading ministers of Winchester and Boston East Association who promise to render all the necessary need to help his church. A Queer Decision.

A case in Wareham is of interest to grape raisers. A man there raised grapes made wine and sold it, but not drank on the premises. The Supreme Court decided that the grower became a manufacturer of intoxicating liquor when he added sugar to home made wine to keep it.

A Pretty Wedding.

A very pretty wedding took place last evening at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Rufus Bridges of Highland avenue, the contracting parties being Mr. Rufus R. Bridges of this town and Miss Jennie Hunt of Derby, Vt. The ceremony took place in a corner of the room under an arch composed of wild flowers and fern, and suspended from the centre was a beautiful floral bell made up of bright red flowers which formed a pleasing contrast to the rich dark green of the fern. A large number of potted plants were placed about the room. The ceremony was performed by Rev. D. Augustine Newton, and the bride was given away by her brother, Warren W. Hunt. The bridesmaid was Miss Bessie Kelley and the best man was Mr. Ralph D. Bridges, brother of the groom. The bride was very becomingly attired in a handsome costume of India muslin and carried white roses. Miss Kelley was gowned in white muslin and carried white carnations.

Lobengrin's wedding march was played by Mr. Harold Bridges as the wedding party entered the room. After the wedding there was a reception followed by an enjoyable social hour. Guests were present from Newburyport, Lynn, Hull, Somerville, Portland, Me., and elsewhere. The wedding presents were rich and costly and included silver ware, linens and furniture. On their return from a wedding journey to Derby, Vt., the young couple will be at home to their friends at their residence on Highland avenue.

Many People Interested in Y. M. C. A.

Four hundred invitations are being sent out to Y. M. C. A. members, subscribers and friends for the big opening reception of Sept. 29th. A first class entertainment will be given.

A new pool table arrived on Thursday for the use of senior members.

Mr. Leonard Waters has organized his boys' work committee. A Boys' Reception is being planned.

Mr. Douglas Karns will represent the membership committee at the McKay factory.

A large "Social Bible class for all men" will open Sunday, 4 p. m., October 16th. Mr. A. M. Smith of Boston has been secured as teacher. Mr. Smith has had remarkable success as a Bible teacher and comes to us highly recommended. Being young and magnetic in person he ought to attract large numbers of men.

Students are already joining the mechanical drawing classes.

Any young man of good moral character may become a member of the Y. M. C. A. Over 60 became members at this home last year.

The new prospectus is very attractive. This time it appears in a bright grey cover with the design of a triangle. In the triangle are the words "The Making of men." This little book was published by the Winchester Star.

A novel feature in connection with the reception next Thursday evening is the guessing contest. Among others who will assist on the programme are Miss Jane Bacon, a graduate of the Boston Conservatory of Music, and J. S. Gains of the Boston School of Expression.

Call or write at once to the secretary of the Y. M. C. A. if you desire to enter the Mechanical Drawing Class. Prof. Ashley of Tufts College will instruct again. The terms are easy—only 25c a lesson and a Y. M. C. A. ticket included.

The boys' baletto table will be sent to Boston for a new cover.

WEDGE POND BATHERS.

The above picture represents a scene in front of the Y. M. C. A. bath house on Wedge Pond where the Association boys have disposed themselves during the warm days of the past summer. A feature of this bathing place, and one most commendable, was the large number of boys who mastered the art of swimming under the tutelage of an officer of the Association.

FINED FOR TRANSFER FRAUDS

Five New Haven Merchants Plead Guilty to "Passing Along" Transfers on Local Trolley Lines.

NEW HAVEN, Ct., Sept. 15, 1904. Five prominent merchants, Louis C. Loomis, Frank Murray, John Gilbert, David A. Burrows and Henry A. Smith, paid fines ranging from $14.85 to $34.85 today for trying to defraud the local trolley company by "passing along" transfers. All pleaded guilty.

Corey-Armsby.

A very pretty home wedding occurred at the residence of Mr. and Mrs. Edward C. Brown of Wrentham on Thursday evening, when two young people, formerly of Winchester, were united in marriage. The contracting couple were Mr. William C. Corey, son of Mr. and Mrs. Charles E. Corey, and Miss Maude E. Armsby, daughter of Mrs. Willard A. Armsby. Both the bride and groom have been residents of Winchester until within a few months, when Miss Armsby moved to Wrentham and Mr. Corey to Wilmington, Del., and the marriage took place at Miss Armsby's sister's home in the former place.

The ceremony took place at 7 o'clock, being performed by Rev. F. N. Rutan, pastor of the Congregational Church at Wrentham, it being performed in front of an open fireplace which was banked with evergreen and flowers. The house itself was handsomely decorated with greens and cut flowers.

The bride was gowned in white liberty satin, trimmed with duchess lace, which, with her fair complexion, made her a charming picture. She carried bride roses.

The bridesmaids were Miss Mabel D. Corey, sister of the groom, and Miss Eleanor Barta. They were gowned in dresses of pink silk and carried bouquets of white chrysanthemums.

A very pretty feature of the wedding procession was the ribbon children, Misses Anna Brown and Helen Ireland, and Masters Daniel Brown and Harold Ireland, who were all dressed in white. The wedding march was played by Miss May W. Barta. The best man was Mr. Preston E. Corey, brother of the groom.

Following the ceremony a reception was held, the bride and groom being assisted in receiving by Mrs. Armsby and Mr. and Mrs. Corey. The ushers were Messrs. Edward C. Brown of Wrentham and Sewall E. Newman and T. Price Wilson of Winchester.

At the conclusion of the festivities Mr. and Mrs. Corey left amid showers of rice and good wishes for a short wedding trip, after which they will reside in Wilmington, Del., where Mr. Corey is the secretary and treasurer of the Delaware Leather Company.

Many guests were present from Winchester and surrounding towns, and the couple were the recipients of many beautiful presents, including cut glass, silver, and a number of checks.

Just a Word to the Citizens.

The Tree Warden desires to suggest to the citizens that they undertake the destruction of the gypsy moth eggs on their premises before the snow comes. The reason for this is that the gypsy lays its eggs freely on the butts of trees, on sticks and stones on the ground, (on the ground itself sometimes when they are very thick), on foundation walls, underneath piazzas, in old tin cans, board piles, etc. Many of these possible places are buried in snow much of the winter, therefore, it will be well to hunt up the eggs which may be in such situations and kill them before the snow season begins.

No one who values his trees will neglect to hunt for the eggs even if he has never seen a gypsy moth on his place. The fact that they have never been there is no proof that they are not there today. The place in this town that is absolutely free from this pest today will be hard to find. Look carefully for the little yellow patches which are all furry on the outside but which are full of mustard-seed like eggs. Give each nest a small varnish brushful of creosote oil. That will kill every egg without your doing another thing. Don't on any account attempt to crush the eggs, or scrape them off, or burn them. The creosote is the only thing.

If anyone in town is still innocent as to the appearance of a gypsy moth egg nest the Warden is ready to exhibit some on trees, walls, fences, buildings, etc., and in any quantity desired. He is also ready to show what havoc the caterpillars played this past summer. If any still doubt that these pests can kill a great oak tree or a pine tree they can be shown specimens in considerable quantity.

All these things will be shown to anyone who will meet the Warden on Saturday, Sept. 24, at the corner of Arlington and Cambridge streets, (the Country Club corner) on the arrival of the 3:55 p. m. car from Winchester or the 3:45 p. m. car from Arlington. Nests can be seen right at the corner but the Warden would like to take all interested on an easy walk up into the woods for half or three-quarters of a mile. It will be interesting to anyone who have never seen the work of this insect. The walk will be an easy one, ladies can take it but should wear stout shoes.

The Warden will meet the cars as stated above, if not actually rainy, and if anyone appears he will show them all the sights.

In Canada there was a Mike who went to a clergyman and asked what was the fee to be married. A dollar and a half, was the answer. A week later Mike reappeared and gave the clergyman a dollar and a half. But where is the lady, the clergyman asked. What, cried the dismayed Mike, don't you find the woman for a dollar and a half?—[Baltimore, New Jersey, News.]

NEW YORK CITY.

Through the Deerfield Valley & Hoosac Mountains.—Steamer Sail Down the Hudson River to New York; Back by Steamer and Train. All for $5.00

The vacation season in New England takes a new start in the fall of the year. The early vacationists have a desire to secure one more respite from the cares of business for a day or two, and a great many have made their preparations for a trip during autumn, when nature adorns in her most beautiful colors the foliage; when the song birds are whistling their farewell refrains; when the atmosphere is invigorating and healthful and the orchards are rosy in their display of mellow and ruddy fruit. This is the month when the Boston & Maine Railroad announces its grand annual New York Excursion from Boston, on October 6th, and from Providence, Worcester, Waltham, Concord, Ayer, Fitchburg, Athol, Gardner, Orange, Millers Falls and Greenfield, October 5th.

Going from Boston the train passes through Cambridge, Waltham, Concord and other beautiful historical towns, noted for their scenic beauty and their historic and colonial association, on to Fitchburg and Gardner, passing through a region famed for its pastoral beauty, and finally entering into the famed Deerfield Valley. The view from the passing train is perfect: winding along the course of the silvery Connecticut, the train follows towards the lofty mountains which we are gradually approaching. We enter the Hoosac Tunnel, and, emerging, Mt. Greylock, overlooking the town of North Adams, greets us. Williamstown, the site of Williams College, next appears to view, and here the Berkshire Hills in all their beauty may be witnessed to advantage. On we go through New York State, rushing through the busy city of Troy, and crossing the river to Albany. At Albany the train journey is ended, Embarking you can stop over night in Albany and visit the numerous interesting sights and take the Day Line Steamer sail down the Hudson, or go down on the night line boats the same night, viewing the Hudson River scenery by searchlight and moonlight.

The inspiring and magnificent vision of the Hudson River flowing calmly and serenely at the foot of the giant Catskills is perhaps one of the most beautiful landscape pictures in this country.

The steamer passes Rondout, Kingston, Esopus, made famous by Judge Parker's debut into politics, West Point, Poughkeepsie, sailing under the noted bridge, and from the decks of the steamer you can look up at the remnants of the Old Palisades; at the cliffs of Dunderberg and the rocky promontory of historic Stony Point the busy appearance of the bay is a scene worth witnessing—hundreds of craft of every description, darning back and forth, or weighed at anchor, while their cargoes are busily being cared for, present a scene wholly unknown except to voyagers in New York Bay. The boat docks at Desbrosses street and you are in the great Metropolis. New York has attractions too varied to mention; and everybody knows just what he likes best—some for the parks; the stores; the theatres; the museums; or a trip to Coney Island. You can stop in New York until October 8th on Boston tickets and until Oct. 7th on other tickets. If you desire, a stop-over of ten days may be had by payment of $2.00 at the Pier Line Office and depositing your ticket before the final limit of extension. Leaving New York, the palatial steamers of the Fall River & Providence Lines, according to destination, carry the passengers for return trip, $5.00 via the Boston & Maine Railroad pays for the round trip.

Tickets will be on sale at Boston City Ticket Office, 322 Washington street, and at Union Station, Boston, on and after September 24th, 1904, also at above mentioned stations.

A beautiful illustrated souvenir and guide booklet, telling all about the trip and describing the interesting points passed, will be mailed to any address, free, by General Passenger Department, Boston & Maine Railroad, Boston. Send your address, requesting one, and it will be mailed to you.

Epiphany Church Building Commenced.

On Wednesday night the contract for the new Episcopal church, which is to be erected on the corner of Church and Central streets, was signed by Mr. Theo. C. Hurd and Mr. Chas. E. Bradstreet, and on Thursday morning at 7 o'clock contractor James J. Fitzgerald broke ground for the cellar.

It is expected that the edifice will be completed by August, 1905. The builders are the same firm which had the contract for the recently finished High school in this town—L. P. Cummings & Co. The corner stone of the new church will be laid next month at a day not yet decided upon.

Miss Blanche Plummer, the popular manager of Miss F. J. Bowser's dry goods store, returned this week from a three week's trip to North Sutton, at the foot of Mount Kearsarge, N. H.

METHOD OF TRAVELLING A CENTURY AGO.

An Interesting History of the Old Middlesex Canal.

As the enterprise had the confidence of the business community, money for prosecuting the work had been procured with comparative ease. Such representative men as Oliver Wendell, John Adams, of Quincy, Peter C. Brooks, Andrew Craigie, Ebenezer and Dudley Hall, James Sullivan and John Hancock were stockholders. The stock had steadily advanced from $25 a share in the autumn of 1749 to $473 in 1803; the year the canal was opened, touching $500 in 1804. Then a decline set in, a few dollars at a time, till 1816, when its market value was $300

In 1816 the Legislature of Massachusetts granted the proprietors of the canal, in consideration of its usefulness to the public, two townships of land in the district of Maine, near Moosehead lake. This State aid, however, proved of no immediate service, as purchasers could not be found for several years for property so remote. Appeals to capitalists, lotteries, and State aid proved insufficient; the main burden fell upon the stockholders. In accordance with the provisions of the charter assessments had been levied, as occasion required, up to 1816, 99 in number, amounting to $670 per share; and the corporation was still staggering under a debt of $64,000. Of course, during all this time, no dividends could be declared.

Under these unpromising conditions a committee, consisting of Josiah Quincy, Joseph Hall, and Joseph Coolidge, Jr., was appointed to devise the appropriate remedy. "In the opinion of your committee," the report read, "real value of allowed to pass each other, thus making "racing" impossible on the staid waters of the old canal. Whenever a boat approached a lock, the conductor sounded his horn to secure the prompt attention of the lock tender; but due regard was paid to the religious sentiment of New England. Travelling in the canal being permitted on Sundays, "in consideration of the distance from home at which those persons using it generally are, it may be reasonably expected that they should not disturb those places of public worship near which they pass, nor occasion any noise to interrupt the tranquillity of the day. Therefore, it is established that no signal-horn shall be used or blown on Sundays."

The tariff varied greatly from year to year. In 1827 the fare from Lowell to Boston was $2.00 the gross ton but many articles were carried on much lower terms.

On account of liability of damage to the banks of the canal, all navigation ceased at dark; hence, at every lock, or series of locks, a tavern was established. These were all owned by the corporation, and were often let to the lock tender, who eked out his income by the accommodation of boatmen and horses. The Bunker Hill Tavern in Charlestown, situated so as to accommodate both country and canal travel, was leased, in 1830 for $350; in 1838 it let for $500. The Horn Pond House, Woburn, in 1838, was leased for $700. In 1825 a two-story dwelling house, 36x18, built at a cost of $1,400, for the accommodation of boatmen and raftsmen at Charlestown rented with stable attached, for $140. In all these cases, the real estate was supposed to pay 10 per cent. Some of these canal taverns established a wide reputation for good cheer, and boatmen contrived to be overtaken by night in their vicinity. Sometimes fifteen or twenty boats would be detained at one of these favorite resorts, and a jolly crowd fraternized in the primitive bar room.

The temperance sentiment had not taken a firm hold in New England. "Flip" was the light-tone beverage of those days, but "black-strap," a compound of rum and molasses, sold at 3 cents a glass, was the particular "vanity" of the boatman. In the smaller taverns a barrel of Old Medford, surmounted by a pitcher of molasses, scorning the flimsy subtleties of modern times, boldly invited its patrons to draw and mix at their own sweet will. "Plenty of drunkenness, Uncle Joe, in those days?" we queried of an ancient boatman, who was chatting upon the good old times. "Bless our heart, no!" was the answer. "Mr. Eddy didn't put up with no drunkards on the canal. They could drink all night, sir, and be steady as an eight-day clock in the morning."

Only Did His Duty as He Saw it.

"I deem it my duty to add a word of praise for Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy," says J. Wiley Park, the well known merchant and postmaster at Wiley, Ky. "I have been selling it for three or four years, and it gives complete satisfaction. Several of my customers tell me they would not be without it for anything. Very often, to my knowledge, one single dose has cured a severe attack of diarrhoea, and I positively know that it will cure dysentery. You are at liberty to use this testimonial as you please." Sold by O'Connor's Pharmacy.

From now on until the close of the campaign tons of campaign literature will be sent through the mails under the franking privileges of congressmen at an immense cost to the government and to the injury of the postal service. And what does it all amount to? Who reads the long speeches and bulky essays? In these days of universal newspaper reading all that the average voter cares for is found in the dailies and weeklies. The stuff in pamphlets in 99 cases out of a hundred goes into the waste basket. This kind of campaigning is a relic of old times and is almost useless today.

Better Than a Plaster.

First lift, upper locks, and canal boat at Horn Pond, Woburn, Mass.

with few takers, although the canal was in successful operation, and in 1814 the obstructions in the Merrimac had been surmounted, so that canal boats, locking into the river at Chelmsford, and making use of various locks and short canals, had been poled up stream as far as Concord.

Firewood and lumber always formed a very considerable item in the business of the canal. The navy-yard at Charlestown and the ship-yards on the Mystic for many years relied upon the canal for the greater part of the timber used in ship building; and the work was sometimes seriously retarded by low water in the Merrimac, which interfered with transportation. The supply of oak and pine about Lake Winnepesaukee, and along its tributaries, was thought to be practically inexhaustible. In the opinion of Daniel Webster, the value of this timber had been increased $5,000,000 by the canal. Granite from Tyngsborough and agricultural products from a great extent of fertile country, found their way along this channel to Boston; while the return boat supplied taverns and country stores with their annual stock of goods. The receipts from tolls, rents, etc., were steadily increasing, amounting

in 1812 to	$12,600
" 1813 "	$16,840
" 1814 "	$25,700

Corporal Wright's Bridge over Middlesex Canal, on West Side Road, near Killy Street, Woburn, Mass.

Yet valuable, useful, and productive as the canal had proved itself, it had lost the confidence of the public, and, with a few exceptions, of the proprietors themselves. The reason for this can easily be shown. The general depression of business on account of the embargo and the War of 1812 had its effect upon the canal. In the deaths of Governor Sullivan and Colonel Baldwin, in the same year, 1808, the enterprise was deprived of the wise and energetic counsellors to whom it owed its existence.

The aqueducts and most of the locks being built of wood, required large sums for annual repairs; the expenses arising from imperfections in the banks, and from the erection of toll-houses and public houses for the accommodation of the boatmen, were considerable; but the heaviest expenses were incurred in opening the Merrimac for navigation. From Concord, N. H., to the head of the canal the river has a fall of 123 feet, necessitating various locks and canals. The Middlesex Canal Corporation contributed to the building of the Wicasee locks and canals, $12,000; Union locks and canals, $49,932; Hookset canal, $6,750; Bow canal and locks, $14,115; making a sum total of $82,797, to be paid from the income of the Middlesex canal.

same parties were conspicuously numbered like railway cars today. From "Regulations Relative to the Navigation of the Middlesex Canal," a pamphlet published in 1803, it appears that boats were required to be not less than 40 feet nor more than 75 feet in length and not less than 9 feet nor more than 9 1/2 feet in width.

Two men—a driver and steersman—usually made up the working force. The boats however that went up the Merrimac required three men, one to steer and two to pole. The Lowell boats carried 20 tons of coal; 15 tons were sufficient freight for Concord.

When the water in the Merrimac was low, not more than 6 or 7 tons could be taken up the river. About 1830 the boatmen received $15 per month.

Lumber was transported in rafts of about 75 feet long and 9 feet wide; and these rafts not exceeding 10 in number, were often united in "bands." A band of 7 to 10 rafts required the services of five men, including the drivers. Boats were drawn by horses, and lumber by oxen; and "luggage boats" were required to make two and a half miles an hour, while "passage boats" attained a speed of four miles. Boats of the same class, and going the same way were not

A Jewel of a Valet

By M. QUAD

Copyright, 1903, by C. B. Lewis.

BEFORE the coming of my valet—my first and only one, who departed this life a few weeks since, to my great sorrow—I was plain James Burden. I was even called Jim now and then, and the "Mr." was left off my name far oftener than it was used. I was also generally supposed to be a card sharper and to work little games on confiding human nature, and more than once I overheard it said that I would go two blocks out of my way rather than pass a police station. I was in and out with luck, sometimes having money to spare and again being almost driven to lodge in a doorway. I cannot doubt that I was steadily going to the bad when I met Charles. I encountered him at the rooms of an acquaintance where he was making himself useful while waiting for a situation. It was very impudent of a valet to suggest to a gentleman, and a stranger at that, that a confidential chat between them elsewhere might lead to good results, but I decided to overlook the break for once and appoint an hour. Charles was on hand to the minute, and he brought two trunks with him. Before coming upstairs he stopped and paid my landlord the matter of four weeks' rent. I owed him and ordered a bottle of wine and a fair dinner from a restaurant.

"Sir James," he said in answer to my looks of inquiry, "I have brought your wardrobe and will now dress you for dinner. Tomorrow we will seek other and more suitable lodgings. Here is the change from the twenty pound note you sent out by me."

I have no doubt the fellow had stolen the money as well as the wardrobe, but it was not for me to find out. It took my breath away for a minute to be addressed as "Sir James," but I did not need any reflection to satisfy me that the world would receive Sir James Burden with open arms, even if doubting his title, where Jim Burden would be stopped at the door. I found two full suits to fit me reasonably well. There were also ties, collars, hats, shoes and socks, and when I was fully arrayed the valet placed a diamond ring on my finger and a pearl in my necktie. I accepted everything as my due, and it seemed perfectly natural that Charles should wait upon me at dinner and show me all deference. It was only after the meal was finished, the table cleared and I had lighted a cigar from the expensive box he had laid out for me that he quietly said:

"If Sir James will sit down for a moment I will show him something of interest."

I sat down, and he produced a pack of cards and manipulated them in a way to astonish me. I had flattered myself that I was an old hand at the business, but within the hour he taught me ten times more than I was of.

"We will not speak of wages," he observed as we finished, "but I think you will cheerfully agree to pay me 10 per cent of your gross earnings."

I agreed without hesitation, and while I went out to look for new lodgings he went to a stationer's to order cards for me. Next day we moved into a suite of rooms in a fashionable neighborhood and astonished the landlord by paying three months' rent in advance. Charles ordered a liberal supply of wines, sent me to a fashionable tailor for other clothes and directed me to the most high toned restaurants. In ten days London could not produce a more swagging man than Sir James Burden. I had the best of clothes, the proudest of gifts and gold jingled in every pocket. I gave all my needy, seedy friends the cold cut and played for higher game. Three or four clubs gladly received me, and not a man had the bad taste to question my generosity. Through members of clubs I came to have the entrée of various houses and a social circle, and for three months I never touched a card except as I played with Charles to perfect my knowledge. I was called a good fellow at the clubs, received with respect in society, and I could not make myself believe that I had once passed those houses and people without a penny in my pocket to assuage my hunger. When the three months had passed my valet, who had kept close track of my progress and had never failed to keep me supplied with funds, respectfully said to me one morning:

"WE WILL NOT SPEAK OF WAGES"

"Sir James, you are now fifty prepared to face the world, and it will be well that you begin business."

I nodded in answer, and that night at a club, after being repeatedly urged, I took the bank and came out £750 ahead of the game. Without reference to per cent, I handed my valet £500 and caught him surveying me with a look of pride and triumph. During the next week I played to neither win nor lose, but somehow I came out several hundred pounds to the good. By this time I began to have a club reputation as a stiff player. I took my losses with nonchalance and my winnings with indifference, and under the advice of my valet I contributed a pretty fair sum to a local charity. The idea was that I played as a pastime or as a gentle man hunt, drives and drinks and that my income permitted any extravagance.

"BUT WE MUST SEARCH THE ROOMS"

There was high play at houses in town and country as well as at the clubs, and I took care that I must be urged before taking a hand. At a hint from Charles, I invariably refused my winnings from women and never left the table without making a handsome donation to some private charity. I had been pursuing this policy for a year or so, and our bank account had waxed fat, when £3,000 worth of diamonds were stolen from a house in which I was a guest. Charles was with me in his proper position, but I had no suspicion of him until our return home. Then it was certainly instead of suspicions. He had cribbed the diamonds and disposed of them for one-third of their value, and he divided fairly with me. I felt it my duty to warn him from his evil ways, and when I had ceased lecturing I hoped I had made a deep impression. I was disappointed in this, however. It wasn't a fortnight before he plundered a second house and handed me nearly £1,000 as my share of the swag. Seeing that he was bent on following his own way, I had no more to say, not when he handed me a bag of gold or a roll of notes did I express curiosity.

I must except two or three special occasions, however. One night after my return from a club and while I sat waiting for my valet to put me to bed he came running upstairs in vulgar haste, tossed a package under the sofa with careless hand and was out of his street and into his house clothes and pulling off my gaiters before my surprise would permit me to speak. I had opened my lips to reproach him for what I considered his loss of dignity when there came an imperative knock at the door, and Charles promptly opened it to admit a brace of detectives. They glanced from him to me and around the room and seemed not a little astonished.

"Gentlemen, I am honored by your call, whoever you are," I said as I pointed to the decanters and cigars on the sideboard.

"We were pursuing a thief, and we were sure he entered here," one of them explained.

"A thief in the rooms of Sir James Burden?" cried my valet in astonishment and indignation.

"Oh—ah—a thousand pardons, Sir James."

"But we must search the rooms," insisted Charles.

"By no means. We must be mistaken. We beg a thousand pardons, Sir James, and trust you will have no complaint to make against us."

When Charles had bowed them out and returned to my undressing I looked at him in all sternness and said:

"Is it possible that I am mistaken in you?"

"Not at all, Sir James," he calmly replied. "I lifted a box out of a cab, but a couple of detectives saw me and gave me a close run for it. When you are in bed we will see what is in the box."

The contents consisted of bonds and jewelry, and I remember my share was a generous one. I warned Charles that I could not keep a dishonest valet about me under any circumstances, but as he appeared contrite I did not press the matter further just then. Again I gave a delicious little dinner to a party of six friends. Charles was very much to the front in that little affair, and I must say that his selections of wine and game were most admirable. I do not think I could have bettered them myself. He also served us with such care and style that every gentleman present complimented me on my possession of such a jewel. No little dinner ever passed off in better style, but at midday next day no less than three of my guests called to complain of the loss of watches and purses. It was not to complain against me or mine, remember, but of having been robbed by the cab drivers who took them home and assisted them up the steps. No sooner had they departed than I called Charles to me and said:

"It does not seem possible that you could rob a guest of mine, and yet?"

"What is it, Sir James?" he queried, with a face full of innocence.

"I almost believe they were robbed here in my house."

"By you, sir?"

"No, by you, you scoundrel!"

"Those cab drivers are a bad lot, Sir James," he quietly said as he turned away, and a day later when he handed me £250 I did not think it positively necessary to swear him as to how he had secured the cash.

I had been invited down to a gentleman's place for the fall shooting, and of course Charles accompanied me. Before we set out on our journey I warned him that there must be no foolishness and was much gratified to hear him reply:

"Sir James, I fully understand that we are going on a vacation from the cares of business, and I trust that you may have no fault to find with my deportment."

We had been at the house a week, and I believe that my host had come to think very well of me and that the servants' quarters looked upon Charles as a model of what a valet should be, when Lady Rochester's diamonds were reported missing. Some one had entered her room at night by way of the balcony, and the haul amounted to £500. Not a trace had been left behind by the robber, who was supposed to be some one from the city, and the most we could do was to extend our sympathies to the victim. For half an hour after first hearing of the robbery I had my suspicions that my valet had forgotten my warning, but when I saw him putting himself out to aid the country police and when he looked me full in the face and hoped that the robber would soon be in the toils I dismissed my thoughts as doing him injustice. A month later, however, he handed me a bag of gold and somewhat solicitously observed:

"Some of those diamonds were only paste, Sir James, and your share is not as large as I hoped it might be."

I did not ask for explanations. Charles was often enigmatical, and he appeared to be so on this occasion. My prosperity was wonderful. With title undisputed, received without question almost everywhere and having a valet who had my interests at heart, it would have been an easy thing for me to have married beauty and wealth. I drew the line at marriage, however, and no doubt that served to prolong my popularity. My prosperity was that of my valet. Indeed, I think it was rather the other way. I think he brought more to the bank account than I did, and his adroitness was marvelous. I believe he had plundered fully a dozen houses and escaped without suspicion and that he had also indulged in pocket picking to a considerable extent when fate gave him the cold shoulder. He tried rank burglary for a change, and it was a bad move on his part. While he was after the plate in a house which he supposed was only in care of an old woman the police surprised him red handed. Charles was not much of a talker, and, failing to convince the officers that he was "one of the family," he made a bolt for it and was shot down. He had been dead for some hours when I was sent to identify him. The police were reluctant to call me, and they hoped they had not inconvenienced me and all that, and they so managed things that the reporters got hold of very little. My amazement that my trusted valet, whom I had almost deemed the soul of honesty, should have turned burglar quite took the police and enlisted their sympathy, and the affair was soon over. That Charles was a ruby beyond price was proved again when I came to look over his effects. He had drawn and preserved a blank check in my favor for all his money in bank, and I had only to fill in a few words and figures. I saw his body taken to the country and laid away, and I have contracted for a marble shaft to mark his last resting place and donated £100 in his name to a hospital. I am now in search of another valet. My tastes have grown expensive, and my station in society demands that I have a man about me, but I have no hope of finding another jewel. They may be good at serving and brushing and doing the honors in my absence, and they may be men of discretion and have my interests at heart, but to them I shall always be Sir James Burden, full of dignity and keeping them to their place.

Sweet Peas Kill Flies.

A local druggist has found a new agent for the destruction of flies that for activity and effectiveness discounts anything heretofore offered for that purpose. And not only is it harmless, but it is a thing of beauty as well. After selling annually thousands of sheets of fly paper of the sticky and poisoned varieties and a ton more or less of insect powder the new antidote for the pest bids fair to supersede all previous methods with him and those of his friends who are in on the secret.

For several days the druggist, who is a lover of flowers, has had upon his front cases bunches of sweet peas of a variety grown originally in California and but recently cultivated in this section of the country. Each morning after opening up the store he has found collected around the base of the vessel containing the peas quite an accumulation of dead flies.

For the first day or so he regarded the mass of defunct dipterous insects as an accidental gathering in the neighborhood of the flowers, but curiosity prompted him later to watch the conduct of the few flies left in the store. It was observed when the peas were freshly picked that immediately after being placed in the vases those flies in the vicinity swarmed upon the petals and proceeded to fasten themselves there. Shortly afterward they fell from their positions dead.

It is presumed that the odor of the peas attracted them first and that afterward they absorbed some poisonous excretion that the flowers possess and died in consequence. So far as known the peas possess no toxic effect upon the human being. [Springfield Journal.]

The Right Attitude.

The Brotherhood of Locomotive Engineers has long stood as probably the most conservative and fair-minded of the many labor organizations of the country. And yet very few would have imagined that, when non-union labor was to be considered, it would take the stand which it has, as given by one of its officers to a New York Tribune reporter.

"We wish it to be distinctly understood that the Brotherhood of Locomotive Engineers take the stand that, as our forefathers gave us all equal rights, we have no right to decide that we will not work with non-union men. The Brotherhood of Locomotive Engineers or its members as a body never said that they should work with none but members of the brotherhood. What we have insisted on and will always insist on is that the standard of union wages be observed all along, whether the men be union or non-union. We hold that a non-union man has as good a right to work as a union man if he gets the same wages."

That is the proper view of the matter. The trouble with most labor organizations is that they do not concede the non-union man a right to work at all. If the view of the locomotive engineers were adopted by the others there would be far less labor troubles.

Trading Stamp Law.

The law relating to trading stamps goes into effect on the first day of December of this year. It provides that firms giving them shall pay an excise tax equivalent to three per cent of the gross receipts from the sale of the articles and from the trading stamps, checks, coupons, or similar devices sold, given or delivered in connection therewith. Those giving the stamps are obliged to make a return in writing, under oath, to the treasurer of the city or town in which the business is carried on twice each year, stating the number of trading stamps, checks, coupons or similar devices sold, given, or delivered in connection with the sale of articles, and the gross receipts in connection therewith during the last preceding six months. Thereupon the treasurer of a city or town shall compute the amount of tax due and shall issue the warrant for the collection of the same. The penalty for omission to make such a return is not less than $5 nor more than $10 for each day for 15 days after the day upon which the return is required to be made, and not less than $10 nor more than $200 for each day thereafter during which such omission continues; and whoever under oath knowingly makes a false statement in making such return shall be deemed guilty of perjury. The object of the law is to discourage the use of the trading stamp by adding to the cost of its issuance. It does not prohibit its use.

Special Town Meeting.

The Selectmen have called a special town meeting for the evening of Thursday, Sept. 29. This is the usual autumn meeting and is held for the purpose of cleaning up any business that may have accumulated during the summer and requiring action by the town.

High School Attendance.

In last week's issue was an item from a correspondent beginning:
"What can be the matter with the Winchester High school that so many are leaving town for other institutions of learning?" The STAR is now in possession of information which may throw some light upon the subject matter of this question. In the first place it may be said that no community can expect to retain all its pupils in the public schools. The endowed academies and private schools, with their large teaching force and small classes, are oftentimes able to do far better for the individual than can the public high school, for the bright and strong as well as for the slow and weak.

But does our High school, as last week's article goes on to say, lose "an unusually large number?"
The answer to this inquiry is a question of facts and not of opinion.
It would be quite a task to investigate the records of all the High schools in the State, but if we limit ourselves to the towns and cities of more than 5000 inhabitants, of which there are ninety odd, and which contain more than three-fourths of the population of the entire Commonwealth, we shall find that there are not more than three of these places in all Massachusetts which, in proportion to population, have as large a High school enrollment as does Winchester. And, indeed, owing to the difficulty of getting hold of certain information concerning those particular scholars, it is doubtful if even those three all outrank us.
In other words, the Winchester High school, in proportion to the population of the town, ranks not lower than fourth in High school attendance amongst the nearly one hundred cities and largest towns of the State, and possibly ranks first, second or third.

The International Peace Congress.

The Thirteenth International Peace Congress is to assemble in Boston on Monday, October 3rd.
It promises to be the largest and most important peace convention ever held. Eminent delegates from England, France, Germany, Austria, Italy, Belgium, Switzerland and Norway will attend. At the opening session, at Tremont
Temple, Monday, Mayor Collins,
Governor Bates and Secretary

Hay will welcome the delegates in the name of the city, state and nation. Tremont Temple, Faneuil Hall, Park Street Church and the Old South Meeting House will be the scenes of the various gatherings during the week.

The series of international peace congresses, of which this is the thirteenth, grew out of a suggestion made at a meeting of the American Peace Society, in Boston, in 1841. The first one was held in London in 1843. Paris, Brussels, Frankfort, Manchester, Edinburgh,
Chicago and other great cities have been honored by its gatherings. Boston, however, is, more than any other city, the home and centre of the peace movement; and this approaching Congress seems likely to mark a new epoch, both by the increased interest it will awaken, and by the value of the suggestions likely to be made.
Seldom has any convention, in any cause, brought together more eminent speakers than will assemble in Boston and address these meetings.

Winchester ought not to be behind in appreciating the opportunity thus offered to enjoy advantages and to cooperate in a good cause.
The meetings, full announcements of which will appear in the daily papers, are freely open to all. Information regarding the peace movement may be obtained from the American Peace Society, Boston. Some, it not all, of our local churches have already planned to hold peace services on the first Sunday in October. If a union service could be held on that evening, it would do good.

In this connection it may not be out of place to call attention to an able article in "The Atlantic," for this month, entitled, "World-Organization Secures World-Peace." Charles Sumner's, "The True Grandeur of Nations," and "The War System of Nations,"— both being addresses delivered in Boston—together with Channing's
"Discourses on War" and Jean de Bloch's "The Future of War," make, together an admirable little peace library. These books are or ought to be in our town library, and in every Sunday school and private library. Despite the great war now raging in the East, the peace sentiment was never so strong as it is today. Nations will disarm, and universal peace will come, when the people are prepared for and demand a better order of things.

Excessive Taxation.

The case of Moses S. Page against the assessors of Melrose for excessive taxation which has now been in the courts more than a year has been decided by the Supreme Court against the city. All the expenses of taking this case to the Supreme Court and the employment of special counsel has amounted to nothing except to confirm the fact that the property was over assessed, and that the courts when appealed to will not confirm the excessive, improper and arbitrary valuation of taxable property. Mr. Page in carrying the matter through the courts has performed a public service. But there are a great number of cases of excessive valuation, more flagrant than this one.—[Melrose Journal.]

Wonderful Cleanliness.

There is an article on the market which certainly is without a peer as a cleaner.
We refer to that wonderful purifier, Cabot's Sulpho-Naphthol. What a blessing to be rid of all the cheap inferior de-odorants: what a saving of time, money and annoyance to have a cleaner (Sulpho-Naphthol) with disinfecting—germ killing —as well as deodorizing—odor destroying —properties. What a feeling of safety, for the old articles let the work of disease-producing organisms go on unnoticed under their strong odors. Sulpho-Naphthol destroys the germs and their deadly productions.

be produced in the Town Hall by the Wakefield Dramatic Club. The play is to be given under the direction of Charles J. Harrold and the proceeds are to be used in helping the poor of the town during the coming winter. The following item taken from a Wakefield paper goes to show how successfully the play has been given elsewhere: "An audience that crowded the Town Hall to its very doors last evening witnessed the production of Fitzgerald Murphy's pretty comedy-drama, "A Bit O' Barney." The show proved a perfect success and was one of the prettiest pieces of theatrical work ever produced on the Town Hall stage. The work of every artist was of the free and easy swing of the finished actor, and reflected strongly the fruitful training bestowed by Mr. Charles J. Harrold, of Winchester, to whose tireless efforts much of the grand success is due.

Newsy Paragraphs.

Last Saturday afternoon, while enjoying the matinee at the Boston theatre with his parents, Wilder Parkhurst, son of Mr. Lewis Parkhurst of Oak Knoll, was seized with pain in the abdomen. On returning home the pain became more severe during Saturday night. Sunday night, the attending local physician advised surgical consultation as the symptoms pointed unmistakably toward appendicitis. Early Monday morning, Dr.
Cabot, the well known Boston surgeon, was summoned and advised an operation at once. This was successfully done Monday forenoon. Although the young collegian has suffered much pain since the operation, we are informed that there is every hope of a speedy and full recovery. So serious an operation will, of course, postpone for some time young Mr.
Parkhurst's return as a sophomore to Dartmouth College. Meanwhile the Winchester Dartmouth contingent have sorrowfully returned to Hanover, lamenting the absence of their genial friend and classmate.

The White House cook has a fearful responsibility: he fattened all the Presidents. Grant and Arthur both added largely to their weight while occupants of the White House. Cleveland and McKinley got stout under the same roof, and now Mr. Roosevelt, in spite of his world-wide strenuousness and dangerous activity has gained twenty-five pounds since he was Vice President.

You'd Smile Too.

It is a noticeable fact that within the past few months, many of our prominent townspeople have been wearing broad smiles, and citizens of the surrounding towns have caught the thread of this smile producer.

It seems that one of our local tradesmen has invented what is known as a "Broken Arch Boot" which he has added to his regular line of stock, and this circumstance has caused all the merriment.

Having suffered intense pain from broken down arches, they decided to have Bridges make their shoes.

Immediate relief was obtained; doctors' remedies were discarded, and perfect comfort was assured in a smart looking boot of honest workmanship, superb finish and sterling worth.

Perfect fitting shoes are a prevention for cold feet, and no feet are so troublesome, but that Bridges can fit them perfectly.

A full line in all styles and sizes; of foreign or domestic stock, from which to choose.

Leave your orders now for fall and winter work, and avoid delay during the busy season, then smile with the many.

day evenings.

Sour Stomach.

Last Sunday morning the services were conducted by Mr. Johnson, the pastor, and in the afternoon the Union held its meeting, attended by about 300 colored people. Standing room was at a premium. Many people came to show their respects to the pastor, Rev. Mr.
Johnson and his faithful officers. The pastor has been very highly complimented for showing his wisdom in not making reply or answering the stories which came out in the Boston papers.

Rev. Mr. Carrington of Malden had charge of the meeting in the evening.
Last Monday evening there was a surprise party given by the members of the church to the pastor and his wife. The party was made up of the older people of the church, who met at Mrs. Barksdale's and went from there to the parsonage.
The evening was spent very enjoyably.
Mrs. Branch Powell was the leader of the party.

Next Sunday evening at the 7.30 meeting, Rev. Dr. Lawton of Boston will preach, while Mr. Johnson will take charge of the services in Everett at the St. Paul's Baptist Church. There will be special music by the choir.

MIDDLESEX CANAL.

When the feverish haste born of the locomotive and telegraph had not yet infected society, a trip over the canal in the passenger packet, the "Governor Sullivan," must have been an enjoyable experience. Protected by iron rules from the dangers of collision, undaunted by squalls of wind, realizing that should the craft be capsized he had nothing to do but walk ashore, the traveller speeding along at the leisurely pace of four miles an hour had ample time for observation and reflection. Seated, in summer, under a capacious awning, he traversed the valley of the Mystic, skirting the picturesque shores of Mystic pond. Instead of a foreground of blurred landscape, vanishing, ghostlike, ere its features could be fairly distinguished, soft bits of characteristic New England scenery clear cut as cameos, lingered caressingly on his vision—green meadows, fields riotous with blossomed clover, fragrant orchards and quaint old-fashioned houses, with a background of low hills wooded to the summits.

Passing under bridges, over rivers, between high embankments and through deep cuttings, floated up and down by a series of locks, he marvelled at this triumph of engineering, and if he were a director pictured the manufacturers that were to spring up along this great thoroughfare, swelling its revenues for all time.

The tow-path of the canal was a famous promenade. Upon Sunday afternoons especially, numerous pedestrians from the dusty city strolled along the canal for a breath of air and a glimpse of the open country, through the Royal estate in Medford, by the stone bridge on the Brooks estate, the most picturesque surviving relic of canal days, past the substantial, old-fashioned mansion house of Peter C. Brooks, as far, perhaps, as the Baldwin estate and the birthplace of Count Rumford, in Woburn. "I love that old tow-path," said Uncle Joe. "Twas there I courted my wife; and every time the boat went by she came tripping out to walk a piece with me! Bless you, sir, the horses knew her step, and twain't so heavy, nuther."

Meanwhile, under the direction of Caleb Eddy, who assumed the agency of the corporation in 1825, bringing great business ability and unquenchable zeal to this task, the perishable wooden locks were gradually replaced with stone, a new stone dam was built at Billerica, and the service brought to a high state of efficiency. The new dam was the occasion of a lawsuit brought by the proprietors of Sudbury meadows, claiming damages to the extent of $10,000 for flooding their meadows. The defendant secured the services of Samuel Hoar, Esq., Concord, assisted by the Hon. Daniel Webster, who accepted a retainer fee of $100 to "manage and argue the case in conjunction with Mr. Hoar." The case was to have been tried November, 1833. Mr. Webster was called on by me and promised to examine the evidence and hold himself in readiness for the trial, but for some time before he was not to be found in Boston, at one time at New York, at another in Philadelphia, and so on from place to place, so that I am satisfied no dependence can be placed with certainty upon his assistance, and, plaintively, concludes the agent, "our $100 was gone to profit and loss account."

On the other side was the Hon. Jeremiah Mason, assisted by Franklin Dexter, Esq. This case was decided the following year adversely to the plaintiffs. With the accession of business brought on by the corporations at Lowell, the prospect for increased dividends in the future was extremely encouraging. The golden age of the canal appeared close at hand; but the fond hopes of the proprietors were once more destined to disappointment. Even the genius of James Sullivan had not foreseen the railway locomotive. In 1829 a petition was presented to the Legislature for a survey of a railway from Boston to Lowell. The interests of the canal were seriously involved. A committee was promptly chosen to draw up for presentation to the General Court "a remonstrance of the Proprietors of Middlesex canal, against the grant of the charter to build a railroad from Boston to Lowell." This remonstrance, signed by William Sullivan, Joseph Coolidge, and George Hallett, bears date of Boston, Feb. 12, 1830, and conclusively shows how little the business men of fifty years ago anticipated the enormous development of our resources consequent upon the application of steam to transportation.

"The remonstrants take pleasure in declaring that they join in the common sentiment of surprise and commendation, that any intelligence and enterprise should have raised so rapidly and so permanently such establishments as are seen at Lowell. The proprietors of these works have availed themselves of the canal for their transportation of all articles except in the winter months, and every effort has been made by this corporation to afford every facility, it was hoped and believed to the entire satisfaction of the Lowell proprietors. The average annual amount of tolls paid by these proprietors has been only about $4,000. It is believed no safer or cheaper mode of conveyance can ever be established, nor any so well adapted for carrying heavy and bulky articles. To establish therefore a substitute for the canal alongside of it, and in many places within a few rods of it, and to do that which the canal was supposed to do, seems a measure not called for by any exigency nor one which the Legislature can permit, without implicitly declaring that all investments of money in public enterprises must be subjected to the will of any applicants who think that they may benefit themselves without regard to older enterprises which have a claim to protection from public authority. With regard then, to transportation of tonnage goods, the means exist for all but the winter months, as effectually as any that can be provided.

"The remonstrants, therefore, respectfully submit: first, that there be no such exigency as will warrant the granting of the prayer for a railroad to and from Lowell; secondly, that, if that prayer be granted, provision should be made as a condition for granting it, that the remonstrants shall be indemnified of the losses which will be thereby occasioned to them under pretext of the public weal." This may seem the wilful blindness of self interest but the utterances of the press and the legislative debates of the period are similar in tone. In relation to another railroad, the "Boston Transcript" of Sept. 1, 1830, remarks:

"It is not astonishing that so much reluctance exists against plunging into doubtful speculations. . . . The public itself is divided as to the practicability of the railroad. If they expect the assistance of capitalists, they must stand ready to guarantee the per centum per annum; without this, all hopes of Rail Road are visionary and chimerical."

In a report of legislative proceedings published in the "Boston Courier" of Jan. 25, 1830, Mr. Cogswell of Ipswich, remarked:

"Railways, Mr. Speaker, may do well enough in old countries, but will never be the thing for so young a country as this. When you can make rivers run back, it will be time enough to make a railway."

Notwithstanding the pathetic remonstrances and strange vaticinations of the canal proprietors, the Legislature incorporated the road and refused incorporation to the canal. Even while the railroad was in process of construction, the canal directors do not seem to have realized the full gravity of the situation. They continued the policy of replacing wood with stone, and made every effort to perfect the service in all its details; as late as 1830 the agent recommended improvements. The amount of tonnage continued to increase; the very sleepers used in the construction of the railway were boated, it is said, to points convenient for the workmen. The strange spectacle was thus presented, perhaps for the first time, of a corporation assisting in the preparations for its own obsequies.

In 1832 the proprietors declared a dividend of $22 per share; from 1834 to 1837, inclusive, a yearly dividend of $30.

The disastrous competition of the Lowell railroad was now beginning to be felt. In 1833 the Lowell goods conveyed by canal paid tonnage dues of $11,973.51; in 1836 the income had dwindled to $6,193.77. The canal dividends had been kept up to their highest mark by the sale of its townships in Maine and other real estates; but now they began to drop. The year the Lowell road went into full operation, the receipts of the canal were reduced one third; and in 1840, when the Nashua & Lowell road went into full operation, they were reduced another third. The board of directors waged a plucky warfare with the railroads, reducing the tariff on all articles, and almost abolishing it in some, till the expenditures of the canal outran the income; but steam came out triumphant. Even sanguine Caleb Eddy became satisfied that longer competition was vain, and set himself to the difficult task of saving fragments from the inevitable wreck.

At this time (1843) Boston numbered about 100,000 inhabitants, and was dependent for water upon cisterns and wells. The supply in the wells had been steadily diminishing for years, and what remained was necessarily subject to contamination from numberless sources. "One specimen which I analyzed," said Dr. Jackson, "which gave three per

YERBA MATE.

A Brazilian Substitute For Coffee Which Is Now Being Exported.

Yerba mate is a tea prepared from the roasted and pulverized leaves of the Ilex paraguayensis, an evergreen forest tree found in southern Brazil and the neighboring region. The leaves are found in the forests, either on isolated trees of considerable loftiness or more rarely, on trees in small groves. Isolated specimens have been grown, and the plant can no doubt be cultivated under proper conditions. It is not necessary to cultivate it in Brazil, as enough is found wild.

Yerba mate is largely consumed in Paraguay and in the Brazilian states where it is made. It is very extensively consumed in Argentina, in Uruguay and to a less extent in Chile. There is a small consumption in other states of Brazil, a very small quantity is exported to Europe and still less to the United States and Canada. Estimated exports may reach 45,000 to 57,000 tons annually, says L. H. Ayne, United States consul at Para, Brazil.

The harvesting and preparation of yerba mate are as follows: The long outer branches of the tree are cut off, and these branches are passed rapidly through the flames of a great fire. This passing through the flame wilts and toughens the leaves. A rack or loose platform of interlaced branches about two feet high is constructed. Under this a slow fire is kept burning, and upon it are spread the wilted branches of mate, tied up, sometimes in small bundles. The smoking and drying of the leaves to bring out the full aroma require considerable skill. When the leaves are perfectly dry they are cleaned from sticks and dust and beaten or ground into powder. The coarseness or fineness of this powder varies in the different markets. The manufacture is carried on in factories established in the towns.

Yerba mate has a peculiar bitter, smoky taste, which is usually considered unpleasant, and this has largely operated to prevent its more extensive use as a beverage. This smoky bitterness is chiefly due to the rude method employed for drying the leaves, and it seems likely that improved methods on drying the mate on iron or copper pans would give a much more delicate and agreeable product. Mate is said to have all of the best qualities of coffee and tea as a stimulating health beverage without the disadvantages of either. It is a more gentle stimulant than either and is said to be much used in the hospitals of Paris.

The tree, Consul Ayne thinks, could probably be grown in southern California, perhaps in southern Texas, certainly in many parts of the Philippines.

TO PREVENT RUNAWAYS.

Checking Device Which Will Curb the Wildest Horse.

Even the experienced driver has at times to exert all his strength and ingenuity to prevent a team from running away, and in such instances he finds it very convenient to make use of the curb bit or some mechanical arrangement in addition to his own muscular power to bring the animals to a standstill. In the case of a woman driver these devices are almost a necessity, as it is seldom they have the strength, though not lacking in courage, to control a horse.

An invention of this nature we present in the accompanying drawing. It enables even a person who has little muscular strength to apply sufficient force to the bit to throw the animal if necessary to prevent damage from a runaway. Occasions for the use of an apparatus of this kind do not arise very often, but when they do come it is well to be prepared, and consequently a driver who has this mechanical check on his wagon may feel an added degree of confidence in his ability to control his team.

As shown, the apparatus is secured to the rear axle in conjunction with the inner end of the hub and is so pivoted in its supporting brackets that a pull of the lever which controls its action will depress a roller against the hub. This roller, rotating in the opposite direction to the movement of the hub, winds up on the large spool shown a line attached to the horse's bit, effectually checking the animal's forward progress.

The lever which actuates the device is attached to the driver's seat and when not in use lies flat against the end of the seat, where it is entirely out of the way.

The inventor is Maynard H. Murch, Jr., of Cleveland, O.

SPOILED A DUEL.

The Scheme Senator Lamar Worked to Prevent an Encounter.

During the course of a heated debate once in the house of representatives sharp words were exchanged between a congressman from New York and one from Mississippi. A challenge was delivered and accepted, and as both were courageous and determined a bloody meeting seemed imminent. Friends interposed, but in vain. Both men were resolute, and neither would yield to the suggestion of an amicable arrangement. As a last resort Senator Lamar was called in to save the situation. He realized that no ordinary methods would serve his purpose, and so resorted to strategy. The principals in the proposed duel are still living, so I will call the New Yorker Jones and the Mississippian Smith.

Senator Lamar called on the New Yorker, and after the usual civilities had been exchanged he said:

"Jones, I've come here to do you a friendly turn. I know that you and Smith are determined to fight and that nothing will stop you. I have not come as a mediator, but simply to mitigate, if possible, the horrors of a fatal end, so far as you are concerned. As to Smith, I have no fears. He is a dead shot and can take care of himself, but he is not an unfeeling man, and he is inclined to respect any partiality you may have in favor of any particular part of your anatomy. Some men entertain a mortal dread of being disfigured after death, and if the chance were left them would prefer not to be wounded in the eye or mouth or cheek bone. Now, if there is any particular spot that you would like to have Smith's bullet enter he has committed me to say that your wishes will be respected."

This extraordinary proposition staggered the New Yorker. Even his undoubted courage did not stand so severe a test, and he paled visibly. After he recovered his composure he replied that he would confer with his second, and Mr. Lamar, after an impressive farewell, took his leave.

The tip was given to friends of the principals and new negotiations entered upon. The duel did not come off. Lamar's device had succeeded.—New Orleans Times-Democrat.

TIME FOR SCOTLAND.

Ball on One Hill Drops When Cannon on Another Is Fired.

"Speaking of clocks," said the traveler, "Edinburgh, Scotland, has the most interesting time marking device I ever saw. The city lies between two hills. On one of these, known as Carlton hill, there is an observatory tower, in the top of which a large ball is suspended. Across the valley, probably a mile away, is Castle hill, surmounted by the historic Edinburgh castle. One of the large guns in this fortress, pointing toward Carlton hill, is electrically connected with the ball in the tower a mile away. Every evening at 6 o'clock the gun is fired, and at the same moment the ball falls. The device sets the official time for all Scotland."

"It is interesting to stand on Carlton hill at the appointed hour to see the simultaneous flash of the gun on Castle hill and the fall of the ball close at hand, while the roar of the gun is of course some moments in crossing the valley. On the other hand, it is equally interesting to stand beside the big gun at dusk to watch the ball at Carlton hill fall just as the shot is fired. I recall once standing in the courtyard of the castle, watch in hand, waiting for the cannon just overhead to be fired. It occurred to me it would be more exciting to watch the crowds of passing people, especially since not one was apparently thinking of the shot from the cannon. When the roar took place, absolutely without warning, hardly a yard above the heads of the crowd, the scene well repaid my waiting. Everybody dodged. Children screamed, and men and women jumped to the side of the wall. Of course it was all over in a second, but in that moment it seemed that an electric shock had passed through the crowd."—Birmingham News.

Malice and Superstition.

In the middle ages malice and superstition found expression in the formation of wax images of hated persons, into the bodies of which long pins were stuck. It was confidently believed that in that way deadly injury would be done to the person represented. This belief and practice continued down to the seventeenth century. The superstition indeed still holds its place in the highlands of Scotland, "where," says a well informed writer, "within the last few years a clay model of an enemy was found in a stream, having been placed there in the belief that as the clay washed away so would the health of the hated one decline."

Trees and Wind.

When one travels through the parts of Belgium bordering on the sea he sees a striking example of the influence on trees of strong and constant winds. The trees are in general bent toward the interior of the country. It was proved some time ago that the trunks of trees buried in the peat bogs of Holland all lie in a southwest to northeast direction.

Cutting Him Off.

"You?" snorted Miss Sharpe. "Marry you? Why, you're only an apology for a man." "But," protested Mr. Small, "you will not."

"No; I will not accept the apology."—Philadelphia Ledger.

One of the many things children cannot understand is why grown people spend so much time looking at books that have no pictures in them.—Atlantic Globe.

A dog fight took place in the Center last Saturday afternoon which proved the efficiency of police officer Hargrove in such an emergency. Two dogs fighting were a bull and a collie with a stub tail. The latter was getting decidedly the worst of it when Officer Hargrove succeeded in grasping the stump of his tail, raising both dogs off the ground. The bull let go to get a fresh grip, and for nearly five minutes the officer was busily engaged in swinging the collie out of his reach. The pugnacious bull was finally driven off and the excitement cooled down.

IN MEMORIAM.

WILDER LEWIS PARKHURST.

FEB'Y 22, 1886.
SEPT. 25, 1904

All the fond hopes that the people of this town were led to cherish concerning the speedy recovery of Wilder L. Parkhurst, the son of Mr. Lewis Parkhurst of Oak Knoll, from a formidable surgical operation, and that were expressed in the local columns of last week's issue of the STAR, were sadly shattered by his sudden death last Sunday night.

It seems that every symptom pointed to a full and prompt recovery until near dusk last Saturday evening. When the attending physician, the eminent surgeon, Dr. Arthur T. Cabot, of Boston, paid a visit to his patient in the early part of Saturday afternoon, he did not hesitate to state it as his best opinion that his patient would rapidly recover. About dark, however, the young man began to suffer from severe pains on the left side of the abdomen. So rapid, so overwhelming and so severe were the attacks of epigastritis, the most formidable and treacherous disease known to modern medicine, that there was imminent peril to life before midnight. The attending nurses and the local physicians, Drs. Cummings and Bennett, did all that skilled service could render until the consulting surgeon was able to reach town by driving furiously from Boston just after midnight. On his arrival the veteran surgeon speedily recognized the gravity of the situation and expressed the opinion that there was only about one chance in a hundred that the sufferer's life could be saved even if a second operation was delayed for a single hour. This chance he advised the distracted parents to take. Accordingly the second operation was performed just before daybreak last Sunday morning. As was expected, the operation revealed a most extensive purulent inflammation in the left abdominal cavity. The young man rallied speedily from the effects of ether and began with a remarkable comeliness and fortitude to battle for his life. Everything was done that ample means, surgical skill and parental love could devise. The full force of the surgical shock began to make itself felt late in the afternoon. Mild delirium set in and the heroic sufferer passed away quietly as if falling asleep just before midnight Sunday night. Early Monday morning the news of the death of this promising young man spread with marvellous rapidity throughout the town. Not in many years has there been such a universal interest aroused among our people as in this heartrending case. The news of the second operation came like a thunderbolt from a clear sky to those who were led to hope for a favorable result from the operation of the previous week. Very little hope was expressed by the most sanguine that their young friend could withstand the shock of the second operation in his enfeebled condition. It was and messages expressing the deepest sympathy and most profound sorrow that were sent by the score to Mr. Parkhurst's residence could have saved life, surely the life of the heroic young man would have been spared. Such widespread and universal expressions of grief by all classes of people are rarely witnessed as were voiced by all manner of good citizens during this last week.

A telephone message was sent early Monday morning to President Tucker of Dartmouth College, who at once gave permission for the Winchester boys at Dartmouth College to return home. Before dark all seven of them had returned and paid a visit of respect to Mr. and Mrs. Parkhurst.

The funeral took place at Mr. Parkhurst's residence at Oak Knoll on Tuesday afternoon at 1 o'clock. The interment was at Willow cemetery. It was a bright and beautiful afternoon and the ample mansion was scarcely able to hold the large number of friends, relatives and citizens who attended. Rev. William I. Lawrence and Rev. Dr. Augustine Newton made timely and sympathetic remarks which deeply touched the hearts of all those present. The ladies of the neighborhood, with plenty of helpers, had decorated the richly furnished rooms beautifully with scores of set pieces and sprays of as striking and beautiful a display of flowers as has perhaps ever been seen on any occasion in this town. The funeral ceremonies were in charge of Mr. Preston Pond, an old-time friend of the family. The pall-bearers were six school friends and classmates of the deceased, namely: Bremer W. Pond, Dartmouth '02; J. Harper Baisdel, Dartmouth '07; Gardner D. Pond, Milton Academy '05; Howard A. Newton, Amherst '06; Robert I. Adriance, Dartmouth '06; Charles R. Main, Dartmouth '06.

The Chi Phi Fraternity, of which the deceased was an active member, was represented by a delegation of classmates from the college. This fraternity also sent a most beautiful floral piece.

The Delta Kappa Epsilon Fraternity, of which Mr. Lewis Parkhurst was an active and prominent member many years ago, was represented by J. Harper Baisdel. The class of 1907 at Dartmouth also sent three members of the class to represent it, namely: John A. Lathell, of Somerville; J. Harper Baisdel, of Winchester and Bremer W. Pond of Winchester.

Thus has passed away under very painful and peculiar circumstances to another and brighter world Wilder Lewis Parkhurst, without doubt the most promising and brilliant young man that Winchester has ever sent forth from its High School to college life. His exceptionally brilliant career at our own High School, and his valedictory address of rare excellence to his class at the graduation which took place two years ago last June, is of too recent occurrence for special mention in this connection. Gifted with mental abilities of the highest order, with a cheerful and gracious personality, endowed with vigorous physical health, blessed with parents who rejoiced to give with a lavish hand of their wealth, their time and their love, that their eldest son might be one in due time better equipped to fill his place as an honored citizen of his native town and State, this young man of so many hopes and promises had everything to live for that any young person could have in this world.

All his natural gifts and superior opportunities were supplemented with habits of intense mental application, a deep and abiding ambition to please his parents and friends, a notable industry, exemplary habits of daily living, and a most generous and kindly heart which rejoiced in doing kindnesses to all with whom he associated.

Mr. Preston Pond is at Britton Woods, White Mountains, N. H., for a short vacation.

Citizens' Peace Meeting.

At a gathering of citizens of Winchester interested in the cause of universal peace, it was decided to hold a mass meeting in the Town Hall, on next Sunday afternoon. A committee consisting of Rev. William I. Lawrence, Mr. E. L. Dunning and Rev. Arthur L. Winn was appointed to arrange details. The chairman of the committee will preside and introduce the speakers. The High School Chorus of about one hundred voices will lead in the singing of hymns, and will render Sir Arthur Sullivan's "Song of Peace." The Rev. Henry J. Madden will pronounce the benediction.

There are to be four principal addresses on the subject of peace. The first will be by Herbert Burrows, Esq., of London, England, whose topic is "Peace and Organized Labor." Mr. Burrows is representative to the Thirteenth International Peace Congress, of the Social Democratic Federation of Great Britain.

He will be followed by Roger E. Fieston, who will speak of "Peace and War in its relation to the World's Commerce."

Mrs. Sheriff Bain of New Zealand will discuss the matter from the woman's standpoint, and Rev. Charles F. Dole of Jamaica Plain will close with the religious view.

All these persons have attained eminence as authors and organizers, and will speak with authority on the topics assigned. Our town has seldom had so rare an opportunity to hear so able representatives of so good a cause. The Town Hall ought to be filled with hearers who appreciate the rare privilege of gaining first hand knowledge of this great movement for universal peace, and of contributing toward it by their presence and interest.

Republican Caucus.

There was a good attendance at the caucus of the Republican voters held in the Town Hall Wednesday evening. As is customary, the proceedings passed off without any exciting incidents. Promptly at 7:45, Chairman Coit of the Town committee called the meeting to order and Secretary Frank E. Barnard read the call. Mr. Ralph E. Joslin was chosen chairman and Mr. Barnard secretary. Mr. Ralph E. Joslin and Mr. M. B. May were appointed tellers. On motion, Messrs. T. C. Hurd, J. P. Boutwell, S. W. Twombly, F. F. Carpenter and N. H. Taylor were appointed a committee to bring in a list of delegates for the several conventions and also a town committee for the year 1905. The committee reported the following list of delegates, which was unanimously elected:

CLEVER WORK.

Chief McIntosh Captures Man who Took Horse and Buggy.

The arrest of the man who failed to return a rig hired from Dinsmore's Stable, particulars of which were given in last week's issue of the STAR, is thus described by the Local Citizen:

Chief of Police McIntosh, of Winchester, finished a very clever piece of detective work in this city, Saturday afternoon when he arrested, for the alleged larceny of a horse, a carriage and a harness from the Dinsmore livery stable, of Winchester, James F. Denning, formerly a resident of Pawtucketville, and late of Boston.

For three days Chief McIntosh followed up Denning, finally securing sufficient evidence to convict him and doing everything but locating the man himself. This was reserved for Supt. Moffatt to do. Denning after being arrested was confronted with the evidence secured by the Winchester official and broke down and confessed that he had stolen the horse, carriage and harness because he was sorely in need of money.

The stuff in question left the livery stable of one Dinsmore, in Winchester, on Saturday afternoon, Sept. 17. A well dressed, clean appearing young man, claiming to be J. M. Cox, of Boston, called at the stable and said he wished to hire a rig with which to drive to Elm farm. He desired the outfit for but a few hours. His appearance being decidedly in his favor, the livery stable owner did not hesitate to deliver the outfit.

Evening came and Cox and the outfit did not return. Monday, Sept. 19, Cox still stayed away and a description of him and of the missing things were sent to all the detective bureaus in the State. At that time Chief McIntosh was absent from Winchester, not returning to town until Thursday. Almost immediately he "got busy" on the case. It interested him. He left for Boston on Friday morning and worked there two days.

Saturday afternoon he had found out the true identity of J. M. Cox: it was James F. Denning of Lowell. Being positive of his information, Chief McIntosh telephoned to Supt. Moffatt to hold Denning. Ten minutes after receiving the telephone message, who should briskly walk down Market street, directly past the police station but the much-wanted man. And Supt. Moffatt saw him and called him into the station. At once Chief McIntosh was called and, jumping onto a Lowell-bound train, came directly to this city.

Arriving in the middle of the afternoon, Chief McIntosh, Supt. Moffatt and Denning were closeted together for some time. At first all charges of larceny were emphatically denied by the suspect. He did admit, however, that he had passed through Winchester, Saturday afternoon, Sept. 17, on the electric cars, but said he had not got off the car. But Chief McIntosh pushed up lots of evidence against the man until he finally admitted that he was the J. M. Cox who had hired the rig from the Dinsmore stable.

"I have been working for a commission house in Boston," he said, "but have had hard luck lately and so took the horse and carriage and disposed of them." Denning then detailed his course from Winchester. He had taken roads to Lowell from that town which were little frequented and arrived here during Saturday evening.

At once he drove to Smith street and there met a man named Louis W. Mulhinch. To Mulhinch he proposed to sell the outfit for $50. The offer being satisfactory, the money was paid over and Denning, according to his own words, went to his bed that night.

Louis W. Mulhinch was sent for by Supt. Moffatt, after Denning had so freely confessed. On arriving before the police chiefs, Mulhinch said he had purchased the outfit, but had paid $125 for it, instead of $50. Denning said Mulhinch was a liar, he said he paid that much money for the rig. But Mulhinch still stuck to his original statements, to the effect that he had paid $125.

Mulhinch then went on to tell what he had done with the rig. Sunday morning, Sept. 18, he had traded the horse with a resident of Barclay street. In the early part of last week he had sold the new style, cut under runabout buggy to a resident of the Highlands for $50. This was the substance of what Mulhinch told the police.

Having been directed to where the missing articles were, Chief McIntosh and Inspector Lathell went to Smith street and there, in a stable, found the harness; to Barclay street and located the horse, and to a place in the Highlands, where the runabout buggy was found.

Sunday morning an employe of the Dinsmore stable came from Winchester and, identifying the horse, harness and buggy, took them over the road to his employer, Chief McIntosh and James F. Denning, or as he is known in Lowell, J. Frank Denning, boarded an electric Saturday for Winchester, also.

In court Monday, Denning was held for the grand jury. Mulhinch has been held in $500 for receiving stolen property.

Special Town Meeting.

There was a small attendance of citizens present at the special town meeting held last evening. The meeting was called to order by Assistant Town Clerk Clyde W. Bell and after reading the warrant, Mr. Ralph E. Joslin was elected Moderator.

Under Article two, Mr. C. F. A. Currier offered the following motion, which was carried:

That the Town Auditor be and hereby is directed to approve, and to charge to the High School building account, such bills as have been heretofore or shall be hereafter approved by the High School Building Committee, provided the total amount shall not exceed the sum of $100.00.

It was voted under Article three to accept the following streets as town ways as laid out by the Selectmen: Mason street, Park avenue, Canal street, Myrtle Terrace. The report on accepting Glen road was defeated after a long debate.

It was voted to authorize and approve a payment of $65.00 for tax titles and the expense incident thereto, to be charged to Abatement of Tax account.

In regard to making an appropriation by transfer for the incidental for Assessors account, Mr. Johnson moved to appropriate $50. Mr. Wooster moved to amend by making the sum $200. The sum of $50 was voted.

Voted that $43.75 be transferred from general incidental account to Bacon street bridge account, to cover an over payment.

The vote to appropriate $75 for preparing a valuation book for the State was lost.

Voted that the sum of $400 be transferred from abatement of taxes account to State aid account.

It was voted that Theo. C. Hurd, Ralph E. Joslin and William R. McIntosh be a committee to redraft the by-laws of the town and report in the next annual Town Report.

The following offered by Mr. W. J. Daly was passed:

Voted, that a committee of five be appointed by the Moderator to consider the question of additional school accommodations in the Chapel school district, or any other district in town, and report at the next annual town meeting; with leave to the Moderator to file with the town clerk after the adjournment of this meeting the names of the committee appointed by him.

After the close of the meeting the Moderator appointed the following committee: F. E. Carpenter, C. F. A. Currier, W. J. Daly, Preston Pond, E. J. Rich.

The meeting then dissolved.

Bishop of Canterbury Not to be Present.

The Bishop of Canterbury, England, announces that he will be unable to be present and assist in laying the corner stone of the new Episcopal Church in October. This announcement is certain to cause disappointment to the many who had allotted on the Bishop's presence on that occasion. No date can be set for that important event as the Bishop of the diocese is unable at the present time to set a date because of the convention that is to be held in Boston during October.

Winchester Golf Club Meets Defeat.

At the Tyngs island links, Lowell, last Saturday afternoon the Vesper golfers defeated the Winchester, 64 to 7. There were 28 players on a side and they had to play lively to get through before dark. Only three of the visitors scored. The scoring was by points—one for each of two rounds of nine holes and one for the match.

Democratic Caucus.

A caucus of the Democrats was held in the small Town Hall, Tuesday evening. The attendance was small, and aside from electing delegates to the several conventions there was no other business transacted, nor discussion on the political outlook for this fall. Dr. C. F. McCarthy, chairman of the Town Committee, called the caucus to order and read the call. Later he was chosen permanent chairman and James H. Roach secretary. On motion, Messrs. John H. Carter, J. F. O'Connor and H. D. Nash were appointed by the chair to bring in a list of delegates to the different conventions, and later they reported the following who were unanimously elected:

State Convention—H. T. Schaefer, John H. Carter.

Congressional—A. H. Russell, J. T. Cosgrove.

Councillor—Ferd. F. French, J. E. Flynn, D. L. Smith.

County—T. S. Spurr, W. J. Daly, P. G. Gray.

Senatorial—Dr. J. L. French, C. F. McCarthy, J. F. O'Connor.

Representative—E. M. O'Connor, M. E. O'Leary, J. H. Roach.

Town Committee for 1905—C. J. McCarthy, J. H. Carter, E. M. O'Connor, J. T. Cosgrove, G. H. Larivee, J. H. Roach, M. S. Nelson.

On motion of Mr. J. H. Carter the number of members composing the town committee was reduced from fifteen to seven, the reason given for this being the difficulty in securing a quorum of the members to attend meetings.

Winn-Stover.

Announcements were received this week of the marriage of Mr. Harry Tufts Winn of this town and Miss Flora Alice Stover of Cape Neddick, Maine. The ceremony occurred on Monday, Sept. 26th, at York, Me., and Mr. and Mrs. Winn will be at home to their friends after December 1st, at Fairview place, Winchester. Both the bride and groom are well known in town and have the good wishes of hosts of friends.

A Large Registration.

Last Friday evening the Registrars of Voters received applications from thirty four men who desire to act in the respective party caucuses. This is a goodly number and an indication that the voting list will receive many new names of persons who intend to vote at the November election.

Scene from THE OTHER GIRL, now playing at the Park Theatre, Boston.

Brightest Comedy of the Season— "The Other Girl" is a Real Delight.

Charles Frohman's production of Augustus Thomas' latest play "The Other Girl" which commenced a limited engagement Monday evening at the Park Theatre, has made one of the greatest laughing successes ever seen in Boston. This was no more than to be expected, as the play kept New York theatregoers in a roar the entire season last year, and proved such a big success that Charles Frohman continued its run at his three leading theatres there. The comedy has proven to be the best play Augustus Thomas has ever written and his list of successes is already large, for theatregoers remember with much delight, his "Alabama," "Arizona," and "On the Quiet." "The Other Girl" contains all the elements of wit that made Mr. Thomas' other plays so successful in Boston.

In "The Other Girl," Mr. Thomas introduces to the stage, a new and thoroughly refreshing character, that of a physical culturist, whose use of the slang that goes with the pugilistic profession equals any of the efforts of George Ade. This unique character is introduced into select society of New York's Fifth Avenue, and the manner in which he upsets the upper strata by his unconventional manner of speech and actions, lead to the entanglements and the merriment.

One of the most interesting features of the performance is the appearance of Lionel Barrymore in the role of the pugilist. This characterization has served to bring him to the foremost of all the Barrymores now on the stage, and his performance was looked upon as one of the most artistic portrayals of the season last year in New York. Beautiful young Mabel Roebuck, who made such a hit with William Faversham last year in Boston, plays the part of the delightful "other girl," while Charles Frohman in the other roles of the play has sent to Boston one of the most noted cast of comedians ever associated together. They include Lionel Barrymore, Richard Bennett, Frank Burbeck, Ralph Delmore, Wallace Eddinger, Mabel Roebuck, Grace Henderson, Doris Keane, Francis Byrne, Maggie Fielding, Frederick Raymond, Joseph Whiting, Ida Greeley-Smith, and Lou Middleton.

Merry from end to end, keeping the audience in a continual laughter from start to finish, this latest girl on the stage promises to endure herself to New England theatregoers as has no other, and unquestionably the Park Theatre will be crowded during the run of this piece as it deserves to be.

Miss Pilar Zamora is of especial interest just now because she is in charge of the model school on the Philippine Reservation at the St. Louis Fair, and has been largely instrumental in the collection of exhibits for the educational display at the Exposition. She is a native Filipino, about twenty-five years old. She graduated from the Colegio de Santa Rosa, a Jesuit institution. After American occupation she took an English course, graduating in 1902, and assuming charge of the Santa Cruz school in Manila. Later she was transferred to the Manila Normal College. Miss Zamora believes thoroughly in having American methods and the American language instituted in the islands for the education of the natives.

Dr. Esther Woodman Taylor is dead at Wells, Me., aged about seventy years. For many years she practised in Boston. She was a veteran member of the Daughters of the American Revolution, having been associated with Old South Chapter. After giving up her practice, Mrs. Taylor made her home with her daughter, Mrs. Charles F. Goodhue of Brookline. Dr. Taylor was a partner of Dr. Sarah A. Colby for many years in Boston. Dr. Colby died not long ago. They made their home for some year in Dorchester, and were highly esteemed by their friends and neighbors. They were among the earliest women physicians in New England.

For Civic Improvement.

The importance of the work done by women in behalf of civic improvement and outdoor art is meeting with a hearty, if somewhat belated, appreciation from associations of architects, landscape gardeners and artists. The Municipal Art Society of New York City has lately placed women on its most important committees. Mrs. Edward Hagaman Hall is chairman of the committee on flowers, vines and area planting; Miss Carmelita Beckwith is chairman of the committee on membership, and Mrs. Gabrielle Townsend Stewart is secretary of the society.

Facing the Hudson, on the west side of New York City, is a piece of condemned land awaiting improvement, ironically called De Witt Clinton Park. The most vivid imagination could not have conceived a more desolate spot than this was in the summer of 1902. The idea of a farm in that unfavorable spot might have made the inquirer slightly skeptical; but had he stayed to see the changes wrought by the school farm were little short of marvellous. The children's ready hands, assisted by those of older brothers and sisters, and by workmen from the park department of Manhattan, accomplished wonders. Stones and rubbish vanished. The hard earth yielded to the plough and harrow. Load after load of rich loam was brought. A fence inclosed the selected space. Walks were laid out, and plots marked, and after days of earnest work, the "farm" was ready to receive the seed. Twenty-five children filed in at the gate and received a practical lesson in planting from the gardener. Teachers meanwhile registered names and properly tagged each "farmer." These tags, upon each of which the name of the child and the number of the plot assigned were registered, were certificates of ownership to be presented at the gates as a pass to enter. The lesson over, the children marched to their respective plots and planted the seeds given to them as they had been shown how to do by the gardener. New groups followed them, and soon in that desert waste rose an oasis of living green, orderly, neat and picturesque—the first children's school farm in New York City, conceived and directed by Mrs. Henry Parsons, a member of the local school board of the Eleventh School District of Manhattan.

The Kaiser Off Duty.

Perhaps an insight into Emperor William's character can be better gained during his long cruise to Norway than at any other time, for it is then that he throws off all the restraints imposed on him by costume and lives as he would really like to live. That the emperor is the "boss" of the yacht there is no doubt. It amuses him to go poking about among the machinery, and he even pays frequent visits to the kitchen to watch the cooks and perhaps take a hand himself in the preparation of the food. Those who have had the privilege of being present on such an occasion say it is a great sight to see his majesty ascend from the kitchen to the upper deck with a plate of pork and beans and mashed peas, sit down on a little chair with the plate between his knees and proceed to polish off its contents with evident relish and a tin spoon.—[Everybody's Magazine.

"Tis Pity, 'Tis 'Tis True."

One of the leading suburban papers published within a few miles of Boston, publishes a long editorial in which it severely scores the residents of its particular town for their lack of interest in town affairs. It is claimed that a large class of citizens do not take any part in town meetings and make no effort to control or regulate the town's finances, although they are ready at all times to criticize the manner in which the business affairs of the town are conducted.

This brings up a question which is of interest to all suburban residents. Is it not true that there is danger of the citizens of the smaller places around Boston becoming so absorbed in the affairs of the metropolis, where in many cases their business interests are located, that they neglect the affairs of their home towns? Many suburbanites appear to regard it as a waste of time to attend town meetings or primaries. This, however, is a tendency which ought to be overcome, for every suburban resident owes it to himself and the community in which he lives to display his loyalty and public interest by all means in his power. It is in this way only that the tax rates of suburban towns can be kept down and the beautiful attractive environments of Boston kept from danger of deterioration. As it is now, in too many instances, the affairs of the smaller places are left in the hands of political jobbers and cheap politicians, who run matters to suit their own sweet wills. The voters of wealth and business acumen are too apt to hold themselves aloof from any contact with this class and so miss the opportunity to impress their influence and personality upon the conduct of town affairs. This, of course, is not universally the case, for there are many prominent men about Boston who take an active part in the politics of their particular suburb, but the tendency unfortunately is in the direction which we have mentioned, and is contrary to the democratic principles on which our system of government is founded. A model administration of the business affairs of any town or city, whether it be large or small, can be secured only by co-operation and active effort on the part of the more conservative element. All this is somewhat trite, perhaps, but the sermon is one which must be preached over and over again until its force and meaning are felt.—The Suburban.

A New Profession for the American Boy.

What line of life-work shall I take up, is the question which many a young American is asking himself. He finds that the professions of law and medicine are overcrowded already. The ministry does not appeal to him and he feels that he is not adapted to business. Has the new profession, the profession of scientific agriculture, ever been presented to his thoughts? If he has any liking for the things of Nature, any executive ability, if he is resourceful and energetic, if he wants to do things on a large scale and has health and persistence, there is a profession which offers a multitude of advantages. Scientific agriculture differs as much from the old style of farming as the modern lay-making apparatus differs from the rake which the poet placed in the hands of the fair Maid Muller. We call it a new profession, because it has been developed within a few years and for that matter, is still in process of development. It is a most fascinating profession, and is fast becoming a lucrative one. In order to take it up one must be prepared for years of study, for the training of the up-to-date farmer must be as thorough and cover almost as wide a range as that of the lawyer or the physician. It includes science, physics, mathematics, botany, languages, geology, and many other branches. The properly-equipped agriculturist of the present day must be able to analyze the soil on his farm, to understand hybridization, to know how to make two blades of grass grow where but one grew before—to be, in short, a scientist as well as a farmer. And for the properly-equipped young agriculturist, there is a wide and most satisfactory, as well as attractive, field of endeavor.—[The Suburban.

Clara Barton and the Red Cross.

Forty years ago, in the terrible days of our Civil War, Clara Barton was one of the volunteer army nurses who were almost worn out by the untold and unsystematic efforts to relieve the sick and wounded soldiers. Then followed travels in strange and foreign lands in other wars and illness and suffering. Eleven years later she came back to our government with the treaty of Geneva asking it to join other governments in the work of relief. Five years of hard, continuous labor were spent in the effort. At length in 1881, President Garfield and his cabinet—Blaine, Windom, and Robert T. Lincoln—became interested, and the American Red Cross was organized with Clara Barton as its president. Michigan, Ohio, Tennessee, Arkansas, Louisiana and Mississippi were secured in 1883 and 1884.

The Texas famine of 1885, the Mount Vernon cyclone of 1888, the Florida yellow fever of 1887, the Johnstown flood of 1879, the Sea Island relief of 1893, and the Gayeston deluge of 1903, successively called for the organization and distribution of personal and pecuniary aid. Nor these alone. In 1891 Russia was crushed by famine; in 1896 the starving Armenians, pushed by thousands from massacre and pillage; in 1898 the Cuban reconcentrados were dying of starvation. To each and all of these the Red Cross came as an angel from heaven. "The wreckage has been cleared away, the stricken people have been wisely and tenderly guided out of panic and despair to self-help and cooperative efforts, shattered homes and broken fortunes have been repaired; and then the Red Cross has retired as quietly as it came." Few outside of the people immediately concerned, have realized the beneficent powers of help and healing that have fallen like a benediction upon the victims of misfortune wherever that sacred symbol of humanity has made its way.

Took a Trip in a Prairie Schooner.

Mr. Herbert M. Taylor, son of Mr. N. H. Taylor who has spent the past four months on an immense farm in Kansas, writes home that he expects to return to Winchester about the middle of October. Mr. Taylor reports a very interesting and enjoyable stay in Kansas. He says in part:

"Since I wrote you last I have been down to a town called Custer in Oklahoma. Four of us left Medicine Lodge in a 'Prairie Schooner' and were on the road five days and traveled a distance of one hundred and seventy-five miles. I would not miss the trip for anything and the scenery was beautiful. Some of the hills were very high and were very hard on the horses. They do not have what they call roads, but we were on a trail all the time during our trip. While there we had a fine time and saw a little of the country.

"The town has a store and a blacksmith shop; it also has a population of seventy-five people, so you see it is rather small. We were forty miles from the nearest railroad and only eight miles from the Texas line. The climate there is mild and the nights are cool." Mr. Taylor expects to visit the St. Louis fair on his return home.

Destructive March of the Gypsy Pest.

Readers of the STAR for many months have been served with a generous diet of gypsy and brown-tail moths. It has been dished up hot, then cold and again as a reminder on the "side." This has been done for the purpose of awakening the people to the annoying and destructive nature of these pests with the hope that some efforts be taken to keep them down. It would be a waste of words to say that the gypsy can be utterly exterminated by the present methods; all that can be done is to keep it down and if possible prevent its spread. As long as the moth does not walk into our houses and destroy everything in sight, then we care but little. The moment, however, it does acquire a foothold then we quickly realize the great evil of the pest and are ready to do things that might have been done before to better advantage and at a much less expenditure of time and money. The gypsy moth will eat anything that is green, even glass, it is believed.

Last winter Tree Warden Chamberlain warned a farmer over in the Hill District that he would have to watch out or else his fine grove of pine trees would be destroyed by the gypsies. "Nonsense," he said. "Who ever heard of any species of caterpillar that would eat pine needles. I don't take any stock in such an assertion." Last Saturday we visited that same grove and found almost every one of the trees dead or practically so. The work of destruction had all been done during the past summer, and the pest has now moved on to other woodlands green.

Some of the citizens have a vague idea of the amount of work that is being done by Tree Warden Chamberlain in trying to keep down the moth and in arousing public sentiment, but no doubt it is far short of what he is actually doing day after day, week after week, for the entire year.

In last week's STAR he invited the citizens to meet him Saturday afternoon and inspect some of the moth infested places in the Hill District, point out the nests and give instructions as to the best way to destroy them. Interest was shown in the matter by the presence of four persons besides the Tree Warden and including a representative of the STAR. One of the interested parties was Mr. E. A. Start, Sec. of the Mass. Forestry Association. The start was made from the Country Club, and from there on to the top of the hill there was scarcely a tree to be seen that did not contain nests of the eggs of the gypsy moth. The trees surrounding the cottage of Mr. W. H. W. Bicknell were literally covered with the nests, even the stone walls and the sides of the house containing unknown numbers. The Folsom estate is the stamping ground for the pest. Old tumble down buildings and stone walls affording excellent breeding places. The difficulty of stamping out the pest is because it will breed anywhere. In an old tomato can were seen nests that will bring out hundreds of caterpillars next spring, and they in turn will give birth to thousands more the following spring.

It seems a hopeless task to fight the moth as it has spread almost completely over the town, and Tree Warden Chamberlain is getting discouraged. Winchester is not rich enough to even keep the pest down within its borders, and it is doubtful if even the State can find the money to do it.

Mr. Chamberlain will be pleased at almost any time to take parties of citizens into the worst sections of the infested districts, just as he did last Saturday. It affords a most pleasant and invigorating tramp and in addition affords an instructive object lesson that is certain to be useful in the future.

Officer Dotten Surprised.

Police Officer T. P. Dotten was treated to a surprise at his home on Reservoir street Monday evening on the occasion of his birthday. He says that his wife was a party to the scheme, although she pretends ignorance of the whole affair. However this may be, the front door was left open intentionally or otherwise so that at 8 o'clock the thirty or more persons easily gained an entrance to the house and marched right up to his den and later taking complete possession of the house. Mr. Dotten has set aside in the house a room which he calls his den and this he was furnishing with all the accessories for an easy life when at home. The guests brought many things for this den—pipes, tobacco, cigar holder, ornaments, etc., one of the latter being a china dog tagged. "Don't keep in solitary confinement." This was a take off on the dog recently found in the vacant house at Hillcrest belonging to a man who was stealing a looking glass therein. One pipe was a huge affair with a stem a yard long. Singing by a quartette, music, games, ice cream, cake, etc., rounded out a most enjoyable evening, the intruders departing for their homes at about midnight. Mr. Dotten thanks them for the numerous gifts.

Sour Stomach.

When the quantity of food taken is too large or the quality too rich, sour stomach is likely to follow, and especially so if the digestion has been weakened by constipation. Eat slowly and not too freely of easily digested food. Masticate the food thoroughly. Let five hours elapse between meals, and when you feel a fullness and weight in the region of the stomach after eating, take Chamberlain's Stomach and Liver Tablets and the sour stomach may be avoided. For sale by O'Connor's Pharmacy.

OLD JUNK

By FRANCES McELRATH

Copyright, 1904, by Frances McElrath

"I SHOULD like to know any man that has a better right to charity than old Thomas White. He's done his part taking care of the county for forty years, and now I say he may go to the poorhouse holding up his head like a man—like a man, sir."

Old Reuben Marsh could advocate another's dependency as he stood secure behind the counter of his own shop. The notion shop was tiny, and the income derived from it was meager, but it afforded support for Reuben's simple household, and it meant all the sweetness of independence to the old man.

"I shall contribute willingly to Thomas White's support," he said, his voice rising to a shrill crack of emphasis. Then he peered closely at the paper in his hand. "This is my order, John," he said to the bright-faced young traveling man to whom he was talking. "Have the stationery here by next week. Good morning, John."

Kathie came out of the sitting room behind the little shop. She waved her hand lightly to Reuben as she tripped across the floor. John Tracy opened the door for her, and they walked together down the street.

John turned his speculative business seeing eyes on the window of the notion shop as they passed it.

"Your grandfather ought really to make a hauls me thing out of his business way up at this end of town," he remarked, "but he's growing rather too shipshape in his methods lately. He keeps his goods packed away so carefully no one knows any more what he has for sale. But I expect," he said, turning to his companion, "you'll be looking out for that end of the business when you finish school."

Kathie's pretty face flushed pink. "I must leave you here, John. Good-by," she said.

She walked away briskly up the hill to the boarding house beside the girls' college. It was almost time for the college term to begin, and she knew that Jennie Fry was coming over from Nestor that afternoon to secure her room for the year.

Jennie met her at the boarding house door.

"Oh, Kathie," she exclaimed as they embraced, "indeed I'll say he can get it for you. As soon as you graduate at Christmas you must make your application."

"How splendid!"

"You shall have such good times together," said Jennie, administering an anticipative hug. "I'm sure you'll like Nestor much better than Bliton."

"Couldn't help it," agreed Kathie. "Well, that's all I came for. I must run home again now and tell grandpa and Aunt Mary about it."

A little later when Kathie entered the sitting room behind the shop she found her aunt standing at the window holding a letter.

"Aunt Mary," Kathie began, "I know something new."

Mary turned toward her. There was an unusual flush on her face.

"Did father tell you?" she asked.

"About?"

"About Preston."

"Preston?"

"Yes. He's got a short letter to come home, and he wants me to go back to him with him at once."

"Why, Aunt Mary?"

"Where is he, Kathie, next Monday?"

"You mean?" Kathie gathered her aunt's slip from into her anxious young embrace. Mary Marsh's engagement had been a matter of such long standing her family had almost forgotten that it might ever terminate in a wedding.

Mary's preparations absorbed the household until the wedding took place. Kathie managed the simple wedding. She was lately developing a considerable faculty for managing. Old Reuben, dressed in a well brushed ancient suit of black, gave his daughter away.

He looked across the table at Kathie as they were eating supper together the night after Mary left home.

"Well, Kathie," he observed, "so you're the only one I have left now to take care of."

"Oh, grandpa," she returned earnestly, "I'm not going to be a burden on your hands! Indeed, I'm going to take care of you instead! I don't mean that you shall work much longer."

Reuben smiled indulgently. "There's a good deal of work left in the old man yet," he replied proudly.

"That may be, but you're not going to do it. As soon as I graduate at Christmas time I'm going to make you close your shop."

Reuben laid down his knife and fork. "Hey!" he said reprovingly.

Kathie colored. "I mean," she explained, "that Jennie Fry's uncle says he can get me a position in the new school that's to be opened in Nestor the 1st of February, and then—"

"Then I shall be sorry to lose you, my dear," Reuben broke in, with dignified asperity. "But if it's for your happiness—"

"Why, of course, grandpa, you'll come with me! I want to take care of you now."

Reuben's steady blue eyes looked quietly at Kathie.

"I've supported this family during three generations," he said. "I've always been hardworking. When I was a boy at sea I supported my father and mother. Then when I settled down I had my own family to raise, and then—"

"And then after father died you took care of mother and me. Yes, indeed, grandpa, you've taken care of every one. You have certainly earned the right to be taken care of yourself now."

"I have certainly earned the right to go on taking care of myself," quavered the old man in retort.

Kathie said no more. She never had argued with her grandfather. Of course she could not leave him. "I'll have to give up the school," she thought disconsolately.

The college opened the day after Mary Marsh's wedding, and Reuben was up at daybreak polishing his little shop into shining brightness. The college was largely attended this term, and he had laid in a proportionately large supply of goods.

The old man's memory was failing slightly. As Kathie went through the shop on her way out to college she saw him peering into various boxes carefully, noting their contents before customers should come in.

Her intention was to tell Jennie Fry that she must give up all idea of the Nestor school, but it was a hard thing to do, and when as she was opening the subject Jennie gave her a squeeze and began talking of how Kathie must join the musical club at Nestor her heart quite failed. "We'll play duets together," said Jennie.

"Yes," Kathie agreed slowly, "but—do you really think grandpa would be happy there?"

"Why, certainly," asserted Jennie. "There's the dearest little house back of ours that I'm sure you can get. It has a garden that your grandfather will just love."

"Kathie," Miss Rome, one of the teachers, called. "Here, my dear," she said pleasantly when Kathie reached her desk, "is a list of the stationery we shall need through the term. Please see to getting it."

Kathie took the list and went out. She started mechanically for her grandfather's shop, but after going a few blocks she suddenly stopped. Then she turned abruptly in the opposite direction and walked very fast to Sam Green's large department store in the far end of town.

"Mr. Green," she said, "Miss Rome wants these things for the college."

Sam looked over the list.

"Why, Miss Kathie," he replied surprisedly, "I can fill the order, of course, but I usually leave things of this sort for your grandfather's trade."

"Well, Mr. Green," Kathie's heart was beating rapidly with a new determination she had made. "I'm not working up grandpa's trade now," she said. "In fact, as soon as I graduate in December I'm going to take the school in Nestor and make him give up working."

Reuben waited expectantly for the large order of stationery supplies for the college to come in. He was in the habit of receiving this order every fall, and he had come to regard it as a regular source of income. After a week went by he mentioned the matter to Kathie. She evaded his questioning eyes as she answered him.

"They got the supplies from Sam Green this fall."

"Indeed?" Reuben uttered a note of indignation. "Oh, well," he said, cheerfully, "I'm not going to expect to get out of them any more."

"My dear," he said as Kathie was starting away next morning, "if the opportunity comes you might let the young ladies know that I've an exceptionally fine assortment of lace and veils this season."

The girls did not come to buy his veils. Kathie, however, adorned speaking of them. In fact, she diverted such bits of trade as she knew of to the other stores.

As the days went by Reuben's anger faded into a grievous new to him. He was not selling his goods, and that meant he was not supporting his household. The little shop did not yield large enough profits to keep anything aside.

"Don't worry, grandpa, if you do go a little into debt," Kathie said one evening. "If it seems best after all for me to take the Nestor school I can easily make something from my salary to pay up here."

Reuben gave a little smile. Presently he got up and took an old iron chest from under a shelf. The iron chest was closely associated with his days of vigorous manhood.

Kathie watched him. "Grandpa's falling," she declared. And she told herself that it was well that just at the right moment she had been able to take matters into her own hands. She would not acknowledge to herself that her determined young will, overmastering her grandfather's, was breaking him.

"Grandpa," she said, looking up from her studies one evening, "there's the dearest little house that Jennie says we can get at Nestor. It has a lovely garden for your flowers next summer."

Reuben made no reply. He did not look at Kathie. He sat with his eyes fixed on his compass. All at once he made a last desperate move to hold the ground which was shifting from under his feet. He got up, put on his hat and coat, tucked his compass under his arm and went out. Kathie called after him, but he did not answer.

Not an hour he returned, however, still carrying his compass. He set it upon the table, still with a pathetic little smile. "I guess," he said, pointing to the instrument, "that we've gone out of fashion together. Sam Green says it would only sell for old junk. I thought maybe if I could raise some money with it I'd put an advertisement for the shop in the newspaper."

"Now, don't you worry about that shop any more, grandpa," Kathie cried excitedly. "Just sit down here by the fire and drink that hot milk."

Reuben took the cup obediently. He drank the milk, but he did not relish it much.

Kathie was a good scholar. She graduated with honors just before the holidays. The 1st of January she was to go to Nestor to make final arrangements about the school and to engage the little house she and Jennie Fry had spoken of so often. The day before she planned to go to Nestor Jennie came in to talk matters over.

Reuben, hearing the girls talking, had slipped into the sitting room from his shop and listened to the conversation. He had been quite dropped out of family consultations lately.

After Jennie left Reuben went slowly away again to his shop. Kathie was looking at a little later when she heard the shop door bell ring. The bell rang whenever the door was opened. Presently it rang again. "Grandpa seems to be having customers," thought Kathie. She was surprised a moment later to hear a third ring. Not long after there came a fourth ring, then a fifth.

"Well," quavered Kathie.

She hid down her work and, opening the sitting room door on a crack, peeped into the shop. She could not see the customers, but her grandfather was talking to them animatedly.

"Who are the people?" thought Kathie. "Yes, sir," Reuben was saying. "Just one moment, please, until I wait on this gentleman. Yes, indeed, take it to the light and examine it. Now, madam, this is the simplest. Here is the very thing not a shade of difference. You'll have three yards of the wide? Yes, yes, madam, I'm pretty busy. You see, I'm alone just now. My grandfather has stepped out on an errand, but she'll be in presently and help wait on my customers. Oh, indeed, she helps in the shop considerably. We keep our little business together. Kathie's a good girl, a very capable girl, and she turned to with a will to wait on the customer who had just entered. Yes, madam, she's by her old grandfather. She remembered how he had stood by her ever since she was a little mite. Yes, we've always lived in this house. You see, I am too old to go away now. An old man is like a tree with deep roots. He can't be uprooted easily. And so we're going to stick to the little shop still. There, madam, is your parcel. Now, what can I do for you, sir?"

Kathie's face was a study of scarlet bewilderment.

"Who is grandpa talking to?" she murmured, and, with curious curiosity, she stuck her head quite into the shop.

Save for Reuben it was empty. The old man, standing behind his counter, holding up this article and that, trying on neckties, opening boxes, chattering away conversationally, was waiting on a shopful of purely imaginary customers.

Kathie realized the soul of the situation with a hard pang. The scolding tears spring to her eyes.

"It's a tragedy," she said.

With a little sob she softly closed the door and ran to her own room. She threw on her things and hurried out of the house by the back way. She had seen John Tracy, the young drummer from whom her grandfather bought goods, on the street that morning.

"John," she called, "he'll help me," she thought.

John was readily found at Sam Green's. After talking with him a few minutes Kathie hurried back home.

There had been a long bill in the ring of the shop bell, but after awhile it began again, once, twice, three times.

Kathie dropped her work excitedly and ran into the shop.

Her grandfather had fallen into a quiet reverie. When the bell rang he looked across the counter, but after awhile his expression, John Tracy and two other men had come in, but old Reuben fancied them his customers still the creatures of his recent dream. It was not until John spoke that he roused up.

"What afternoon, Mr. Marsh," John said brightly. "I've brought some of my friends around to look at your neckties. I expect we'll all want a few of them."

"Hey!" said old Reuben. "Ah, yes, yes," he turned to the shelves bewildered.

"Here they are, grandpa," said Kathie at his elbow. "And, see, there come Sallie Vane and Nettie Thurston. They want some veils, I know. Oh, see what a lot of people are coming!"

All that afternoon until dark the shop bell kept ringing. Kathie stood at her grandfather's side measuring goods and showing articles. Some of the people that came in bought goods; some merely asked to see them.

"Go to Marsh's, anyhow," John told every one he met. "Even if you just look at something. It will encourage the old fellow."

When the shutter was set up at 6 o'clock Kathie threw her strong, penitent arms about Reuben's neck.

"Grandpa," she cried, "trade's picking up. We can never leave this, of course. Why, we'd always feel that we'd risked a fortune if we left here now for Nestor. I'll write Mr. Fry tonight that we can't possibly give up our business for the school. There are forty teachers he can get instead of me."

Reuben's face was like a ruddy old apple when he blew out the shop lamp and walked into the sitting room for supper.

"No need of your leaving home to teach school," Kathie, chuckling, he chuckled cheerfully. "I'll just pilot this craft for us both awhile longer."

"And I'll just keep my hand on the rudder and do what I can to make it go straight," thought Kathie, planning how she and John should dress up the shop window the next day.

The Path to Success.

The way to succeed in this world is to make yourself worthy of success. The day has passed for tooting your own horn. If you have real merit you will do your work well, and if you do your work well others will find it out. The world is always looking for men of brains and character, for men of honesty and industry, for men who can do things.

If we were allowed to slung but one song it would be to the young. The future is calling to the youth of today. There are battles for liberty to be fought in the forum and in the field, battles perhaps greater than the world has before known. The generation now growing into manhood and womanhood will have to bear the brunt in these contests. What an inspiring prospect, what an opportunity to serve God and humanity!

The instincts and impulses of youth in the main are right. They have not yet been warped and blunted in the sordid and unnatural struggle for wealth. Trust to them, young men. Follow the highest that is in you; dare to be noble, dare to be true to the Christ ideal and dare to stand by the cause of the future even though in a minority. Look ahead. The new idea of today, even though ridiculed, becomes the dominant thought of tomorrow. Do not play the game of life in a petty way. Have confidence enough in yourself to aim high and then prepare yourself, drill yourself, drive yourself, work yourself night and day to reach that aim.

If you want to learn to write well or speak well, if you want to improve your thought and your character, if you want to be well grounded in right principles both as to yourself and as to society, read the four gospels. If you study them and get them in your heart, there is in them a world of education. Do not make the mistake of looking lightly at Christ. He is the best friend a young man has. He was himself young in years even at the time of his death. Do not be ashamed to be right, to conduct yourself that you gain the approval of your own soul.

Be noble, be noble, be noble! Do not look at yourself or the world meanly. Both are what you make them. They are full of light and God and heaven if you think them so. Life has a stairway, if you find it, an endless stairway leading up to infinite distance and glory, and the height to which you mount depends upon yourself alone.

You are fortunate enough to have been born in the greatest age of the world's history. Never was there such an opportunity to do things as now. Would you take up mechanical work? Technical schools on every side and tools the most perfect ever known. Do you aspire to go into literature? What a wealth of material on which to write! Would you serve your country? You will have opportunities undreamed of ere many years.

But to do any of these things you must prepare. No half hearted work will go. You must be ready to throw your whole soul into the game.

In the Days of the Samurai.

Some of the stories that come from Japan seem as neat and dainty as their paintings, their landscapes and their geisha girls. Here is one, from a recent American book on that country that partakes both of the neat and the heroic. Every one admires an artistic piece of work, even and especially if it deals with the foiling of an assassin. Such was the device of a powerful samurai whose enemies were pressing him hard. It was in the stormy days of the shogunate.

He had been hunted day and night, but had successfully evaded his pursuers and was resting at a wayside inn. All was quiet and peaceful as he sat alone in a room drinking his tea and planning his way through the tangled thicket of his enemies. A foot from where he sat and almost grazing the edge of the tray before him, a spearhead glided swiftly and silently up through the mat. Almost before it had ceased its upward leap and the samurai had the cooling teacup in his hand and was pouring a thin stream of unknown water over the spearhead and down the shaft. Then he tranquilly resumed his tea, knowing that the enemy in the dark below, satisfied that he had felt the blood of his victim trickling down the shaft, would do no more.

Is there any wonder that the Japs get the better of the lion worshipping and thick witted Russians?

The melancholy days are almost here and the voice of the spellbinder will be heard in our land, which is why the days will be more melancholy than usual.

A Hindu recently said that whenever he views our civilization he is glad he is a heathen. He must have been reading about New York's Four Hundred.

Kipling's poem on Chamberlain contains the refrain: "Once on a time there was a man." Would this indicate that Joseph is a has been?

A medical journal says that laziness is a disease—the most widespread and destructive disease known to man.

Dogmatism is egotism; liberalism is simply a concession that others may be right as well as yourself.

It is reported that there is to be a mirror trust. Smash it.

MAGNETIC SURGERY.

Steel Splinters Drawn From Eyes by Electricity.

A gigantic electro magnet, the largest of its kind in the world, for surgical operations has just been installed in the X ray room of the Bridgeport (Conn.) hospital. By its use in optical surgery it is expected that sight will be saved to many human eyes. Workers in steel frequently have minute particles of the metal deeply imbedded in their eyes, and many cases have been found that have baffled the skill of the surgeons and resisted the force of the most powerful magnets so far devised.

While the new magnet is the same as all other magnets in the manner of its working, it surpasses in power all other magnets ever made for such purposes. It is five feet high and weighs a quarter of a ton. The steel core is five inches in diameter, and around this core is wound two miles of No. 8 copper wire, making the total diameter as large around as a common wooden water pipe or nail keg. An electric current sufficiently powerful to energize it made it necessary to place a special wire circuit from the electric generator.

When it is desired to operate, the patient stands by the side of the magnet with the affected eye resting on a small brass support, the eye just clearing the point of the magnet.

If there is a particle of steel in the patient's eye he is very likely to shudder, jump from the magnet and clasp his hand to his eye, for the magnet has drawn the steel up through the lens, and it is exposed to the view of the oculist. With a slight operation now the particle is removed.

How far the magnetic influence of this instrument extends has not been defined as yet, but from the way the watches of the physicians and the attendants about the hospital believe it is thought that it extends throughout the entire hospital, which covers two blocks of ground.

HEALTHFUL FOODS.

Fruits and Vegetables Better Than Medicine For Many Diseases.

Celery is invaluable as a food for those suffering from any form of rheumatism, for diseases of nerves and nervous dyspepsia.

Lettuce relieves those suffering from insomnia.

Water cross is a remedy for scurvy. Peanuts alleviate indigestion. They are especially recommended for corpulent diabetics. Peanuts are made into a wholesome and nutritious soup, are browned and used as coffee, are eaten as a relish simply baked or are prepared and served as salted almonds.

Onions are almost the best nerve tonic known. No medicine is so useful in cases of nervous prostration, and there is nothing else that will so quickly relieve and tone up a worn-out system. Onions are useful in all cases of coughs, cold and influenza, in consumption, insomnia, hydrophobia, scurvy, gravel and kindred liver complaints. Eat every other day they soon have a clearing and whitening effect on the complexion.

Asparagus is used to induce perspiration.

Carrots are good for nervous disorders and for scurvy.

Honey is wholesome, strengthening, cleansing, healing and nourishing.

Fresh ripe fruits are excellent for purifying the blood and toning up the system. As specific remedies, oranges are aperient. Sour oranges are highly recommended for rheumatism.

Cranberries for erysipelas are used externally as well as internally.

Lemons are excellent for feverish thirst in sickness, for biliousness, low fevers, rheumatism, coughs, colds, liver complaint, etc.

Blackberries as a tonic. Useful in all forms of diarrhea.

Tomatoes are a powerful aperient for the liver, a sovereign remedy for dyspepsia and indigestion. Tomatoes are invaluable in all conditions of the system in which the use of calomel is indicated.

Figs are aperient and wholesome. They are said to be valuable as food for those suffering from cancer, they are used externally as well as internally.

Apples are useful in nervous dyspepsia; they are nutritious, medicinal and vitalizing; they aid acidity of the stomach and are valuable in rheumatism, insomnia and liver troubles. An apple contains as much nutriment as a potato in a pleasant and more wholesome form.

The Gas Trust's Death Knell.

A Chicago chemist is experimenting with water and announces that he has discovered a method by which he can decompose it into its constituents at practically no cost. He says he is now perfecting his process. If he can do what he claims, the elements composing water will make light and heat many, many times cheaper than at present and may doom the gas trust.

KEROSENE OIL.

It Is Paraffin In Great Britain and Refined Petroleum Elsewhere.

Petroleum (petra, rock; oleum, oil) is a liquid bitumen exuding from rocks. Paraffin (parum, little; affinis, akin), discovered by Reichenbach in 1830, in investigating the tar produced in the distillation of wood, is a colorless wax-like solid, which he named from its extraordinary chemical indifference, its "little affinity" with anything. He afterward isolated from the same material a liquid oil, which he called eupion, "very fat." For years both were regarded merely as chemical curiosities until it was realized that eupion forms the body of petroleum.

Pure paraffin resembles spermaceti and is inodorous and tasteless. Paraffin oil is chiefly a mixture of fluid hydrocarbons, and as it approaches gas more closely than any other illuminating agent and is cheap it has come into general use. Illuminating oils manufactured from petroleum are sold in Great Britain as "paraffin oil," in the United States as "kerosene" and on the continent as "refined petroleum."—London Globe.

The Guillotine.

The striking thing about the execution was the appalling quickness of it all. Action was so rapid from the instant the condemned appeared in the doorway of the prison to the moment the knife fell that it was almost impossible to distinguish the slight chain of incidents. He flung himself eagerly against the plank, was strapped to it, and in the flash of a glance the plank was pushed forward on the platform of the guillotine. An instant's vision of a recumbent figure, face downward. In the same moment a head, with two staring, wide open eyes, whirled almost delicately, as it seemed, and with a slight zizzag movement, to the rightward, while simultaneously the pinioned body rolled, inert, convulsive, into the capacious basket, also at the right hand side of the guillotine. The swiftness, the mechanical promptness of the business, fairly stupefied the spectator. It was impossible to realize that a human life had ended in less time than it would take to draw a full breath. The guillotine had done its work well. There was scarcely a sense of horror in the sight.—London Standard.

LIVES IN A TREE.

How an Ohio Artist Is Carving Himself of Consumption.

Being nearly dead from consumption, Orin Steinberger, an artist, about forty years of age, built a home in the tree tops six miles south of this city and today is rapidly recovering from the disease, says an Urbana (O.) correspondent of the New York Herald.

For ten years Mr. Steinberger has been suffering with consumption. He went to Mexico and Arizona for his health and remained some time. He did not get any better and decided to return home. He was told that his death was only a question of a few months. He then decided to go to nature and live the life of the birds. He selected one of the largest and highest trees in the country and stated that he intended to make his residence among the branches until he was taken away dead or could walk away a healthy man.

For several months Steinberger has lived in his strange residence, and during that time he has gained in weight and the tan of health has returned to his face. His condition today compared with that of six months ago shows marvelous improvement. While he is not yet fully cured, he is rapidly regaining health.

Steinberger has constructed an odd rope swing or ladder which is operated by means of a block and tackle fastened to the branches. At one end is a seat, and by grasping another rope a visitor can draw himself up the trunk of the huge tree. Around the trunk, where the first large branch projects, a platform has been built large enough to hold twenty persons. On the platform Steinberger has fitted several large rooms, which is his home. One room is used for a studio, one for a dining room and kitchen and another as a bedroom. He has prepared an earthen fireplace, in which he can cook his meals, so that he does not have to descend for a thing.

On this platform Steinberger can be seen at almost any time in the day, painting in the open air, for the platform commands a view perhaps not equaled in that part of the state.

The tree in which Steinberger has made his home is 100 feet high.

One feature of his life which Steinberger has found particularly beneficial is the exercise of climbing trees. He has become an expert in tree climbing and is now able to get to the top of a seventy-five foot tree with a dexterity truly amazing.

TRACKLESS TROLLEY.

Only American System of Its Kind Will Operate in Massachusetts.

Hull, Mass., is to have the first and only trackless trolley system in the United States, says the Boston Journal. It will run from Nantasket point, a distance of two and a half miles, over the highway.

The trackless trolley is the latest system of passenger transportation and is in successful operation in Germany. It is nothing more than a number of electric automobiles running between given points on a regular schedule. Instead of the automobile carrying storage batteries to supply power to run the motors propelling the carriages the power is supplied by a double trolley, one wire carrying the negative and the other the positive current. The carriages can run all over the road, pass each other without interference and will be noiseless, clean and can be stopped almost instantly.

There has been much complaint over the operation of the trolley system in Hull. The railroad commissioners have been asked to remedy the difficulty and have failed to give satisfaction to the residents of the town. The trackless trolley will not come under their jurisdiction, and no rails need be laid. The highway commissioners may have a little something to say about how they shall use the road, however.

It was learned recently that the carriages to be used will seat forty people and will resemble very much the big automobile used by a Boston firm in touring the city.

Photographing on Linen.

Some interesting demonstrations have been carried out in London with a new photographic art material called "photolinol." This fabric is composed of linen, which is thoroughly permeated with the photograph, producing a unique effect obtained by this means is that the picture, when colored and viewed with a reflected light, bears a very strong resemblance to an oil painting, the lines of the weaving of the linen appearing similar to the canvas in the painting. Photolinol is waterproof and indestructible, while the photograph does not fade in the sun, as it appears to be woven into the material. The process is a secret one, but its commercial utility and value are already asserted, since it can be employed for curtains, screens or theatrical scenery.

WEDDINGS IN WALES.

Quaint Customs That Still Exist Among the Peasantry.

Some quaint customs still survive among the peasantry of south Wales—at least in the remote villages. One of the oddest is the "bidding." When a young man and woman are engaged a circular is printed, known as a "bidding letter," and distributed at market and outside the chapel on Sunday so that all may know of the event. The form is always the same and runs as follows:

As we intend to enter the matrimonial state we are encouraged by our friends to make a bidding on the occasion at the young man's father's house (here follow the address and date of the entertainment), when and where the favor of your good and agreeable company is most humbly solicited, and whatever donation you may be pleased to bestow on us will be thankfully received, warmly acknowledged and cheerfully repaid whenever called for on a similar occasion by your obedient servants,

JOHN EVANS,
JANE DAVIS.

All being ready on the day, a party goes to fetch the bride to the bidding. She hides and has to be sought for in all directions, but being at last found is escorted in triumph. Her procession is met by that of the bridegroom, and they all repair to the church, where the wedding ceremony takes place, after which all return to the groom's house to make merry and to count the gifts. These are generally in money and vary from a shilling up to half a sovereign.

Each item is carefully entered in a book by the "bidding clerk," together with the donor's name, so that it may be remitted when he or she marries. As all the money will probably not be called in for many years—some not at all, if the givers remain single—the young couple receive a tolerable start in life. Oddly enough, the bridegroom is expected to provide the kitchen clock and table, the glass cupboard and the kitchen dresser, also the bedstead. Each of the young people is supposed to bring half a dozen chairs, the bride's special contribution being the bedding, the crockery ware, the parlor table and a chest of drawers. Things are done methodically in that part of the world.—London Tit-Bits.

THOUGHTLESS WIT.

Wit that stings is akin to crime.

To hold up another to ridicule is not witty, but vulgar.

To laugh at another or to cause an other to be laughed at is common.

The merry laugh and the joke go round, but somewhere there is an ache.

There is no pest like him, this man whose thoughtless wit starts the laugh.

The man that makes others laugh at some one else's expense is always causing suffering.

To start a laugh is the ambition of some men. The how or the where, the why or the effect is never considered.

Wit is a joy forever so long as it does not base its success upon the misfortunes, the peculiarities, the weaknesses of men.

When a wit has to depend upon others' peculiarities for his subject matter it is time for him to close the "wit shop" and hang out the sign "To Let."—Indianapolis Sun.

Defining His Position.

Years ago there was a member of an eastern legislature named Murphy, a gold politician, but hardly a statesman. Indeed his notions of parliamentary order and debate were crude. He was so frequently out of order that the speaker got in the habit of crying as soon as Mr. Murphy rose, "The gentleman is out of order."

Once, in the midst of an important and exciting debate, he leaped to his feet. The house murmured, and the speaker brushed him aside with the usual remark, "The gentleman is out of order."

Murphy sat down, but presently he was on his feet again.

"Mr. President, I rise to a point of order. In justice I must explain that the thing I intended to say just now when you called me to order had nothing to do with what I did not say."

Birds' Nests.

In Scotland a naturalist has found a golden eagle's nest that contained a rubber ring, carried thither by the birds as an adornment. An observer in California has reported that a pair of golden eagles there decorated their nest with sacks. "When the kite builds look to lesser linen," says Shakespeare, alluding to the robberies committed by those birds from the hedges where linen was put to dry. The late Mr. Booth described a kind of bower made by some æsthetic eagles in Scotland.

His Planets.

A young gentleman was passing an examination in physics. He was asked, "What planets were known to the ancients?"

"Well, sir," he responded, "there were Venus and Jupiter and"—after a pause—"I think the earth, but I am not quite certain."—London Tit-Bits.

What might have been a serious accident occurred Saturday night on the Winchester and Medford line. The quarter car seven car from Winchester Center, just before it reached the Symmes corner turnout, broke the trolley wire opposite Madison avenue. The car could not be stopped till it had dragged the live wire about fifty feet. When the wire struck the front of the car there was a blinding flash and the terrified passengers thought for a moment that the Melrose disaster was to be repeated. There was a mud rush from the car, and by strange good fortune all stepped over instead of on the dead wire, which lay on the ground. The motorman, however, was the only one to receive a shock. With the assistance of some spectators the live wire was removed to one side of the road, where men were stationed to warn the people of the danger. All the cars going both ways were held up and the passengers were obliged to walk around the scene of the accident and take cars on the other side. In the meanwhile things were arranged so that the cars could, with a good start, shoot the intervening distance and place the trolley on the wire on the other side. About nine o'clock the tower wagon came from Woburn and a temporary wire was put up. The rain rendered this work very difficult and it was not completed till twelve o'clock.

Cross street from where it passes under the bridge of the Boston & Maine Railroad through to Main street at the Woburn line is in a most wretched condition as regards the road bed and sidewalks. Pedestrians for the greater part of the distance are obliged to walk in the street as there are no sidewalks. This is the only important street in town that is not macadamized, and it is used extensively for travel between this town and Woburn.

This inaction is a pretty good indication that the voters are pretty well satisfied with the present administration.

Reduced Prices on Slightly Used IVERS & POND PIANOS

We have a few desirable pianos of our own make that have had slight use in one way or another. We frequently loan new pianos for use at recitals or rent them to careful people; and sometimes have pianos returned from our dealers' warehouses. In many cases such slight use as the pianos have had is really an advantage, as the action and strings get thoroughly settled, and will wear and stand in tune better for it. Some of these can hardly be told from new. Easy payments; a list of our bargains in used pianos might interest you. Send for it.
